of the afternoon was the military demonstration in charge of Captain Beatty, aided by Sergeant Young. The visitors were showed the 37 mm. gun, the service rifle, the automatic rifle, the automatic pistol, the trench mortar, different types of grenades, and the machine gun. Captain Beatty also exhibited several old weapons of historical interest. An interesting feature of the demonstration was the laying of a smoke screen which completely obscured Fort Wysor.

The visitors were taken for a swim in the college pool before supper, and the program was concluded with the finals of the state track meet.

"ALL FOR P. C. P. C. FOR ALL"

JACOBS TO TELL P. C. STORY AT FIRST CHURCH

To Address Clinton's Presbyterians Sunday Morning On the New College Program.

NOT A PART OF MONEY-RAISING CAMPAIGN

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, will occupy the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church of Clinton on Sunday morning, May 17. His address on that occasion will take the place of the regular sermon by the pastor, Dr. D. J. Woods.

The event is of unusual importance to Presbyterian college. The First Presbyterian church of Clinton is the mother church of Presbyterian college. Its pastor and members founded the college and have been its greatest friends and supporters through the years.

It is significant, therefore, that Mr. Jacobs, head of the new administration of the college, is taking this opportunity to make a report of his stewardship to the members of the first Presbyterian church, and to report to the members the plans and program for the future of the college.

This address is not a part of the money-raising campaign, as no efforts will be made to solicit funds on that occasion, but rather to tell the story of the college and its theme of the future.

It is significant that Mr. Jacobs, himself a member and officer of the First Presbyterian church, is a grandson of Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, the first pastor of the church, and also the founder of the college, the story of which Mr. Jacobs will present on this occasion.

Y' Hears Mother's Day Talk By Jones

The Rev. E. S. Jones, of Goldville, peaking on the subject, "Mother of Mine," addressed a well-attended Y.M.C.A. meeting last Thursday night in the college chapel.

Mr. Jones spoke first of the greatest Mother the world has ever known. Jesus died as a criminal would die today, but his mother walked the "last mile" with him, stood within the shadow of the cross, yet loved him all the more. And just as Jesus' mother loved him, so our mothers love us today and will walk the "last mile" with us.

CURTAIN FALLS ON NINE MEN

Captain Bradley, Winget, Forehand, Hudson, Charles, Adams, Waldrep, Wilbanks, Guerard Perform For Last Time On Track.

(By Hugh Holman)

Nine Presbyterian college seniors participated in their last intercollegiate track meet when the Blue Hose met the cinder men from the University of Florida in Gainesville Saturday.

Captain Joe Bradley, South Carolina's fastest human and ace dash man, galloped the century and the 220 for the last time. Bradley this year has won every race that he has run, twice tying the state record of 9.7 seconds in the hundred and once breaking it. However, a still night air slashed mightily at his time in the state meet and ended his hopes of an official record when he outdistanced a fast field in ten seconds flat.

Jimmy Winget, dash and middle distance man, ran for the last time against the 'Gators. Winget has been suffering from a bad leg all season and has not turned in the time that he had hoped for, but he has accounted for a number of seconds in dual encounters.

Long, lean, lanky, four-letter man, Roy Forehand, who captured the half-mile crown and ran a phenomenal lap in the relay in the state fiesta, is loudly lamenting the end of a four-year record of excellent running. Prior to this season he has been forced to run a second to P. C.'s great middle distance man, Bill Clark, but this year he has stepped out to ably care for the half-mile and the mile. He has been defeated but once, by Green, of Clemson, in a dual meet.

P. C. lost two great little track men when Colin Hudson and Preston Charles completed the eighth lap to end their last two-mile for the Blue Hose Saturday. Both men, small in statue and mighty in leg and lung power, have trotted off the long jaunt for the Blue Hose with credit to themselves. Hudson has suffered from an injured foot this season and has entered but one dual meet and the state contest. Charles has pitted his small body against the best men in the South throughout the season, always getting a first or a second.

Miler Phil Adams has seen but two years of service on the Hose aggregation, but in those years has conducted himself with proper track decorum, running first or second against the South's best four-lap men.

Other men who experienced intercollegiate competition for the last time when the Blue Stockings met the 'Gators will be Frank Waldrep, high and low hurdler; Rex Wilbanks, shot, javeline and discus man; and Alan Guerard, broad jump artist.

BASEBALL MEN COME OUT OF PALMETTO LEAGUE CELLAR

Last Thursday afternoon on Young field, the Blue Stocking baseballers climbed another short rung out of the Palmetto league cellar by defeating The Citadel cadets by the score of 13-6.

The Cadets drew the first blood when two men crossed the plate in the second inning, but the Hose came back for revenge in the second half to score five runs and then another in the third for good measure.

In the seventh inning the cadets started a rally that netted three runs, but again the Hose sought revenge and chalked up six tallys. Citadel and P. C. got ten hits apiece.

P. C.'s 1936 baseball team closed its home season with a victory over the Carolina Gamecocks last Friday afternoon. After a hectic see-saw game, the Hose came out with a 11 to 10 victory by virtue of the home run that "Screw Arm" Suggs batted into the outfied in the last half of the ninth inning with two men on.

The fielding in the game was quite ragged on both teams, with P. C. a little worse than their opponents, but the Hosemen managed to come through in the pinch by some well-timed hitting to pull a lost game out of the bag.

RISING JUNIORS AND SENIORS PICK NEXT YEAR'S LEADERS

The class of '37 has completed the first race of their election. For each office there must be a run-off.

For president the two men chosen are Jim Collings and Ernest Evans; for vice-president, Dalton Mann and Joe Patrick; for secretary-treasurer, Harry Harvin and Walt Williams; for historian, Sadler Love and Stuart Campbell.

Jim Collings, of Atlanta, has been a member of the student council for three years, vice-president of the student study, a member of the varsity football squad and as in the Beta Kappa social fraternity. Ernest Evans, of Iva, has been a member of the varsity baseball and basketball squads and is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity.

Dalton Mann, of Chester, is a member of the orchestra and is a Beta Kappa. Joe Patrick, of Covington, Ga., has been outstanding scholastically, editor of the 1937 PaC-SaC, and is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

Harry Harvin, of Manning, is president of the Pan-Hellenic council, member of the varsity baseball squad and usually a Kappa Alpha. Walt Williams, of Clinton, has been a member of the varsity track squad for two years.

Sadler Love of Rock Hill, ... of The Blue Stocking and a member of Pi Kappa Phi and of Sphinx; Stuart Campbell, of West Virginia, ... of The College and ... a member of Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity.

Juniors Still Voting

In the recent election for officers of the class of '38, Harms Gray was elected president by a small majority over Billy Jones. Other officers named were: Julius Boggs, vice-president; Jack Witherspoon, secretary-treasurer; Chester Keiser, poet, and Cliff McLeod, historian.

Gray has been an active student here on the two years. He is a Sigm... for honors each year and ... Although much ... during that Armistice ... Post Week ...

(By Richard Potter)

Brief but promising, the history of the "Class of '36" organization is as yet current news. Stretched out before it in the dim plastic future lies its history. That history shall be made; this current news has been made.

The constitution of the organization of the class was ratified by a unanimous vote on March 31. The purpose of the organization, as stated in the preamble is "to maintain the integrity of our group, to cement our college friendships, to aid in the development of Presbyterian college, to perpetuate our class name, and to be mutually benefit one another."

With this purpose as the basis and the constitution as the axis of action, the class organization has undertaken three projects. (1) To organize on a permanent basis; (2) To sponsor an annual publication, and (3) To maintain a $100 memorial scholarship.

The organization of the class is called "Class of '36" and includes all graduates of '36. The administration consists of three officers: president, vice-president, and editor. An annual banquet and meeting will be held in Clinton on the week-end of the state track meet or some more suitable date. The business of the class will be made up of a class fund which itself will be made up of dues and donations paid in by class members.

The class publication will be issued annually and will be published approximately one month before the annual meeting and banquet. The first issue of this class paper is incorporated in this present issue of The Blue Stocking.

The $100 memorial scholarship will be awarded annually and placed under the direction of the proper college authorities. The rules will demand the maintenance and set down three requirements for the recipient. He must maintain a ratio average of 2.0 or better, be held in high esteem by his fellows, and has become involved in financial difficulties. He must take part in at least one college extra-curricular activity. This recipient will also be requested to meet with the class at its annual meeting.

The new class organization met last week for the first time. At this meeting officers were elected and officially installed to serve in their respective positions for five years. Richard Potter was unanimously elected president, C. Hugh Holman was unanimously elected class editor, and Cliff ... Johnson was elected over Tom ... Phelps as vice-president.

Wilson Captures Oratorical Belt

Wins Speaking Contest, As Holman Places Second.

H. M. Wilson, Jr., of Brooklyn, N.Y., speaking on the topic, "A Jerusalem To Deliver," captured the Presbyterian college oratorical crown in the annual contest held in the chapel on last Tuesday morning. Hugh Holman, having as his topic, "Youth Rebels At Mars," placed second. Wilson received a prize of ten dollars. Holman got five.

Others entering the contest were sophomore ministerial student Hubert G. Wardlaw, who spoke on "Success," and senior valedictorian, Colin Hudson, who chose as his topic, "We Live Now!"

Wilson has been outstanding in Presbyterian college forensics. He has been the mainstay of the debating team since he took the long trek from Brooklyn some four years ago. His record has been brilliant. He has never lost a dual intercollegiate debate and has lost but three tournament encounters. In the Pi Kappa Delta convention, recently held in Houston, Texas, he received a national ranking of sixth in the extempore speaking contest and was the only man east of the Mississippi to reach the finals.

Holman has been active in forensics for the past two years, taking no interest in them during his freshman and sophomore periods. He has lost one dual intercollegiate debate and two tournament encounters.

McSween Receives Army Appointment

Allen McSween, son of former President John McSween, has received an appointment through Congressman Richards and passed all necessary requirements for entrance to the United States Military academy at West Point this June.

During his three years at Presbyterian, McSween has been an active member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity and the Y.M.C.A. cabinet, and has been a member of the varsity football and baseball squads.

He has, of course, been proficient in military affairs, with a present rating as first sergeant, and holds membership in the Mastodons.

'GATORS DOWN BLUE STOCKING CINDER ARTISTS

Presbyterians Capture Six First Places But Lose To U. of Florida Men, 76 2-3 To 48 1-3.

BRADLEY AND FOREHAND STAR FOR LOCAL SQUAD

The Blue Hose track and field aggregation, with a representation of only 14 men, journeyed southward to take on the University of Florida in Gainesville Saturday, but were turned back smarting from a 76 2-3 to 48 1-3 defeat at the hands of the 'Gators.

The Floridians were vastly superior to the Calvinists in the field events, taking eight first places, and when the latter could not clinch the track events Florida took a lead that was never challenged. It was the fourth defeat of the year in dual meets for the Blue Hose, who last week unexpectedly placed second in the South Carolina state meet.

The stars for P. C. were Jacobs, Bradley, and Forehand, each of whom got 10 points each in their events. The high scorer of the meet, however, was Captain Brown, of Florida, who picked up 10 1-3 points in the weight events. Mestrazet, Florida, also scored 10 points for his team.

Joe Bradley, running his last time for P. C., kept his record perfect with victories in the 100 and 220. The shorter distance was extremely close, but Bradley's superior finish enabled him to win by inches. In the 220 he was an easy victor. Roy Forehand, tall, rangy four-letter man, also finished his college athletic career brilliantly, with easy victories in the 440 and 880.

The Stockings were not so fortunate in the distances. Hudson, switched over to the mile from the longer distance, was not able to match the superior condition of Mestrazet, the flashy Floridian, and consequently was defeated in that race. Likewise, this tiny 'Gator outran Charles on the two-mile run.

J. B. Jacobs showed his versatility by placing in four events, namely, the low hurdles, shot put, pole vault and high jump. Joe Hollis kept up the good work with just another first in the broad jump, while Bill Thompson

Lacking In Respect, Our Damyankee Looks Quizzically At Our Soldier Boys

(By Hank Wilson)

Not in the least disappointed to find military affairs drawing to their annual close was Presbyterian's dapper Major R. E. Wynne, Jr. Spears, head of an effective military organization, the Major saw the year start with juniors winning the general proficiency cup at Anniston, and close with a rating of excellent at the annual inspection. Chortled he: "I fully expected it."

With the seniors definitely on the shelf, juniors moved up to senior rankings while sophomores worked, prayed, sweated, for "the advanced." "A Twenty-Six Key Salute"

If we had twenty-one cannons we'd fire a twenty-one gun salute, but considering our strange deficiency in heavy artillery, we are going to use the twenty-six keys — not to mention periods, commas, etc.— on this typewriter to fire a twenty-six key salute to William P. Jacobs.

Mr. Jacobs has done nothing startling in the past few weeks to call forth such an elaborate salute. But we, the seniors of '36, are today taking advantage of our last opportunity to force our opinions on this institution and we could not do it if we failed to express those things that we fervently believe about our president. It may be that we're paying our tribute, not to a man, but to an ideal, a program, a dynamic spirit, a progressive force. In fact we probably are doing just that, and yet William P. Jacobs symbolizes that force, that progress for the class of '36.

To enumerate the dozens and dozens of things that he has done and is doing for the school at this time would be folly — every member of the student body is fully cognizant of them. They have become so essentially a part of the school that we no longer realize that they are so radically new. So let us pay this passing tribute to the results, and then pass on to the methods.

William P. Jacobs has treated us as if we were people who fully realized our opportunity and our responsibility, as if we were actually very young men — but men all the same. He has by his confidence in and respect for us, instilled in us a confidence and respect for ourselves.

He has made Presbyterian College our college. He has let us have our part in remaking it. Our opinions have not only been asked for, but paid for, and they have been carefully considered and are even now being, at least partially, put into effect.

He has met with us, talked to us as men and parts of the school, aided student organizations, modernized the curriculum, placed P. C. on the map from the standpoint of publicity. But his greatest contribution to us and to the school has been a rebirth of what he loves to call "championship spirit." We who have been here four years can appreciate that more than you who are newer to this our home.

And so, without much ado and with a deep appreciation and a lasting affection, we salute William P. Jacobs as we pass out of the college that he is remaking.

Lost Generation?

We are reaching our maturity and stepping out into a wider realm of living in a world that is in flux. We are beset on every hand by new, revolutionary ideas and ideals. It is an age of instability, of a thousand and one "isms," of new political philosophies, of new economic conceptions, of a changed sense of moral obligation, of a strangely dispassionate approach to that most passionate of subjects, religion. We are going out into a world in which no one is firmly planted on the ground — for the appalling reason that no one can longer be certain where the quicksands begin.

From the kindergarten, grammar school, and high school we acquired a certain philosophy of life — pruned from thousands though it was. In childhood and early youth, we were taught to believe in ambition, determination, success. Ideals and aims were given us that were the same that our fathers and mothers had had given them.

Strange things have happened in the four years that we have been in college. We have seen much that we held sacred and holy trodden into earth by the merciless hooves of economic disaster. We have found the world, not waiting for our entry with open arms as we thought that it would when we entered this institution some four years ago, but rather feeling and making us feel that our entry is something of an imposition. Contrary to our belief that the world was an oyster that perseverance and diligent application would surely open, we find ourselves in the embarrassing position of often not being able to discover the oyster itself.

The older generation looks at us with pity and a touch of fear. They listen to our pet slang expression "So What?" and read into it the complete disillusionment and cynicism of a prematurely aged youth. They look at our desperate, frenzied clutching at jobs — not a particular job, but anything to give us a living — and say that we are a cowardly, beaten generation, willing to sacrifice anything for security. To them we are the misfits of the world, that luckless generation caught between the period of change, not having enough of the ingrained beliefs of the old to hang on doggedly, and remembering too much of the old to change completely. A generation caught between two conflicting tides, whirling to destruction in a whirlpool of indecision, unbelief, and maladjustment — A Lost Generation!

Their arguments bear a great deal of weight — much though we hate to admit it. We are lost in a wilderness of bewilderment, indecisively knowing not what to do nor where to turn. We are afraid to venture far from shore. We do love and worship security — much though we would like to deny it. Springing to life in the aftermath of disaster, we lack the buoyancy, the self-confidence, the high idealism with which youth is usually characterized.

And yet I do not believe that we are a lost generation. The odds are against us, we realize that and we are damnably serious about the matter. We grasp for security, we long for peace — and yet, we are a giant lying dormant and unaware of his colossal strength. We need but to be aroused, to feel the strong urge of hope and ambition to sweep on to the heights. Ambition is not dead in us — it is merely frightened. Hope is not extinct — it is a sleeping volcano. We are not lost eternally. We have before us the greatest task that a generation has ever had — the re-organization of a world from the chaos of "isms" and theories and wrecked dreams and hopes. The task is waiting — we can not escape, much though we want to do so. We must, we shall fulfill the course of life and history. We are sleeping, but sleeping fitfully and half-awake. We are not lost; when the whirlpool starts spinning we will cease to drift and will swim with strong, mighty strokes as youth has always swum.

Auf Wiedersehen

There is little that can be said about us that has not been said a hundred times before. There is little that we can say as we go out that would not be trite and hackneyed. "The prelude of life is over, "the ship of education rests on the shore of life," "this is not the end, but the beginning," "we have enjoyed it with all our hearts," "we shall never forget . . . " All that is true, and all that lacks the ring of truth because it has been used so often before. And yet the time has come for us to say "good-bye," the hour of parting draws horribly nigh.

We have enjoyed it. For four years of strangely sequestered life "loud we've sung adventuring, and lustily we've jested, quarrelled, and fought, and then forgot the taunts, the blows, the jeers." We've studied — perhaps not as much as we might have — but still we've studied, and we've done practically all the things that a class does. And now the time has come for us to say good-bye to all that.

It is useless for us to attempt to estimate the good that we've secured from college — we are too near the forest to see the trees. It is useless for us to pretend that there is no joy in our departure, for we are glad to have finished the course, no matter how badly we have run it.

We believe that we have contributed something to the school — we know that the school has contributed much to us. We believe that we have a spirit that was good, and a spirit that will live

AND THEN....?

"FELLOW CLASSMATES"

A LETTER FROM OUR PRESIDENT

We, individually and collectively, have undertaken a vaster scope than any casual thought would have yo It is, therefore, of prime importance that we succeed.

Men, particularly, college men, live by precedent. Whe dent is set—it's powerful. It becomes a custom. It's na a habit. All inhibitions, all barriers are broken down. Th dent, because of repetition, has become permanent. An initiating what may be a fine precedent for each succeed uating class of Presbyterian College? Forget all preced es whose class-names are vanished and think of the pa of our own class. P. C. is looking to the future. Are we Today, tomorrow, and the next day we are, and, we hewing out and setting into place the stones of the solid that is to house our tomorrow's organization. Today ou a cotyledonous embryo of tomorrow's organization. Is o so palpable that it cannot be tenaciously grasped? Toda tion is tomorrow's perfection.

There is no organization without its component pa graduate of P. C. this year is a part. We have a wonderf tunity to build a precedent and build a future, but foundation there is no building. It behooves each of us back this plan and make it an integral part of our alumn

We wish, by all means, to subordinate our organizatio of the alumni. We wish not to be in conflict with, or an to, the alumni association, but we desire to supplement forts by giving more than they ask.

When every member of our class realizes that when "we" fail and that when "he" succeeds, "we" succeed. T only then, will the unanimous spirit of success be realize that moment of apparition has arrived then our class a soul—an immortal spirit—one that perpetuates our na one that lives in the hearts of our successors. We reach child-like, untried hands. Those classes which follow with the hardened hands of experimental knowledge. Ou immediate success. It grows.

I have not dwelt upon the inherent success of our p have overshadowed this all-important necessity by see show how our success means other successes. Certainly the success of our plan there will be no future similar have only one caution to make concerning our organizat I have referred to it before. We trust that no member class will curtail his alumni support in order to coopera the organization. The two must be harmonious or we only fail in our aim but will also be detrimental to the association. We have often boasted of being a member best all-round class of P. C. Is that an empty, rattling Proud are we of our class of '36. Proud also we shall be class organization of '36.

But it is with a sob in our throats, and a great aching of the eyes that we grudgingly say "So Long" to you, our alma mater, and to you, our friends.

"Farewell,"—a word that must be, and has been a note that makes us linger, yet, farewell." But not good-bye — our spirit will live on among you and years will live on in our lives making them ever better than they could ever have been before. And so, not "good-bye," but "Auf Wiedersehen."

MAGAZINE KEPT STANDARD HIGH

LAST ISSUE TO APPEAR LATTER PART OF MAY

The hunting season for 1935-36 collegian material is practically closed, with Editor George E. Oliver frantically examining the student body for last-minute staff-aspirants. This year's magazine was principally the work of veterans on the staff, with a singular lack of new near-talent, which bids fair to be a serious handicap to Editor-Elect Stuart B. Campbell.

The Collegian faced something a mental hazard this year in the shape of standard set by the staff of the previous year, which turned out a publication that carried off first place in the South Carolina Intercollegiate Press Association contest for magazines. How well it has been able to retain this high standard may best be judged by critical readers. It has consistently striven for novelty, avoidance of stereotyped lay-out, and critically-selected literary content. Among the most-commented-on contributions of the year have been: "With Benefit of Clergy," feature carried in the December issue, in which an anonymous student confessed secret marriage; "The Pulps—God Bless 'Em!" informal essay by Hugh Holman, which, among other points, pointed out that Homer would, all probability be writing for "Thrilling Adventure" were he alive today.

The staff will suffer by the loss of Hugh Holman, senior, whose prolific versification has literally been the poetry department of the magazine. L. C. McLees, who for the past three years has illustrated each issue with prints from linoleum blocks, not to mention its only dramatic efforts, also graduates.

SKA Joins The Campus Parade

Gets Constitution But No Supreme Court.

Organization of Sigma Kappa Alpha under a constitution and by-laws, which provide for election of faculty members to serve for five-year periods with the honorary scholastic group, was made last Thursday.

Student members will be elected from the upper five per cent of the junior class and may be elected from an additional five per cent of the senior class after the Dean's list is published in February. An average of 2.5 is required.

The fraternity also adopted two other paragraphs which should be of interest to the student body. They read:

"If any member of Sigma Kappa Alpha should see another member cheating, he or she will at once report the case to the student council.

"Should a member of the student body at large see a member of Sigma Kappa Alpha cheating, he or she is requested to cooperate with the fraternity by reporting it immediately."

Members who have been previously elected to the group are: Andrews, Hudson, C. R. Johnson, Plaxico, both Misses Blakely, Holman, Misses Cannon and Sullivan, Patrick, and Campbell.

K.A.'s To Honor Best Brawn Man

Trophy To Be Given Best Athlete In Senior Class.

Signal honor will be given to the outstanding senior athlete, whose name will be the first to grace the silver trophy presented by the local Kappa Alpha chapter.

Believing that true sportsmanship is an ideal well worth seeking, Kappa Alpha makes this contribution to encourage fair play of the highest type. The trophy will stand as a symbol of the "championship spirit" which is the watchword of the hour here at Presbyterian college.

A committee of seven will determine the man for the honor. This group of judges will be as follows: President Jacobs, Coach Walter A. Johnson, Coach Lonnie McMillian, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, president of the student body, president of Blue Key, and the president of Kappa Alpha fraternity. Their selection will be made before the end of his session.

In addition to having his name on the trophy, the man selected will receive a key in recognition of his achievements in the field of competitive athletics.

SHALL WE STAND FOR IT?

TO A COLLEGE SENIOR
(With apologies to Peter Moody and Carl Sandburg)

You have dived (or is it diven?) into the well of knowledge and come up dry enough to scare away a thunderstorm.

You have (if you think at all)) run the gauntlet of greenness, egotism, scepticism, cynicism and arrived at a state of indifference.

You have (for the last time in your life) attempted to see how very little you could get in exchange for an outlay of (father's) shekels.

You have established an enviable (?) record as a ping-pongist, developing a neat underhand by constant practice at being underhanded.

You have acquired a taste for (your roommate's) loud ties, suspenders, sloppy socks and collar-buttons.

You think Ethan Allen is Gracie's far-famed brother, and that Pragmatism is a new kind of rheumatism invented by the Dean.

You have by long practice become proficient in the art of leaning forward in class with an eager thirst-for-knowledge stare, while your thoughts seek Winthrop.

You are a half-baked, medium-grade urchin, with an I. Q. (Immature Quality) of 100%; you still behave as a child, although you did swipe (poor) father's razor.

You think of life as the shag, football, and monopoly; you can burn a cigarette or retrieve a duck with finesse and nonchalance; you know all the answers; you can recognize upon hearing them all of the leading dance orchestras; you can distinguish between Gordon's Dry and Old Quaker by taste.

You can graduate, by damn!

You should know better, but you don't.

You are fit meat for the filling station; after sufficient experience dispensing gas, you may (subject to the result of the Democratic primary) become a legislatureman.

low Collections and Printing Complications Have Held Up Distribution of Book.

The 1936 PaC-SaC, scheduled by preview information to hold or even ncrease the high standard set by previous annuals, will be distributed during exam week, Editor Tom Plaxico stated today.

The copy has been in the printers' hands for some time, but due to the fact that money due for sponsors and advertising has been rather slow in coming in work has of necessity been held up. In addition, complications beyond the control of the editor and in connection with the printing of the publication has further hindered completion and distribution.

In the event that students should leave school during exam week and before distribution of the annual, copies will be secured only by leaving instructions with the editor.

PROFESSOR TO STUDY AT U.N.C.

Swedenberg To Work On Degree. Boyd To Succeed Him For 1936-37 Session.

Administrative officials last week announced the granting of a leave of absence of one year's duration to Hugh T. Swedenberg, assistant professor of English, who will continue work at the University of North Carolina, and who will be succeeded by Bernard H. Boyd, graduate of P. C. in the class of 1932.

Mr. Swedenberg, who spent much time studying in the British museum in 1933, has passed his preliminary oral examinations and has written much of his thesis on the English Neo-Classic theory, but because of the pressure of school duties has not been able to complete his dissertation.

Mr. Boyd received his Th.D. degree from Princeton Theological seminary and his M.A. degree in English from Princeton in 1935. Since that time he has continued his studies in English. This year he will complete his residence requirement for Ph.D. in English and will receive the degree after completing his thesis.

While at P. C. Mr. Boyd was outstanding in all student activities, serving on The Blue Stocking staff for four years. He acted as associate editor of both The Blue Stocking and The Collegian, and edited The PaC-SaC in his senior year.

D. W. Davis Wins Declamation Prize

Speaking on the subject, "Ropes," D. W. Davis, Rock Hill, took first honors and a prize of ten dollars Tuesday morning, defeating Ed Lambright, winner of second place and five dollars, by a narrow margin in the annual declamation contest open to freshmen and sophomores.

Davis had an excellent delivery and spoke with the force of a finished orator. The decision was rendered by the entire faculty, each member listing the speakers in order of preference for first place honors. Both Davis and Lambright are members of the freshman class. The second place winner had for his subject, "The Stars and Stripes."

Other contestants in the finals, besides the two winners, were Ray Hutchison, Wandell Williams, and A. B. Dyes.

Registrar Lists Class And Frat Grade Comparison

NON-FRATERNITY MEN LEAD FRATERNITY MEN

The senior class, with an average of 1.770, continued to lead scholastic class comparisons while Beat Kappa fraternity, with an average of 1.211, headed fraternity standings, according to a statement issued by the registrar last week and based on grades for the first semester.

Conspicuous by the wide margin of difference was the comparison scholastically of non-fraternity and fraternity men. Members of campus fraternities averaged only .981, while non-members rolled up an average of 1.149.

Male students averaged for the first semester of the 1935-36 session 1.047, yet the co-eds averaged 1.871. Graduate students led the entire school with an average of 3.500.

Complete listings, which would not be affected materially by the few grades yet incomplete, according to Dean Marshall W. Brown, were as follows:

Student body	1.134
Senior class	1.770
Junior class	1.345
Freshman class	.796
Graduate students	3.500
All men	1.047

Final Dances Great Success

Bob Pope and Torch Singer Go Over In Big Way.

While antiquated Copeland hall swayed to the beat of swing music in fast beat, probably for the last time, in view of the new armory under construction, the curtain was rung down this week-end on an unusually colorful spring social season, the Pan-Hellenic final dances held Friday and Saturday marking the end of social activities for this year.

A new Pan-Hellenic council put on [illegible] in arranging a series of dances which proved a fitting climax for the season's fraternity social life. The council made a very popular decision in signing Bob Pope's orchestra to furnish the music for the occasion. The Charlotte band has proved to be one of the most satisfactory in recent years and received considerable praise.

A semi-formal hop on Friday evening began the final series. This dance, which lasted from ten o'clock till two, attracted a large crowd of students and visitors. Four no-break dances, a Pan-Hellenic lead-out, and several novelty numbers by the orchestra were the features of the evening. Saturday afternoon the council sponsored the usual tea-dance lasting from four o'clock until six. The series was closed Saturday night with a three-hour informal dance. This final ball, generally one of the most popular events of the school year, was pronounced a great success by the large group of guests present. There were four no-break dances during the course of the evening.

These were the first dances given by the Pan-Hellenic council elected last month to serve until next spring.

BACCALAUREATE SERMON WILL OPEN COMMENCEMENT SERIES

To Address Grads

SENATOR JAMES F. BYRNES

Senator Byrnes will speak on Tuesday of graduation week on a subject not yet announced. His address will be broadcast over WFBC, Greenville, or a national hook-up.

Dr. R. O. Flinn To Speak At Services Sunday and Senator J. F. Byrnes Tuesday.

BROADCAST OVER WFBC OR NATIONAL HOOK-UP

The fifty-fifth annual commencement exercises of Presbyterian college will begin on Sunday, May 31, with the baccalaureate sermon, according to announcements from the president's offcie last week.

President Jacobs announced this morning that the Tuesday exercises would definitely be broadcast, but that preparations were not yet complete as to whether WFBC, Greenville, would handle the program or whether it would be broadcast on a national hook-up.

Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, D.D., pastor of North Avenue Presbyterian church of Atlanta, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon at 11:15 o'clock Sunday morning, May 31. The services will be held in the First Presbyterian church here.

President William P. Jacobs will award commissions in the Officers' Reserve corps to seniors in the R.O.T.C. at three o'clock Monday afternoon, June 11. A faculty reception for the seniors will be held at the president's home at five o'clock.

Graduation exercises will begin at 9:30 Tuesday morning at the Cyrus W. Bailey Memorial stadium. William P. Jacobs will be inaugurated as president of the college at that time by Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., chairman of the board of trustees.

The salutatory address will be given by Edwin R. Andrews, of Milledgeville, Ga., and Colin M. Hudson, of Greenville, will deliver the valedictory.

The Honorable James F. Byrnes, United States senator from South Carolina, will make the principal address to the graduating class. Senator Byrnes has been one of the most outstanding figures on Capitol Hill in recent years, and is leader of the Roosevelt bloc in the senate.

The exercises will come with the presentation of diplomas to the class by Dr. DuBose.

JACOBS STATES 1936-37 PLANS

Infirmary To Be In Spratt Home, Canteen and Postoffice In "Y" Building.

President William P. Jacobs today stated that the college infirmary to be installed next year would be placed in the Spratt home and would be under the supervision of Mrs. Druce McSwain, sister-in-law of Congressman John J. McSwain, Greenville.

President Jacobs further stated that the college canteen would be under the direction of the Y.M.C.A. and would be located in the "Y" recreation building opposite Spencer dormitory. The remaining space in the building will be used for reception rooms, living quarters upstairs for several sutdents, and, in addition, the postoffice will also be housed in some part of the structure.

The residence now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. John Spratt will be entirely remodeled during the summer months and will be put in excellent shape by the opening of the 1936-37 session. Mrs. McSwain will serve as matron and nurse of the infirmary and comes to the college highly recommended. Medical aid will continue to be rendered by Dr. St. Clair Hays and Dr. Dennie O. Rhame, of the Clinton hospital staff.

The new commercial department which will be under the direction of Kenneth N. Baker, is to be located in the gymnasium in the space now occupied by the armory and lecture room. The space left vacant by the removal of the postoffice to the "Y" building will be prepared during the summer and will be filled by the armory.

With the utilization of the facilities now at hand, the college will outdistance any state institution of its size for equipment.

CATALOG LISTS NEW COURSES

Commerce Curriculum To Offer Varied Choice To Business Students.

The [illegible] catalog, to be released at an early date by the office of the [illegible], will be of great interest to old students because of the information it will contain relative to the new courses in commerce to be instituted in September under the direction of Professor Kenneth N. Baker.

According to a precis of the catalog, students taking a B.S. in commerce will be required to have only 12 semester hours in foreign languages and eight semester hours in science. However, they will be required to secure credit for a three-hour course in mathematics of finance. It is strongly recommended that business statistics be included in these courses, but this is not a fixed requirement.

Students of commerce will take a course in economics, which must be [illegible] courses of accounting, [illegible] and three semester hours and a [illegible] organization and administration, three semester hours.

Why it is that non-fraternity men so far outrated fraternity men scholastically on first semester comparisons published in this issue.

How 100 per cent. of the students of Alumni will like paying for the damage done when about eight per cent. of the residents of the dormitory heaved a rock down the steps, smashing the front door to kindling.

If the rumor is true that there is no dance this week-end. Probably exams are interfering with education.

And to commend Senior Editor Hugh Holman and staff for their work on last week's senior issue of The Blue Stocking. Going out with a bang . . . .

Past and Future

When we snap the locks on our trunks next week and sigh over scholastic failures and near failures we will have ended one of the most eventful years in the history of P. C., we will have written "finis" to a year marked by a strange awakening of the entire college and a feeling of hope that has risen paramount to past murmurings of doubt.

We have seen student interest in college affairs take on new life as a method is provided for the expression of sentiment in regard to current problems; we have seen preparations completed for the opening of a Y.M.C.A. recreation home, for the establishment of an infirmary, for general campus improvement. The student body has made changes in the cheating penalty; Blue Key, leading the way, has pledged itself to report members of the chapter seen cheating, and Sigma Kappa Alpha has followed with a like pledge; council supervision has been provided for elections, and affairs of the Pan-Hellenic council have been put on a business basis.

Continuing the march of the newly instituted progress, college authorities have made great improvements in the appearance of the campus and are now painting away the drabness of the administration building. Tennis courts begun in the summer of 1933 have been completed and an amplifying system has been purchased to give P. C. the finest athletic plant, without exception, in the state. Installation of extensive commercial courses in September have broadened the curriculum to an extent that seems to be only the beginning.

But progress, like time, marches on—but only if some great driving force motivates it, forces it onward toward the elusive goal of perfection.

We believe that we have found that force, or rather that the board of trustees has found it for us. Dynamic and forceful in all that he does, P. C.'s new president has wrought miracles in one semester and has in his bag of tricks still greater miracles, more rapid progress, for the semesters to come.

The end of the year creeps slowly onward, and we can only sigh with genuine regret, as we look to a future of advancement, that we came to P. C. five years too soon.

You Who Are About To Leave Us . . .

While imaginary bands play "Auld Lang Syne," members of the class of 1936 will silently roll up sheep-skins representative of four years of work and play, slap each other on the back, and leave us to take up teaching duties, service in the regular army, air corps, and CWA. For many of them, it has been a hard grind; for others, it has been a pleasant place to pass from adolescence into early manhood.

In the past, when seniors went out into the world to see what it was all about, they lost sight of the college and, in many cases, the college lost sight of them. But the class of '36 is more fortunate. It can almost forget the feeling of regret that is inevitable when the student realizes that old friends are parting, associates of four years are scattering to all parts of the country. A perpetual class organization that will insure a continuation of class friendships and college interests has to a large measure rectified the situation. If they have given us nothing else, members of this year's senior class leave us a workable plan by which we who later will arrive at the threshold may preserve our interest in each other and the college.

We hate to see them go; we lose student talent that will be almost impossible to replace, yet we who stay behind to carry on the tradition wish them the best of luck and success in what will probably prove to be a more difficult examination than any they ever stood at P. C.

Work For Charity

Last week college administrative authorities mailed form letters to holders of scholarships advising that, beginning next year, all holders of financial grants will have to work for their money. Even before the ink was dry we could hear wailing and gnashing of teeth, expressions of "they can't do that to us," some of it in a good-natured vein, other of it a little more bitter.

Holders of scholarships have in the past regarded their grants in two different lights. Some have held that any money they received was but a just reward for some imaginary or real personal qualification or ability and that any attempt of the college to obtain services for funds expended was no more than a rank violation of the student's rights. Others have felt somewhat obligated, have felt that perhaps it would be better for the college and for their own personal good to have work substituted for charity.

The great danger of any type of financial aid granted to a student has been and will continue to be that he will come to look upon all such aid as his just due and to develop the attitude that the college and the world owe him a living. Some of our best penitentiaries are filled with men who have developed just such an attitude.

Holders of scholarships will not like the new plan—at least for some time; but a careful consideration of the problem will convince men receiving grants that a substitution of work for charity is always advisable, both for the distributor and for the recipient, because in no other way may the college put scholarships on a sound financial basis and in no other way may students avoid the pitfalls of the "something for nothing" philosophy.

COLLEGIATE REVIEW

Frank Hausmann, editor of the Loyola University News, did some checking up the other day and found that most college men hate spinning, don't care if their girl friend drinks, since that's "her own business," don't want to spend more than four dollars on any one date and don't believe in going steady. And here's one answer WE don't believe. The boys said the perfect girl didn't need to have physical attractiveness if she had character, intelligence and personality!

Princetonian editors express amazement that the University of Texas has dropped the honor system of examinations. Said the Texas dean: "We realized that under the system we were whitewashed hypocrites." It works, it seems, at Princeton.

Warning note: Editors at Iowa State college have figured that it costs a student just one dollar every time he cuts a class.

The Hornet

Over at Greenville the Baptist brethren will be waiting for the work of a new editor, Harris Chewning, who takes over the duties on The Hornet, relieving Editor-in-Chief Michael Barton. A punster might make cracks about chewning the rag, but we were too busy watching Beta Kappa Sterling Stoudemire get himself elected president of the Pan-Hellenic council. And by the way, while we were frolicking here and there about the campus today, the good boys at Furman were settling down to the first day of exams.

The Parley Voo

But all of that left us fairly cool, and it wasn't until we picked up The Parley Voo from Converse that we really got a shock, almost what you might call a severe jolt. Imagine our embarrassment and consternation when we read that "Alpha chapter of Alpha Sigma Sigma has recently issued bids to five members of the rising senior class." Alpha Sigma Sigma, they tell us, is a scholarship and school spirit sorority. While at the time we thought it stood for something else.

The Tiger

One of Clemson's columnists tells us that the cavalry over in Tigertown have taken another forward step and substituted horseshoe pitching for poker. In parentheses he dubs horseshoe pitching "barnyard golf." Very appropriate, very appropriate.

Citadel seniors recently visited, we learn from the weekly dustsheet, the plant of the American Tobacco company in Charleston, makers of Cremo. Maybe we don't exactly understand, but somehow we always had the idea that visits to the Cremo factory were begun early in the life of a Citadel freshman. And very few smoke cigars, either.

The advanced list and rank assign[illegible]d each cadet were made public Fri[illegible]ay morning at annual ceremonies for [illegible]e occasion by order of Major R. E. [illegible]ysor, commandant.

To be band leader: Harry Gray, Jr.

Another answer that was just like [illegible]Frank's is that of Frank Johnson:

"Presbyterian college has given me the best friends that I have ever had. To my mind, this is the thing from P. C. that will most influence my future life."

"Since coming to college I've learned that life isn't a bed of roses, but that you have to take lickings, laugh them off, and keep on trying for success. P. C. has given me strength and confidence with which to meet my future problems."

The head of our literary magazine, George Oliver, answered my question in the true Oliver fashion. "What has P. C. meant to you?" I asked.

"P. C. has offered me the best possible environment in which to pass those years between 17 and 21. It has given me a chance to know and number among my friends some truly swell fellows."

[illegible]erves of this manly, fearless youth.

Tarze Langston must have had a falling out with his jungle friends—or maybe the squadron of mosquitoes which had him on the run at three [illegible]. m. in search of a cigarette was merely bearing him a message—perhaps of love, who knows—from his jungle sweetheart. The wild yells which he emitted as he madly searched for a weapon sounded like the real thing to the rest of the camp, however.

It seems that the seniors planned a little visit of a social nature to the camp. For some inexplicable reason, they changed their minds at the last minute. Of course, we don't accuse them of lack of nerve, maybe they just got too sleepy to sit up any longer. We missed them, though, because the whole camp was all ready to serve them tea and crackers. The decorations were charmingly planned by the tent pole and fire-wood committee. We indeed regret that you were unable to be with us, seniors.

Major Wysor has announced definitely that he will accompany the juniors to camp in June. This announcement doubtless will be received with varying degrees of delight by the entire class.

Flash: "This year's junior class is better prepared for camp than any previous group," said the Major. This columnist has been striving for several months to get the Major to admit this; therefore, dear and only reader, we're ready to call it quits till next September.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

"What has P. C. meant to you?" We asked several members of the graduating class. After blunt refusals by quite a few of these men and women of dignity, success at last was attained, and varied are the answers.

Your inquiring reported caught the valedictorian "tripping fantastic" across the campus and immediately popped the question. Mr. Hudson, just what has P. C. meant to you?

"A deep breath of physical health . . . a fixation of friendship . . . an opened crack into the warehouse of truth . . . a purpose. That's what P. C. has meant to me."

Next a visit was made to the quietest rooms in center section Smyth, those of Sam Hughes and Hoag Smith. Upon asking Sam what P. C. had meant to him he said, "Not just now, I'm busy." But a more willing victim was found in Smith, who answered in the following manner:

"My work at P. C. has given me a new and broader view of life, very different from the one which I held as a high school graduate. I believe that my associations with the faculty and students here have shown me the real purpose of Christian living."

Strolling contentedly down to the baseball field, who should your reporter run into but Frank Waldrep, P. C.'s high hurdler, star of track and football, with a little basketball and other sports thrown in for good luck. "Frank, what has P. C. meant to you?"

"Friendship. Here at P. C. I have made friends with some swell fellows. If I can only make such friends in later life out in the world as I have made here at the old school, then I shall be satisfied."

Another answer that was just like Frank's is that of Frank Johnson:

P. C. PRESIDENT LEADS SERVICE LOCAL CHURCH

Jacobs Talks of College, History and Future.

President William P. Jacobs had charge of the services at the First Presbyterian church here yesterday morning in the absence of the pastor, Dr. D. J. Woods, and at this time gave a message in which he described the struggles of the college and Thornwell orphanage in their early stages of development, briefly outlining, in conclusion, plans for the future of the college.

Mr. Jacobs began his message by giving some excerpts from the diary of his grandfather, Dr. William Plumer Jacobs, the founder of Presbyterian college and Thornwell orphanage. He showed that throughout his early struggles in beginning the college Dr. Jacobs had shown an unlimited faith in the power of God. Mr. Jacobs, throughout his talk, tried to show that what could have been done in the past by faith we can do in the future by faith. He described the opening of the college, which at that time had about 80 students and six faculty members. According to Dr. Jacobs' diary, it was a great day for him as he noted the wonderfulness of God and His power.

After having briefly reviewed the early history of P. C., Mr. Jacobs told of future plans. He mentioned that the college gives many scholarships as other schools do, but that many of these are given to educating future ministers and aiding worthy students from the orphanage in their endeavors to secure a higher education. He urged that churches and individuals establish scholarships at the college for worthy and needy students.

He stated that the financial problems of P. C. were receiving much attention, and that the outlook for P. C.'s financial conditions is encouraging, since the college has operated during the past year without a deficit. He briefly mentioned that the Y.M.C.A. would be much expanded, and that new courses which would aid students in their future business life would be added.

In closing, Mr. Jacobs pointed out that we would never solve any of the problems of P. C. alone, but that only through God could we solve them, and that if we had faith great enough or as great as that of P. C.'s founder, God would solve them for us. He expressed an unlimited faith in the future of Presbyterian college, and thanked all who had taken a part in aiding P. C. thus far and expressed the hope of having their continued interest in the progress of the school.

P. C. PROFESSORS TO SPEND SUMMER IN POSTMEN'S HOLIDAY

Coaches To Study Sport Technique While Professors Do Research and Teaching Work Here and Abroad.

Occupying themselves with study in places as widely separated as eastern United States and Germany, P. C. professors will this summer take postmen's vacations, although in most cases they will be concerned with learning rather than teaching.

Dean Marshall W. Brown will spend the summer visiting the leading colleges and universities of Eastern United States to study their graduate methods with a view toward better articulating Presbyterian college's curriculum to graduate work and increasing the ease of appointments to such work from the Clinton college.

Prof. Hugh T. Swedenberg, of the English department, will be on a leave of absence for the year. He plans to make his headquarters at the University of North Carolina where, during the first semester, he will complete his thesis for his Ph.D. The second semester he is planning to do some work for publication.

Dr. H. S. Fish, of the biology department, will spend the summer months at Harvard where he is doing some extended biological research. Dr. Fish, for four years, worked in the research laboratories of Harvard prior to coming to Presbyterian college.

Prof. Bothwell Graham, of the departments of German and Spanish, will be in Germany where he will study during the vacation period. Dr Neill G. Whitelaw, of the mathematics department, is also planning to spend the summer months in Europe. His plans are not for study but for extended travel.

Coaches Walter Johnson, Lonnie McMillian, Roy Forehand and Frank Waldrep are all planning to attend various coaching schools throughout the nation.

The summer session will take care of a number of professors for the first half of the summer. Dr. S. M. Huntley, Dr. M. G. Woodworth, Dr. A. E. Spencer, Dr. J. C. Roper, Prof. W. E. Monts, and Prof. H. E. Sturgeon will be employed there.

Several other members of the faculty have announced no plans for the summer yet.

DR. S. M. HUNTLEY, DIRECTOR, ANNOUNCES COURSES OFFERED

Provides Opportunity To Make Up Failures and Do Advanced Work.

The summer session of the college, scheduled to run from June 8 to July 17, is arousing an unusual amount of interest this year, Dr. S. M. Huntley, director, states, and that a large number of students have already expressed their intention of attending. In addition, he has received numerous requests for information from outside the college.

The summer school is designed to enable students to make up back work, take advanced or special courses, or take work preparatory to study for a master's degree. The curriculum has been arranged according to the requests for courses made by students who have expressed an intention to take up the summer work. It is possible to cover a complete year's work in any one subject or two one-semester courses.

The greatest demand has been for a summer session of mathematics 1-2. This course has been arranged under Professor Sturgeon and a class of about 25 is expected. Courses in introductory French will be taught by Miss Sarah Elizabeth Swygert, of Laurens high school. Miss Swygert has won distinction for her educational work and is recognized as one of the leading teachers of French in South Carolina high schools. Advanced French work will be under Dr. Spencer. An additional course in French history, not taught in regular session, will be under Dr. Huntley. Courses in education and educational psychology will be taught by Prof. Monts and Dr. Roper. One of these is a special course not offered during the regular session. Advanced and introductory English will be taught by Dr. Woodworth. A course in first-year Spanish is scheduled, but no instructor has been selected. Other courses are being considered, dependent upon the demand for such work.

The summer school system will be the same as in past years. There will be six weeks of work with classes meeting five days a week. Three class periods are scheduled every morning except Saturday. The student will be permitted to carry two semester courses. The dining hall and dormitories will not be kept open during the summer, but students may make individual boarding arrangements in the city.

Ernest J. Arnold Named To Yale Job

Ernest Arnold, of Sylacauga, Ala., received a signal honor last week when he was awarded an assistantship in the Yale divinity school, one of the highest ranking theological schools in the entire country.

Arnold was notified of his appointment by Dr. Paul H. Vieth, director of field work of the divinity school. Arnold will hold the position of personal assistant to Dr. Vieth in the department of religious education, and most of his work will be in the field of visual education.

Entrance to the school is limited to graduates of colleges and universities of recognized high standing, and only one hundred new men are taken in each year. There are always far more applications than admissions, and those who are accepted are thoroughly examined before entrance.

Last year there were sutdents in the divinity schol from 151 institutions representing thirty-eight states, four foreign countries, and twenty-eight denominations.

ALUMNI

Rev. C. Darby Fulton, D.D., executive secretary of foreign missions of the Southern Presbyterian church, class of '11, has just returned from an extensive trip through South America, inspecting foreign mission posts of the church there. Dr. Fulton is a very busy man and an extensive traveler, and immediately on return to this country is jumping about from Texas to the Atlantic coast stimulating an interest in the cause which he ably represents. He is one of the most prominent graduates of Presbyterian College.

Doctors William S. Fewell and John M. Fewell, of the class of '12, are twins—one of the few sets of twins ever to attend Presbyterian College. Unlike Mike and Ike, they do not look alike. They are practising medicine very successfully in Greenville, S. C., and have built up an excellent reputation there, and occupy a position of prominence in the profession in South Carolina.

CURTAIN FALLS ON SPORTS SEASON

Waldrep And Forehand Join P. C. Coaching Staff

McMILLIAN TO AID JOHNSON WITH VARSITY

Frank Waldrep To Handle First-Year Eleven, With Forehand As Assistant.

Two new additions and changes in the old order have been effected in the athletic department of the college, according to an announcement by President Jacobs. Coach Johnson will continue to serve as head coach of football and boxing, and will focus more attention on his position as athletic director. Johnson, in September, begins his twenty-first year as head of athletic activity at Presbyterian.

Former freshman football coach, basketball coach and track coach Lonnie S. McMillian becomes assistant varsity football coach in addition to his position as varsity basketball and track mentor. Coach "Lonnie Mac" enters his fifteenth year of service at P. C. Clarence "Chick" Galloway will continue to pilot the nine, with which he has had two season's of unusual success.

The staff make-up will be rounded out by Frank Waldrep and Roy Forehand, who finish next week. Waldrep assisted in coaching frosh football, had charge of the first-year cagers during the past year, and will graduate to the position of freshman grid coach, men and women's swimming, and assistant in frosh track. Waldrep's all-round athletic ability makes him a valuable instructor.

Forehand will coach freshman basketball, women's basketball, assist with frosh football and varsity baseball. A versatile performer, Roy is the second man ever to receive four letters in one year at this institution. The knowledge he has gained, blended with active participation in sports, fits him well for the task ahead.

Another feature of the changes in the department is the introduction of a regulation whereby every student not taking part in intercollegiate athletics must take some form of physical education unless excused by a physician's certificate.

Tennis Team Takes Licking In Meet

P. C. Players Fail To Stand Up Under Competition In Net Tournament In Spartanburg.

The Blue Stocking tennis team met disaster early in the state tournament held at Spartanburg last week. The team was composed of Levi, Parham, Gregg, Patton, and Estes in singles and Levi-Estes, and Gregg-Parham in doubles. George Beatty, No. 2 man, was unable to go.

When Thursday's play was over, every one was put out of the tournament except the doubles team of Parham and Gregg. On Friday morning they lost to Horton and Legrone of Clemson, who went on to the finals in doubles.

In spite of the showing in the tournament, this has been the most successful season a P. C. tennis team has enjoyed in several years. Playing all teams in the state, they have won five matches and lost six. Levi and Beatty won about half their matches against the best players in the state. Parham and Gregg many times provided the margin for victory with their wins in doubles.

Of this year's squad, Capt. Levi, Gregg, Patton, and Estes will be lost by graduation, while Parham, Beatty, Woodward, Johnston, Creech, and Gray will be back for another season.

Alpha Lambda Tau Wins Diamond Race

Trounces Pi Kappa Alpha, 8-3, For First Place.

Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, playing fast ball Saturday afternoon, earned the right to claim the intramural baseball championship by virtue of their 8 to 3 win over Pi Kappa Alpha, which had previously turned back Alumni dormitory and Pi Kappa Phi in the mad scramble to reach the finals.

The tournament, sponsored by Blue Key, honorary leadership fraternity, was run off in a most orderly fashion and the cooperation of the different entries was splendid.

The A. L. T.'s proved themselves to be the best team entered in the tournament by defeating A. K. P., 23 to 2, in the first round, then turning back a strong K. A. nine in the second round, 21 to 3, and finishing by beating Pi K. A. in the finals, 8 to 3. "Bogator" Atkinson deserves considerable credit for his remarkable showing made throughout the tournament. He caught all three games for the Alpha Lambda Tau's and established himself as a main threat for the catcher's position on Chick Galloway's team next year. Little Jimmy Dennard was also a valuable asset to his teammates, pitching remarkably well in the first game and holding down the shortstop position after the manner of a veteran in the last two games.

Other outstanding players in the tournament were: McClary, for the K. A.'s, who played errorless ball throughout the tournament; Woodward, of the Pi K. A.'s, who was probably the best twirler in the loop; Bill McSween, of the Pi K. A.'s, who also played errorless ball and led the batting for his teammates with a mighty home run in the first game; and Macon Hipp, stellar first sacker for the A. L. T.'s, who batted in more runs than any other member of the tournament.

Intramural Tennis Coming To Close

Potter, Defending Champ, and Hammel, Mann, and Taylor Left In Finals of Singles.

The singles division of Blue Key's intramural tennis tournament had today narrowed to four men, while first round doubles matches had been completed and play begun on the second bracket.

Beta Kappa is represented by Potter and Mann in the semi finals of the tournament, while Pi Kappa Phi and Alpha Lambda Tau each have one representative in Hammell and Taylor.

Potter fought his way to the semi-finals by winning his three matches from Dyes, Adams, and then a 6-4, 6-2 match from Lee Quarterman. Mann reached the second bracket by way of the default route and then defeated Stowell, 9-7, 7-5.

Hammell gained the fourth round as the result of a default, a victory over Hughes, and a 6-2, 6-2 defeat of Edgar Stanton. Taylor also reached the semi-finals by the hard route, winning from Clements, Witherspoon and Penland.

All four of these men are excellent racket-wielders, and the fight to decide the campus champion should be a close one.

All the first round doubles have been played, and Stowell and Bradley, of Alpha Lambda Tau, have gone still farther by winning two matches. The first was at the expense of Bethea and Adams; the second was won from Stanton and Blackwell. First round results are as follows:

Mann and Potter, Beta Kappa, advanced as the result of a bye.

Hemphill and Berry, Kappa Alpha, defeated Huntley and B. Upshur, Pi Kappa Alpha, 6-2, 2-6, 6-4.

Pittman and Cody, Alpha Kappa Pi, defeated Holliday and Maxson, Pi Kappa Phi, 6-3, 6-4.

Harvin and McClary, Kappa Alpha, defeated McRae and Burns, P. Kappa Alpha, 6-0, 6-0.

Walter and Valley, Kappa Alpha, defeated Steenbergen and Degner, Pi Kappa Phi.

Carolina Outfit Defeats Hose Nine

P. C. Loses By 8-7 Score In Last Game of Year.

In a final game here Tuesday afternoon, the Presbyterian Blue Hose and the Carolina Gamecocks rang down the curtain on their diamond activities for 1936, the latter earning an 8-7 decision over the Blue Stockings.

Kalmbach, up and coming Carolina sophomore, was instrumental in the victory, supplying the necessary stick work in the ninth inning that brought in the tying and winning run. The Birds came to bat in their half of the ninth inning with the score 7-5 against them. It was at this stage of the game that the lusty Kalmbach pulled the game out of the fire for his team-mates, lining a tremendous wallop out to center field that enabled three Carolina men to cross the platter safely, virtually ending the game.

Kneece, star Gamecock twirler, was also outstanding in the University line-up. Besides pitching a neat game, he obtained three safe blows out of five times at bat. Coon Weldon was best for P. C., getting credit for two safeties out of three attempts. "Pudge" Plowden, who has been turning in splendid performances lately, lashed out a mighty double to add punch to the Calvinist attack.

In this colorful baseball game that marked the close of the season, four valuable men in the starting line-up sang their swan songs; namely, Robbie Higbe, Shorty Horne, Goof Holliday, and Pudge Plowden. Roy Forehand, who has been out of the line-up for some time because of a shoulder injury, will also be lost to the Gallowaymen through graduation.

Netmen Trounce Citadel, 4 To 3

After a brilliant last-minute rally, the P. C. netmen defeated The Citadel 4 to 3 in the final match of the season here Tuesday. After losing the first three singles matches the Hosemen turned on the steam to sweep the last four matches with the Bulldogs.

The doubles matches were exciting and decided the victory for P. C. Parham and Gregg defeated Earle and Walker of The Citadel in the final match, to give P. C. the win and compiete their season undefeated in doubles play.

Summary:

Holliday (C) defeated Levi (P), 6-3, 7-5.

Gregg (P) defeated Walker (C), 6-1, 3-6, 7-5.

Levi and Beatty (P) defeated Dibble and Holliday (C), 6-3, 3-6, 6-4.

Parham and Gregg (P) defeated Earle and Walker (C), 6-0, 7-5.

Block 'P' Banquet Wednesday Night

The annual block "P" banquet will be held on Wednesday night at an hour not yet definitely decided upon.

The meal will be served in the college dining hall and all block "P" men are invited to attend. Although the hour of the banquet will probably be 7:30, Coach Walter A. Johnson stated this morning that a more definite announcement would be made tomorrow or Wednesday.

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

A few more classes, a few exams, and another college year will have ended. As usual, graduation will cut into the football roster and take its toll of star performers. With this in mind, and with the approach of a new school year in September, how will P. C. stand? This column presents sketches of prospects in each sport for the coming year.

FOOTBALL

Bradley, Forehand and McSween will be lost at the ends. Substitutions, but three capable performers will have graduated from the freshman ranks to take their places. Atkinson, Holmes, and Batchelor look good. Murchison, Boswell, Henderson, Ervis and others will bolster the forward wall.

The loss of Wilbanks, Higbe, Holliday, and others from the backfield will hurt, but Thompson, Jacobs, Weldon and a host of freshman stars should form a capable backfield make-up for June Moore..

The Hosemen, at best, cannot expect more than a fair season. Such elevens as Clemson, Furman, and Citadel are hard to down. So, we predict another "average" season.

BASKETBALL

With last year's freshman stars available, we look for a great court season in 1936-37. Although the entire first string graduates, the cagers will enjoy their most successful court season in many years. The brilliant Batchelor, assisted by Holden, Holmes, Kimbo, and Christian, will form a dazzling aggregation. Coach Waldrep and George Cleckler may break into the first string line-up. If Pugh returns in September, the Blue Stockings will be in position to come out first in the state standing.

BOXING

It's difficult to discuss prospects in this sport. Captain Pugh will win practically all his engagements. The present freshman class may offer three or four capable men, but the whole thing is uncertain. At the present, all we can say is—watch Hartmann and Clements.

TRACK

The 1937 track outfit will be a shade weaker than the present team. Bradley, who made 10 points in every meet this year, graduates and established himself as the state's ace speed-merchant. Roy Forehand has equalled Bradley's point-making on many occasions, and his brilliant exhibitions in the 440 have made him a valuable man.

The freshmen will offer two flashy performers in Reid and Dennard. The former broke a hurdle record in the last meet, while Dennard excels in two dashes and the broad jump. Weighing loss against gain, we are able to detect little or no fluctuation in cinder stock from this year to next.

BASEBALL

Seven men will be lost in 1937 from the team that have copped the state championship in 1936. The second combination of Horne and Higbe will be missed, as well as the stops Forehand and Plowden, and the hitting, fielding and running of Goof Holliday. Wyatt and Millsap are others who made their last strike. Christian, Batchelor, Moore, and Holden will somewhat heal the wounds of graduation; but, although the '37 nine may hustle more, we don't believe it will be as potentially strong as this year's outfit.

Chick Galloway's main worries will center around the infield. The outfield will be held down capably by Evans, Weldon, Suggs or Coe, and at least three good flingers will be available.

TENNIS

Levi, Gregg, Patton, and Estes will wreck havoc in the ranks by their graduating, but there's always someone ready to take your place in this game. Beatty will move up to No. 1, Parham to No. 2. That leaves Woodward, Creech, and others to carry on. Another "just fair" season in the offing.

SWIMMING

Impetus should be given to the water sport by the signing of a regular coach, and the present stagnant condition, brought by a year's idleness, is due for a change. The recent intramural tournament was participated in by several students who showed promise of aquatic ability in the future.

LIGHTS OUT

And with this bit of discussion we close up the shop for the summer months. All in all, the sports parade has been interesting and fairly successful. We hope this column has helped somewhat in making the year a little more enjoyable. When September rolls around we'll be around. Until then—so long.

WOMEN:

In the specialized field of radio, such beauty remains necessarily unseen that is tops. There are many beautiful women in the profession, but it is proved by the good impressions created by the appearance of Grace Moore, Gladys Swarthout, Harriet Hilliard, Dorothy Page, and other radio stars who have broken into visual favor via motion pictures.

Harriet Hilliard, the current college rave, is Ozzie Nelson's soloist—and his wife when she's not alone out west making a picture under the fat contract that she recently landed. The next most talked-of woman is the lowly Dolly Dorn, who rates high in college favor. Dolly is the lovely and capable successor to Loretta Lee, who still sings for Al Goodman. Dolly is with George Wall.

A new name in the top bands is that of Helen Ward with Benny Goodman. After a look at Miss Ward's picture, we wonder how long Benny will be good with that gal around. While we investigate the swing bands, Glen Gray (who, by the way, is swinging of late) sports an ornament to anybody's program with the titian-haired Jeane Janis. She sings heart ballads and comedy songs with equal ease. Her personality fairly peps you up, even over the radio.

Grace Moore is gone from the radio, but Radio Guide shows that that popular young woman will certainly come back in the fall. She is a rival of the long-established Jessica Dragonette, who is still top-ranking, even though she has a record of eleven years of broadcasting.

Kay Thompson is a most talented director of girls' ensembles. She was once with Fred Waring, but now she is doing a fine job with Andre Kostelanetz. She has gone high-hat, while Marion Talley, the sensation of opera several years ago, is making a comeback. She was a farm lassie for several years, but the yen to sing got her and brought her back into the radio fold.

There are only a few of the women. The radio is full of them. The summer season is bringing orchestras. Let's look at a few.

BANDS:

Duke Ellington, dean of Negro jazz artists, is in the swanky Chicago Congress hotel. He is plenty hot and modern. A brother piano player, Earl Hines, is holding the Grand Terrace down in Chicago. He is an exponent of the "I-don't-see-how-he-does-it" style. Harriet Hilliard — NBC, 6:30 EST, she's got it.

Don Bestor is organized and playing his smooth style once more from Canada. He had union trouble and was almost ruined. A Mae Westish damsel is heading a fancy radio show as well as that at The Terrace room in Chicago. She believes in red-hot rhythm and girls.

PROGRAMS:

Harriet Hilliard — NBC, 630 EST, WSB, Sunday.

Jessica Dragonnette—NBC, WEAF, Friday.

Marion Talley — NBC, Friday, WEAF, 7:00 p.m.

Duke Ellington — WENR every night, 11:00 p.m.

Earl Hines — WENR every night, 12:00 midnight.

Deane Janis—Tuesday and Thursday, 8:00 p.m., WBT.

Don Bestor—Friday, WABC, 11:30 p.m.

Sophie Tucker — Friday, WLW, 11:30 p.m.

Helen Ward — Tuesday, WSB, 2:00 p.m.

P. C. CORPS TO LOSE SEVERAL VALUABLE MEN TO UNCLE SAM

Dill Ellis and Allen McSween To Go To West Point, Others Stand Tests For Annapolis, Air Corps, and Regular Army.

With the increasing opporutnity for entrance into the various branches of Uncle Sam's army and navy, the advanced military men on the campus are taking advantage of this with the result that the corps is scheduled for a loss of valuable officers next year.

Two juniors, Dill Ellis and Allen McSween, having won a coveted appointment, and passed all the examinations, will enter the historic United States Military academy in June, where they will learn to become proficient "man-handlers." It is with a mixed feeling of admiration and regret that the corps turns over two of next year's most promising officers to the school on the Hudson.

There are four more P. C. men who have taken the difficult examinations for entrance to both the military and naval academies and have been notified that they hold alternate positions. Among these, probably the most hopeful is Edgar Stanton, who holds two first alternate places, having had two appointments. Julien Freeman is a first alternate to the appointment won by Dill Ellis. Bill McSween is a second, and Jack Witherspoon a third alternate from a naval academy exam. There is always the possibility that these men will be notified to fill a vacancy caused by the failure of a principal to pass all physical and mental requirements that arise even after entrance . . . so they continue to hope.

Since Major Wysor's recent announcement concerning the plan of the regular army to admit reserve officers into the army as second lieutenants, there have been seven of P. C.'s senior military men to apply for a chance to drill the regulars. Only two will be chosen from these seven, who are Tom Plaxico, R. R. Potter, Johnny Chapman, Roy Forehand, Hank Wilson, Cliff Johnson and "Buddy" Chapman. The two lucky enough to be chosen will have to prove that they can "take it" before being awarded permanent commissions in the regular army.

Then there is the exam for entrance to the West Point of the air which will be given in Montgomery, Ala., on Wednesday. There are also seven P. C. men planning to take this most rigid of all physical tests in an attempt to prove to Uncle Sam's airmen that they can hold together if the ship does.. These are Julien Freeman, H. D. Cranford, T. T. Upshur, C. M. Cappelmann, Lee Quarterman, Alan Levi, and Johnny Chapman.

It seems that this year the military corps is destined to lose not only the senior officers but also a number of valuable men who would have worn the "Sam Browne" next year. However, those juniors who report for duty here next year will continue to uphold the "excellent" rating of the corps as they remember the parting salute of their past officers, in which the very spirit of the army is embodied—"Carry on!"

Keller To Head National Group

P. C. Man Elected President of Delta Chi Alpha.

At the national convention of Delta Chi Alpha, Christian leadership fraternity, held on the local campus Wednesday, Chester Keller, president of the P. C. Y.M.C.A., was elected national president of the organization for the coming year.

Retiring President John E. Goodwin, a graduate of Wofford college, Spartanburg, presided over the meetings. After the business sessions, the election of new officers took place at which time Keller was chosen over J. G. Stroud of Sparatnburg.

Clarence Parker, Wofford college, was elected first vice-president, with Stroud as second vice-president. Other officers elected were Cliff McLeod, of P. C., as national secretary, and Eugene DeBra, of Textile institute, Spartanburg, associate treasurer. R. G. Bell, Y.M.C.A. secretary of the University of South Carolina will serve for a period of four years as national treasurer.

The two new members of the executive council, who will serve for a term of two years, are Richard Potter, of P. C., and George M. Schreyer, Wofford college.

Presbyterian college issued an invitation to the group to make this their headquarters for the next convention if the officers so desire.

Delta Chi Alpha is a comparatively young fraternity, but it has several very active chapters at present. It was organized on the University of South Carolina campus several years ago and obtained its charter in 1933. The president of the P. C. chapter, Gamma, is Hubert Wardlaw, of Marietta, Ga.

SORORITY NAMES LEADERS

Recent elections of Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, named Frances Spratt, Clinton, president of the group for the coming year. Miss Spratt is a member of The Blue Stocking staff, a rising senior, and prominent in co-ed affairs.

Other officers of the sorority were as follows: Reta Chandler, Clinton, vice-president; Verna McLeod, Ocala, Fla., secretary-treasurer, and Myra Wise, Trenton, chairman of the social committee.

The American Geological society dug into the basement of Harvard hall the other day and came up with an important find: 100-year-old beer bottles!

THE KAMPUS KEYHOLE

Here and there:

Congratulations to BAXTER CARPENTER . . . For the first time he is having the same girl down for two dances, all in the same year . . . BILL DEGNER, handsome but duck-legged Wisconsin youth, received three letters the other day in the afternoon mail . . . Two were from Laurens; the other was from Hollins college, Virginia . . . EZRA PATTON, who strings tennis rackets for local net fans (adv.) has just (five minutes previous to this writing) arisen from his bed for the first time this year before the first bell for chapel . . . A phone call is the reason . . . T. Q. JONES, remembered as the fistic conqueror of Carl McCully, recently told us of his remarkable will power . . . He related with pardonable pride how, a few nights ago, a girl wanted him to kiss her and he proudly and scornfully refused.

HICK HARVIN, newly-elected King of Kappa Alpha, at a recent meeting of the brotherhood, urged all the boys to get dates for finals, doubtless thinking also of the golden flow that would accrue to him as president of the Pan-Hellenic council. Later investigation revealed that the monarch himself had already asked five girls to the dances and each one already had a "previous engagement."

FRANK BOOTH, of the Katharine Hepburn physiognomy, has got back into the swing of things, now that he has dispensed with the services of Jack Gasque as adviser in love. After he had written his best girl, on the advice of Gasque, and told her he was madly in love with her, asking if she reciprocated, he did not hear from her for quite some time. After firing said Gasque, however, it took only three weeks for Booth to get reply. Now things are progressing nicely.

EDITOR SADLER LOVE, known for his good humor, almost lost his reputation for that sterling characteristic last week-end at Winthrop. Saturday night he was walking on the campus headed for a date, attired in a spotless linen suit, with a song in his heart and at peace with the world. But just as he stepped up to the dormitory he heard a disturbing noise upstairs. He looked up to ascertain the cause of the disturbance. But he did not look long, for down came the contents of a huge bucket of water, drenching him from head to foot.

Note: This item was saved from the editor's waste basket only by the fullest persuasive powers of this columnist.

Editor's Note:—In appreciation of the fact that Dirt-Slinger Preston Charles today closes an excellent four-year record as a college newswriter and columnist, we humbly bow our editorial head in this the final appearance of "The Keyhole."

Swan Song

The writer of the Kampus Keyhole, in singing his swan song, wishes to express appreciation to his readers for the tolerant attitude they have taken toward the wild orgy of word-slinging that has characterized this column.

We also wish to thank those men in the student body who have been so helpful in supplying the material for these writings, among them George Oliver, Jack Gasque, Hick Harvin, Cliff Johnson, George Cody and many others. Then there are bouquets due even more to those who have so often indulged in the bizarre activities that provided much material for this column, such as Roy Forehand, Jack Gasque, Montague Jacobs, Tom Estes, Elrod MacLeod, and others too numerous to mention.

To all readers of The Blue Stocking we say a regretful good-bye, trusting, however, that coming issues of The Blue Stocking will be graced by much better feature material than has been afforded by the Kampus Keyhole!

'Y' HANDBOOK GOES TO PRESS

Editor Eldred MacLeod To Send First Edition of Publication To Printer Today.

The president of the Y.M.C.A., Chester Keller, has just announced that work on the Y.M.C..A. student handbook is practically complete and that the book would probably go to press this afternoon or tomorrow.

The handbook is being financed with fifty dollars from the Y.M.C.A. budget, fifty dollars from advertisements, and fifty dollars from the students. Three-fourths of the students have already agreed to give twenty-five cents of their breakage fee refund toward paying for the handbook. About 400 copies of the book will be printed and each old student will be given a copy of the work upon matriculation next year, while the freshmen will receive their copy during the summer.

The book will be divided into four sections. The first section will contain information about the college, and general information which will be of interest to the student. Section two will be devoted to information for freshmen, such as freshmen rules, suggestions for orienting themselves more easily with college life. Section three will give information about the Y.M.C.A., its program, nature, and policies. It will also contain information regarding the duties of Y.M.C.A. cabinet committees. Special information will be given for benefit of freshmen regarding the freshman Y.M.C.A. council. Section four will be devoted to information regarding athletic schedules, teams played and games lost and won during the past year, etc.

The issuing of this book is only one of the many progressive steps planned for the greater Y.M.C.A. program in 1936-37. This will be the first time in the history of the school that a student handbook has been issued. The book is being edited by Eldred MacLeod, chairman of the publicity committee, who is assisted by E. A. Johnson, associate editor, and R. W. Williams, business manager. Joe Commander, N. S. Heath, and Malcolm Hemphill are assisting in editing the book.

Dr. Roper, pastor of Broad Street Methodist church and professor of education at the college, gave an inspiring message on "Stereotype of Superiority," describing how the stereotype was made in the printing office, how each character print was molded into a set and fixed form. He compared this stereotype to the human person. Building stereotype is like building character, he stated. Men become patterns for others, as Jesus was an example, and mold their lives into a model of religious personality and character.

Illustrated Booklet Is Now Available

A new type of quarterly booklet has just come from the press.

Designed personally by President Jacobs and made up of excellent photographs of campus views and student groups, it is something new in the field of college advertising.

Any alumnus or friend of the college desirous of having a copy of this unusual booklet need only notify The Alumlite or the college administration. Those in contact with prospective students are urged to put into their hands the new bulletin.

TAPS

With this issue of The Blue Stocking the staff slips covers over the typewriters until September 14, when the first issue of the 1936-37 school session will appear.

During the year finished today 34 numbers of The Blue Stocking have come from the press, more than have been printed in any other single year since the paper was established. Last year 29 papers were issued and the year before 27 rolled out of the mill.

We leave you today to face exams beginning at 8:30 Friday morning and the end of the school year scheduled for a week from Saturday.

P. C. Alumnus On Staff Of "Time"

J. P. Young, '26, has been connected with the staff of "Time," the weekly news magazine, since May, 1935, prior to which he served with "Liberty" and "The Literary Digest."

In a recent letter he obliged the editor of The Alumlite with the information that Jimmy Reid, '27, is now manager of the New York office of a window shade corporation, and that Henry M. Brimm, '17, on leave of absence from Union Theological seminary, where he is librarian, is at Columbia university working on his master's degree in library science.

Possibly even more valuable is the testimonial (unsolicited) which he gives Presbyterian College:

"The ten years that have passed since graduation have only served to convince me that a man who gets everything possible out of his work at P. C. is as well equipped for the battle with life as the man who spends his under-graduate existence at Yale, Harvard or Princeton. This in turn has increased the feeling of gratitude that I have for what was given me by the college and those who serve it."

SIZE OF CLASS IS HANDICAP AT CAMP

Presbyterian college, most military of the South's non-military schools, again upheld its superior rating at Fort McClellan, Ala., for the training period June 7 to July 18, P. C. rating second in the Fourth Corps area, with The Citadel, of Charleston, first.

Last year's unit rated first with 980 points out of a possible 1,000, while the present outfit made 956 points. In the thirteen years that the general proficiency cup has been awarded, P. C. has won it seven times. Never has the Presbyterian rating fallen below third, with the exception of 1925, an all-time record.

Losses caused by graduation and appointments to West Point left a group of 14 men to represent P. C. against such schools as Louisiana State, The Citadel, Clemson, Davidson, Georgia Tech, and others. In addition to this handicap was another that of having won the cup more often than any other school in the corps area, and, therefore, being singled out as the school to beat.

In competition for the discipli cup, although amassing 42.21 poin against 27.07 for its closest riv P. C. was declared ineligible becau of the fact that its representativ numbered only 14, while 20 were quired for eligibility.

"Y" Reception Is Enjoyable Affa

Entertaining this year's new with its annual "rat reception," Y.M.C.A. Saturday night prese the first social event of the year

The freshmen first went to Dr J. Brimm's home, where they their lady partners for the even and then went to the Y.M.C.A. b ing for the reception. Immedi upon their arrival there they rece identification tags and walked d the reception line, composed of fi ty members and their wives.

Punch and crackers were se during the reception and the o tional reception prom was held the plaza. This prom is unique in neither the boys nor the girls w who their partners will be for successive proms.

The reception was highly en by freshmen as well as upperc men.

Y. M. C. A. PREPARES FOR YEAR'S WO

Beginning with a vesper servi on Sunday afternoon at five o'clo the Y.M.C.A. opened its year's wo on the campus.

During the past week the ani zation has been engaged in din the new men about the camp and helping them in every way pos ble, but the vesper service was t first service of the 1936-37 session gular meetings of the "Y" will held in the chapel of the Y.M.C.A. ding every Thursday night seven o'clock beginning this week.

Dr. Spencer will head the department of mathematics, Dr. Whitelaw having been transferred to the department of physics. Prof. Spencer received his Ph.D. from Cornell.

Y' and Infirmary Add To Equipment

ive One of Most Up-to-date Plants In State.

When the largest freshmapn class in the history of Presbyterian college inspected its new home for the first time September 8 under the guidance of student Y.M.C.A. officials, it was viewing a different school from the one that their future tormentors, the lofty sophomores, viewed with mingled feelings just a year ago.

Last year's freshmen gathered in the rotunda of the administration building to begin their orientation period. This year's record-breaking number met in the Y.M.C.A. community house, a new campus center where, during the next four years they will gather in recreation rooms for billiards, ping-pong, chess, checkers, monopoly, bridge, bull-sessions, and we fear, "knock-knock." There they will receive their mail at the postoffice recently moved to that building, and there they will purchase books, equipment, candy and cigarettes at the new and enlarged college canteen.

When they entered the administration building they found a place spick and span, gleaming from the three months labors of painters, carpenters, and electricians.

Their predecessors have "gold-bricked" by feigning illness and remaining in their dormitory beds while the college physicians were summoned. They will find gold-bricking a more difficult task when they learn that illness will be treated in P. C.'s new, modernly equipped infirmary, where they will be under the expert attention of an experienced matron, Mrs. John Cromer McSwain, who will administer drugs, food, and kindness under the direction of school physicians, Doctors St. Clair Hays and Delmar O. Rhame.

When they entered the place occupied by the R.O.T.C. armory last year they found machine guns and high-powered rifles replaced by accounting desks, typewriters, adding machines and all types of modern business equipment, for the armory has been moved into the space formerly occupied by the post office and canteen and its former place filled with the laboratories, class rooms, and office of the head of the newly created commerce department, Professor Kenneth N. Baker.

Their pleasure at their new surroundings equalled that of the more than 200 returning old students who first viewed the surprising changes on September 10.

New Professors Take Over Duties At Opening Session

FIVE INSTRUCTORS HIGHLY RECOMMENDED

When Presbyterian college's record-breaking student body completed its registration and began attending classes on September 12 it found five new faces in the professorial ranks of the school.

Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw, last year professor of mathematics at P. C., has been shifted to the physics department of which he will be head, and the position which he held last year is filled by Dr. H. E. Spencer, last year an instructor at Cornell, from which school he holds his master's and his doctor's degrees.

Prof. Hugh T. Swedenberg of the English department is on a leave of absence completing work on his doctor's degree at the University of North Carolina, and his position is being filled by Prof. Bernard H. Boyd, who holds a master's degree from Princeton university.

Heading the newly created department of commerce is Prof. Kenneth N. Baker, formerly head of the business administration department of Newberry college. Mr. Baker is being assisted in his work of preparing business executives by the head of the economics department, Dr. J. B. Kennedy, English professor, B. H. Boyd, and mathematics professor, Dr. H. E. Spencer.

Replacing Captain George S. Beatty, who was detailed to the Army Infantry school at Fort Leavenworth is Major Floyd C. Harding of the United States army. His duties are those of assistant professor of military science and tactics.

Dr. Roger L. Coe, head of the department of education, is on leave of absence serving as state director of the National Youth administration and his position is being filled by Dr. J. C. Long, who has a Ph.D. from George Peabody college.

P. C. Men Are In West Point And Air

Presbyterian college is well represented in the various branches of Uncle Sam's military service, three members of the class of 1936 being cadets at the United States Military academy, and one of the class of 1937 now receiving training at the government's air school at Randolph Field prior to receiving his commission in that branch of the service.

The three men, A. C. McSween, Dill Ellis, and E. E. Stanton, who are now in West Point are there through congressional appointments confirmed at various times during the past school year. The late Congressman J. J. McSwain announced early last year that he would award his appointment for this year to a Presbyterian college student living in the Fourth congressional district. On a competitive basis, Ellis was selected from a large number of applicants. McSween received news of his appointment in April. Stanton did not receive confirmation of his selection until early in the summer. These three P. C. men reported to West Point July 1 and are receiving their first year's training at the academy.

Last spring eight P. C. students went to Montgomery to stand the examinations required for entrance into the government air service. Julien Freeman passed the rigorous physical tests and left for Randolph Field July 1 to begin his two-year period of training.

The four men who have entered active service were among the highest ranking men in the Presbyterian college military unit. Last year Freeman held the post of sergeant-major and was ranking man in the junior class. Ellis and McSween ranked as first sergeants. Stanton held the post of platoon sergeant.

NUMBER STUDENTS TO EQUAL LARGEST IN HISTORY OF SCHOOL

Broadening of Curriculum and Completion of 'Y' and Infirmary Buildings Add To Opening.

OFFICIALS EXPECT EXCELLENT SESSION

The total enrollment of Presbyterian college for the 1936-37 session reached the mark of 323 on Friday with the close of registration. With 125 men registered in the freshman class and 197 old students returning, the registrar stated that, with several late arrivals, the total enrollment figure will probably reach last year's record mark of 332 within a week.

Fourteen states and one foreign country are represented by the students enrolled. The states, with the number of their representatives, are: South Carolina, 206; Georgia, 61; North Carolina, 20; Florida, 5; Virginia, 5; West Virginia, 2; Mississippi, 2; Kentucky, 1; Tennessee, 3; Wisconsin, 1; Alabama, 1; Maine, 1; Kansas, 1; Pennsylvania, 1. Korea is represented by one student.

The administration of the college first planned to limit the student body to 300 students in order to improve the living conditions over last year. However, this mark was surpassed early in the summer by the number of applications, despite an increase of fifty dollars in the tuition. New quarters have been provided to accommodate the overflow and the expected enrollment for the year is the maximum number that the college can accommodate.

Terminating in the annual reception given by the Y.M.C.A. and the College Dames in honor of the new students, the freshmen completed Saturday night a week of orientation and welcoming functions in which representatives of the college administration, student body, Clinton churches and civic bodies addressed them. The usual psychological and physical tests were given earlier in the week.

The opening of school last week was in addition marked by the inauguration of extensive courses in commerce, which will lead to the degree of bachelor of science in commerce, and by the modernization of equipment, including the repairing of the heating system, installation of infirmary and Y.M.C.A. buildings.

COMMERCE

PROF. KENNETH N. BAKER

Prof. Baker is head of the newly created commerce department. He comes highly recommended from Newberry's department of business administration.

Collings Selected Lt.-Col. Of Corps

Jacobs, Legare, and Patrick To Be Company Commanders.

J. K. Collings, senior from Atlanta, Ga., has been appointed cadet major of the R.O.T.C. unit at P. C. for the coming year. Collings is a varsity tackle and student leader on the campus.

Other appointments are: J. W. Thompson, Camden, captain and adjutant; J. T. Suggs, Darlington, first lieutenant and assistant adjutant, cadet captains and company commanders: J. B. Jacobs, Clinton; F. W. Legare, Charleston; Joe Patrick, Covington, Ga.; R. A. Shoemaker, Charlotte, N. C.; cadet first lieutenant and platoon commanders: G. E. Plunkett, Conyers, Ga.; E. W. Evans, Iva; F. T. Wallace, Chester; W. J. Langston, Conway; J. P. Majors, Menlo, Ga.; D. M. Mann, Burlington, N. C.

New Major Has Had Varied Career

Major F. C. Harding, accompanied by his charming wife, has taken up his residence in Clinton where he will be assistant professor of military science and tactics for the coming session at Presbyterian college. The Hardings have a son and a daughter and both of them will attend Clinton high school.

Major Harding was transferred here from Fort Snelling, Minn., where he served with the 3rd infantry. He has seen foreign service in China and Puerto Rico, and was with the 10th division during the World war.

Having served a term of duty at the University of Nebraska from 1923 to 1927, the new military instructor is well equipped to carry out his duties at P. C. One of his desires is to have the freshmen in readiness to drill with their companies within 30 days. This has never before been accomplished.

Major Harding, when asked his opinion of P. C. and its football team, replied that he was delighted with the college and Clinton. He added that the football team, though light, had impressed him with its pep and fight. He looks for them to do big things on South Carolina gridirons this season.

PaC-SaC Staff Is Still Incomplete

According to announcement made today by Joe Patrick, Covington, Ga., editor of the 1937 PaC-SaC, the preliminary work on the annual has already gotten under way and prospects are that the publication will hold to its usual standard.

Although Editor Patrick has not yet completed his staff for the coming year, J. K. Collings, Atlanta, and Malcolm Hemphill, Griffin, Ga., are assured of positions as business manager and advertising manager, respectively, having been elected by the student body in the spring elections.

The printing and engraving contract, last year let to Jacobs & Co., Clinton, will again be handled by the local firm, while Nichols Studio, Clinton, will continue for another year the photographic work.

Selection of the complete yearbook staff will be completed at an early date, Patrick stated, and work will move forward as rapidly as possible, class group pictures being made around October 1.

NOTICE

All freshmen or other new students desiring to work on The Blue Stocking staff are requested to see Sadler Love, editor, as soon as possible in order that they may be given trial assignments.

So You've Come To College!

Now that they are all through welcoming you —the class of 1940—perhaps you can take time off to glance around and see just where you are. Why you are here many of you will be several years in discovering, but English professors will, if they run true to form, assign that subject for freshmen themes in the days ahead. Don't let it worry you too much. Be more concerned with what you are going to do now that you are here.

You'll find, we believe, that P. C. will meet you half way. You will hear, if you have not already heard, that P. C. is destined for great things, that her real progress has just begun. Her willingness to meet you half way and her progress will be very closely connected, because your progress will to a great extent be parallel to that of this school. We who have seen her progress of the past year have great faith in her future. We believe that you, too, have been caught up in the whirl of enthusiasm, of advancement.

Faculty advisers will tell you, if they have not already done so, that two hours of study for each hour of class is necessary. We have never found it, in three years, either necessary or possible. We believe that your time for study will have to be based upon your own ability and your own power of concentration.

But such things as study, extra curricular activities, courses, and the like will take care of themselves if you will determine that four years of college can do very definite things in the building of your character, your mind, and your manners; that you will put every ounce of energy into the task, hurculean at times, of getting every ounce of value from your work, your play, and your associations.

In entering P. C. at this time, you have, so to speak, gotten in on the ground floor of a new enterprise. Whether or not you keep step with that enterprise is left entirely up to you.

Policy: A Reminder

Breaking away somewhat radically from the policies of staffs of the past few years, THE BLUE STOCKING last year attempted to enter somewhat more into the life of P. C. and even, in moments of wild flight, to attempt to bring about certain changes in that life. In spite of the fact that there were times at which this staff doubted the wiseness of such a policy, we came through the semester with a firmer belief than ever before in its necessity.

We believe that if a college paper is to be more than a calendar of events sometimes a week old, it must do all in its rather limited power to mold campus opinion. You will not read in the editorial columns of this paper of the ravages of drought in the mid-west nor of styles of dress in the Orient. In so far as it is possible, we intend to continue our policy of commenting upon those subjects that directly concern the student of today, and especially the student of P. C.

Many of the things we say you will perhaps not like. With some of them you will violently disagree. But you can rest assured that, when proven wrong, this staff will not hesitate to reverse its opinions. On controversial questions this paper, as in the past semester, will not be found astride the fence. A fence rail has never suited the anatomy of this staff.

We intend to say what we think, in a decent manner, with malice toward none, with the sincere hope that in so doing we will strengthen our own character and further the progress of P. C. When and if we are unable to follow such a policy, a special publication election will be necessary.

ECHOES FROM CAMP

Three feet removed from h--- and poorly insulated—Fort McClellan, Alabama. Here sweltered the smallest military unit ever to represent P. C. at the annual R.O.T.C. war games. Handicapped by the loss of such men as Freeman, McSween, Ellis and Stanton, the fourteen remainnig seniors showed the results of superior training by placing second in the race for both the proficiency and discipline cups, beating out such schools as Louisiana State, Clemson, Georgia, Mississippi, N. C. State, Davidson, and many others. Well does Presbyterian college deserve the name of the most military of the non-military schools.

In athletics, P. C. also showed up well. The wall-scaling team won its event in the record-breaking time of 39.2. If by any chance you readers think wall-scaling is a crip, try ambling up eleven feet of smooth board wall, perfectly perpendicular to the ground. Besides this first place, the team amassed enough seconds and thirds to place fourth in the meet, tying with Clemson.

"Screw-arm" Suggs was easily the best pitcher in camp, and Pitt Bird, dubbed "P. C." because of his loud and long avowals of undying loyalty to his Alma Mater, was noted for his genius in calling balls strikes and vice-versa.

"Fats" Wallace lost much weight but was unable to leave his "watermelon" in Alabama. Bill Thompson was never known to miss the seven P. M. bus into town for that date with one of Anniston's fairest flowers, or something. "Hawk" Evans, quiet baseball slugger, found in the Anniston women some quality which brought out his true nature: he was one of the most noted of the camp lovers.

There is talk afoot of outfitting the corps in natty white uniforms next spring. Since we have one of the best military units in the South, why shouldn't we dress up to our reputation? Year after year our unit places first or second over all the military schools in the Fourth Corps area. Other outfits have classy uniforms, and we have proved beyond a doubt that we can rank with the best. Let's get together and make these new uniforms a reality. There may be a slight cost attached, but it will be worth it.

The Spaniards continue to wallow in blood while the rest of the world wonders what the outcome will be.

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Dancing Pirate." Opening the first full week of school with a bang, this dancing musical is in 100% technicolor, a tale of love in a land of adventure. Players: Charles Collins, Frank Morgan, Steffi Duna. Also MGM news and comedy.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Forgotten Faces." He came back from the Big House to stop a wife who was threatening the happiness of his daughter. Herbert Marshall and Gertrude Michael provide the drama. Also "March of Time" and short.

Friday and Saturday: "Fury." You don't want to miss this story of a man who faced death at the hands of a mob, a man whose spectre came back to stand his murderers at the bar and ask the state for their lives. Spencer Tracy and Sylvia Sidney turn in fine performances. Players: Spencer Tracy, Sylvia Sidney, Walter Abel, Bruce Cabot, Edward Ellis. Also serial and "Three Little Wolves."

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Trouble for Two." A fair grade picture featuring Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, and Virginia Weidler, the latest Shirley Temple.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Arizona Riders." Another shoot 'em up. This one is based on Zane Grey's "Riders of Spanish Peaks." Players: Larry (Baster) Crabbe, Raymond Hatton, Marsha Hunt, Jane Rhodes.

Friday and Saturday: "The New Frontier." Six guns continue to crack the usual story of a two-fisted cowboy who made the West safe for nothing or other. Players: John Wayne and Muriel Evans. Also serial, comedy, and short.

ON TO TIGERTOWN!

BLUE STOCKING GRIDMEN MEET TIGERS SATURDAY

HOSE OUTFIT TAKING SHAPE FOR FIRST TILT

Opening Lineup Still Indefinite; Injuries Add To Indecision.

Hard, long afternoon sessions are occupying Presbyterian's grid candidates as they enter the final week of preparation for the opener with Clemson Saturday.

A practice menu inclusive of scrimmage, instruction and skull practice is being dished out by Walter Johnson as he enters upon his twenty-first year as head coach. No major casualties have occurred to put a damper on P. C. hopes for a victory.

Through the past week, no definite starting line-up had been selected. Captain J. B. Jacobs is slated to start at fullback, and Bill Thompson will in all probability handle the quarterback assignment. June Moore and Coon Weldon look good at the halves, and will probably start against Clemson.

Coach Johnson may place Jimmy Dennard in the line-up to add speed and elusiveness to the offensive attack. Culp is Thompson's understudy at quarter, and Reynolds and Lambright are making strong bids as halfbacks.

Matt Hiers, injured in Friday's scrimmage, will be available to relieve Jacobs at full, if needed. Bill Degner is another backfield threat with experience and ability, and he may break into the line-up. Trigger Ritch received a shoulder injury that will keep him on the sidelines for a while, but he will see relief service later on.

The forward wall looks pretty good, with a fast, husky group of candidates available. Beeman and Correll have just about clinched the guard posts, with Murchison and Davis next in order.

The important tackle positions haven't been decided as yet. Hipp, Shoemaker and Collings are lettermen with plenty of experience. Evans and Boswell, sophomores, will push them hard for a first-string berth with the result a toss-up.

Ralph (Sheriff) Waldrep is the only letterman offering for a flank position, but indications are that strength will not be lacking in this department. Ernest Evans, a senior, is making a strong try, and much is expected of Holcomb and Batchelor, sophomores.

A quartet of aspirants are battling for center. Bird, Cox, Henderson and Cappelmann are the four from which Coach Johnson will select a first-stringer.

P. C. always enters the Clemson contest labeled as underdog, but an upset has occurred on several occasions, and it is with hope that the Hosemen take the field Saturday.

Opposing Quarters Meet Saturday

BILL THOMPSON

Quarterback of the Blue Hose eleven, is expected to call the plays Saturday when P. C. journeys over to Tigertown to meet Jess Neely's Bengals.

JOE BERRY

Quarterback and captain of Clemson's powerful aggregation. Berry was outstanding last year and probably will be one of the sharpest thorns in the side of the Hose team.

Begin Tennis, Golf Practice At Once

Frankie Parker To Play On Local Courts This Fall. Other Players To Be Featured.

Officials of the college announced today that fall tennis practice will begin immediately and continue through the year and that practice for the newly organized golf team will also get under way some time this week.

Continuing his policy of bringing the best in athletics to P. C. and Clinton, Tennis Coach William P. Jacobs will also sponsor exhibition matches this fall, probably in October, in which Frankie Parker, phenomenal young star, and two other ranking players will be featured. For this event Mr. Jacobs plans to invite the tennis teams of every school in the state. The appearance last year on the local courts of Wilmer Allison, United States' No. 1 amateur, was an event of state-wide importance.

Although the intercollegiate tennis season does not open until spring, it is felt that by beginning practice now an excellent team can be built around a nucleus of letter men from last year's squad. The completion of the courts behind the dining hall last year added great campus interest to the game, practically making P. C. the tennis center of the state.

Golf practice will be held on the course of the Clinton country club. Although this is the first year P. C. has entered the golfing field in an intercollegiate way, prospects are that interest in this sport will rival that in tennis.

Freshman Team Begins Practice

Coaches Forehand and Waldrep held the first freshman football practice down on Young field Thursday afternoon for the purpose of looking over the recruits and getting an estimate of the available material from the first-year men. Thirty-seven healthy looking rats answered the roll call in response to Coach Waldrep's summons and were issued uniforms.

Only brief limber-up exercises were given the yearlings as Coach Waldrep put his charges through their paces. There has as yet been little chance to pick the outstanding men as the light practices have not rounded into stiffer work, but from the looks of the 1936 Baby Hose squad, P. C. should have another fine freshman team this season.

Those issued uniforms were as follows: Charlie Turner, C. J. Griffin, Thomas Dixon, Roy Hendrickson, M. D. Shuler, Huiet Paul, B. Moore, B. B. Aycock, David Buie, Arthur Erwin, Julian Jones, George Davis, William Swift, Bill Key, Walter Brooker, E. D. Bryant, J. L. Spratt, Charlie Spratt, Charlie Thompson, Hood Strain, J. E. Godfrey, J. Carroll, J. Paschal, S. R. DuBose, G. L. Mabry, Bill Moore, C. McSwain, W. Miller, Charles Trammell, H. Trant, Wilson Caraway, Bill Pierce, Tom Ellison, D. B. Henley, Ches Fleming, L. Hall, Mac Crews, L. M. Perry.

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

THE PENNANT CHASE

Well, here we are—with another of those sordid scholastic sessions before us. We should be thinking about our possibilities in math, chemistry, etc.—but are we? No, man! Our thoughts are at present centering on P. C.'s possibilities against Clemson in the annual grid opener on Saturday. We ought to just say P. C. will win by a couple of touchdowns, but it's a sin to tell a lie, so we'll predict the outcome as we think it will be:

P. C. 7 — Clemson 20.

The game will be fast, hard-fought, and interesting, and we hope we're wrong in regard to the score.

Keep your eye on Jimmy Dennard, Presbyterian's abbreviated package of speed. The little man will be counted on to do some fancy truckin' through enemy line-ups before the season fades away. And if Glenn Beeman doesn't land a guard berth on the all-state team, we'll suspect cheating.

Although it's a little too early to determine the true strength of the eight state teams, we believe the annual pennant chase will terminate leaving South Carolina's collegiate elevens in the following order:

Clemson.
Carolina.
Furman.
Citadel.
Presbyterian.
Wofford.
Newberry.
Erskine.

The most important contests will be the P. C.-Clemson, Carolina-Clemson, Clemson-Furman, and Carolina-Furman settos. And one of the most interesting, in so far as P. C. students are concerned, is that between the Blue Stockings and Wofford in the latter part of the season.

LOST

Among the athletes not returning to school this year are "Bogator" Atkinson, Kimbo, Ben Christian and Les Holden. Atkinson starred in freshman football and track last season and was being counted on to hold down one of the varsity ends. A bad ankle prevented him from returning. Kimbo, Christian and Holden were first-string frosh basketeers and they will be missed. At this writing we know of no others who won't be back.

The Hosemen have suffered a minimum of injuries thus far and this is unusual in view of the hard two-workouts-a-day routine that has been followed. Looks like they'll be in fine shape for the Clemson encounter. Pitt Bird is suffering from a case of Pink Tooth Brush, but otherwise the boys are fit as a fiddle.

Sophomores List Frosh Regulations

Annual Rat Parade To Be Held Tomorrow Night.

The vigilance committee for this year has begun its work with a "bang."

Rules and plans for entertaining the freshmen have already been issued. By this time all freshmen are supposed to have "rat" caps or incur the penalty of paying a social call to an upper classman's room. All freshmen will be required to get a "soup bowl" hair cut. As one states it, the purpose of this is to keep the freshmen from "beating the time" of the sophomores with the Clinton belles, particularly during the rat reception.

One of the large events will be the annual "rat run" tomorrow night, at which time the streets of Clinton will echo the sound of freshmen singing "We'll ride ole Clemson on the rail," or some other chant. Clintonites will gather round the town square to watch the proceedings while the freshmen perform antics like—well, rats.

Some of the rules issued for the guidance and welfare of freshmen by the vigilance committee, headed by Jimmy Dennard, are as follows:

1. "Rat caps" are to be worn at all times until further notice, with the exception of Sunday.
2. All freshmen must tip their caps to all upperclassmen when met on the campus or up town.
3. No freshmen may be allowed to cut across campus. Corners must be squared at all times.
4. When going to town all freshmen must follow the Plaza.
5. A "soup bowl" hair cut must be had by all freshmen before Saturday night, Sept. 12. This hair cut may be gotten only from Walt Williams, "Y" building, and Galloway's shop up town.
6. Freshmen must carry matches at all times. (Not safety).
7. Line up behind all upper classmen before entering "mess hall."
8. Remain seated until all upper classmen have left chapel.
9. All freshmen must always answer to the name of "rat."
10. All freshmen must be present at all home football games in a body.
11. Rat run, Tuesday, Sept. 15:

(a) All faces must be blackened with the exception of football players, who will only streak their cheeks black.

(b) Pajama tops must be worn by all freshmen.

Warning: Roll will be called and inspection made of all freshmen.

12. Requests of all upper classmen must be obeyed immediately.
13. All freshmen must remember that the vigilance committee is their best friend, and that they are free to make complaints at any time.

TIGERS DOWN P. C. IN SEASON OPENER

HONOR FRAT SELECTS FOUR MEN FOR ROLL

ALL PROMINENT IN STUDENT ACTIVITIES

Members of the local chapter of Blue Key, national honorary leadership fraternity, meeting in the first regular session of the year, Friday elected to membership four men, all of whom have been outstanding in various phases of student activity.

The new men, whose election is subject to the approval of the national office of the organization, are as follows: Ernest Evans, Iva; Chester Keller, Greenville; Claus Cappelmann, Parris Island; Frank Johnston, Jefferson, Ga. Of the four, all are seniors except Johnston, who is a junior. In addition to leadership, to be eligible for Blue Key, a scholastic average above all male students is required.

Evans is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau social fraternity, president of the senior class, and prominent in athletics. He has been a regular member of the baseball team for the past two years and is this year holding down one of the flanks on the Blue Hose football team.

Keller is president of the Y.M.C.A., a member of the Ministerial club, and national president of Delta Chi Alpha, religious fraternity. He entered P. C. in 1934, but will graduate with the class of 1937.

Cappelmann, Alpha Kappa Pi, is captain of the boxing team and a member of the football team. He was president of the sophomore class and was last year a candidate for president of the student body.

Johnston is vice-president of the Y.M.C.A. and a member of the student council. He played regularly last year as a member of the tennis team and has taken an active interest in all student affairs.

Since Julien Freeman, president of the local chapter of Blue Key, did not return to school this fall, duties of the office are being carried out by Sadler Love, vice-president, until a new president may be elected, which will not take place until after the initiation of the new men.

Wallace To Head Chi Beta Phi Group

Wallace stated shortly after his election that the scientific fraternity plans this year to invite outstanding men in the field of science to address the members of the group, and that the outstanding effort will be to keep interest in the organization at a high pitch. It is expected that Dr. T. J. Peake will address the group at an early date on sex hygiene and that members of the student body will be invited to attend.

STUDENTS PICK SATURDAY FOR FOOTBALL HOLIDAY

Students of the college voted last week to take Saturday of this week, the day after the Georgia Tech game, as the annual football holiday granted by the faculty.

There was some sentiment in favor of various other dates, but those favoring the accepted date pointed out that the Tech game was to be played Friday night and unless a holiday was granted on Saturday the student body would not be able to attend.

All classes will suspend Friday afternoon at the regular time and will be resumed Monday morning at 8 o'clock.

New Equipment Is Now Arriving

Y. M. C. A. and Infirmary Soon To Be Outfitted.

Equipment for the Y.M.C.A. and infirmary buildings, expected to arrive early in September, is at last coming in, some having already arrived and the remainder expected within the next few days.

The recreation building will contain a lobby, reading room, recreation room, co-ed room, and a Y.M.C.A. chapel and office. Each room will be equipped with appropriate furniture.

On the porch will be benches, three swings, and four tables. The tables will be for different games such as checkers, monopoly, etc., while in the lobby will be a radio, table, chairs, and other furniture. The room to the right of the lobby will be the reading room and will contain a living room suite. The library will furnish books and the Y.M.C.A. is ordering several popular magazines for the use of the students.

There will be a well equipped ladies room for the use of co-eds and lady visitors. To the left of the lobby will be the billiard room, and to the rear of this will be a small Y.M.C.A. chapel, to be furnished with a pulpit, piano and seats. The Y.M.C.A. office will be in the hall next to the stairway.

The infirmary equipment is practically complete except for a few items which should arrive at any time. On the first floor of the building will be a well-equipped doctor's office with surgical table and chair, medicine case, equipment closet, etc. The hall next to the stairway is fixed for waiting patients. The reception room is well equipped with a living room suite, chairs, etc.

There are three bedrooms, one downstairs and one on the second floor. These rooms will contain three beds each, except for the one downstairs which will have only two. However, in cases of emergency there will be several cots which can be used.

The first floor also has a kitchen where food will be prepared for patients unable to eat a regular diet. All beds will have bedside tables for the convenience of patients. On the third floor of the building are living quarters for the matron, Mrs. D. C. McSwain.

Osman Speaks At Y.M.C.A. Meeting

Program Schedule For Month Is Given

Holding its first regular weekly meeting of the year, the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night heard Turk Osman, former P. C. track star and at present a member of the publicity department, speaking on the subject, "Traffic Lights of Life."

The meeting was unusually well attended and officials of the "Y" expressed themselves as well pleased with the opening meeting of the year.

Dr Neil Whitelaw has been booked for the Y.M.C.A. program Thursday night, September 24, the subject of his message being "Germany of Today." Dr. Whitelaw made an extended tour of Germany this summer and has seen at first hand the trends of the German government of today.

This program is the first of a series of programs planned by the Y.M.C.A. for the remainder of September and October. Programs to follow in the future, exact dates to be published in The Blue Stocking, are: Dean and Mrs. M. W. Brown, "New England"; Miss Dorothy Hagan, "Musical Recital"; President W. P. Jacobs, "Taking Jesus Christ Into Business"; and Professor Bothwell Graham, "Hitlerism."

Following these educational and inspirational programs the Y.M.C.A. announces that prominent men of the state will be brought to the campus in addition the student body.

Patrick Names '37 Staff For Annual

Love, Plunkett, Legare, Penland Are Senior Members.

The 1937 PaC-SaC has already gotten under way with the announcement of the literary staff today by Editor Joe Patrick. Although the annual will not be published until next spring, there is much preliminary work planned for this fall.

Sadler Love, associate editor.
George Plunkett, assistant editor.
Thad Coleman, art editor.
Malcolm Hemphill, photographic editor.
Simon Legare, senior editor.
Ashby Johnson, junior editor.
Robert Black sophomore editor.
J. B. Penland, athletics editor.
John Woodward, assistant athletics editor.

The business staff, as yet incomplete, will be named in the near future by J. K. Collings, business manager.

College Sponsors Extension Work

Student Groups To Be Sent To Churches of South Carolina and Georgia.

President William P. Jacobs' request last week for volunteers to take part in religious extension work under the auspices of the college, a new phase of religious endeavor at P. C., was responded to by a large group who have already begun preparatory work.

Some thirty-five students, working under the direction of Dr. D. J. Brimm, will prepare themselves during the next few weeks to carry on work in out-of-town churches and Sunday schools that will consist in the main of Bible instruction and presentation of religious programs. Dr. Brimm will meet with the group on Wednesday nights and Sunday afternoons.

Definite dates and places for the extension work has not as yet been completed, but details of arrangement are in the hands of John E. Osman, field representative of the college. The states of Georgia and South Carolina will be the general field to be covered.

Propounders of the new program believe that the benefits to be derived, both in instructive value to members of the group and in advertising value to the college, will be outstanding.

Library Buys Many New Books

Among the several new books of current interest purchased by the library during the summer, "Gone With the Wind," by Margaret Mitchell, is perhaps the most outstanding, both from the point of view of the demand for it by students, and acclamation accorded it by its critics.

Two others that rank close to it in demand are, "The Barbary Coast," by Herbert Asbury, and "Cecil Rhodes, Empire Builder," by Sarah G. Millin. The latter has been filmed by a British company and cinema goers rank it high in interest value.

The following books complete the list of the most important of the new editions received this summer:

"Davy Crockett," by Constance Rourke.
"America Moves West," by Robert E. Riegal.
"Westward," by E. Douglas Branch.
"The Great Plains," by Walter Prescott West.
"Sutter's Gold," by Blaise Cendrars.
"The Saga of the Comstock Lode," by George D. Lyon.
"Cowboy," by Ross Santee.

POWERFUL CLEMSON TEAM ANNEXES 19 TO 0 VICTORY

Poor Hose Tackling Contributes To Saturday Afternoon Defeat In Initial Engagement.

"STREAK" LAWTON STARS FOR CADET ELEVEN

A superior collection of truckin' Tigers from Clemson registered a decisive 19 to 0 victory over Presbyterian's shaky Blue Stockings in the annual grid opener Saturday. The game was played before 5,000 spectators on Riggs field in intensely hot weather.

A sparkling trio of Clemson backs took advantage of a driving forward wall to make repeated drives, and chalk up a high total in yardage gained. Mac Folger reeled off 123 yards in 16 attempts to lead the parade, and the versatile "Streak" Lawton combined with a sophomore, Magee, to register another hundred.

Weldon Sparkles

Coon Weldon alone of the Hose backfield was able to make any headway against the stolid Tiger defense. The elusive junior stepped out for a pair of beautiful 25-yard sprints during the afternoon, and narrowly missed scoring on both occasions.

Folger received Thompson's kick on the goal line and returned it to the Tiger 25 to open the game. He then plowed over left guard for six yards, but on third down Sanders kicked to Thompson, who was downed in his tracks on the P. C. 27.

Weldon slid through the cadet defense to register a gain of 30 yards. Only the desperate effort of Folger presented a P. C. touchdown. It was then that a fumble erased Hose hopes for a score. Clemson recovered and in a short time had advanced to midfield. After an exchange of punts, the Tigers put on a strong drive that resulted in their first score.

Fraternities Open Fall Rush Season

Socials and Smokers To Continue Through Oct. 2.

Fraternity rush season, opening last week with each of the six organizations entertaining with a smoker or social, will come to a close on October 2.

According to the schedule set down by the Panhellenic council, two fraternities had engagements each night of the latter part of the week. On Wednesday evening Kappa Alpha and Alpha Lambda Tau had their first engagements; Pi Kappa Alpha and Alpha Kappa Pi began their seasons with smokers Thursday night; and the final entertainments of the week were socials given by Beta Kappa and Pi Kappa Phi Friday night.

October 3, Saturday, will be an open date and on the following day, Sunday, all fraternities will observe "quiet day" during which men are not to be approached concerning pledging. Pledge day will come Monday, October 5.

According to the rules set down by the Panhellenic council each fraternity is allowed four engagements, two socials and two smokers. The remaining schedule of activities is:

Sept. 21—KA and ALT socials.
Sept. 22—Pi KA social,, Pi K Phi smoker.
Sept. 23 — Beta Kappa smoker, AK Pi social.
Sept. 24—KA and ALT smokers.
Sept. 28 — Pi KA and Pi K Phi smokers.
Sept. 29—Beta Kappa and AK Pi smokers.
Sept. 30—KA and ALT socials.
Oct. 1—Pi KA and Pi K Phi socials.
Oct. 2—Beta Kappa and AK Pi socials.

Collegian Staff Picked By Editor

In an announcement made today, Stuart Campbell, Wytheville, Va., editor of the 1936-37 Collegian, college quarterly magazine, seemed pleased with the literary prospects for the coming year.

With a number of the contributors to last year's Collegian still in school, Editor Campbell is assured of excellent material for the coming year. The literary staff of the magazine being made up of those students whose articles are accepted for publication, Editor Campbell urges all students interested in journalism or short story writing to submit copy to the staff.

Editor, Stuart Campbell,
Associate editor, Sadler Love.
Managing editor, Cliff McLeod.
Assistant managing editor, R. F. Black.
Art editor, W. P. Jacobs, III.

The first issue is expected to be published the latter part of October.

Ministerial Group To Hold Services

Cliff H. McLeod, president of the Ministerial club, announced today that members of the club will have charge of the preaching services in local churches Sunday evening, the services to begin at 7:30 o'clock.

The supplying of local pulpits one Sunday night in each month by ministerial students of the college began last year and will be continued throughout this year. The schedule of students to preach is as follows:

W. Chester Keller, Broad Street Methodist; Cliff H. McLeod, First Presbyterian; Hubert G. Wardlaw, Baptist; Virgil St. John, Associate Reformed Presbyterian; W. M. Potter, Thornwell Memorial (1 p.m.)

College students are particularly invited to these services.

The Inquiring Reporter

"Would you favor a delayed fraternity 'rush' to begin October 1 or 15?" we asked several Greek letter men in an effort to discover campus sentiment concerning those first few weeks of school during which the freshman makes his choice of fraternity bids after the series of nightly entertainments in the various rooms.

We first asked JOE PATRICK, who said:

"I am in favor of postponing the rushing season in order that the freshman could have more time in which to accustom himself to his surroundings and so that he would therefore be better prepared to decide which of his bids to accept."

JIM COLLINGS (e) us:

"I believe the idea a sound one, but wouldn't this be merely lengthening the rushing season, since freshmen would be continually invited to the various rooms all during this time? Merely eliminating the series of socials until October 1 would not prevent rushing until then . . . therefore, I am not in favor of this plan."

HICK HARVIN, Pan-Hellenic president, was brief and to the point:

"I am in favor of a delayed frat rush season."

JIMMIE DENNARD said:

"Freshmen should have a longer period in which to learn college routine and customs before making such an important decision . . . I am in favor of such a plan."

HARRIS GRAY and JACK WITHERSPOON both agree:

"Well, yes; we also think that the freshmen should have a chance to become thoroughly orientated before making a fraternity pledge."

Fraternity Rush Season

This year, as in years past, the opening of college has of necessity been marked by more or less confusion. The transfer of the canteen to the Y.M.C.A. building, the installation of new courses, preparation of the infirmary, and the enrollment of unusually large classes has added to the general excitement.

And then, while freshmen are worrying over class schedules, and upper classmen are pondering suicide, comes the opening of fraternity rush season! New men have had no time to form an estimate of the various fraternities nor to even learn their Greek names. Fraternity members have not only failed to find time to size up prospective pledges, but barely have had time to recognize more than 20 per cent of the freshman class as being freshmen.

The remedy, although it will meet with the opposition that all proposals for changes inevitably must meet, is to delay opening of the actual social rush season until October 1 or, preferably, October 15. Perhaps rushing will continue just as in years past from the opening of school, but at least the socials, with their room-cleaning, scrambling for dates and promising freshmen, will be delayed until all concerned have had time to learn the infirmary from the gymnasium.

We do not know what regulations, providing such a system should be adopted, would be necessary to impose upon rushing activities that would take place prior to opening of the season on October 1 or 15. But we do believe that members of the faculty who have attended other schools in which the delayed system is in use might offer valuable suggestions.

We believe that fraternity members and freshmen alike have had enough of the harem-scarem, hurly-burly scramble that has become a part of fall matriculation, football practice, socials, and freshman-snatching. We believe that all would welcome a social season delayed at least two or three weeks after the opening of school and regulated activity up to that time.

Are we right? If we are, then it lies within the power of the fraternities to do something about it.

SIMON LEGARE

The streets are once again resounding to the tread of marching feet, rifles are being cleaned, the early morning air is filled with the sound of sharp commands, with mutterings and grumblings—not of big guns, however, only miserable freshmen and disgruntled sophomores. The crack cadet corps of Presbyterian college has begun its year's work.

The whole business all seems rather vague and very complicated to the freshman but in a few short weeks they will be old hands at the old game of war. True, quite a few frosh don't seem to know their right foot from their left, but all that will come in time—we hope.

Due to the smallness of the senior class, several promising juniors have been admitted to the advanced course in order to build the corps up to normal again.

Captain Raleigh Shoemaker is loud in his demands for band members to turn out. To date, only four freshmen have joined the ranks of the noise-makers but more are expected. When the remainder of the corps is double-timing all movement to keep from freezing to death the band plays merrily—if not musically—on, well sheltered in the cozy band room. Better not miss this opportunity, rats.

The officers of "C" company are especially fortunate this year in that all co-eds are required to meet chapel. The connection may not be very clear, but when we explain that since the fairest flowers of old Southern beauty sit directly in front of "C" company the situation should be all clear, even to the home guards. "Tarzan" Langston, invariably a chapel-cutter last year, was overheard remarking that chapel exercises are very beneficial to everyone. He doesn't intend to miss a single song service. We wonder if the lovely profile of a certain blonde freshman co-ed has anything to do with his sudden change.

Major Wysor wishes to announce to all freshmen that he has more assistant P. M. S. and T.'s now than he needs and would appreciate it if no more applications for this position be put on file.

"Sarge" plans to commence rifle team practice at once and issued a call for team managers. Many distant trips are scheduled for the team. Here's an excellent chance for several ambitious new boys.

The powder keg that is modern Europe smoulders with the Spanish situation threatening to start the blaze any moment. Mussolini backs the rebel fascisti while the man with the Charlie Chaplin mustache looks with favor on this backing. Perhaps the papa of all Germans thinks he may need the aid of Benny ("Don't I look like Julius Caesar?") the Wop when and if he carries out his threat to seize part of Russia. England and France are sure to take a hand if any such high-handed grabbing starts, and this columnist thinks the father of the "more and greasier little Woppies" movement in Italy, even with "Der Feurher's" aid, will find Eddie, the famous tumbler off horses, sits on his throne much more securely than in former days.

Movies For the Week

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "The King Steps Out." Grace Moore crooning to a European monarch makes him forget his crown. Players, Grace Moore and Franchot Tone. Also comedy and MGM.

Wednesday and Thursday: "The Country Beyond." Taken from James Oliver Curwood's book of the same name, this story of the mounted police in the far north is just a little too dramatic. Players: Rochelle Hudson, Paul Kelly, Robert Kent. Also, March of Time and short.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "One Rainy Afternoon." Romance and humor combine to make this a fair picture. Players: Francis Lederer, Roland Young, Ida Lupino, Hugh Herbert. Three shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Counterfeit." A story of the treasury men trapping big-time criminals. Players: Chester Morris, Margot Grahame, Marian Marsh, Lloyd Nolan. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Kid Ranger." Bob Steele shoots up everything in sight. Need we say more?

The University of California football stadium rests directly over a "fault" which could cause its complete destruction during an earthquake.

Colby college may move from its 118-year-old site in Maine to a new location two miles away.

The foreign language house plan, now widespread in America, originated at the University of Wisconsin.

Thirty-one British students will study in American universities this summer.

John ("The Cop") Quigley, for forty years an NYU campus policeman, has been presented with a mahogany and silver nightstick, the gift of students.

The late Congressman John J. McSwain, in speaking of the educational value of R.O.T.C. in colleges and universities, said: "As I understand education, it includes character, moral habits, precision in thinking and in action, and subordination to authority, and self-subjection to proper discipline."

BLUE HOSE TO MEET GEORGIA TECH FRIDAY NIGHT

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

THE TIGER TUSSLE

Last week this column predicted the following score for the P. C.-Clemson game—Clemson 20, P. C. 7. The final score turned out to be Clemson 19, P. C. 0. The Hosemen should have scored, and if they had, their opponents' total would have been reduced. When Weldon started wobbling down the field, it looked like a touchdown for the local boys.

Clemson's aggregation, with its powerful line and fast-stepping backfield, will go places this season. But, on the other hand, the Blue Stockings are better than they appeared to be on Saturday. There are some defects in the Hose make-up, but Wise Walter will sew these up before long. He will probably be presenting a grade-A Blue Stocking in time for his club's third engagemnet.

PREDICTION
Georgia Tech 40 — P. C. 0.

A STAR FELL OUT OF OCONEE

On Thursday of the past week a slim, demure farm girl from Oconee, S. C., registered in the freshman class of Greenville Woman's college. In a recent athletic achievement, she shot from obscurity to fame with the result of making a place on the Olympic team that competed in Berlin. And now Kathryn Kelly is being labelled as the successor to Babe Diedrickson in the feminine realm of athletic circles. Her Olympics coach rates her as one of the world's most promising feminine athletes.

And now she has entered G. W. C. to divide her time between track and trig. Her plans call for participation in national amateur track meets for the next four years, and then, in 1940 she will compete in the Olympics at Tokyo, Japan.

Up-and-coming Miss Kelly will do more to put South Carolina on the map than did the Johnston-Sawyer highway fuss of recent date. Those who know her are confident that she will go to the top. All we can say is, "Swing it, girl, and we'll see you in Tokyo."

BILL DEGNER
Degner's quarterbacking of the Blue Hose team Saturday while he was in the game is expected to give him a strong chance for the starting berth Friday night when P. C. takes on Georgia Tech in Atlanta.

Frosh Pointing To Carolina Game

Meet Biddies Here Week From Wednesday In Night Game.

While P. C.'s varsity smooths off the rough spots brought out in the Clemson game Saturday, Freshman Coach Frank Waldrep will be whipping into shape his first-year outfit for their opening tilt with Carolina's strong Gamecock eleven on the local field next Wednesday night beneath the lights.

Grueling work in the fundamentals of the game has been the order for the past few weeks, but this week the Blue Sox will get down to the real business and scrimmage will head the menu. Although several men have already shown speed and skill in earlier scrimmages, the real job of selecting the starting team for next week will take place during the present week.

Coach Waldrep refuses to name even a probable opening lineup; but, says he, this week will tell the tale. The following men are out for the various positions:

YELLOW JACKETS TO PRESENT FAST BACKS AND STRONG LINE

Night Game Will Open Season For Georgia Boys.

HOSE TO IRON OUT KINKS IN DEFENSE

When the Presbyterian college varsity meets Georgia Tech at Grant field in Atlanta Friday night, they may well expect to see a much-improved bunch of gridsters compared with those of last year. Although the Engineers saw victory over the Blue Hose last season by the comfortable margin of five touchdowns, their squad has improved this year in size, strength, speed, and morale.

However, the P. C. gang will be in there fighting for a possible upset which might well happen, this classic being the first game of the season for the "Ramblin' Wrecks" and the second for the Presbyterians who had the benefit of a warm-up game with Clemson this past Saturday. Coach Johnson will have that extra reserve strength in Atlanta this year, the lack of which contributed in a large part to the downfall of the Calvinists last year. Such men as Beeman, Correll, Shoemaker, Waldrep, Moore, Jacobs, Thompson, Weldon, and Reynolds should prove to be literal thorns in Tech's mighty side.

Looking at the game from Tech's point of view, one finds such stars as Konemann at halfback; Beard, the line-crashing fullback; and Hayes, fleety halfback. Harry Appleby, Tech speed merchant, is also expected to do big things this year and should hit his stride in the P. C. game. In the line such outstanding men as Fitzsimmons (captain), Wilcox, Preston, Brooks, Boulware and others should give an impressive account of themselves. Dutch Konemann, Columbia boy, pronounced by many as the best back in the entire South, may achieve all-American fame for himself this fall unless injuries interfere. Georgia Tech, in other words, might well be called the all-star team of the South in view of the fact that at least five varsity men are assured all-Southern berths and maybe an all-American or two.

Nevertheless, P. C. has one of the scrappiest elevens in South Carolina circles and may be able to settle down and give Tech a real fight. Coach Johnson has been stressing the principles of blocking to his men as well as giving thorough drillings during scrimmages and should be able to present a team on the field in Atlanta that will give the Techsters something to remember.

Tennis Players Begin Practice

Varsity and Frosh To Keep In Shape For Intercollegiate Competition.

Fall tennis opened with a bang last week as seventeen upperclassmen and eighteen freshmen signed up as candidates for the two teams. President Jacobs officially opened the season by introducing the two squads to the assistant coach, Taylor Martin, and stating that the two upper courts behind the dining hall would be reserved for practice.

He also announced that a court would be constructed in the gymnasium for use during the winter. Bryan Grant, Frank Parker, and possibly Mr. and Mrs. John Van Ryne and several professionals will appear on the local courts sometime in October to give a few pointers to the candidates.

Outstanding varsity prospects are Co-captains Parham and Beatty, Woodward, returning lettermen, and Johnston, Creech, and Grey with a year's experience. Leading the freshmen contenders are Lykes Boykin, state high school champion, Bob Thomason, and James Buchan. An attractive schedule will be arranged for both varsity and freshman teams.

put on another drive, but a fumble momentarily checked the Tiger machine. Early in the second quarter the elusive Lawton thrilled Clemson supporters with a beautiful 26-yard run, and after a lull in activities, he again put his mates in scoring position. After he had almost singlehandedly advanced the ball to within a yard of the P. C. goal, Pearson crashed over for the second score.

In the third quarter Clemson broke down the P. C. defense to register her third marker after a 62-yard march down the field.

A 25-yard run by Weldon featured fourth quarter activities. The Hosemen tried desperately for a score, but the airtight Tiger defense, coupled with their own exhausted condition, rendered the attempt useless. Frequent fumbles and intercepted passes marked the play, especially in the closing stanza.

The Clemson line exhibited consistent strength throughout the contest, and a sparkling array of backs took advantage of every opening. The Calvinists, on the other hand, appeared weakened by the heat and were handicapped by nervousness. This was especially noticeable at the outset.

The game was marked by a minimum of injuries. Dennard was removed after being severely downed by a pair of cadets, but he recovered shortly.

The lineup:

Presbyterian (0)		Clemson (19)
LE—Waldrep		Shuford
LT—Hipp		Pennington
LG—Correll		Buscher
C—Hutchinson		Wood
RG—Beeman		Bryant
RT—Shoemaker		Wyse
RE—Evans		S. McConnell

Sock And Buskin Plans Fall Play

Sock and Buskin dramatic club held its first meeting of the season Thursday afternoon, at which time plans for the coming year were formed under the direction of Dr. H. S. Fish and Professor B. H. Boyd, faculty advisors for the club.

Plans are now underway for the presentation of a play sometime in the late fall. No definite date has been set for the tryouts, which probably will be delayed until after the close of rushing season.

Tom Newland, Dr. Fish and Mr. Boyd were chosen to form a board of discipline. Wandall Williams was appointed chairman of the publicity committee and Miss Myra Wise chairman of the selecting committee. The casting committee is to be selected after practice has gotten underway.

Officers of the club are:

President, Eldred McLeod.

Vice-president, Tom Newland.

Secretary-treasurer, Bob Black.

SICK CALL

Although several announcements have been made concerning the matter, there still seems to be some uncertainty in regard to sick call. Mrs. Drucie McSwain, in charge of the infirmary, stated this mornnig that the college physician will be at the infirmary each morning at 8 o'clock and students should report to him for treatment.

No supplies or treatment are to be dispensed at the dormitories or the armory. Students too ill to report to the infirmary will be moved by ambulance.

"SHORTY" HORNE AND MISS ADAIR TO MARRY OCT. 3rd

Of wide interest to faculty and students of the college is the recent announcement of the engagement of Miss Faye Adair, Clinton, to William S. Horne, graduate of P. C. in the class of 1936, the ceremony to take place on October 3.

"Shorty" Horne, among other honors, was captain of the Blue Stocking football team of last year, a baseball star of several years' standing, and a member of Blue Key and Pi Kappla Alpha. Miss Adair is a popular member of the Clinton social set and is at present holding a secretarial position with The Clinton Chronicle.

For hundreds of years the Persians have known the secret of fine flavor. In the dead of night a Persian "melon-diviner" may wake up his wealthy master to enjoy the perfect melon—picked by lamplight at its exact moment of full maturity.

The Secret of Fine Flavor..

Like the Persian melon, the Turkish tobaccos used in Chesterfield are watched day and night.

There is just one right time to take off the leaves...that's when they have ripened to their fullest flavor.

Often the tender ripe leaves are gathered just before the dawn...to preserve the full "spice" and aroma for Chesterfield.

From our own Southland we take mild, ripe tobaccos chock-full of Southern sunshine; then we go 4000 miles to the fertile shores of the Mediterranean for the fine flavor and aroma of Turkish tobaccos. These tobaccos give Chesterfields their milder better taste.

STUDENT COMMITTEE IS ORGANIZED

HOPE TO PAY BONDED DEBT BY DECEMBER

HEARS REGULAR REPORTS AT MEETING

The Board of Trustees of Presbyterian college, meeting in regiar session Tuesday, unanimously authorized a supplemental indenture to the bond mortgage which allows officials of the college to utilize some of the endowment fund in the retirement of the bonded debt of fifty cents on the dollar.

This plan having already been approved by the bondholders, the action of the Board of Trustees means that it is likely that the entire bond of the college debt may be eliminated by December 1. This plan proposed by the bondholders has been under negotiations for some time and its successful connection will be welcome news to friends of the college.

The board also authorized the president to further increase the tuition of the college for new students in the future if he deems it wise to do so. If there should be such an increase, students now in college will not be affected by it.. Other routine matters were authorized, including resolutions of appreciation to the President, Dean Brown, Professor Sturgeon, and the faculty for the accomplishments of the college in the past year.

Johnson Heads NYA Projects

Work crews of the N.Y.A., this year under the direction of Coach Walter A. Johnson, will attempt various projects throughout the session, chief of which are at present the painting of the fence around the practice football field and the preparation of the stadium for home football games.

In order to aid more students, the scholarships have been broken up and distributed between a large number of recipients. The full time government aid averages around $15 per month for the nine months' period.

As student time-keepers, Coach Johnson has appointed F. V. Weathers and Wallace Coe, with Sadler Love in charge of the tennis court project when that gets under way, probably tomorrow.

Present plans are that later in the year the entire N.Y.A. group will be sub-divided into several crews with students in charge of each. No plans have been announced as yet in regard to work the various crews will do.

Atlanta Alumni Choose Gillespie

Alumni of Georgia and officials of the college banqueted Friday evening at 5:30 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta, as a forerunner to the P. C.-Tech game and as a culminating of plans for a Georgia alumni association.

Richard Gillespie, Atlanta, was elected president of the Georgia association; Snooks Dunlap, vice-president; and Walker Combs, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Gillespie is pastor of Rock Springs Presbyterian church, Atlanta.

Among the approximately 100 people present at the banquet were alumni of P. C., Presbyterian ministers, parents of P. C. students of Atlanta and vicinity, President Jacobs, Coach Johnson, Dr. Neel G. Whitelaw, of the college faculty, and Hugh Holman and Turk Osman, of the college publicity staff.

Local Lodge Smiles Smugly At Frat Antics

While leaders of six campus fraternities began frantically today to prod sluggish members to renewed rushing activity as the last lap of the home stretch came in view, one campus social organization sat serenely back, sure of neophytes at whom it might point with pride, worried not in the least over consequences of pledge day.

Members of Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, laughed smugly when questioned as to rushing activities." Well," said one dark-haired co-ed, "we're not bragging—but we know we're going to get the best freshmen on the campus this year." And that, to us, sounded a lot like the talk that will go the rounds tonight at fraternity meetings.

Frances Spratt, president of Alpha Psi Delta and member of the inter-sorority council, refused to comment, either favorably or unfavorably, on the pledging prospects of her group. When we insisted, she finally muttered something about "not wasting any money taking rats to the picture show."

Late this afternoon we learned via the grapevine that no meeting of the sorority had as yet been called and that rushing was practically at a standstill.

RUSH PERIOD TO END SATURDAY

Frats Continue Series of Smokers and Socials.

MONDAY IS PLEDGE DAY

With rush season two-thirds gone the fraternities are putting on a final spurt looking towards pledge day one week from today. Each of the six organizations has given two or three entertainments for members of the freshman class, but the social calendar still shows that there are eight engagements yet to be filled.

Since inter-fraternity rules forbid pledging of new men before the end of the three-week rushing season, fraternity activities have been confined to the socials and smokers as scheduled by the Pan-Hellenic council. The original plan of having two fraternities entertain on each free evening has been continued so that at present each of the organizations has had at least one social and one smoker.

The season will be rounded out this week as the Pi Kappa Alphas and Pi Kappa Phis entertain on Monday and Thursday evenings; Kappa Alpha and Alpha Kappa Pi on Wednesday night, and Beta Kappa and Alpha Lambda Tau Tuesday and Friday. Quiet period at twelve Saturday night and will last till pledge hour Monday, Oct. 5. During that period no rushing activities is permitted. Rush season ends officially Monday afternoon.

Whitelaw Talks On War Threats

Laying particular stress on Germany and England, Dr. N. G. Whitelaw addressed the students at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday on conditions in Europe today. Dr. Whitelaw made a bicycle tour this summer through the countries of England, Belgium, France and Germany and brought out many interesting facts in his talk about the general conditions in those countries.

The central theme of this address was the fact that people in Europe are becoming more and more prepared for war. "The people of England are resigned to the fact that war is inevitable," he stated, and further added that young men finishing college are looking forward to the time when they will be called to the army.

STUDENT BODY TO FILL POSTS

Vote Wednesday In Special Election For Two Councilmen and Magazine Business Manager.

THREE VACANCIES OCCUR

Holding its first meeting of the year, the board of publications this afternoon nominated Joe Commander, Tom Newland, and Jack McAlpine for business manager of The Collegian, quarterly magazine, the election to be run in conjunction with other student elections on Wednesday. Commander is a member of the junior class, while Newland and McAlpine are seniors.

Students of the college Wednesday morning will go to the polls to elect a senior councilman, a junior councilman, and a business manager for The Collegian, all of the elections being necessary to fill the places left vacant by the failure of men to return to school.

Allen McSween entered West Point during the past summer, thereby leaving vacant the senior student councilman office and The Collegian business manager office, while Julius Boggs, erstwhile junior councilman, did not return to school and therefore left the junior class quota of three short by one.

Members of the board of publications were elected without opposition when the three nominations of Thursday morning, William Langston, Dalton Mann, and Will Wallace, were unopposed. The board of publications has for its purpose the approving of all nominees for elective publication offices and is composed of editors of all publications, three faculty members, and the above new members.

P. C. Musicians Show Progress In Early Practice

Glee Club, Orchestra, and Band Continue Development.

One of the remarkable features of P. C.'s music department is the fact that it unfailingly gets just enough men for its various activities. Over the summer, enough of last year's students who were unable to make the grade have developed sufficiently to make the orchestra an all upperclassman affair.

The complete organization, slated to go places this year, is as follows: leader and first trumpet, Harris Gray; second trumpet, R. L. Clark; third trumpet, Red Heath; trombone, Buck Patterson; first saxophone, D. Mann; tenor saxophone, Harry Shamhart; third saxophone, R. Shoemaker; bass, F. Wallace; drums, W. K. Mackintosh; guitar, W. Smith; Piano, A. K. Darby. With a steady series of practices, Gray states that this orchestra will surpass the fine record set by that of last year.

More interest has been manifested in glee club work by the upper classes than for the past two years. Dr. Huntley states that in the past freshmen have formed the body of applicants for berths. But this year it seems that upperclassmen will be the main supports. Transfers are also adding their contribution to the group which will force the freshmen aspirants to do their best if they wish to make the trips. Probable soloists in the bass and baritone sections will be Wardlaw, Hensell and Cousins.

The quartet is the same as that of last year, except for Malcolm Hemphill, who takes the place left vacant by Jake Beezy, who did not return. Gray also leads the quartet and

College Buys New, Modern Dream Train

The latest thing in motor transportation, a bus of the cab and trailer type, has been ordered by the athletic department and is expected to arrive about October 10, a week from Saturday.

The machine will carry 35 passengers and will be lettered with the name of the school. Its purchase is the answer to a need of nearly three years' standing.

The old school bus, affectionately known to athletic teams, glee club, orchestra, and student body as "The Dream Train," balked last spring deep in the hills of Georgia while transporting glee club and orchestra members back to P. C. Whether its foundering was due to internal complications or to orchestral conversation has never been fully ascertained.

Although no definite plans had gone forward late today for christening of the new bus next week, a rumor from a usually reliable source had it that the new conveyance would bear the name "Dream Train," in memory of the wheezing, rattling hulk that expired last year.

PLEDGE DANCE WILL BE OCT. 9

Formal Friday Night, and Two Dances Saturday.

DAVE BURNSIDE TO PLAY

The annual pledge dances, Presbyterian's colorful curtain-raiser on the social season, will be held October 9 and 10 with Dave Burnside and his popular orchestra furnishing the music. The Pan-Hellenic council has charge of the series and has already begun preparations for what promises to be one of the most successful affairs of the year.

Dave Burnside is no stranger to this section, and those planning to attend the dances are wholehearted in their endorsement of his smooth rythm. He played for one of last year's series, and has been sought for a return engagement since that time.

Swaying Copeland Hall, scene of many happy social affairs of the past, will be used again. Invitations are being printed and probably will be sent out before next week.

Three dances, the Friday night being formal, will be presented. As in the past, pledges of fraternities will be admitted on Friday night without charge. A tea dance will be held Saturday afternoon, followed by the final one on Saturday night.

"Y" To Present Musical Program

Miss Dorothy Hagan, graduate of Erskine college in 1934, and now director of music at Joanna school, has been booked to give a musical recital in the college chapel Thursday night of this week. The Y.M.C.A. is sponsoring this program of music by Miss Hagan and her accompanist, in order to create an interest in students in musical art.

Miss Hagan is a well-known violinist. She is also a talented pianist and will give classical selections on both the violin and piano.

The Y.M.C.A., said President Chester Keller today, is anxious that all students attend the program. An interest shown in this type of activity will encourage the Y.M.C.A. to sponsor similar programs in the future, he said.

ADVISORY BODY TO REPRESENT STUDENT GROUP

To Form Link Between Administration and Students Is Purpose of New Committee.

SHOEMAKER APPOINTS GROUP OF NINE

Raleigh A. Shoemaker, president of the student body, announced today the appointment of a student advisory committee, composed of campus leaders, which will have for its purpose the establishment of a firmer link between students and the college administration.

Advocated last year by The Blue Stocking, the new organization is felt by student body officials to be the answer to the long felt need of some method by which students may relay to college authorities their suggestions and their complaints.

The new Student Advisory Committee will be composed of the following: chairman, president of the student body, Raleigh Shoemaker; president of the Y. M. C. A., Chester Keller; editor of The Blue Stocking, Sadler Love; class presidents, Ernest Evans, Harris Gray, Jimmy Dennard; president of Sigma Kappa Alpha, scholastic fraternity (to be elected); battalion commander, James Collings; and Frances Spratt, elected last year to represent the co-eds.

The committee will have a membership of nine, including the chairman, until freshman class officers are elected, at which time the president of the freshman class will be added to the list.

Shoemaker stated today that although he would have no control over whether or not the committee became a permanent college organization, he believed that should it be as successful as is expected its continuation next year might be assured.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

"What do you think of white uniforms for the corps in the spring," we asked representative members of the military department, and this is what Commander of the Band SHOEMAKER said:

"Absolutely yes. I am in favor of white uniforms . . . those L. S. U. boys rated lower than we did in military proficiency but their white uniforms 'put us in the shade'."

Next we saw LT. FURMAN WALLACE . . . "Yes, I think that a military unit with our rating should adopt a spring uniform in keeping with that of schools having a lesser rating . . . besides, the corps needs a dress uniform."

Sergeant-Major ASHBY JOHNSON . . . "Since we are the most military of the non-military schools I think we should have a spring uniform in keeping with our reputation."

CORPORAL "CURLEY" CLEMENTS paused on his way to drill, long enough to say:

"Certainly I am in favor of white uniforms, provided the entire corps is required to wear them."

We next asked the first freshman we saw and it happened to be PRIVATE HUGGINS, who replied.

"I am in favor of a white uniform for spring wear and as a full dress uniform. I was surprised that this was not already a part of the uniform."

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

What would be the campus and faculty attitude toward allowing seniors unlimited chapel cuts since they receive no other special "privileges."

* * * * * *

At the fact that, even this long after the opening of school, the ceiling lights are still in the halls of Spencer. Intact, too.

* * * * * *

That if Clemson and Tech come can Erskine be far behind? But there'll be a different story going out from the press box next week when they snap off the lights on Johnson field. We prophesy.

* * * * * *

At the improved administration of NYA work over that of last year. We believe that at the end of the year results will be evident.

* * * * * *

If it's only ballyhoo that dubs Carolina's freshman team the best the university has seen in many, many moons. Down in the Gamecock coop the boys say they have another championship aggregation.

And to rejoice that the new brick ticket house is practically complete and will in all probability be used Wednesday night.

G-Men

In days of old they called them student councilmen. Then came Melvin Purvis and public enemies, and a movie-going student body named them "G-Men." And G-Men they are dubbed, for better or for worse, but still, in spite of the joviality, we see the same old seeds of non-cooperation, of jibing, of misunderstanding that have been prevalent all during the time we have been at P. C., perhaps ever since P. C. has had student councilmen.

Tomorrow we go to the polls to elect two men to fill the unexpired terms of a senior and a junior councilman. We are not asking that you use discrimination in checking your ballot. That's not our purpose. We simply ask that you take this, an opportune time, to consider what a student councilman is for, what a student body is for, and how each can help the other.

The old attitude has been that student councilmen are to be elected but that if they do their duty they earn a name only fit for opposing football players who throw sand in your eyes. If they see rule infractions and look the other way they at once become "good old boys." If they don't look the other way—well, that's another matter. We forget, in our thoughtlessness, that a councilman has taken an oath to "fearlessly, conscientiously, and impartially" carry out his duties. We forget what that councilman would become if he did turn his head. We forget that his job is not head-turning, but rather carrying out the duties devolving upon him.

Suppose he does see infractions but only in an unofficial way. It will make very little difference. A hundred years from now it will make none at all. At least, it will make none to the student body at large, but it will make a very great difference in the life of one man. It will mean the difference between right and wrong, between courage and cowardice.

We are not trying to preach morality. Rules always have been broken, and perhaps always will be. What we are trying to say is that when you are caught with the goods don't blame the man who has done what he has sworn to do. Remember that he had the intestinal fortitude to see his duty and to do it, either with the cooperation of the student body or without it. When we can remember that, the student council will no longer have to worry about cooperation.

Bridging the Gap

During the closing months of last year THE BLUE STOCKING advocated the forming of a student representative committee that would serve to bridge the gap between student body and administration. We felt that only in this way could the desires, the complaints, the rcommendations of the student reach administrative ears. Today that gap has been bridged and the president of the student body announces the appointment of such a committee.

The committee appointed today, composed of nine members, is large enough, we feel, to be representative and yet not so large as to be unwieldy. It is a body that can be gathered together in a minimum of time, that can transact its business without the delay characteristic of larger groups. Composed as it is of more juniors and seniors than of the two lower classes, it will have the stabilitiy that freshmen might not have and the experience with student affairs that only three or four years of student life can give.

Whether or not it will be permanent will be left to future student presidents, class officers, and other campus leaders. Whether or not it will be as successful as it is possible for it to be is left entirely up to the committee and, to some extent, to the student body. A determined student body, interested in its own welfare, can be a great driving force behind any such organization. Should the committee lie down on the job, become lax in its duties, then an alert student body will know what to do about it. We hope that it will not become lax — we believe that it will not — but its strongest prod is student opinion.

With an administration entirely sympathetic to student welfare, clearly open to student suggestion, and progressive as P. C. has never before seen progressiveness, the committee organized today has before it opportunities for the improvement of this college and student body that no other campus organization has had. Its formation is one more step in the building of the P. C. of tomorrow.

Chapel Speakers

Opening what President Jacobs termed a series of chapel programs featured by out-of-town speakers, Mr. R. E. Barnwell, vice-president of Lockwood Greene, textile engineers of Boston and Spartanburg, Thursday morning brought a message of what the college student of today would have to fight in the business world of after-graduation. The plan of the college administration to bring to the campus leaders in all phases of industry is one that will meet with the support of the entire student body.

Although the importance of showing such men what P. C. is doing can not be underestimated, we believe that their appearance in chapel, breaking the almost gruesome monotony that for the student has become so closely associated with the 8:50 session, will be the most lasting benefit to be derived, other than the degree of advice that we will take from their talks and fit to our own lives.

Perhaps the inauguration of the new plan will recall minds that in the past have thought more about whether or not they will have a "pop" test in the 9:10 class than about the exercises taking place in the twenty-minute period.

Professor F. Melius Christiansen, director of the famous St. Olaf choir of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., does not like to have his colleagues use the term "extra-curricular activity" with reference to his choir.

"An extra-curricular activity is what a professor calls anything that does not pertain to his own subject," smiled the director. "Anything that develops students, increases their knowledge and cultural appreciation is certainly not outside the college curricula."

Bewildered, befuddled and a wee bit frightened, the frosh are gradually beginning to show signs of becoming soldiers. Spurred on by the desire to win the saber for the best drilled company, all officers are on their toes—more often, perhaps, on freshmen toes. Major Wysor has decided to award the saber this year to company commander judged best on annual spring inspection.

You rats should be getting in some valuable practice in front of your mirrors for the competitive drill which comes off on October 12th. Only those new men who have never had previous military training are eligible to compete for this prize.

The military department announces that it will not be responsible for broken bones or other injuries caused by flying rifles. This refers to rats only, who were to have been issued rifles this morning. With the rifles will come weekly inspections.

An awful outbreak of sound in the gym a week ago caused great concern for the safety of the building. "Columbo" dashed from his den in the lower regions of the basement, expecting to find the buildings toppling and the earth rocking. Imagine his relief and joy to find, instead of an earthquake, the band—conducting its first practice. Captain "Baby Ray" is quite proud of his young charges, especially drummer Spratt —the youth who personally burned a certain military academy to the ground in order to obtain permission to go home to call upon his lady love who was having a candy-pulling in his honor.

October 1 will be a red letter day for all advanced course men. On that day they receive their first pay checks of the year. Take heed to this announcement, all you money lenders.

Major Jim Collings, he of the rotund build and studded shoulders, received a telegram of congratulations from his fair love last week in which she not only sent congratulations and love and kisses but also urgently requested by return mail a picture. Nick has been searching ever since for a plate large enough to hold all of the Major at one sitting. Maybe we shall have a military wedding at commencement—who knows. Jim only smiles mysteriously when questioned on this point.

Mussolini has come into the open in regard to the Spanish situation. He has raised the Italian flag over the islands near the Spanish coast. These islands would give Il Duce an excellent naval base which would prove embarrassing to Gibraltar in case of trouble with England. There seems to be no limit to Mussolini's grabbing and, if he continues, war is certain to break out in the old world.

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "The First Baby." What happens to a young married couple when they go to live with the bride's mother, with only a so-so cast. Johnny Downs, Shirley Deane, Jane Darwell, Dixie Dunbar. MGM, and two shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Spendthrift." Playboy spendthrift throws money to the skies and looks for romance. Players: Henry Fonda, Pat Patterson, Mary Brian, George Barbier. Two shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Yours For the Asking." Probably the best picture of the week, this is the story of two blondes and a gambler who gambled for love. Players: George Raft, Dolores Costello Barrymore, Ida Lupino, Skeets Gallagher, Reginald Owen, Lynn Overman. Two shorts and, believe it or not, no more Frank Merriwell. No. 1 of "Flash Gordon." Get your peanuts early.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Murder On a Bridle Path." Another woman detective solving a comedy murder. Players: James Gleason, Helen Broderick. Three shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Go Get 'Em Haines." Reporter turns G-man and trails killer to ocean-bound liner. More murder. Players: Bill Boyd, Sheila Terry, Eleanor Hunt. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Singing Cowboy." A typical horse opera with Gene Autrey furnishing the opera and his trusty steed the horse-flesh. Two shorts and serial.

GEORGIA TECH SMOTHERS CALVINIST OUTFIT

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

I'SE A-MUGGIN'

The annual autumnal hysterial, football season to you, has begun in a big way. Upsets, intersectional engagements and moral victories have made their debut to add color to a colorful grid picture.

Many of Saturday's results were walkovers by big teams over weak opponents. Tampa's 57 to 0 sweep of Newberry, the 53 to 0 rout of Ohio Wesleyan by Pittsburgh, and Tech's decisive triumph over P. C., sound more like the recent song hit, "I'se A-Muggin'," than grid results.

UPSETS

Biggest upsets of the week:
Davidson 6; N. C. State 2.
V. M. I. 24; South Carolina 7.
And the following moral victories:
Citadel 13; Erskine 6.
North Carolina 14; Wake Forest 6.
Georgia 15; Mercer 6.
And the week's best game:
Duke 6; Colgate 0.

PREDICTION

Last week this column predicted a 40 to 0 victory for Georgia Tech over the Blue Stockings. The Georgians put on late steam to better this score by two touchdowns as an exhausted but gallant little band of Hosemen gave way.

This week finds the Blue Stockings idle. After two weeks of preparation, they take on Erskine's Flying Fleet in what promises to be one of the hardest-fought engagements of the season.

The fighting Fleet held Citadel to a one-touchdown victory Saturday when Alex Gettys rose to brilliance as the game's defensive star. But on the night of October 9 they will be facing one of the pluckiest elevens this side of Conestee. We predict the following outcome for the P. C.-Erskine nocturnal get-together: P. C. 13; Erskine 6.

Varsity Is Idle This Saturday

The P. C. varsity, smarting under the sting of a powerful Georgia Tech outfit that ran up score after score, will this Saturday be idle while preparations go forward for the game with Erskine on the local field Friday night, October 9.

Erskine is expected to present a much stronger team than early season prospects seemed to indicate. Saturday the Flying Fleet held Citadel's strong aggregation to a one-touchdown victory and came out of the fray in good shape.

The Blue Hose, despite the great reserve power that was thrown against them Friday night at Atlanta, suffered a minimum of injuries and will probably be able to use full strength next week.

P. C. FROSH OPEN SEASON WITH U. S. C.

Game To Be Played Here Wednesday Night.

BIDDIES FAVORED TO WIN

After a hard scrimmage with a strong, hard-hitting Clinton High eleven Tuesday, Coach Frank Waldrep spent the remainder of last week ironing out the defects in his freshman team in preparation for their game with Carolina Wednesday night on Johnson field.

Wednesday afternoon was spent in tackling, blocking, and improving the aerial attack, which looked very poor against Clinton. Thursday, the entire squad scrimmaged all afternoon as there was no practice Friday.

Coach Waldrep still refuses to name the starting lineup for the Carolina game. Carolina is boasting the strongest and heaviest team in a long time and will probably give the Anklets a hard fight from whistle to whistle.

Here is the lineup as we predict it:
Ends—B. Moore, Dixon.
Tackles—Buie, Aycock.
Guards—Davis, Mabry.
Center—Finney.
Backs—Thompson, Godfrey, Trammell, Griffin.

YELLOW JACKETS ROLL UP SCORE OF 55 TO 0 IN GAME

Deceptive Plays Wreak Havoc On P. C. Team.

SCORE IS ONLY 14 TO 0 AFTER SECOND PERIOD

Routing Presbyterian's Blue Stockings 55 to 0 Friday evening, Georgia Tech opened her 1936 season in a manner reminiscent of the driving and twisting Tornado of Rose Bowl days. Despite the one-sided score, Presbyterian fought gamely and held her powerful opponents to two touchdowns through the first half.

The Engineers gained momentum as the game progressed and gradually wore down their smaller opponents with a Mack-truck drive that always reached its goal. The brilliant Tech backfield executed a sensational blend of ground and aerial warfare to register half a dozen touchdowns in the second half.

The Blue Stockings were unable to penetrate the rock-like Tech defense, while Konemann, Edwards, and other Georgia backs ripped P. C.'s line to pieces.

The Engineers played a cautious first-quarter, but effected drives of 70 and 75 yards for scores in the second quarter. From then on, play was decidedly one-sided, with the Blue Stockings no match for their powerful opponents. A 69-yard dash by Edwards placed the ball in position for the first score. Jordan skirted end to make the initial touchdown. A mixture of dazzling passes and fancy footwork followed as the Tornado rolled up score after score at its own leisure.

P. C. made her first serious threat early in the fourth period. Runs by Reynolds and Moore gave her the ball on the Tech 19-yard stripe, but an intercepted pass cut off her scoring opportunities.

Passes paved the way for another Tech score, and Edwards crashed through tackle for seven yards after a 75-yard drive. Jimmie Moore, sub halfback, slipped off a 23-yard run around left end to the P. C. 22, and on the next play passed the ball to Hayes for another Engineer touchdown.

The final score came through a pass interception by Anderson, a sub, who stepped 55 yards to reach the P. C. goal.

Jacobs' punting was consistently good and Reynolds showed up well in his first starting role. The Blue Stockings are idle during the coming week and will face Erskine in a night game here on October 9.

National Stars To Play Oct. 12-13

Bitsy Grant and Other Aces To Appear On Local Courts.

President William P. Jacobs stated late last week that the exhibition matches and tennis clinic, featuring diminutive Bitsy Grant, Atlanta and Davis Cup ace, has definitely been set for October 12 and 13, the play to take place on the College View courts.

Tose coming here are Bitsy Grant, Johnnie Cardegnia, James Pressly, Jack Stockton, and Lev Richards. Grant, a member of the Davis Cup team, will probably rank number two nationally this year. Cardegnia is vice-president of the Professional Tennis Players' Association and professional at the Bath and Tennis club at Palm Beach. Pressly, graduate of Erskine, is at present the professional at the Ardsley Country Club. Stockton and Richards, both prominent in tennis circles, appeared on the local courts last spring.

Exhibition matches will open the clinic Tuesday evening at seven p. m. on the College View courts. Wednesday afternoon visiting high school and college teams will participate in play on the College courts and learn the fine points of the game. Wednesday evening the great players will put on another exhibition and the other days of the week will be given over to instruction by the professionals who will remain at P. C. for the week. High school players will be limited from the three states of South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia to take part in the clinic.

Ministerial Club Directs Services

Gaining practical experience in their chosen field of endeavor, four P. C. students last night conducted religious services in the churches of Clinton.

The interest of the local people and the college students was shown by the good attendance at each of the churches. The messages of the young men were apparently well received, judging from the comments by various ones who heard them.

Chester Keller preached at the Broad Street Methodist church on the subject, "When Is It Too Late?"; Cliff McLeod, preaching at the Presbyterian church, chose the subject, "The Christian, or Third Race." Hubert Wardlaw spoke at the Baptist church on the subject, "Manhood." Virgil St. John used the subject, "Presumptuous Sin" at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church.

The students expect to conduct these services about every fourth Sunday in the local churches.

striving to maintain the high mark of excellence set by his previous organization. Both the glee club and the quartet have commenced practice, and the entire group who have tried out will be allowed to sing for several weeks before the final selection is made. Several new and attractive numbers have been ordered, so that this year's program will be new.

In the R. O. T. C. band, only four freshmen have reported for practice. Due to the fact that last year's band was composed in the main of freshmen, the organizatiion this year will retain its same size and caliber. Director Gray plans to give the musicians instruments that have been cleaned and renovated during the summer and intends to put more snap and unity into the organization as a whole. The band, glee club and orchestra alike anticipate a most successful nine months.

P. C. Students Enroll At Union

Richmond, Va.—Four graduates of Presbyterian college have been enrolled in the incoming, or "junior" class at Union Theological seminary, which opened here Wednesday, September 16.

The new entrants include Manson B. Tate, Saxe, Va.; Allen D. Guerard, Greenwood, S. C.; Lynn T. Jones, Pontotoc, Miss., and James Edward Ratchford, Waxhaw, N. C., all of whom graduated with the class of 1936.

The seminary was opened with services in the chapel, presided over by Dr. Ben R. Lacy, president. Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson delivered the main address. He spoke on "Southern Presbyterians: What We Can Learn Fro mthe Past." Dr. Thompson is holder of the John Q. Dickinson chair of church history.

Dr. Lacy extended a welcome to the student body, composed of 33 new men, 26 middlers, 22 seniors, and four special students. The junior class represents 13 states of the nation. It is one of the largest enrolled in the past several years, and every member holds a college degree.

The seminary will again have the services of Henry M. Brimm, librarian, who has returned from a year of study at Columbia university's library school. He is a son of Dr. D. J. Brimm, of the department of Bible and religion at Presbyterian college, and is a graduate of Presbyterian.

Dartmouth Frowns On Severing Ties

Hanover, N. H. — Recommendation of the social survey committee that Dartmouth college fraternities dissolve their national affiliations has met with diverse reaction on the campus here.

Traditional loyalty at Dartmouth has always been to the college first and fraternities second, students leaders point out, declaring that if the fraternities became local clubs, without national standing, their status in relation to the campus would remain almost unchanged.

A minority report stated that alumni support would be withdrawn if national ties were severed.

gineering school are urged to join the army.

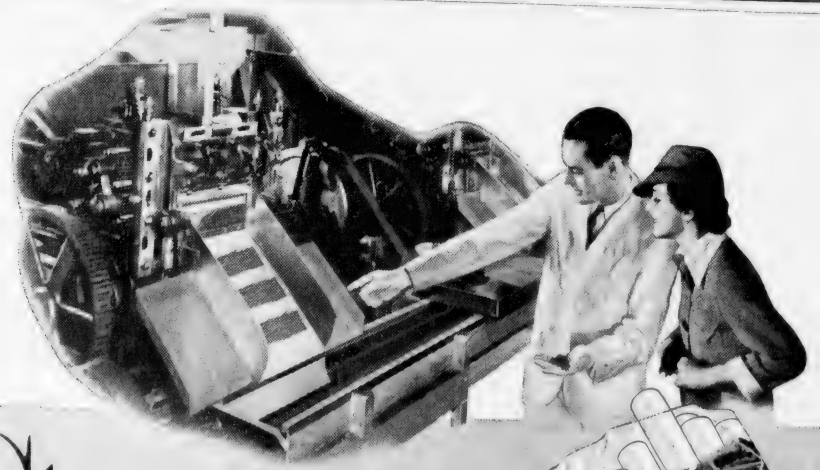
Dr. Whitelaw particularly emphasized the fact that in Germany practically all men of college are in uniform. He said that upon finishing high school every male is required to serve two years in the army and two years in the navy.

An average number of students was in attendance at the meeting. The program for the next meeting has not yet been announced.

Planet's Discoverer On Full-Time Job

Lawrence, Kans.—Clyde Tombaugh, who discovered the planet Pluto as an amateur astronomer six years ago, has begun star-gazing anew, this time with the benefit of a college education.

When he graduated from the University of Kansas in June Tombaugh returned to the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, where he made his sensational find in 1930.



Tombaugh, who has spent his summer vacations while in school at the telescope, was hesitant to say that full-time work would produce new discoveries.

STUDENT COMMITTEE IS ORGANIZED

HOPE TO PAY BONDED DEBT BY DECEMBER

HEARS REGULAR REPORTS AT MEETING

The Board of Trustees of Presbyterian college, meeting in regiar session Tuesday, unanimously authorized a supplemental indenture to the bond mortgage which allows officials of the college to utilize some of the endowment fund in the retirement of the bonded debt of fifty cents on the dollar.

This plan having already been approved by the bondholders, the action of the Board of Trustees means that it is likely that the entire bond of the college debt may be eliminated by December 1. This plan proposed by the bondholders has been under negotiations for some time and its successful connection will be welcome news to friends of the college.

The board also authorized the president to further increase the tuition of the college for new students in the future if he deems it wise to do so. If there should be such an increase, students now in college will not be affected by it.. Other routine matters were authorized, including resolutions of appreciation to the President, Dean Brown, Professor Sturgeon, and the faculty for the accomplishments of the college in the past year.

Johnson Heads NYA Projects

Work crews of the N.Y.A., this year under the direction of Coach Walter A. Johnson, will attempt various projects throughout the session, chief of which are at present the painting of the fence around the practice football field and the preparation of the stadium for home football games.

In order to aid more students, the scholarships have been broken up and distributed between a large number of recipients. The full time government aid averages around $15 per month for the nine months' period.

As student time-keepers, Coach Johnson has appointed F. V. Weathers and Wallace Coe, with Sadler Love in charge of the tennis court project when that gets under way, probably tomorrow.

Present plans are that later in the year the entire N.Y.A. group will be sub-divided into several crews with students in charge of each. No plans have been announced as yet in regard to work the various crews will do.

Atlanta Alumni Choose Gillespie

Alumni of Georgia and officials of the college banqueted Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock at the Henry Grady hotel, Atlanta, as a forerunner to the P. C.-Tech game and as a culminating of plans for a Georgia alumni association.

Richard Gillespie, Atlanta, was elected president of the Georgia association; Snooks Dunlap, vice-president; and Walker Combs, secretary-treasurer. Mr. Gillespie is pastor of Rock Springs Presbyterian church, Atlanta.

Among the approximately 100 people present at the banquet were alumni of P. C., Presbyterian ministers, parents of P. C. students of Atlanta and vicinity, President Jacobs, Coach Johnson, Dr. Neal G. Whitelaw, of the college faculty, and Hugh Holman and Turk Oxman, of the college publicity staff.

Local Lodge Smiles Smugly At Frat Antics

While leaders of six campus fraternities began frantically today to prod sluggish members to renewed rushing activity as the last lap of the home stretch came in view, one campus social organization sat serenely back, sure of neophytes at whom it might point with pride, worried not in the least over consequences of pledge day.

Members of Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, laughed smugly when questioned as to rushing activities." Well," said one dark-haired co-ed, "we're not bragging—but we know we're going to get the best freshmen on the campus this year." And that, to us, sounded a lot like the talk that will go the rounds tonight at fraternity meetings.

Frances Spratt, president of Alpha Psi Delta and member of the inter-sorority council, refused to comment, either favorably or unfavorably, on the pledging prospects of her group. When we insisted, she finally muttered something about "not wasting any money taking rats to the picture show."

Late this afternoon we learned via the grapevine that no meeting of the sorority had as yet been called and that rushing was practically at a standstill.

RUSH PERIOD TO END SATURDAY

Frats Continue Series of Smokers and Socials.

MONDAY IS PLEDGE DAY

With rush season two-thirds gone the fraternities are putting on a final spurt looking towards pledge day one week from today. Each of the six organizations has given two or three entertainments for members of the freshman class, but the social calendar still shows that there are eight engagements yet to be filled.

Since inter-fraternity rules forbid pledging of new men before the end of the three-week rushing season, fraternity activities have been confined to the socials and smokers as scheduled by the Pan-Hellenic council. The original plan of having two fraternities entertain on each free evening has been continued so that at present each of the organizations has had at least one social and one smoker.

The season will be rounded out this week as the Pi Kappa Alphas and Pi Kappa Phis entertain on Monday and Thursday evenings; Kappa Alpha and Alpha Kappa Pi on Wednesday night, and Beta Kappa and Alpha Lambda Tau Tuesday and Friday. Quiet period at twelve Saturday night and will last till pledge hour Monday, Oct. 5. During that period no rushing activities is permitted. Rush season ends officially Monday afternoon.

Whitelaw Talks On War Threats

Laying particular stress on Germany and England, Dr. N. G. Whitelaw addressed the students at the Y. M. C. A. meeting Thursday on conditions in Europe today. Dr. Whitelaw made a bicycle tour this summer through the countries of England, Belgium, France and Germany and brought out many interesting facts in his talk about the general conditions in those countries.

The central theme of this address was the fact that people in Europe are becoming more and more prepared for war. "The people of England are resigned to the fact that war is inevitable," he stated, and further stated that young men finishing college [illegible]

STUDENT BODY TO FILL POSTS

Vote Wednesday In Special Election For Two Councilmen and Magazine Business Manager.

THREE VACANCIES OCCUR

Holding its first meeting of the year, the board of publications this afternoon nominated Joe Commander, Tom Newland, and Jack McAlpine for business manager of The Collegian, quarterly magazine, the election to be run in conjunction with other student elections on Wednesday. Commander is a member of the junior class, while Newland and McAlpine are seniors.

Students of the college Wednesday morning will go to the polls to elect a senior councilman, a junior councilman, and a business manager for The Collegian, all of the elections being necessary to fill the places left vacant by the failure of men to return to school.

Allen McSween entered West Point during the past summer, thereby leaving vacant the senior student councilman office and The Collegian business manager office, while Julius Boggs, erstwhile junior councilman, did not return to school and therefore left the junior class quota of three short by one.

Members of the board of publications were elected without opposition when the three nominations of Thursday morning, William Langston, Dalton Mann, and Will Wallace, were unopposed. The board of publications has for its purpose the approving of all nominees for elective publication offices and is composed of editors of all publications, three faculty members, and the above new members.

P. C. Musicians Show Progress In Early Practice

Glee Club, Orchestra, and Band Continue Development.

One of the remarkable features of P. C.'s music department is the fact that it unfailingly gets just enough men for its various activities. Over the summer, enough of last year's students who were unable to make the grade have developed sufficiently to make the orchestra an all-upperclassman affair.

The complete organigation, slated to go places this year, is as follows: leader and first trumpet, Harris Gray; second trumpet, R. L. Clark; third trumpet, Red Heath; trombone, Buck Patterson; first saxophone, D. Mann; tenor saxophone, Harry Shamhart; third saxophone, R. Shoemaker; bass, F. Wallace; drums, W. K. Mackintosh; guitar, W. Smith; Piano, A. K. Darby. With a steady series of practices, Gray states that this orchestra will surpass the fine record set by that of last year.

More interest has been manifested in glee club work by the upper classes than for the past two years. Dr. Huntley states that in the past freshmen have formed the body of applicants for berths. But this year it seems that upperclassmen will be the main supports. Transfers are also adding their contribution to the group which will force the freshmen aspirants to do their best if they wish to make the trips. Probable soloists in the bass and baritone sections will be Wardlaw, Hensell and Cousins.

The quartet is the same as that of last year, except for Malcolm Hemphill, who takes the place left vacant by Lilac Henry, who did not return. Gray also leads the quartet and

"Y" To Present Musical Program

Miss Dorothy Hagan, graduate of Erskine college in 1934, and now director of music at Joanna school, has been booked to give a musical recital in the college chapel Thursday night of this week. The Y.M.C.A. is sponsoring this program of music by Miss Hagan and her accompanist, in order to create an interest in students in musical art.

Miss Hagan is a well-known violinist. She is also a talented pianist and will give classical selections on both the violin and piano.

The Y.M.C.A., said President Chester Keller today, is anxious that all students attend the program. An interest shown in this type of entertainment will encourage the Y.M.C.A. [illegible] to continue similar programs in the future, he said.

College Buys New, Modern Dream Train

The latest thing in motor transportation, a bus of the cab and trailer type, has been ordered by the athletic department and is expected to arrive about October 10, a week from Saturday.

The machine will carry 35 passengers and will be lettered with the name of the school. Its purchase is the answer to a need of nearly three years' standing.

The old school bus, affectionately known to athletic teams, glee club, orchestra, and student body as "The Dream Train," balked last spring deep in the hills of Georgia while transporting glee club and orchestra members back to P. C. Whether its foundering was due to internal complications or to orchestral conversation has never been fully ascertained.

Although no definite plans had gone forward late today for christening of the new bus next week, a rumor from a usually reliable source had it that the new conveyance would bear the name "Dream Train," in memory of the wheezing, rattling hulk that expired last year.

PLEDGE DANCE WILL BE OCT. 9

Formal Friday Night, and Two Dances Saturday.

DAVE BURNSIDE TO PLAY

The annual pledge dances, Presbyterian's colorful curtain-raiser on the social season, will be held October 9 and 10 with Dave Burnside and his popular orchestra furnishing the music. The Pan-Hellenic council has charge of the series and has already begun preparations for what promises to be one of the most successful affairs of the year.

Dave Burnside is no stranger to this section, and those planning to attend the dances are wholehearted in their endorsement of his smooth rythm. He played for one of last year's series, and has been sought for a return engagement since that time.

Swaying Copeland Hall, scene of many happy social affairs of the past, will be used again. Invitations are being printed and probably will be sent out before next week.

Three dances, the Friday night being formal, will be presented. As in the past, pledges of fraternities will be admitted on Friday night without charge. A tea dance will be held Saturday afternoon, followed by the final one on Saturday night.

ADVISORY BODY TO REPRESENT STUDENT GROUP

To Form Link Between Administration and Students Is Purpose of New Committee.

SHOEMAKER APPOINTS GROUP OF NINE

Raleigh A. Shoemaker, president of the student body, announced today the appointment of a student advisory committee, composed of campus leaders, which will have for its purpose the establishment of a firmer link between students and the college administration.

Advocated last year by The Blue Stocking, the new organization is felt by student body officials to be the answer to the long felt need of some method by which students may relay to college authorities their suggestions and their complaints.

The new Student Advisory Committee will be composed of the following: chairman, president of the student body, Raleigh Shoemaker; president of the Y. M. C. A., Chester Keller; editor of The Blue Stocking, Sadler Love; class presidents, Ernest Evans, Harris Gray, Jimmy Dennard; president of Sigma Kappa Alpha, scholastic fraternity (to be elected); battalion commander, James Collings; and Frances Spratt, elected last year to represent the co-eds.

The committee will have a membership of nine, including the chairman, until freshman class officers are elected, at which time the president of the freshman class will be added to the list.

Shoemaker stated today that although he would have no control over whether or not the committee became a permanent college organization, he believed that should it be as successful as is expected its continuation next year might be assured.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

"What do you think of white uniforms for the corps in the spring," we asked representative members of the military department, and this is what Commander of the Band SHOEMAKER said:

"Absolutely yes, I am in favor of white uniforms . . . those L. S. U. boys rated lower than we did in military proficiency but their white uniforms 'put us in the shade'."

Next we saw LT. FURMAN WALLACE . . . "Yes, I think that a military unit with our rating should adopt a spring uniform in keeping with that of schools having a lesser rating . . . besides, the corps needs a dress uniform."

Sergeant-Major ASHBY JOHNSON . . . "Since we are the most military of the non-military schools I think we should have a spring uniform in keeping with our reputation."

CORPORAL "CURLEY" CLEMENTS paused on his way to drill, long enough to say:

"Certainly I am in favor of white uniforms, provided the entire corps is required to wear them."

We next asked the first freshman we saw and it happened to be PRIVATE HUGGINS, who replied:

"I am in favor of a white uniform for spring wear and as a full dress uniform. I was surprised that this was not already a part of the uniform."

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

What would be the campus and faculty attitude toward allowing seniors unlimited chapel cuts since they receive no other special "privileges."

* * * * * *

At the fact that, even this long after the opening of school, the ceiling lights are still in the halls of Spencer. Intact, too.

* * * * * *

That if Clemson and Tech come can Erskine be far behind? But there'll be a different story going out from the press box next week when they snap off the lights on Johnson field. We prophesy.

* * * * * *

At the improved administration of NYA work over that of last year. We believe that at the end of the year results will be evident.

* * * * * *

If it's only ballyhoo that dubs Carolina's freshman team the best the university has seen in many, many moons. Down in the Gamecock coop the boys say they have another championship aggregation.

And to rejoice that the new brick ticket house is practically complete and will in all probability be used Wednesday night.

G-Men

In days of old they called them student councilmen. Then came Melvin Purvis and public enemies, and a movie-going student body named them "G-Men." And G-Men they are dubbed, for better or for worse, but still, in spite of the joviality, we see the same old seeds of non-cooperation, of jibing, of misunderstanding that have been prevalent all during the time we have been at P. C., perhaps ever since P. C. has had student councilmen.

Tomorrow we go to the polls to elect two men to fill the unexpired terms of a senior and a junior councilman. We are not asking that you use discrimination in checking your ballot. That's not our purpose. We simply ask that you take this, an opportune time, to consider what a student councilman is for, what a student body is for, and how each can help the other.

The old attitude has been that student councilmen are to be elected but that if they do their duty they earn a name only fit for opposing football players who throw sand in your eyes. If they see rule infractions and look the other way they at once become "good old boys." If they don't look the other way—well, that's another matter. We forget, in our thoughtlessness, that a councilman has taken an oath to "fearlessly, conscientiously, and impartially" carry out his duties. We forget what that councilman would become if he did turn his head. We forget that his job is not head-turning, but rather carrying out the duties devolving upon him.

Suppose he does see infractions but only in an unofficial way. It will make very little difference. A hundred years from now it will make none at all. At least, it will make none to the student body at large, but it will make a very great difference in the life of one man. It will mean the difference between right and wrong, between courage and cowardice.

We are not trying to preach morality. Rules always have been broken, and perhaps always will be. What we are trying to say is that when you are caught with the goods don't blame the man who has done what he has sworn to do. Remember that he had the intestinal fortitude to see his duty and to do it, either with the cooperation of the student body or without it. When we can remember that, the student council will no longer have to worry about cooperation.

Bridging the Gap

During the closing months of last year THE BLUE STOCKING advocated the forming of a student representative committee that would serve to bridge the gap between student body and administration. We felt that only in this way could the desires, the complaints, the recommendations of the student reach administrative ears. Today that gap has been bridged and the president of the student body announces the appointment of such a committee.

The committee appointed today, composed of nine members, is large enough, we feel, to be representative and yet not so large as to be unwieldy. It is a body that can be gathered together in a minimum of time, that can transact its business without the delay characteristic of larger groups. Composed as it is of more juniors and seniors than of the two lower classes, it will have the stabilitiy that freshmen might not have and the experience with student affairs that only three or four years of student life can give.

Whether or not it will be permanent will be left to future student presidents, class officers, and other campus leaders. Whether or not it will be as successful as it is possible for it to be is left entirely up to the committee and, to some extent, to the student body. A determined student body, interested in its own welfare, can be a great driving force behind any such organization. Should the committee lie down on the job, become lax in its duties, then an alert student body will know what to do about it. We hope that it will not become lax — we believe that it will not — but its strongest prod is student opinion.

With an administration entirely sympathetic to student welfare, clearly open to student suggestion, and progressive as P. C. has never before seen progressiveness, the committee organized today has before it opportunities for the improvement of this college and student body that no other campus organization has had. Its formation is one more step in the building of the P. C. of tomorrow.

Chapel Speakers

Opening what President Jacobs termed a series of chapel programs featured by out-of-town speakers, Mr. R. E. Barnwell, vice-president of Lockwood Greene, textile engineers of Boston and Spartanburg, Thursday morning brought a message of what the college student of today would have to fight in the business world of after-graduation. The plan of the college administration to bring to the campus leaders in all phases of industry is one that will meet with the support of the entire student body.

Although the importance of showing such men what P. C. is doing can not be underestimated, we believe that their appearance in chapel, breaking the almost gruesome monotony that for the student has become so closely associated with the 8:50 session, will be the most lasting benefit to be derived, other than the degree of advice that we will take from their talks and fit to our own lives.

Perhaps the inauguration of the new plan will recall minds that in the past have thought more about whether or not they will have a "pop" test in the 9:10 class than about the exercises taking place in the twenty-minute period.

Professor F. Melius Christiansen, director of the famous St. Olaf choir of St. Olaf college, Northfield, Minn., does not like to have his colleagues use the term "extra-curricular activity" with reference to his choir.

"An extra curricular activity is what a professor calls anything that does not pertain to his own subject," smiled the director. "Anything that develops students, increases their knowledge and cultural appreciation is certainly not extra to the college curricula."

SIMON LEGARE

Bewildered, befuddled and a wee bit frightened, the frosh are gradually beginning to show signs of becoming soldiers. Spurred on by the desire to win the saber for the best drilled company, all officers are on their toes—more often, perhaps, on freshmen toes. Major Wysor has decided to award the saber this year to company commander judged best on annual spring inspection.

You rats should be getting in some valuable practice in front of your mirrors for the competitive drill which comes off on October 12th. Only those new men who have never had previous military training are eligible to compete for this prize.

The military department announces that it will not be responsible for broken bones or other injuries caused by flying rifles. This refers to rats only, who were to have been issued rifles this morning. With the rifles will come weekly inspections.

An awful outbreak of sound in the gym a week ago caused great concern for the safety of the building. "Columbo" dashed from his den in the lower regions of the basement, expecting to find the buildings toppling and the earth rocking. Imagine his relief and joy to find, instead of an earthquake, the band—conducting its first practice. Captain "Baby Ray" is quite proud of his young charges, especially drummer Spratt—the youth who personally burned a certain military academy to the ground in order to obtain permission to go home to call upon his lady love who was having a candy-pulling in his honor.

October 1 will be a red letter day for all advanced course men. On that day they receive their first pay checks of the year. Take heed to this announcement, all you money lenders.

Major Jim Collings, he of the rotund build and studded shoulders, received a telegram of congratulations from his fair love last week in which she not only sent congratulations and love and kisses but also urgently requested by return mail a picture. Nick has been searching ever since for a plate large enough to hold all of the Major at one sitting. Maybe we shall have a military wedding at commencement—who knows. Jim only smiles mysteriously when questioned on this point.

Muwolinii has come into the open in regard to the Spanish situation. He has raised the Italian flag over the islands near the Spanish coast. These islands would give Il Duce an excellent naval base which would prove embarrassing to Gibraltar in case of trouble with England. There seems to be no limit to Mussolini's grabbing and, if he continues, war is certain to break out in the old world.

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "The First Baby." What happens to a young married couple when they go to live with the bride's mother, with only a so-so cast. Johnny Downs, Shirley Deane, Jane Darwell, Dixie Dunbar. MGM, and two shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Spendthrift." Playboy spendthrift throws money to the skies and looks for romance. Players: Henry Fonda, Pat Patterson, Mary Brian, George Barbier. Two shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Yours For the Asking." Probably the best picture of the week, this is the story of two blondes and a gambler who gambled for love. Players: George Raft, Dolores Costello Barrymore, Ida Lupino, Skeets Gallagher, Reginald Owen, Lynn Overman. Two shorts and, believe it or not, no more Frank Merriwell. No. 1 of "Flash Gordon." Get your peanuts early.

BROADWAY THEATRE

I'SE A-MUGGIN'

The annual autumnal hysterial, football season to you, has begun in a big way. Upsets, intersectional engagements and moral victories have made their debut to add color to a colorful grid picture.

Many of Saturday's results were walkovers by big teams over weak opponents. Tampa's 57 to 0 sweep of Newberry, the 53 to 0 rout of Ohio Wesleyan by Pittsburgh, and Tech's decisive triumph over P. C., sound more like the recent song hit, "I'se A-Muggin'," than grid results.

UPSETS

Biggest upsets of the week:
Davidson 6; N. C. State 2.
V. M. I. 24; South Carolina 7.
And the following moral victories:
Citadel 13; Erskine 6.
North Carolina 14; Wake Forest 6.
Georgia 15; Mercer 6.
And the week's best game:
Duke 6; Colgate 0.

PREDICTION

Last week this column predicted a 40 to 0 victory for Georgia Tech over the Blue Stockings. The Georgians put on late steam to better this score by two touchdowns as an exhausted but gallant little band of Hosemen gave way.

This week finds the Blue Stockings idle. After two weeks of preparation, they take on Erskine's Flying Fleet in what promises to be one of the hardest-fought engagements of the season.

The fighting Fleet held Citadel to a one-touchdown victory Saturday when Alex Gettys rose to brilliance as the game's defensive star. But on the night of October 9 they will be facing one of the pluckiest elevens this side of Conestee. We predict the following outcome for the P. C.-Erskine nocturnal get-together: P. C. 13; Erskine 6.

Varsity Is Idle This Saturday

The P. C. varsity, smarting under the sting of a powerful Georgia Tech outfit that ran up score after score, will this Saturday be idle while preparations go forward for the game with Erskine on the local field Friday night, October 9.

Erskine is expected to present a much stronger team than early season prospects seemed to indicate. Saturday the Flying Fleet held Citadel's strong aggregation to a one-touchdown victory and came out of the fray in good shape.

The Blue Hose, despite the great reserve power that was thrown against them Friday night at Atlanta, suffered a minimum of injuries and will probably be able to use full strength next week.

P. C. FROSH OPEN SEASON WITH U. S. C.

Game To Be Played Here Wednesday Night.

BIDDIES FAVORED TO WIN

After a hard scrimmage with a strong, hard-hitting Clinton High eleven Tuesday, Coach Frank Waldrep spent the remainder of last week ironing out the defects in his freshman team in preparation for their game with Carolina Wednesday night on Johnson field.

Wednesday afternoon was spent in tackling, blocking, and improving the aerial attack, which looked very poor against Clinton. Thursday, the entire squad scrimmaged all afternoon as there was no practice Friday.

Coach Waldrep still refuses to name the starting lineup for the Carolina game. Carolina is boasting the strongest and heaviest team in a long time and will probably give the Anklets a hard fight from whistle to whistle.

Here is the lineup as we predict it:
Ends—B. Moore, Dixon.
Tackles—Buie, Aycock.
Guards—Davis, Mabry.
Center—Finney.
Backs—Thompson, Godfrey, Trammell, Griffin.

Deceptive Plays Wreak Havoc On P. C. Team.

SCORE IS ONLY 14 TO 0 AFTER SECOND PERIOD

Routing Presbyterian's Blue Stockings 55 to 0 Friday evening, Georgia Tech opened her 1936 season in a manner reminiscent of the driving and twisting Tornado of Rose Bowl days. Despite the one-sided score, Presbyterian fought gamely and held her powerful opponents to two touchdowns through the first half.

The Engineers gained momentum as the game progressed and gradually wore down their smaller opponents with a Mack-truck drive that always reached its goal. The brilliant Tech backfield executed a sensational blend of ground and aerial warfare to register half a dozen touchdowns in the second half.

The Blue Stockings were unable to penetrate the rock-like Tech defense, while Konemann, Edwards, and other Georgia backs ripped P. C.'s line to pieces.

The Engineers played a cautious first-quarter, but effected drives of 70 and 75 yards for scores in the second quarter. From then on, play was decidedly one-sided, with the Blue Stockings no match for their powerful opponents. A 69-yard dash by Edwards placed the ball in position for the first score. Jordan skirted end to make the initial touchdown. A mixture of dazzling passes and fancy footwork followed as the Tornado rolled up score after score at its own leisure.

P. C. made her first serious threat early in the fourth period. Runs by Reynolds and Moore gave her the ball on the Tech 19-yard stripe, but an intercepted pass cut off her scoring opportunities.

Passes paved the way for another Tech score, and Edwards crashed through tackle for seven yards after a 75-yard drive. Jimmie Moore, sub halfback, slipped off a 23-yard run around left end to the P. C. 22, and on the next play passed the ball to Hayes for another Engineer touchdown.

The final score came through a pass interception by Anderson, a sub, who stepped 55 yards to reach the P. C. goal.

Jacobs' punting was consistently good and Reynolds showed up well in his first starting role. The Blue Stockings are idle during the coming week and will face Erskine on a night game here on October 9.

National Stars To Play Oct. 12-13

Bitsy Grant and Other Aces To Appear On Local Courts.

President William P. Jacobs stated late last week that the exhibition matches and tennis clinic, featuring diminutive Bitsy Grant, Atlanta and Davis Cup ace, has definitely been set for October 12 and 13, the play to take place on the College View courts.

Tose coming here are Bitsy Grant, Johnnie Cardegnia, James Pressly, Jack Stockton, and Lev Richards. Grant, a member of the Davis Cup team, will probably rank number two nationally this year. Cardegnia is vice-president of the Professional Tennis Players' Association and professional at the Bath and Tennis club at Palm Beach. Pressly, graduate of Erskine, is at present the professional at the Ardsley Country Club. Stockton and Richards, both prominent in tennis circles, appeared on the local courts last spring.

Exhibition matches will open the clinic Tuesday evening at seven p. m. on the College View courts. Wednesday afternoon visiting high school and college teams will participate in play on the College courts and learn the fine points of the game. Wednesday evening the great players will put on another exhibition and the other days of the week will be given over to instruction by the professionals who will remain at P. C. for the week. High school players will be limited from the three states of South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia to take part in the clinic.

Ministerial Club Directs Services

Gaining practical experience in their chosen field of endeavor, four P. C. students last night conducted religious services in the churches of Clinton.

The interest of the local people and the college students was shown by the good attendance at each of the churches. The messages of the young men were apparently well received, judging from the comments by various ones who heard them.

Chester Keller preached at the Broad Street Methodist church on the subject, "When Is It Too Late?"; Cliff McLeod, preaching at the Presbyterian church, chose the subject, "The Christian, or Third Race." Hubert Wardlaw spoke at the Baptist church on the subject, "Manhood." Virgil St. John used the subject, "Presumptuous Sin" at the Associate Reformed Presbyterian church.

The students expect to conduct these services about every fourth Sunday in the local churches.

striving to maintain the high mark of excellence set by his previous organization. Both the glee club and the quartet have commenced practice, and the entire group who have tried out will be allowed to sing for several weeks before the final selection is made. Several new and attractive numbers have been ordered, so that this year's program will be new.

In the R. O. T. C. band, only four freshmen have reported for practice. Due to the fact that last year's band was composed in the main of freshmen, the organization this year will retain its same size and caliber. Director Gray plans to give the musicians instruments that have been cleaned and renovated during the summer and intends to put more snap and unity into the organization as a whole. The band, glee club and orchestra alike anticipate a most successful nine months.

P. C. Students Enroll At Union

Richmond, Va.—Four graduates of Presbyterian college have been enrolled in the incoming, or "junior" class at Union Theological seminary, which opened here Wednesday, September 16.

The new entrants include Manson B. Tate, Saxe, Va.; Allen D. Guerard, Greenwood, S. C.; Lynn T. Jones, Pontotoc, Miss., and James Edward Ratchford, Waxhaw, N. C., all of whom graduated with the class of 1936.

The seminary was opened with services in the chapel, presided over by Dr. Ben R. Lacy, president. Dr. Ernest Trice Thompson delivered the main address. He spoke on "Southern Presbyterians: What We Can Learn Fro mthe Past." Dr. Thompson is holder of the John Q. Dickinson chair of church history.

Dr. Lacy extended a welcome to the student body, composed of 33 new men, 26 middlers, 22 seniors, and four special students. The junior class represents 13 states of the nation. It is one of the largest enrolled in the past several years, and every member holds a college degree.

The seminary will again have the services of Henry M. Brimm, librarian, who has returned from a year of study at Columbia university's library school. He is a son of Dr. D. J. Brimm, of the department of Bible and religion at Presbyterian college, and is a graduate of Presbyterian.

Dartmouth Frowns On Severing Ties

Hanover, N. H. — Recommendation of the social survey committee that Dartmouth college fraternities dissolve their national affiliations has met with diverse reaction on the campus here.

Traditional loyalty at Dartmouth has always been to the college first and fraternities second, students leaders point out, declaring that if the fraternities became local clubs, without national standing, their status in relation to the campus would remain almost unchanged.

A minority report stated that alumni support would be withdrawn if national ties were severed.

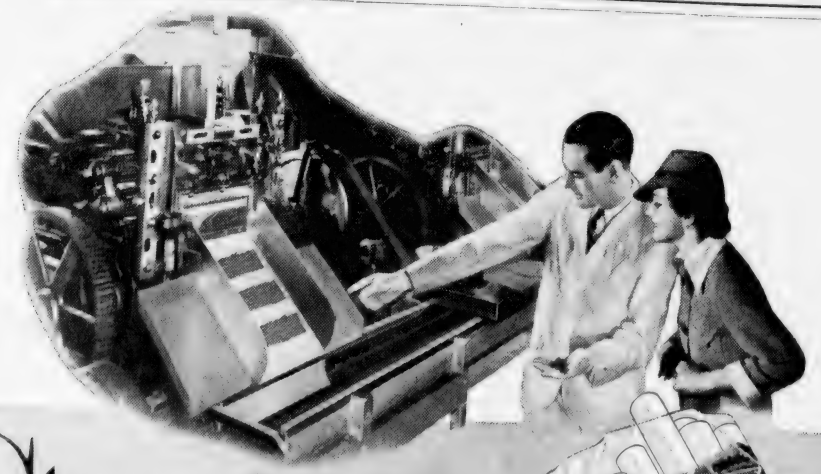
Dr. Whitelaw particularly emphasized the fact that in Germany practically all men of college are in uniform. He said that upon finishing high school every male is required to serve two years in the army and two years in the navy.

An average number of students was in attendance at the meeting. The program for the next meeting has not yet been announced.

Planet's Discoverer On Full-Time Job

Lawrence, Kans.—Clyde Tombaugh who discovered the planet Pluto as an amateur astronomer six years ago has begun star-gazing anew, this time with the benefit of a college education.

When he graduated from the University of Kansas in June Tombaugh returned to the Lowell observatory at Flagstaff, Arizona, where he made his sensational find in 1930.



Tombaugh, who has spent his summer vacations while in school at the telescope, was hesitant to say that full-time work would produce new discoveries.

RUSHING ACTIVITIES END TOMORROW

STUDENTS PICK NEW OFFICERS FOR POSITIONS

Patrick, Commander, and McAlpine Are Elected To Office.

VACANCIES ARE FILLED BY SPECIAL ELECTIONS

The three elective vacancies which occurred when office holders failed to return to school were filled Wednesday when the P. C. student body went to the polls to cast their votes for a senior councilman, a junior councilman, and a business manager for The Collegian, quarterly magazine.

Council

The majority of the votes for senior councilman went to Joe Patrick, who socially is a Pi Kappa Alpha. Patrick also is editor of the PaC-SaC, member of the board of publications, holds an office on the Panhellenic council, and is a member of Blue Key.

In the race for junior councilman, Joe Commander was elected. Commander, a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity, is also a letter man in varsity track, and was president of the freshman class of 1934-35.

Collegian

Jack McAlpine led the ticket for business manager of The Collegian. McAlpine, another representative of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity, is secretary-treasurer of the Y.M.C.A. and head cheer-leader for 1936-37.

MILITARY UNIT TRAINS CRACK SOPH PLATOON

Once again Presbyterian college's crack cadet corps takes the lead in initiating something new in the way of fancy drill in the ranks of R.O.T.C. units in South Carolina. Other schools have platoons made up of seniors and juniors, commanded by the highest ranking senior officers. But P. C. is organizing a crack platoon to consist of second-year men only and to be commanded by two juniors, Sergeant-Major Ashby Johnson and Sergeant Wandel Williams.

The type of fancy drill to be used is unlike that of other military schools in the state. The platoon will consist of eight squads, front ranks only. The drill will be silent, all necessary commands being given by whistle, rather than word of mouth.

This innovation is to become a permanent feature at P. C. Major F. C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics, has charge of the organizing and instructing of the platoon. The crack unit will wear white belts and gloves with the regular uniform this fall. In the spring, white ducks and shirts will probably take the place of the conventional olive drab.

The first exhibition will take place at an early date, probably between halves of one of the night games to be played on Johnson field.

Y.M.C.A. To Hear Deputation Team

The Y.M.C.A. has announced that the program at the regular Thursday night meeting will be presented by a deputation team from Lander college Y.W.C.A.

Gone With the Wind

J. B. JACOBS - CAPTAIN - P.C.

When P. C.'s varsity meets Erskine Friday night in the first home game of the season for the local team, Captain Jacobs will be depended upon for his high, long punts that set the best safety men of Clemson and Georgia Tech back on their heels in games this year.

Extension Work Making Progress

Bible Classes Meet Twice Weekly With Dr. Brimm.

P. C.'s newest student activity, Bible extension, took more complete form last week as plans went forward for sending out deputations to Presbyterian churches of South Carolina and Georgia in the near future. A regular schedule of class meetings has been worked out and the group is now in training for the work under the direction of Dr. D. J. Brimm.

It is planned to send out one or two deputations of four boys each week. These deputations will hold Bible study classes and aid in the direction of young people's work in the churches to which they are invited. Such a program necessitates intensive preparation and the director expects to withhold all appointments until the students have thoroughly fitted themselves for the work.

It is intended that as many of the churches as possible be visited during the year. These visits will serve the twofold purpose of making contacts for the college and training the participants in religious leadership as well as aiding the churches in young people's work.

In view of the fact that a great deal of time must be spent on preparation, it has been decided that three semester hours credit will be given, and the work will be done on a regular class basis.

S. C. SYNOD TO MEET

The Synod of South Carolina will meet in annual session tomorrow night in Columbia, with the First Presbyterian church of that city as host.

Among those attending from the college will be Dr. Dudley Jones, retiring moderator of the assemblage, who will preach the opening sermon.

Dramatic Club To Present Play

Sock and Buskin To Sponsor "Introducing Susan."

Sock and Buskin, college dramatic club, last week selected a three-act comedy, "Introducing Susan," as its fall production and set 7:30 tomorrow night as the time for try-outs of new members.

"Introducing Susan" is a comedy farce built around a case of mistaken identity. Its cast numbers five female characters and seven male parts. Although the date for its presentation has not as yet been set, Eldred MacLeod, president of Sock and Buskin, stated today that practice will begin as soon as a cast can be selected.

During the course of the Wednesday night meeting, Dr. H. S. Fish of the college faculty, suggested a plan whereby a dramatic club library would be organized. The plan, which was accepted by the group, calls for the purchase of outstanding plays used on the legitimate stage, these plays to be used by club members as guides to better amateur performances.

AFFAIRS TEST GIVEN FROSH

R. K. Timmons, of Columbia, Makes Highest Grade.

Presbyterian college freshmen know a great deal about current motion pictures, but their knowledge of national and international personalities, as well as of the arts, is sadly lacking. Those are the conclusions drawn from a survey of the current affairs test given the first-year class during the early part of school and whose results were announced by college officials today.

FORMAL PLEDGING WILL TAKE PLACE TOMORROW AFTERNOON

Faculty Committee Received Lists From Fraternities At End of Week; Quiet Period, Now On, Began At Midnight Yesterday.

Presbyterian college's annual fraternity rush season, officially ending yesterday at 12 o'clock midnight, will tomorrow afternoon terminate in the selection by new men of the three social groups of their choice, ranked according to preference.

After an active rushing period of three weeks, during which time the six fraternities have entertained freshmen of their choice, the organizations Friday submitted their selections to the faculty committee on fraternities and are awaiting the announcement of official pledging.

Pledge Day

In accordance with faculty rules, no new man may be pledged by the fraternities before tomorrow, official pledge day. During the rushing season each fraternity was permitted to entertain on the dates set by the Panhellenic council.

Friday, each fraternity submitted to Dr. A. E. Spencre, chairman of the faculty committee on social activity, a list of the men passed by them. On Sunday night all rushing activity ceased, to allowed freshmen to carefully consider their choice of a fraternity undisturbed. During this time no upper-classman was premitted to talk to a freshman regarding fraternities.

Notification of Bids

Tomorrow morning notification will be sent to all men who have received bids, but they will not be informed by which fraternity they have been passed. All men who have been offered bids will receive instructions to meet during the afternoon and write their first three choices of fraternities in order of preference. From these selections pledges will be announced. A man is pledged by the first fraternity on his list by whom he has been offered a bid.

When the selections have been approved by the faculty committee, announcement will be made to the student body. The freshmen will then be formally pledged by their various fraternities.

Rushing Period

The rushing period began officially with announcement by the Panhellenic council early in September of a social schedule providing dates upon which fraternities were to entertain. Each Greek organization was allowed two socials and two smokers, two fraternities entertaining each night.

Quiet hour was originally scheduled to begin on Friday, midnight, but members of the council last week extended the time to Sunday.

Pledge Dance On Friday Night Is Social Feature

Dave Burnside and His Orchestra To Furnish Rhythm.

ONLY ONE FORMAL IN SERIES OF THREE

(By Jake Penland)

The Panhellenic council's initial presentation of the fall season, the pledge dances, will be held in Copeland hall on Friday and Saturday of this week with Dave Burnside and his orchestra swinging for the occasion.

Final preparations are being completed for the series, which should rate as the high spot of the 1936-37 social calendar.

Burnside and his sparkling orchestra make-up is currently playing at one of Pittsburgh's leading hotels and will return to the Northern city immediately after the local engagement.

Featuring an attractive and talented torch-singer, lilting arrangements, novelties, and unique guitar accompaniments, the orchestra satisfies.

Besides the Clinton and Laurens dance addicts, the series will be attended by a large group of out-of-towners. Invitations are being mailed out this week and will affect mailmen in three states.

The Friday evening dance begins at nine-thirty and will end at three. On Saturday afternoon from four until six a tea-dance will be in progress, and the series will be capped off by the Saturday night affair from nine until midnight.

Taken collectively, script for the three dances is $3.00. Individually, the Friday night dance is $1.25; the tea dance, 75c; and Saturday night, $1.00. Freshman pledges will be admitted free on Friday night.

Miss Hagan Gives Musical Program

Showing their appreciation of music, a large number of students were in attendance at the Y.M.C.A. meeting Thursday night, and were rewarded with a beautiful music recital by Miss Dorothy Hagan. Miss Hagan, who heads the music department of the Joanna schools at Goldville, is a talented violinist and pianist and her selections were well received.

First on the program, Miss Hagan played "Liebsfreud" on the violin, accompanied by Mrs. Brooks Owens at the piano, and immediately following, rendered the beautiful "Venetian Love Song." After these two violin selections, Miss Hagan demonstrated her ability at the piano with the selections, "A Rendezvous With a Dream" and "Here Am I, But Where Are You?" Following this she rendered as a violin solo the famous Negro spiritual, "Nobody Knows the Trouble I See," and the sweet strains of "The Old Refrain."

After the recital, the audience applauded for several minutes but Miss Hagan refused an encore. She did, however, remark that she had never appeared before a more appreciative group.

Officials of the Y.M.C.A. stated today that student response was so excellent that more programs of this nature would be presented in the near future.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

"What do you think of unlimited chapel cuts as a special privilege for seniors?" we asked this week and received answers, not only from the seniors, but from a faculty member as well.

First, we met STUART CAMPBELL, who said:

"Yes, I am in favor of this plan, not only because I think it would not be abused, but also because the seniors get few enough privileges as it is."

Next we interviewed DR. NEIL G. WHITELAW, who thought it over very carefully, then said:

"I do not favor giving senior students chapel cuts unless such permission is granted to all students. Chapel is a worship service and should be considered in that light."

We asked Senior MAJORS, who replied:

"I am in favor of it because I believe seniors do not have enough privileges."

SUGGS was evidently in a hurry, but he waited a moment and answered:

"Yes, I am in favor of chapel cuts because we need more senior privileges."

Robots

Last week we ran a simple little squib concerning unlimited chapel cuts for seniors as a special privilege in view of the fact that seniors do not now enjoy exemption from final exams nor, with the exception of a few class cuts, any other privilege not granted the student body. We had the idea that the granting of such a favor by college officials would, indeed, be a very small thing, and yet would provide time that might be very well used by the class of 1937, either in sleep or in class preparation.

But since last Monday we have found opinion among seniors to be almost entirely in favor of such a proposal and even some support from faculty members. We do not believe that the class of 1937 would lose morally by such a plan. Granting that the average age of P. C. seniors is twenty-one, the fact should then be established that if a man is not headed down the straight and narrow path by that time, then forcing him to attend exercises at which his mind wanders from the world's series to his best girl will not save his soul.

We do not, of course, favor compulsory chapel for any of the student body. But we can see that perhaps freshmen need some stronger religious tie than their own consciences. To think at the present time of obtaining the abolishment of compulsory chapel for the entire college is out of the question. Such an attempt would, we fear, be fruitless. But to us the logic of senior exemption is self-evident. We believe that a large number of seniors would continue chapel attendance, but they would not feel as if they were having morality crammed down their throats.

Eight months from now the college will find it impossible to stand between members of the class of 1937 and evil, impossible to show them right from wrong. Why not give them eight months of practice in doing it for themselves? For, after all, twenty-one years is not a very long time, but it is long enough to build a man or a robot.

You Didn't Get a Bid?

So you did not get a fraternity bid? On the face of it, and at the present moment, that may seem to you to be a very momentous thing. You perhaps feel that you are left out in the cold, that social life of the college will flow by you undisturbed and undisturbing. But you need not let it.

It may seem strange to you, and the idea somewhat silly, but your failure to get a fraternity bid may be the one jerk that will snap you into a realization of your own capacity. Leaders of the Greek lodges are primarily interested in men who have demonstrated qualities of leadership, athletic ability, social aptitude, or financial freeheartedness. You may have all of these or none of them, but if the members do not attribute to you one of these qualities you are not very likely to get a bid.

That is why we say that the very fact that you did not get a bid may cause an awakening of yourself to your own capacities and the realization of your failure to take advantage of them. If you did not get a bid, don't vent your anger on the fraternities; but look at yourself and ask why you were not chosen. When you are able to understand somewhat better your deficiencies you will then be able to take the proper steps toward remedying them.

If you will look at yourself in the reflecting glass that is the fraternity system and then prick till it hurts the sore spots in your personality—then you will have taken the first step in education. If you will grit your teeth and determine to amount to something at this man's college if for no other reason than to show the fraternities they were wrong, you will have them scrambling for you not very long from now.

It may sound impossible to you — but it has been done. And even if you don't quite make the grade, you will have learned one of the greatest things a man can learn. You will have learned the power of self-analysis.

Movies For the Week

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Suzy." We could tell you that you were going to like this, or we could say that it was poor entertainment—and we would have supporters for either side. So we'll just sit tight and let you draw your own conclusions. Anyway, you'll like La Harlow's singing of "Did I Remember." Players: Jean Harlow, Franchot Tone, Cary Grant. Also MGM News.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Border Patrolman." This guy O'Brien is a tough mug, see, but just when he thinks things are going to suit him he meets a girl who fights with weapons he knows nothing about. Players: George O'Brien, Polly Ann Young, Smiley Burnette. Also "Memories of Spain," a short.

Friday and Saturday: "The Return of Sophie Lang." A slick crook meets a slicker crook when Sophie Lang comes out of hiding to snatch sparklers while the world looks on. Players: Gertrude Michael, Sir Guy Standing, Ray Milland.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Devil Doll." Realistic, just a little horrifying, this story brings you out of your seat—that is, if you like the kind Lon Chaney used to do. A couple of "A's" to Lionel Barrymore and Maureen O'Sullivan for top performances. Three shorts to round out the program.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Three On the Trail." Maybe you're tired of that redoubtable hero of the screen, one Cassidy, but then maybe we are too. Anyway, here he is again. This time Hopalong is riding for the old Bar-20. Players: Bill Boyd, Jimmy Ellison, Onslow Stevens, George Hayes, Muriel Evans. Three shorts are the chief redeeming feature.

Friday and Saturday: "Unknown Ranger." Did you say horse opera? Well, you're right, stranger. The price is 20c, not counting peanuts, and the whistling is free. After all, there are three shorts and chapter No. 9 of the current hair-raiser. And magazines are hard to borrow.

* * * * * * * *

Here are two coming next week that you will want to save some loose change for: "His Brother's Wife," at the Casino, and "Sins of Men," at the Broadway.

Attempt at maintenance of a 70-30 ratio between fraternity and non-fraternity men is being made at Williams college.

"WAY OF A TRANSGRESSOR"— Negley Farson

Bring out the midnight oil and prepare to burn it when you tackle this fascinating autobiography of an adventurer and a he-man. Negley Farson is the son of a long line of noted people, but he takes the family tradition of going places and doing things by the nose, leading it to lengths undreamed of by his forbears.

The first thing that strikes one is the sustained interest which, truthfully, never flags throughout six hundred pages. "All books have dull spots," someone may say—yet here is your exception that disproves that faithful rule. This is such an amazing and varied account that there is no room for boredom to creep in.

Mr. Farson ventures, from his wide experience, to come directly to the truth, even if it hurts those concerned. He has been everything from an oar on the Penn varsity crew to a confidante of Lenin, and his perception is so acute that he often sees the state of things too clearly for the plans of hedging diplomats and strong-arm censors.

His tale of Russia in the hectic days before the Revolution gives a graphic picture of the desperate politics and unlimited graft which reigned then. As a special (and speculating) agent in Petrograd and Moscow, the author has adventures that would seem almost fantastic if they did not bear the stamp of truth in every line.

From Russia, to the royal air force of Great Britain, to selling Mack trucks in Chicago—with the annexation of a British wife en route—is just a small portion of the deeds of this man among men who has seen and done practically everything that the average adventurer wishes he could do. There is a jaunt across Europe in a yawl; up the Rhine, and through a disused canal that few people know exists, to the Danube and thence to the Black sea. Eve, his wife, accompanies him on this trying trip.

Much as Vincent Sheean in "Personal History," but on an even more widespread basis, Mr. Farson takes an assignment as a reporter on the Chicago Daily News. This returns him to Russia, where he reports a revolution. Then he goes to London for the disappointing naval conference, down to India to see Ghandi subordinated, back to Egypt for the Silky Pasha quarrel, and up to Germany where he "watched the French manufacture Hitler."

With this absorbing pageant of contemporary history, Mr. Farson combines an adept style and an acute insight to make his life a mirror of the thought and action of modern times.

MEMBERS OF CLASS OF 1940 SHOW MANY VARIED INTERESTS

READER'S DIGEST MOST POPULAR MAGAZINE

Presbyterian college's one hundred and ten freshmen come from eight states as far distant as Florida and Pennsylvania, but their variety and versatility does not cease with geographical distribution, according to a survey recently made at the college.

Drawing from the "cream of the crop" scholastically, 25, or almost one-fourth, of them were honor students in high school. Included in that group is H. P. Skinner, valedictorian of Charleston high; Jimmie Richardson, valdictorian of Sumter high; Duglad Hudson, highest boy in Greenville high, and honor students from St. Daniels academy, Scottsburg (Va.) high school, Georgia Military academy in Milledgeville, and St. John's high in Darlington.

Athletics

Athletically speaking, they are outstanding. Seventy-four took part in some form of inter-school athletics and 37 earned letters in one or more sports. Three, Jimmy Carroll of Summerville, D. M. McCormick of Clio, and James Wasson of Laurens, were voted the best athletes in their

Y.M.C.A. To Send Men To '36 Camp

Delegates To Attend Camp Adger, Near Pickens.

Representing the Presbyterian college "Y," several members of the cabinet will attend the annual fall retreat of Y.M. and Y.W.C.A.'s at Camp Adger, S. C., on October 9-11. Camp Adger is located in the heart of the Blue Ridge mountains, a few miles from Pickens, and is under the joint ownership of the Y.M.C.A.'s and Y.W.C.A.'s of South Carolina.

Each year a number of young men and young women from the various colleges of the state gather at this camp under the supervision of Rev. and Mrs. T. B. Lanham, of Pickens. The purpose of the conference is to discuss the methods and means of meeting campus problems of college students

The delegates from the local "Y" will be: Chester Keller, president of the organization; M. C. Patterson, chairman of religious activity; H. C. Garrett, assistant chairman of religious activity, and Peden Smith, assistant chairman of missions.

That P. C. Spirit

By William P. Jacobs

For over twenty years I have been impressed with the frequent expressions from my friends and acquaintances about the unusual P. C. spirit. It is an intangible something that has sprung up and grown on our campus over a period of many years. It is difficult to measure it and difficult to determine its causes. The P. C. spirit lives, nevertheless, and I am glad that I can say this year grows.

The public at large noticed this spirit exemplified in our athletic contests, particularly our football games in which a scrappy little P. C. team is constantly battling a heavier foe. The public has the idea that P. C. teams have more grit than others and that even when they are out-classed that they are fighting until the final whistle blows, just as they were at Georgia Tech last Friday, and just as our freshmen did against Carolina. Undoubtedly, our football games offer the clearest exhibitions of the P. C. spirit, if not the cause. I have often thought and publicly stated that our beloved coach, Walter A. Johnson, not only is partially the cause but in many respects is the P. C. spirit personified. I have frequently felt that the P. C. spirit is particularly engendered by the culture, refinement, and spirituality of our student body which in itself is a reflection of those elements in the Christian homes from when our boys come.

Whatever may be the cause of the spirit, I am very positive in my conviction that the P. C. spirit is our greatest asset, for it portrays the character, the determination, the culture, the refinement, the spirituality, and the oneness of purpose of our beloved institution and its present student body. The public measures us by the P. C. spirit, and I hope we will never live to see the day when our football teams will not be scrapping teams. Monetary conditions force us at times to meet in athletic competition institutions that are much larger than we are. When we have a succession of such events on our foot-

COLLEGE TENNIS TEAMS INVITED TO SCHOOL

Reservations are pouring in and interest mounting in anticipation of the tennis clinic, which will be held on the local courts October 13, 14 and 15. President Jacobs, who is responsible for the unique event, states that response to the clinic is heavier than he had expected with the result that extensive preparations are being made to accommodate the large number planning to attend.

The original program has been revised, and will call for exhibition matches between "Bitsy" Grant of Atlanta, and a pair of outstanding professionals. Grant, the "mighty atom," will meet Johnnie Cardegnia and James Pressley in a mo[illegible] match on Tuesday evening, October 13. Lev Richards, nationally famous referee, will serve in this capacity.

Wednesday and Thursday afternoons will be utilized for instruction, demonstration, etc. Valuable enlightenment concerning the game will be given by the professionals, who will

BLUE SOX LOSE TO CAROLINA

VARSITY MEETS ERSKINE IN FIRST HOME GAM

READY TO GROUND FLYING FLEET

The four stalwarts above, having already tested their mettle against Clemson and Georgia Tech's powerful teams, will Friday night attempt to kick and pass the Blue Hose to a victory in the first varsity game of the year to be played on Johnson field and the second night varsity game since installation of lights.

PEN-POINTS

UNTIL THE REAL THING COMES ALONG

When Carolina's money-made freshman footballers administered a sound drubbing to an abbreviated Anklet eleven last Wednesday evening, local supporters appeared discouraged and disappointed in P. C.'s performance and prospects.

We admit that the University gridsters went to town. Speed, weight, beautiful blocking, ball-carrying brilliance, and smooth teamwork blended to form a "heavenly eleven" that chalked up six sweet touchdowns during the course of play.

But it must be remembered that Presbyterian is one of the smallest schools in the state—Carolina the largest. The University scouting scope squads as far as Ohio while our roster represents, in the main, three states. Despite this handicap, P. C. has scored more upsets—turned in more surprise performances, than any other school in South Carolina since intercollegiate play was inaugurated. So we'll stick with the Blue Stockings—until the real thing comes along.

JACOBS' JAMBOREE

Sincerest congratulations to William P. Jacobs for consistent success and effort in his program for a bigger and better college. Prexy-man's practical president makes plans with the idea of putting them through—puts them through in fine style. The infirmary, Y.M.C.A. building, commercial department, enlarged publicity department—these visible additions to the P. C. plant bear witness to his work.

And now, the latest Jacobs-creation—a tennis clinic. What is its significance? It means that attention of racket enthusiasts from three states will be focused on activities here in Clinton for three days. It means that tennis coaches and players from these states will become thoroughly acquainted with P. C.—and that they will leave this scene impressed with the fineness and the vitality of our leader, of our students, and our school.

It means that P. C. has started talking. Not in a whisper, but in a big bass voice that means business. And all because a dynamic man threw dynamite into a scholastic quarry that had plenty of rock to offer.

Carolina Team Downs Blue Sox

Fast Backs and Powerful Line Contribute To Victory.

Tossing passes for sizable gains and plunging the lighter P. C. line for yard after yard, Carolina's strong freshman team smashed a fighting Sox outfit Wednesday night beneath the lights of Johnson field by a score of 33 to 0.

The P. C. team entered the game the underdog, held the score to 14 to 0 for two quarters, and then seemed to go to pieces. The running of a trio of fast Carolina backs, Rampey, Robinson, and Little, contributed heavily to the Biddies' victory.

The tackling and blocking of the local team was not as awry as the score might indicate. The P. C. offense showed its wares several times during the game, but the heavy Carolina line left little opportunity for serious scoring threats.

The first Carolina tally came early in the first quarter, the second marker was rung up in the second period, and the remainder of the points scored after the half.

The outstanding feature of the game from the P. C. standpoint was the punting of Charlie Thompson, who seemed always on the point of having his kicks blocked, but who, nevertheless, sent Carolina to the coffin corner time after time.

In addition to Thompson, the work of Trammell, at quarter, and of B. Moore and Bullock at the ends, was excellent.

The Sox meet Newberry here on October 15.

Homecoming Game Against Wofford

Play Methodists Saturday Afternoon, November 21.

Announcement was made last week by college authorities that the annual homecoming game would be played against Wofford on November 21, Saturday, on Johnson field.

The Wofford date is the only home game of the P. C. team that is scheduled for an afternoon encounter. It is the last listed game of the 1936 menu and in it 11 seniors will be singing their swan songs of intercollegiate football.

Last year Wofford trailed P. C. 6 to 0 at the half and then, to save her own homecoming, came from behind to roll over a touchdown and kick the goal, winning the game 7 to 6 before approximately 5,000 specta-

State Title Race Beginning To Thin

P. C. Deep In Cellar, Citadel and Clemson Lead In Games Won.

Presbyterian college, with two defeats and no victories to its credit, continued today deep in the cellar of South Carolina football.

From the number of points to its credit, the Blue Hose were also in deep water, having registered no points to a total of 74 for opponents. Clemson's 19-0 victory and Georgia Tech's 33-point parade made up the units of the 74-point total.

Thus today little more is known about the outcome of the state race than before play began. The stronger teams of the Big Four have not as yet met each other, and Little Four members will not tangle until this week.

With P. C. meeting Erskine Friday night at Clinton, and Furman's Purple Hurricane tackling The Citadel at Greenville, aspirants for top honors in both Big Four and Little Four grooms will take their test by fire.

The Standings:

	Won	Lost	Pts.	Opp. Pts.
Citadel	2	1	60	26
Clemson	2	1	39	32
Furman	1	1	51	13
Carolina	1	2	45	45
Wofford	1	2	57	50
Presbyterian	0	2	0	74

No Game With A's Next Spring

Chick Galloway, head baseball coach, stated last week that Connie Mack would be unable to bring his Philadelphia Athletics through Clinton this spring for an exhibition game with Presbyterian's Blue Hose.

The Athletics, who usually go to Florida in the spring for training period, will this year train in Mexico and the stop in Clinton will therefore be impossible. Last year Coach Galloway's nine was to have played the A's, but the game was rained out.

Connie Mack expressed deep regret that he would be unable to visit the P. C. campus with his team but assured Galloway that next year he would leave open two dates on his spring schedule so that a game might be assured.

GAME FRIDAY TO OPEN HOME SEASON HERE

Blue Hose Expected To Be In Good Shape Following Lay-off Of Two Weeks.

FLEET TO PRESENT FAST STRONG TEAM

(By J. B. Hafley)

Coach Walter A. Johnson this afternoon began the second week of hard drill for his Blue Hose outfit, with Friday night's game with Erskine's strong Fleet the goal of his efforts. The game will start at eight o'clock.

The Hose gridmen have earned a much-needed rest after encountering the Clemson Tigers and the Georgia Tech Yellow Jackets on successive week-ends. The morale of the team is still high, and after enjoying an off-week this past week-end the Presbyterians should enter the fracas the favorite.

Watch Gettys

Alex Gettys, veteran varsity flankman, is the main reason why P. C. is going to have to turn on the steam to defeat Erskine. He was the key to the machinery, both offensively and defensively, that threw a scare into the Citadel camp week before last when Erskine held the Bulldogs to a 13-6 count. Undaunted by this defeat, Coach Jakie Todd and his men will throw themselves with full fury at the Calvinists Friday night.

Todd Is Optimistic

Quoth Coach Todd immediately after the Citadel game: "I'm dissatisfied as yet with our offense, and our blocking isn't quite up to par, but with a little more emphasis on it our squad should shape up into a pretty fair eleven in time for the P. C. game. The spirit is good, and they have an excellent mental attitude. And I can't find fault with their fighting spirit on the field."

Still smarting from the sting of the Yellow Jackets last week in Atlanta, the Hosemen are not having to fight overconfidence. They conclusively proved that they possessed a smooth-running offense and defense in the first quarter of last week's engagement. Moore, Thompson, Weldon, Shoemaker, and Evans have been looking good in their respective positions during the past week's practice and should be able to give an impressive account of themselves in the encounter with Erskine's Flying Fleet.

The Blue Stocking men have not been taking the Erskinites lightly, but the result of the Citadel clash awakened them to how seriously they must work for Friday's battle.

SKEETIN' STUFF

— By —
D. W. DAVIS

Editor's Note: When we printed a column of this type last year, you complained. When we stopped printing it this year, you complained. We got more votes for it than against it, so here it is and we only hope you'll remember we're just — skeetin' stuff.

Mutterings: One inch less bathing suit and TARZAN LANGSTON will have to get a fan. Laugh: JUNE MOORE blushing as he strolls with his fair blonde and hears a freshman playing, "Here Comes the Bride." Silly notion: To ask FRANCES SPRATT what she thinks of her big bold lover's busted nose. Diabolical thought: "DUCK" DEGNER saying good night when his love whispers bed time. Tragic: The 10:30 bed check Coach Johnson says is going to be put into effect for his gallants — and coaches too!

BIG (DONKEY) EVANS and WINTHROP (RABBIT) NORTON swear that Atlanta has the mostest and sweetest gals in the world .They both have standing invitations to return and continue their brilliant but brief courtship. Norton even forgot to look up "the object of his affections" at Agnes Scott. Such is excitement. More power to you.

HACK (FRAN) MIXSON has found the place where his heart belongs. The general rumor is that a gal named Louise dated him all summer. The sea-loving Hack even let her cruise in his most prized possession, "The Dawn." He says if that ain't love it will just have to do. P. M. CLEMENTS says he doesn't have to worry 'cause its done. The Jeep's right, it's a grade-A affair. Got 'em, eh, Fran?

BURGESS, the transfer student with the black wavy hair, says the night life around here will hold him forever. It seems that Burgess doesn't like Columbia. Paced by STUPE BUCHAN, our hero found that Columbia is no place for a gentleman who wants quiet—we promise the rest of the story next week. It's developing.

RATS KEE and JONES tell very interesting stories of wild life in Cleveland park. The rats say that they nearly out-ran the squirrel and the watchman nearly our-ran them—which reminds us that Emory sure turns out some "rat-cap snatchers" who should try out for the half-mile.

Who is the freshman that thought HAMMOND ADAMS lived in town and was a day student?

What RAT SPRATT'S folks thought when he wrote home asking for more money to buy "books." By the way, he says that the burning of Bailey and that candy-pulling affair was a misprint. It seems he was giving a candy-pulling when the place caught fire.

Prediction: Wedding bells will ring around here thrice 'fore Christmas. MATT HIERS will have a "cute" date at pledge dances. "JIM (MOUTH) COLLINGS will have the bestest time at the military ball. This will never go to press. Certain sophs will run from the next sweet potato they see.

STUDENTS DROP BOOKS AND CLASSES FOR WORLD'S SERIES

School Work and Letters Home Forgotten In Dash For Radio.

The boys in the dormitories, once intent upon throwing water on unsuspecting fellow students, are strangely calm. Rowdies who last week were thinking of new tortures for freshmen are no longer to be seen. Even freshman football players seem subdued, and fraternity rushing activities have dribbled off into nothingness. And all one can hear—all afternoon — is the drone of the announcer's voice, "Gehrig coming up to the bat now. One on with two men out. This may put the old ball game on ice, folks."

That's the way it goes. Professors find pupils who were, in days long gone by, the soul of diligence furtively reading of the chances of the Terrymen when the lecture concerns applied science. Economics classes, the current movie, even the afternoon mail, are forgotten in the hubbub that is the world's series.

A frat social tonight, two tests in the morning—why, the afternoon was made for study! But the printed page blurs and words become ants as the insistent voice becomes more excited. "We don't know, folks; we don't know. Carl Hubbell is good, plenty good, but we just don't know." Two down and the bases loaded. What if the Roman empire did fall? Tests will have to take care of themselves. Carl Hubbell is streaking them over the plate.

Letters to write home, a Winthrop lassie watching for a special, but the announcer won't let you rest. "There's the pitch! And it's a ball! He's winding up now, swinging forward . . . Lou Gehrig smacked it, folks! Oh, boy, how he smacked it! It's bouncing high, 'way out in center field . . . " And letters home have to wait, the lassie out in the tall timber has to read the seed catalog—but those letters won't be written today.

"Bill Dickey coming up now. If he's snapped out of that slump we may see plenty of action. He's at the plate now, facing the mound. There's the pitch! Bill is swinging for it from the heels . . . " Detailed charts of football plays drop to the floor. Thoughts of beating Erskine Friday night fade into obscurity. If Dickey can get a double, just a double! Gomez can hold 'em for the next inning, he always has come through in the pinches!

Can I lend you a dollar till Saturday? How do I know whether I can lend you a dollar! Four to five, and I took the Yankees! Stick around awhile. Maybe I can lend you five dollars!

"Last half of the ninth. The bases are loaded. The batter is tapping the plate with his stick. There's the pitch! And it's a hit! A hit with the bases loaded! It's right in the sun now, the fielder is shading his eyes with his hand . . . "

And that's the way it goes. Morning, afternoon, and night.

Fleet Flankman

ALEX GETTYS

When P. C. and Erskine meet Friday night beneath the lights of Johnson field for the first home game for the local team, Alex Gettys, all-state end last year, will be the chief defensive star for the Flying Fleet—if he keeps up the work he has done for the past week or so.

Heating System Being Repaired

Work begun this summer in an attempt to improve the heating system for the science hall, Spencer dormitory, and Alumni dormitory will not be complete for several weeks it was learned today.

Students who have silently counted to ten before beginning language slightly profane will have to endure slippery ditches intersecting walks for perhaps another month before the last dirt will be thrown in and the aspect of the campus returns to normal.

Freshmen Begin Physical Ed. Drill

Johnson Sees Hope For Degree In Physical Education.

Courses leading to a degree in physical training, not obtainable at Presbyterian college at the present time, are hoped to be installed within the next few years, stated Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson last week in commenting on the physical education classes required for all freshmen this year.

In the department of physical education that Coach Johnson hopes will materialize in the future would be taught corrective gymnastics, physiology, hygiene, and allied subjects.

Beginning last week, all freshmen were required to meet classes in physical education, for which no credit is given. Coach Johnson will be in general charge of the work throughout the semester, with Coaches Lonnie McMillian, Frank Waldrep, and Roy Forehand assisting.

Johnson and McMillian will have charge of all advanced work; Forehand will teach freshman preliminary work, and Waldrep will direct the co-ed classes. Special attention will be given to students suffering from physical disorders in an effort to correct defects through systematic exercise.

College officials stated that, although no scholastic credit was to be given for the courses, their addition was felt to be a strong factor in improving the general health of the student body.

PASS IN REVIEW

— By —
SIMON LEGARE

Excerpts from a letter of a West Pointer—Dill Ellis, former cadet first sergeant here last year, is lamenting the fact that he isn't in love. It seems that, when approached by an upperclassman on the subject of love, Dill replied that his knowledge was nil. Without further ado, he was given several hundred words to memorize extolling love and its rewards. Needless to say, Dill hastily found an object for his affections. Always a versatile athlete, Bill is playing intramural football. His love of the game is not the only reason for this interest, however. It seems that all out for football eat supper after the rest of the cadets have finished. And Dill writes that due to this rule he has avoided "square" meals, thereby getting much more food. Trust Dill to catch on to the tricks.

Another former first sergeant, Allen McSween, writes that he is enjoying every phase of the military life except math—maybe a few of us can sympathize with him there. Allen seems to miss the football team quite a bit, and the team could well use his services at end where he played a bang-up game last year.

Now for some news from an army regular—none other than Second Lieutenant H. M. Wilson, Jr., Sixteenth infantry, Fort Jay. "Hank" is in the army for a year at least and seems to love it. Characteristically, he says, "There may be handsomer, swankier, and better dressed shavetails in this man's army, but I haven't seen or heard of them." His only objection to the army is that it doesn't pay more often—and more money. Hank has just returned from field maneuvers and admits—strange for him—that he was scared to death at first. However, he adds that he calmly remarked to himself, "Hell, this is no different from the tactical problems we had in front of the science hall." From then on it was a breeze. Here's a heartening word for freshmen as well as upper-classmen. Hank says that we may not realize it now, but he can fully appreciate the A-1 military course taught here at P. C. Speaks well for our P. M. S. and T.

Starting tomorrow, physical drill in the gym will be substituted for squad drill on Tuesday and Thursdays.

After a week with rifles, there are no major casualties in the frosh ranks, which speaks well for both the instructors and beginners. The new men are handling the old musket like veterans — well, some of them are anyway. Freshman Timmons says, "There's nothing to it. Simple as going over Niagara in a barrel." Timmons should know.

ball schedule, as we did last year in meeting Clemson, Tech, Mercer, and Furman in a row, it is a very difficult thing for the student body to keep up its morale and exemplify the P. C. spirit. As a consequence, the public noticed a bit of student apathy along this line last year. This diminishing of the P. C. spirit was one of the main problems of the new administration. I am delighted to see it growing again. I am proud of the new enthusiasm that our students are now displaying.

I was very proud of the spirit exemplified by our football team in Atlanta, and as we enter a new era from the standpoint of the famed P. C. spirit, let our chief aim be the growth of this spirit to proportions never before experienced. We play Erskine Friday night. You are listed as a member of our student body. If you are a true son of Presbyterian College, you will be bubbling over with the P. C. spirit, and you will be out on Johnson field vigorously supporting your varsity in its every play. Remember the public measures our spirit, not only by the play of our team, but also by the support of the student body. Friday, in Atlanta, the Tech student body was so elated over the victory over P. C., so proud of their team, and so full of a splendid new Tech spirit, that they carried the varsity off the field on their shoulders. I remarked at the time that it should have been P. C. doing the riding as well as the carrying, for it looked more like the P. C. spirit than anything I had previously seen at Tech.

And so I appeal to you, my fellow P. C. supporters, thrill the people and your varsity by an overflowing exhibition of the P. C. spirit.

With the long rivalry that has existed between the two schools, almost since the beginning of football in South Carolina, the annual homecoming affair, to which hundreds of alumni will be attracted, should be the outstanding feature of a thrill-packed season.

Fraternities Pledge Fifty-Five New Men

A. K. PI LEADS ROSTER WITH SIXTEEN MEN

Pledging Ends Annual Rush Season For Six Chapters.

K.A. and Pi Kappa Phi Tap Twelve and Nine

With the announcement last week by a faculty committee on fraternities of the pledging of fifty-five men by the six national chapters on the campus, annual fraternity rush season came to a formal close.

A total of forty-five men pledged on Tuesday, pledge day, but later pledging today brought the total to fifty-five. Of fraternities pledging since pledge day, Alpha Kappa Pi led with six men, while Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, Beta Kappa, and Alpha Lambda Tau added one man each.

On the Friday prior to pledge day all fraternities were required to submit to the faculty lists of the men to whom they desired to extend bids. Notification was sent to these students that they had received bids, while Tuesday they were called upon to state their fraternity preferences to the faculty committee on student activities. Comparisons were made and each man was pledged by the first fraternity of his preference which had offered him a bid.

In total number of men pledged through today, Alpha Kappa Pi led with 16, followed by Kappa Alpha with 12 new men.

List of Pledges

The following pledgings were announced Tuesday:

Alpha Kappa Pi: S. Coker, J. A. Abercrombie, C. E. Barnes, F. S. Cogburn, M. S. Crews, R. J. Ellison, T. H. Ellison, H. C. Flemming, E. H. Strain, R. K. Timmons, Archie Adair, J. W. Barnhill, Hughes Fisher, J. E. Godfrey, R. C. Knox, W. Moore.

Kappa Alpha: Marion Moore, L. M. Boykin, D. M. Buie, T. E. Dixon, S. D. Ellison, Huit Paul, J. S. Richardson, C. B. Thompson, J. A. Nexsen, B. N. Moore, R. G. Hendrickson, H. E. McComb.

Pi Kappa Phi: W. E. Brooker, W. G. Carraway, J. Carroll, J. M. Dalziel, C. C. Finklea, H. G. Huggins, L. G. Roff, H. M. Rutledge, M. D. Shuler.

Pi Kappa Alpha: B. B. Aycock, J. W. Jones, J. B. McRee, J. M. Reeves, J. R. Thomason, Billy Kee.

Beta Kappa: R. B. Murchison, J. R. Buchan, R. G. Buchan, H. M. Crum, G. P. Davis, T. C. Horton.

Alpha Lambda Tau: S. C. McAdams, W. B. Miller, W. B. Pierce, W. T. Swift, C. H. Turner, J. C. Griffin.

No new men could be pledged by the fraternities before Tuesday. While other men probably will be pledged during the year by the various groups, all fraternity rushing has ended for the year.

Pledge Dances Highly Enjoyable

Formal On Friday With Tea Dance and Saturday Night Affair Well Attended.

The floor of Copeland hall took a licking last week-end when local students and many out-of-town guests took part in three colorful and enjoyable pledge dances.

Patrick To Head Blue Key Frat

Leadership Group Initiates New Men and Elects President.

Members of the Presbyterian College chapter of Blue Key last week elected Joe Patrick, Covington, Ga., president of the organization to replace Julien Freeman who failed to return to school this year.

Patrick stated shortly after his election that the great usefullness of the national leadership group has not yet been felt on this campus, and that this year's chapter will attempt to live up to the accomplishments of which it is capable. He further added that a meeting would be held within the next few days, at which time additional men will be considered for membership.

Other officers, elected last year, include Sadler Love, Rock Hill, vice-president; Jim Collings, Atlanta, secretary-treasurer. Additional members are as follows: Raleigh Shoemaker, Ernest Evans, Claus Cappelmann, Chester Keller, Frank Johnston.

Son Of Former President Here

Rev. W. G. Neville, Graduate of P. C., On Leave From Brazil.

Of interest to a number of the faculty and student body of the college will be the announcement that a son of one of the early presidents of P. C. is at present visiting in Clinton. Rev. W. G. Neville, son of Dr. W. G. Neville, president of P. C. from 1901 to 1907, is visiting relatives here, being at present on leave of absence from the mission fields of Brazil.

New Men Added To Blue Stocking

Additions After Try-outs Practically Complete Staff.

Four men were this week added to the editorial staff of The Blue Stocking while two others began new duties with the business staff.

To assist Business Manager Marion Bird with his duties have been added J. L. Hammel, a junior, as circulation manager, and Billy Gilmore, a transfer student, as an assistant business manager.

Of the new men accepted for the editorial staff all have completed trial assignments before being placed on the regular list.

While the present staff is adequate to handle the reportorial needs of the paper and no more new men are needed, the editor stated today that any Freshman desiring trial assignments will be given an opportunity to show what they can do. The chief purpose of such trials is not to add to the present staff, which is ample, but to give freshmen practical experience on the college paper so that they will be available for use on next semester's staff.

PUBLICATIONS SELECT ENTRIES FOR S. C. STATE PRESS CONTEST

Blue Stocking To Enter News Story, Editorial, Book Review and Feature Article.

Sadler Love, editor of The Blue Stocking, announced Saturday the selection of material for entry in the annual contest of the South Carolina College Press association, the meeting to be held in Charleston on November 13 and 14, with The Citadel and College of Charleston as joint hosts.

The Blue Stocking last year took second place for general excellence and fifth in number of points.

In the newspaper division of the contest may be submitted one news story, one editorial, one book review, and a feature story. In the selection by the judges of the best all-round newspaper in the association, three consecutive issues of the paper must be submitted.

Selection of the individual entries was made by an impartial committee, while selection of issue entries was made by Love.

Individual Entries

Article entries for The Blue Stocking include the following: news story, the state track meet, by Jake Penland, in the issue of May 4; editorial, "The Purpose of a College Paper," by Sadler Love, in the issue of February 17; book review, "Gone With the Wind," by Kritt Darby, in the issue of October 12; feature, "William Rivers," by Sadler Love, in the issue of October 12.

The three consecutive issues to be entered by The Blue Stocking are those of September 28, October 5, and October 12.

Collegian To Enter First Three Issues of Last Year In College Competition.

Stuart B. Campbell, editor of The Collegian, quarterly magazine, announced last week that The Collegian issues of October, December, and March would be entered in the state contest to be sponsored by the South Carolina College Press association.

Last year The Collegian was voted the best all around magazine in the state and ranked third in number of points for individual entries.

Article Entries

The entries to be submitted by Campbell this year as follows: editorial, "And No Play . . . ", by George Oliver, '36; book review, "Beyond Sing the Woods," by Stuart Campbell; short story, "Caleb," by Jack Gasque, '36; play, "John Hobbes Cellar," by Robert McLees, '36; informal essay, "The Pulps, God Bless 'Em," by Hugh Holman, '36; formal essay, "Trends of Modern Fiction," by Stuart Campbell; poetry, "To One Beloved," by Hugh Holman, '36.

The material to be submitted was to have gone in today and winners will be announced at the convention to be held in Charleston on November 13 and 14. For both The Blue Stocking and The Collegian, a prize of five dollars is offered for first places.

The 1935-36 Collegian, said by observers to be the best ever published at P. C., is expected to equal or surpass the achievement of last year's entries.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Quite naturally this week we turn our thoughts to tennis, which seems to be rating first among sports in interest value, with the arrival of some of its leadisg exponents on the campus tomorrow; so we asked GEORGE BEATTY, "What do you think of tennis as a major sport at P. C.?" and he replied:

"Tennis as a major sport at P. C. is in its infancy. However, under the energetic and capable direction of our president and Coach, P. C. soon will be making North Carolina and Tulane look to their laurels."

Captain of the boxing team, "KONG" CAPPELMANN, hesitated not a moment in replying to our question as he said:

"I feel that entirely too much emphasis is being placed on tennis. Football, on the other hand, seems as though it is being pushed into the background. While tennis gives recreation to men not physically able to compete in other athletics, we should not overlook the fact that it is a 'dead-head' sport. Why not hold a football clinic?"

Next we asked COACH ROY FOREHAND, who replied:

"Tennis at P. C. as a major sport has a very great opportunity to be a great sport. With such a great interest shown in tennis by President Jacobs and the tennis program that is being planned, it should be a great asset to P. C. as a drawing card to boys who really love tennis. No better opportunity can be given at any school for learning the game."

Then ALVA LINDSAY told us what he thought of tennis as a major sport.

"I think tennis," said he, "as a game of recreation for those not actively engaged in a major sport, cannot be overemphasized; but to make it a major sport would result in a financial failure, with this extra burden resting on football."

Bitsy Grant, Cardegnia, Van Ryns, Pressly Play

What is probably the most far-flung gesture ever made for the advancement of tennis in South Carolina will begin at 8 o'clock tomorrow night when P. C.'s President William P. Jacobs sees his plans for a state-wide tennis clinic materialize with the opening of exhibition matches on the local courts between such internationally-known players as Bitsie Grant, Johnnie Cardegnia, the Van Ryns, and James Pressly.

College tennis fans, with the memory still fresh in their minds of the flashing brand of tennis exhibited last year by Wilmer Allison on the College View courts, will this week witness the first appearance of a national woman's champion on South Carolina soil. Mrs. Marjorie Gladman Van Ryn will flourish the racket work.

Number To Attend

With notices of acceptance coming in all last week and continuing today, the clinic seemed assured this afternoon of a large attendance by high school and college players from all parts of South Carolina, North Carolina, and Georgia. The college's offer of lodging to high school players had [illegible] when applications [illegible] accommodations.

Richards To Referee

As referee for the occasion, Lew Richards, who last year refereed the Allison matches, has been secured. Mr. Richards is nationally famous in the field of tennis. Jack Stockton, of New York, who also attended last year's matches, again will be present.

Tuesday night will feature the exhibition matches, while Wednesday afternoon will be devoted to clinic work in which visiting players will receive instruction from the national stars present. On Wednesday night the visiting satellites again will present exhibition matches, while on the following afternoon, Thursday, the clinic will be resumed.

Delegates

Although notifications were still arriving this afternoon, an incomplete list of delegates, printed elsewhere in this issue, seems to indicate that the clinic will be well attended by college players, high school players, coaches, and tennis fans from throughout the South.

Among schools sending players will be Duke, Furman, Clemson, Davidson, South Georgia college, Elon, Savannah high, Greenwood high, and others.

With every indication pointing to clear weather for the opening matches tomorrow, officials stated today that hopes are high for an outstanding three-day session.

Jacobs Selected District Elector

State Democratic headquarters announced last week the appointment of William P. Jacobs, president of P. C., as the Democratic candidate for presidential elector from the Fourth district.

President Jacobs replaces Douglas Gray, Laurens, as elector from this district, Gray being ineligible because he is a city alderman.

WILLIAM RIVERS, KNOWN AS UNCLE BILL, TELLS OF DAYS WHEN P. C. WAS IN INFANCY

Custodian of Heating System Relates of Embryonic Era of Many Years Ago.

William Rivers, known to hundreds of P. C. boys down through the years as "Uncle Bill", has seen them come and has seen them go. At present custodian of the Alumni—Spencer—Science Hall heating system, Uncle Bill, now bent and gray, has seen the college grow from its small nucleus to its present plant, has seen football come to the campus, administrations change, has seen war take its toll of students who dropped books to pick up grenades.

"Yassuh, I reckon I'se been in on th' buildin' of this here school more'n any other colored fellow in these here parts." He sat in his "office" in the boiler room and talked of the days when P. C. was housed in the building that is now a part of Thornwell Orphanage, and of how he, as a young man, helped to construct that building.

"We was all standin' on a scaffold," he began, "nailin' the top of th' buildin', what's now the orphanage high school. We was up toward the top of th' buildin' and was just gettin' through. One of th' fellows workin' with us—his name was Green—'lowed he'd be th' last one to put on mortar. He raised up his trowel and hollered, 'I'se puttin' th' last brick on this building!'

Uncle Bill paused and rubbed his chin. "Well, suh, he slapped his trowel against th' buildin' and when he hit there was a sort of rumblin' sound and the whole front side of th' buildin' come crashin' down!"

"What happened to you, Uncle Bill?", we asked.

"I was standin' on the end of a four-by-eight and some of th' brick hit the other end. The next thing I knowed I was lightin' in th' top of th' chestnut tree in th' yard."

Engagement Of Todd Announced

Of interest to a large number of students and faculty is the announcement of the engagement of Miss Marigene Martin, Laurens, to J. Paul Todd, Clinton, graduate of P. C. in the class of 1935.

While at P. C. Todd was president of Sigma Kappa Alpha, scholastic fraternity, and an outstanding student of chemistry. He was a member of the PaC-SaC staff, of Chi Beta Phi, scientific fraternity, of the Pan-Hellenic council, and a captain in the R.O.T.C. unit. Socially, Todd was an Alpha Kappa Pi.

The ceremony will take place late in November.

Shortly after the collapse of the building, the contractor brought over from Laurens stone from the columns of the courthouse and used these in repairing the building that later was to become P. C.

"But what about basketball and baseball? I guess you remember when they started, Uncle Bill."

"I reckon I oughta remember. Th' first basketball was played right where th' lib'ary is now. It was on a co't built in th' yard. Th' old baseball diamond used to have home plate where th' corner of th' dinin' hall is now. Some of them boys could hit it plumb to Alum'i Dormitory."

Uncle Bill got up from his chair and walked to the door to look towards Spencer and the administration building. He shook his head slowly.

"Them very water oaks you see yonder I used to water when I was a young buck. I seen the foundations laid for every building on this here campus. And them Christmas celebrations these here boys put on 'fore holidays start—why, them ain't nothin'! You oughta seen th' one we put on when the Arm'stice come in 1918! Them boys like to of tore up th' whole school!"

Thoughts of the Armistice brought to the old darky's mind the mad days of enlistment in '17. For a moment he dropped his usual smile.

"Yassuh, I seen 'em go off to th' Big War. Some of 'em come back, and there was some what didn't. I reckon they put up a good scrap, tho, like our boys always do."

The bell for classes rang and boys swarmed out of the buildings and along the sidewalk, going to dormitories, to other classes.

"Like I'se said," Uncle Bill remarked, "I'se seen 'em come and I'se seen 'em go. Ever' onct in awhile some of th' old boys come back and make they selves knowed to me. It makes me feel right good. But they's a lot of 'em what don't come back. I reckon they's just like some of them boys what went to th' war—they won't never come back."

Day Of Reckoning

The day of reckoning is at hand.

Registrar Lillian Brown announced today that deficiencies for the first month are to be turned in to her office tomorrow by professors. The scholastic month ended Saturday and today was given instructors for preparation of records.

Contrary to the custom last year, failures and near-failures will not be posted on the bulletin board. Instead, faculty advisers will be given a list of deficiencies for students under their supervision and individual students may learn of their low grades by conferring with their advisers.

The substitution of this method for that of last year is intended, said Mrs. Brown, to familiarize students and advisers with each other.

Prodigies Grow Dull With Age?

Northwestern Professor Announces Results of Test.

Evanston, Ill.—Child prodigies grow duller as they grow older.

That is the conclusion of Prof. Paul A. Twitty of the Northwestern university department of psychology, who has just completed a study of the personal histories of fifty child geniuses of ten years ago.

In most cases prodigies grew up into a conventional pattern with no qualifications or desire for leadership, Prof. Witty reported. Each of the fifty subjects of the survey rated intelligence quotients of 140 plus in 1924-25. Since then their life histories have been carefully observed.

Points in their favor were: their educational attainments continued higher than that of their fellows. Their physical growth and vigor was superior. They rated a little higher in character tests.

Despite these facts, Prof. Witty told a convention of psychologists, "there appears to be little evidence that creative intelligence is being developed or displayed in extraordinary degree."

Homes and schools that are too standardized are at fault, he said.

PaC-SaC Pictures Now Being Taken

Work on the 1937 PaC-SaC was officially begun this week with the taking of freshman pictures for the class section.

The freshman section was completed Friday afternoon and work on the upper classes will be started next week.

Today through Wednesday will be devited to sittings for the sophomore class and the rest of the week will be devited to junior and senior classes.

Jim Collings, business manager, announced today that the business staff has been completed and will begin its work in the next few days.

On our toes, freshman! Tomorrow morning we have our first inspection. Colonel Richmond will be on the alert for wandering eyes, moving in ranks, etc. Watch the little details!

The controversy over dress uniforms continues to wax hot. The juniors seem to favor a full white outfit while the seniors back the mess jacket and dress pants. Regardless of the outcome, the uniform chosen will add much to the looks of the corps and to the morale.

The fancy drill platoon is making excellent progress. Of course it's all new to the sophomores and, since the drill is complicated, rather confusing. However, in a few weeks the platoon will be ready to drill along with any crack platoon of seniors from the other military units in the state.

Major Wysor was very much displeased with the results of the first rifle inspection. Perhaps if the lordly sophs would condescend to clean their own guns and give the inexperienced rats a chance to catch on to the art the results would have been better.

The eagle has spoken and, having spoken, flown on. It will be many a day before another check is due and many of us are still wondering where the last one went. We agree with Hank Wilson that the trouble with this army is that it doesn't pay more often and more money. Many of the anti-military men were heard muttering words to the effect that maybe the R. O. T. C. wasn't such a bad thing after all. Can it be that a mere bit of money sways ther undying loyality to the rest period they have between 8 and 9 in the morning?

Bomb Senders May Be Disciplined

Cambridge, Mass. — Harvard students who sent a fake bomb to Gov. Curley of Massachusetts, and pinned a red flag, complete with hammer and sickle, on the flagpole of the Supreme Court building in Washington may be severely disciplined by the college.

Although it was thought likely that Leonard Farmer, freshman who sent a bomb made of candy, excelsior and an alarm clock to Massachusetts' chief executive, would get off lightly, student editors of the Lampoon, humor magazine, were in line for rough treatment by the dean's office for the part they allegedly played in the red flag incident.

Severity of the disciplinary measures taken against them, it was said, would depend upon the protests of federal authorities at Washington.

Jacobs Addresses Synod Member

President William P. Jacobs, ha ing just returned from New Yor Thursday addressed the Synod o South Carolina convened in Co bia on affairs of Presbyterian c lege.

Dr. H. W. DuBose, of the board trustees, had earlier in the week pr sented a report of the college in the absence of the president, and Mr. Ja cobs emphasized this report and fu ther stated that he was very pleas with progress of the college.

He stated that enrollment figure in spite of the fifty dollar increas in tuition costs, were most satisfa tory and that he believed the future of the college to be very bright.

In closing, President Jacobs praise the work of his predecessor, Dr. John McSween, now pastor of Purity Pres byterian church, Chester, and ex pressed confidence in the financi condition of the school.

Simile: As fair as rush season. Cute "GRIN" EVANS being polite 'n' nice to a pretty brunette with hazel eyes only to learn that they were once sweethearts in the "fust" grade. Roses 'n' lilacs: VERNA McLEOD is our idea of a swell co-ed—brains and personality. Wondering: What gal's "big brurver" called on the middle section of Smyth and informed a certain soph that dates weren't the only things that could be broken around here. Rumor: I wouldn't dare mention any names, but 'tis rumored that BORAT McRAE is that way about a certain gal whose initials are BEVERLY DAVIS. Fun: ROLLO SHOEMAKER trying to teach a gal to "Yankee dance" while pennies were being tossed at his feet. Theme song in certain classes: Hand me down my boots and saddle.

BLACK MURCHISON is still wondering where the toy shotgun came from that was handed to him while he had his best gal from Winthrop to dinner. Black doesn't shoot any blanks, but the blushes his girl tried to hide even made Murk forget his conversation. Don't take it so hard, Black, 'cause they do hunt lots down Dillon way.— After all, she may be gun shy, because her dad is a game warden.

It seems that PEEKSEN, the boy whose heart is ilke an open book, needs persuasion to go to see his girl Lucy in Newberry. Lucy is a gal with a way of her own and frankly doesn't believe in being trifled with. The other day she sent seven belles from Newberry up to bring the erring Peeksen in. Amid many blushes and ah's and er's, "Peek" made the trip down, which he says was a honey. His comments about it all after he got there are too few to print, but we do understand that in spite of everything he still "woves" Lucy tenderly. Oh! Swish!

Personal nomination for the meanest man ever to land on this campus goes to "LUKIE" CULP. "Punster" got his start on the Winthrop campus when he was a big football hero around those parts, and ever since he has got meaner and meaner. Awhile back it was our pleasure to see him at work. He made his gal from Laurens smoke a cigar, eat the ashes, chew the butt, and then he hit her in the head with a book every time she missed a crack with the juice. The gal got sick and "Punster" just laughed and laughed. He's a cave man, that "Punster."

We keep our promises. The story about that good-looking transfer student who was led astray against his

N. C. Co-eds Think Men Rude, Crude

Chapel Hill Girls Turn Thumbs Down On Joe College.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Chapel Hill, N. C.—Ben Neville, enterprising student at the University of North Carolina here recently set out to discover just what college women think of college men. He found out, too:

"College men are the most selfish and egotistical creatures on earth!" screamed the questioned co-eds. "They get drunk too much, they lack respect for girls and older people, they have no sense of responsibility for their social obligations."

Their table manners are "lousy," and they try to brag about their dates to fraternity brothers. They are rude, insincere, disrespectful, inconsiderate, impolite, discourteous.

Liberty League Enrolls Students

Claim Chapters In Every Important School In Nation.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

New York.—A student membership totalling 10,000, in 300 colleges and universities located in every state in the union is now claimed by the American Liberty league, according to figures just released.

Liberty league members are to be found in every important college in the country, according to league figures, and even in such small schools as Mission House college, Plymouth, Wis.; Westmoreland college, San Antonia, Texas, and Duffs Iron City college, Pittsburgh.

Official chapters are not claimed by the league for every one of the 300 colleges and universities listed, two members being sufficient to qualify a school for inclusion, and figures are unavailable on the number of memberships and chapters that are bona fide, as distinguished from those that are not.

It is known the Liberty league membership rolls carry the names of many students and instructors who are not in sympathy with it, but wish to receive its literature. It is also known that during the past year many mock chapters have been formed by radicals whom Liberty league headquarters believed were acting in good faith.

Ways To Cheat Found Numerous

Watch-Dial System, Etc., Used To Ride Through Exams.

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Columbus, Ohio. — The hand that never rocked a cradle may nevertheless be an old hand at a crib.

Not to be outdone in the mad race of American undergraduates to organize, Ohio State students have formed the University Society for the Promulgation of Cribbing (unrecognized, so far, by the dean's committee on student affairs) and their researches have brought to light many esoteric and devious ways of confounding the unwary proctor.

The commoner methods, such as cuff-writing, are frowned upon by the USPC, which is interested rather in investigation like that done by a NYU researcher who discovered that crib notes could be written with grapefruit juice on glasses or watch-dials.

Another favored method is known as "the scroll." The despairing student makes his notes on a long strip of paper, which he attaches to two match sticks and rolls up into a scroll. Use of this device, as in the case of the co-ed's handkerchief system, calls for some knowledge of histrionics, since a certain amount of handwringing is indicated while peering at the notes.

The "pedal transfer" is recommended in cases where a pal needs aid. A note is prepared, and one foot is placed upon one's knee. The note is then slipped into the shoe and the whole device, leg, foot, shoe and note, placed close to the drowning man, who drops a pencil nearby and extracts the life-saver.

NEW COURSES DRAW NUMBER OF STUDENTS

Addition of Commerce Classes To Curriculum Proves Popular First Year.

Offered this year Presbyterian college for the first time, courses leading to the bachelor of science dgree in commerce are crowded with students eager for a career in business.

The courses were installed this year not only to produce students of business, but to train executives for all walks of business endeavor. In organizing the various subjects the chief idea has been that the business education of today should be broad, rather than strictly limited to vocational instruction.

Balanced Department

With this in mind the economics department has been extended to include a well-balanced commercial department under the direction of professor Kenneth N. Baker, formerly head of the commercial department of Newberry college. This department includes courses in typewriting, accounting, shorthand, business organization and administration, and business law. Of these, typewriting proved the most popular and extra classes had to be organized to care for about one hundred students who are taking this course.

For cultural training, students working toward a degree in commerce take the regular course of the freshman year. Then the course can be modified for the sophomore, junior, and senior years in order to fit the individual needs. Many students

★ ★ NEWS FLASH! ★ ★
"Sweepstakes" bring pleasure to war veterans
From a veterans' home in Legion, Texas, a number of entries all in the same handwriting come in each week. Of course we checked up to make sure that the entries contormed to the rules, and one of the men explained: "Most of the boys can't get around—but I do and so I fill out their cards for them."
We're glad to say that the boys have been pretty good pickers, too.
Have you entered yet? Have you won your delicious Lucky Strikes? Tune in "Your Hit Parade"—Wednesday and Saturday evenings. Listen, judge, and compare the tunes—then try Your Lucky Strike "Sweepstakes." And if you're not already smoking Luckies, buy a pack today and try them, too. Maybe you've been missing something. You'll appreciate the advantages of Luckies—a Light Smoke of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

As we learn by the grapevine that the military department has granted senior military students unlimited chapel cuts. Now, go thou and do likewise . . .

* * * * * *

At the changed attitude of cadet officers toward freshmen since pledge day has come and gone. It used to be, "Your rifle's a little crooked, fellow." Now it's, "Straighten that ——— rifle, freshman!"

* * * * * *

Where the local lads got such a fine array of feminine beauty as was displayed over the past week-end. In spite of swaying Copeland Hall, it was a fine series.

And to sigh with relief now that the Erskine game is over. For awhile we were afraid of overconfidence.

Serve!

Tomorrow will open on this campus events unique in the history of collegiate sports in South Carolina. Due to the untiring efforts of President William P. Jacobs for the promotion of tennis at Presbyterian College and throughout the state, exhibition matches between outstanding net stars of the country will be played and clinic work given to visiting team members by these stars.

Today and tomorrow P. C. will welcome to its campus tennis players from all parts of the two Carolinas and neighboring states, coaches, amateur players in collegiate ranks, and tennis enthusiasts old and young. Developing as it does the body of the player, we feel that benefits to be derived from tennis participation cannot be exaggerated. The fact that it may be played by men and women of all sizes makes its addition to major athletics outstanding. We know of no other game that can be played so cheaply, with such a minimum of danger, and whose results are so wide-spread.

Possessing the finest courts, without exception, of any college in the state, P. C. will this week make more secure its title to "the tennis center of South Carolina." An alert president and a student body that last year suddenly became extremely tennis-conscious have added to the campus growth of the net game.

The advancement that tennis in South Carolina will receive through the work that will be done this week at P. C.'s exhibition matches and clinic will manifest its results in the improved play of the visiting teams and the rise in interest throughout the state.

Today THE BLUE STOCKING wishes to take this means to congratulate the administration of the college on the achievement of an ideal, to express campus appreciation to visiting stars for their cooperation, and to welcome players, coaches, and enthusiasts to Presbyterian College, the tennis center of South Carolina.

Brains For the Frats

Why the scholastic average for all fraternity men for last year should fall below that of all non-fraternity men for the same period we cannot understand. But fall below it does, and its falling shows the need for some very definite reform within the ranks of the Greeks if the chapters on the campus expect to retain the respect of faculty and student body.

In dealing with the problem there seems to us to be two possibilities. First, it is possible that the added distraction provided by membership in a fraternity so disconcerts the student that he is unable to hold up his scholastic work. It is possible that socials, rushing, dances, and the nightly trek to "the rooms" leaves little time for serious application to books.

Second, it is possible that the fraternities, in their scramble for neophytes, have overlooked the lad who burns the midnight oil and have instead snatched for the athlete and the social lion. The possibility that attention to studies is more a hindrance than an aid to aspirants for fraternity bids is worthy of consideration. Perhaps the chapters have looked with misgiving upon the lad who turns the pages while the world goes by.

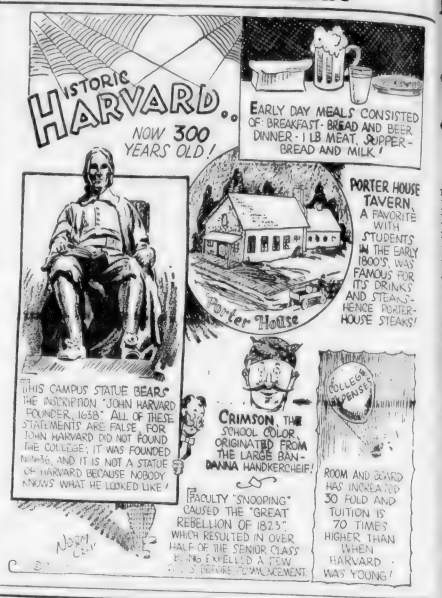
We don't know, to be perfectly frank about it, just what the trouble has been in the past. Whether it has been too much distraction or poor scholastic pledging we are not prepared to say. But we do believe that a strong talk by fraternity leaders to the new crop of pledges, and to the old members, will cause an appreciable rise in grade comparisons of the present semester. Many of the men pledging fraternities last week will learn tomorrow or next day that D's and E's without end can be written beside names on the class roll. A careful check of delinquent pledges by fraternity leaders might help the erring freshman to mend the error of his ways.

It is a sad state when fraternities of the campus do not lead the way toward higher scholastic levels. Yet that was the state at P. C. last year. Whether or not chapter members again will trail non-fraternity members will to a large extent be decided within the next few months.

Y-Men

Paralleling the lack of cooperation given student councilmen commented upon by THE BLUE STOCKING in a recent issue is, we believe, the lack of understanding between the general student body and the Y.M.C.A. In the past it has been too much the custom to pass over the work of the Y. with a shrug, sometimes a jeer, and let it go at that.

Naturally, we do not all feel alike on this question of religion. If we did, this would be a strange college. But we can at least recognize the efforts of others towards the furthering of work that they believe to be essential to the welfare of the student body. We do not have to take active part in the work, we believe, to show that we are willing to understand and to cooperate. Many of us simply are not suited to endeavor of this type. Our chief aid must be, therefore, an attempt to see the viwpoint of the active member and to advance, or at least not to hinder, his work by our attitude.



The addition this year of an entire building devoted to Y.M.C.A. work has added to campus emphasis of the organization as has nothing else in the past four or five years. A student body, not scoffing, but attempting to see the other side of the situation, will aid further in the progress.

We believe that in the past the very actions of some of the group have perhaps prejudiced students against the entire organization. There have been men at P. C. who seemed to use Y.M.C.A. work simply as a means to an end, either for the procuring of administrative approval or for the smoothing of the way toward loans in the home town.

This year we are faced with nothing of the sort. The present Y.M.C.A. has shown by its attempts to interest the average student—not just students for the ministry and Bible majors—that it has the interest of the college at heart. We believe that the greatest thing the Y.M.C.A. can do toward building campus cooperation is to enter somewhat more into the affairs of the campus, to save leisure hours of men, as well as souls, and to agitate for specific campus improvements just as strongly as it agitates for moral uprightness.

We believe that the present Y.M.C.A., as we have already said, is working along the right lines. We believe that its continued growth and progress will depend upon campus attitude and cooperation.

"GONE WITH THE WIND"— Margaret Mitchell

With a theme that has had many variations played upon it, Margaret Mitchell performs as creditable a novelistic endeavor as has been published in recent years. Built on heroic lines, her volume paints with understanding skill the troubulous times of Georgia during the Civil War and Reconstruction days.

In the minds of Southerners there can not fail to be evoked the scattered reminiscences of the old folk in almost every family. These are crystalized by Mrs. Mitchell into an intensely moving document that makes us live in the time of our legends. To Northerners there is presented a vivid and starkly true picture of the joyous and antique civilization that the struggle of the states crushed so completely—leaving in its place a bewildered and drifting remnant, still proud and unbroken.

The modern South receives a careful analysis of the boisterous and idealistic people who were their forebears. They laughed and played, raised cotton and made love; but the timbre of men was hidden away beneath their carefree exterior. When cold and hunger and privation stared them in the face, they shed their coats and started in to regain a foothold with a rugged persistence that lay unsuspected beneath their pleasant faces.

As a central figure, Scarlett O'Hara is a tempestuous and impulsive child whom the war touches and changes into a fearless and often cruel woman. She is thwarted on three occasions in the marrying of the one she really loves, and there is tragedy in her final realization that she loves an ideal existing only in her mind.

The telling of Scarletts story is the central theme, but the minute and loving care that Margaret Mitchell has exerted in laying her faultless backgrounds is in evidence on every page. When one thinks that the depths of misery have been reached, or the very roots of anger exposed, he soon finds that Mrs. Mitchell has an unknown reserve of powerful deescription. Even at the finish of the novel, a feeling arises that she could go on forever without exhausting her rich fund of drama and pathos.

The acute realism of the story is such that many who never before have felt any emotion over a book, will laugh and suffer with the characters. It sometimes makes one start in a guilty way when he is told in clear, direct phrases some petted foible of his own mind. Truly a great novel, "Gone With the Wind" should make the world sit up and take notice of its gifted author.

YOU'RE Telling US

DOES NOT FAVOR CUTS

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

In last week's issue of The Blue Stocking I notice that you have a great deal to say about the faculty granting seniors the right to cut chapel whenever they so desire. I do not wish to seem to be a religious fanatic, but I feel very deeply that chapel and its period of morning worship plays a very great part in the life of all students. I believe that if this student body is to follow the teachings of the Bible it is necessary for seniors as well as men of the lower classes to attend religious exercises.

This starting of the day in the right manner has meant much to me since I came to P. C. and I believe that it can mean much in the lives of every student. You say that chapel exercises at which a man's mind wanders from the world's series to his best girl cannot save his soul? Yet why should it wander?

Also, you say that you believe a large part of the senior class would attend anyway if compulsion were removed. Do you really think so? I don't.

Seniors have the same right to religious education as the rest of the student body. They should feel it a privilege rather than a burden that chapel attendance is required. Therefore I say that any substitution of voluntary chapel for seniors for the compulsory system now in use would be a very grave mistake. I believe that a majority of the senior class will agree with me in my stand.

DELAYED RUSHING SEASON

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Now that fraternity rush season is over, it seems to me a good time to bring up once more the question of a delayed rush season. I don't know whether it would work here or not, but I have seen it work at other schools and see no reason why it would not do it here. At least I think that anything we might do would be an improvement over the scramble that took place this year right in the middle of football practice beginning and school opening.

But I don't think the rush season should start even as early as October 1. I believe it should open around the 15th, because this would give both frosh and frats a better chance to look each other over. I know some frats that were stung pretty badly Tuesday. Of course there would be some rushing before the season opened, but if the frat council was strict enough it wouldn't amount to much.

I guess they'd know what rules would be necessary to keep fraternity men from talking to the freshmen about joining before the official opening of the season.

And anyway, we wouldn't have so-cials and smokers right when we need extra study to get in right with the professors. What I say is, let's go ahead and provide for a delayed season for next year and do it while the memory of this one is still fresh. We've got a good Panhellenic committee, and I believe it would back such a move.

Col. H. P. Richmond To Inspect Unit At 8 A. M. Tomorrow.

OFFICERS SAY CORPS IS IN EXCELLENT SHAPE

Undergoing its first test by fire tomorrow morning when Colonel H. P. Richmond, R.O.T.C. officer for the Fourth Corps area, conducts the annual fall inspection, the local infantry unit is believed by cadet and regular officers to have progressed to a degree of fitness surpassing that of last year.

Colonel Richmond arrived in Clinton this afternoon. A member of the cavalry branch of the service, the colonel will inspecet the entire corps at drill formation in the morning and will probably meet with the advanced class later in the day. This will be the first formal inspection of the year from visiting officers and cadet officers expressed confidence that the corps would acquit itself in an excellent manner.

Cadet Officers Pleased

Cadet Major Collings is especially pleased with the general appearance of the men in ranks. He says the corps is more advanced than it was last year at this time. He explains this by saying the credit should go to a small, but highly efficient group of senior officers.

The commander of Company "A," J. B. Jacobs, is very optimistic over the prospects of his charges. "They have lots of room for improvement, but are learning rapidly," he replied when questioned. Jacobs agrees with Collings that the unit is farther advanced than last year's outfit.

Cadet Captain Legare echoes the above words and states that he is well pleased with "C" company. A pessimistic note was struck by Company Commander Patrick. "I feel that my men are not progressing as they should, and I don't think they are up to last year's standards.

Major Wysor Optimistic

Major Wysor, ordinarily very pessimistic, says the sophomore class is fifty per cent better than last year's crop and should furnish some excellent material for the advanced class. The Major withholds comment on the juniors, but states that if they are half as efficient as his senior class, he will be satisfied.

Major Harding is spending most of his time with the fancy drill platoon but seems well pleased with the progress of the freshmen.

The spirit of the entire corps is expected to pick up now that the basic uniforms have arrived. The men are beginning to feel and look like soldiers.

Librarian Lists New Books Bought

Excellent Maps Included In Material Purchased.

Of much interest to the faculty and the students is the announcement of the addition to the library of a series of maps of South Carolina pertaining to her history and resourcese. These maps are the work of Dr. D. D. Wallace, professor of history and economics at Wofford college, and author of a recent comprehensive history of South Carolina.

Contained in this series are various phases of the history of the state, including exploring and settling here, Indians, colonial period, the Revolution, plantation era, War of Secession and Reconstruction, agriculture, manufactures, and population and the physical aspect.

Among other recent additions to the library are included:

Belloc: "Danton"; Brandes: "William Shakespeare"; Chaucer: "Canterbury Tales", Norman Rockwell Edition; Coates: "Outlaw Years"; Douglas: "Green Light"; Eberlein: "Practical Book of American Antiques"; Farson: "Way of a Transgressor"; Lewis: "It Can't Happen Here"; Sullivan: "Our Times"; Thompson: "Leaders of the French Revolution"; Whitman: "Men and Women of the French Revolution"; Dobie: "Coronado's Children"; Lockhart: "British Agent"; Millin: "Cecil Rhodes"; Arnold: "This Flying Game"; Hamlin: "Enjoyment of Agriculture"; Krehbiel: "Second Book of Operas"; Lawrence: "If I Have Four Apples"; Temple: "Nature, Man and God".

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Little Miss Nobody." If you like kid stars of the Shirley Temple type then Jane Withers as Little Miss Nobody will wring tears from the eyes of the toughest citizen. If you don't, then maybe you'll like the comedy. Players: Jane Withers, Jane Darwell, Ralph Morgan, Harry Carey. Also, two shorts, and MGM.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Half Angel." With Charlie Butterworth as the stooge, Brian Donlevy and Frances Dee complete the trio in this story of a hot-footed reporter. March of Time and a short.

Friday and Saturday: "Rhythm on the Range." The best picture of the week. The comedy is good, Bing does hot stuff with his crooning, and the female angle has just the right angles. "Empty Saddles" goes over in a big way. Players: Bing Crosby, Frances Farmer, Bob Burns. And last but not least, chapter 3 of Flash Gordon. No, son, the lions didn't really get him.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Sitting on the Moon." Music, girls, laughs. Not one of the best pictures of the year, but not bad entertainment. Players: Roger Pryor, Grace Bradley, William Powell, Pert Kelton. Three shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Sins of Men." A powerful story of an old man whose love for a boy was strong enough to raise him from a derelict to a man with a soul. Jean Hersholt, as an old bell-ringer, hits a new high. Players: Jean Hersholt, Don Ameche, Allen Jenkins. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Oregon Trail." Same old stuff about a big bold he-man who carved a new empire in the Golden West. More of the current thriller and three shorts.

Boyd To Address Y. M. C. A. Group

P. C. Professor To Speak On "Books and Experiences."

Chester Keller, president of the Y. M. C. A., announced today that the Thursday night program for the organization would feature a talk by Professor B. H. Boyd of the English department on the subject, "Books and Experiences."

Professor Boyd is a graduate of P. C., received his M.A. degree from Princeton University, and is close enough to his college days to have a full understanding of the student's problems.

Officials of the "Y" stated that this program is a further attempt to add interest and variety to its weekly meetings and that the excellent attendance at recent meetings has encouraged a continuation of this policy.

P. C. SORORITY TAPS CO-EDS

Local Social Group Ends Mad Scramble For Neophytes.

Climaxing an extensive though delayed rushing program, Alpha Psi Delta, campus sorority, issued bids on Wednesday night to seven new members. Because of the absense of any competition on the campus, the rushing season this year was marked by no great amount of sustained interest or excitement.

Bids were sent to the following: Mary Jane Sturgeon, Marthorine Pitts, Beverly Davis, Mary Ella Williams, Elizabeth Gilmer, Evelyn McCrary, Agatha Jones. Pledging of these new members will take place in the near future.

The club anticipates one of the best years it has had in the four years since its founding at Presbyterian College. Plans are now under way for several important social functions, under the supervision of Myra Wise, chairman of the social committee.

Collegian Issue To Appear Oct. 30

Magazine To Feature Wide Variety of Material.

The Collegian, quarterly magazine of P. C., published by the student bdoy, will be issued on or around October 30, Editor Stuart Campbell announced today.

This first issue, which will be the first of the year, will contain stories by Sadler Love, Cliff McLeod and Keitt Darby; a play by Louis Heckle; poems by Polly Roberts! a feature article by Stuart Campbell; a humor page which will be written by Keitt Darby, and art work done by W. P. Jacobs, III.

Jack McAlpine, recently elected business manager of the magazine today announced that his assistant would be John Hughes and that Bob Thomason would serve as circulation manager.

ANTENNAS

— By — A. K. DARBY

Whereas it was once thought that the moving picture had complete domination of the entertainment world, the tide of public opinion is now inclined in the direction of radio as the holder of this enviable position. There will always be a utility in movies because they can be handled with less regard for the time element, and make but one demand on the players to perform the entire film. Successive performances can be reprinted and sent about the country at will.

Nevertheless, radio eliminates the possibility of delay in its instantaneous presentation of voice and music. This forms one of its chief claims to distinction. It will even be able to present the person simultaneously, if television is put on the market. Because of its advantages, more and more of the stars of stage, screen, sport and all other fields have been drawn to broadcasting.

The prodigality of sponsors in radio is too well known to need lengthy enumeration. As a lure for hard-worked movie stars and fading lights of either screen or radio, this ready money is unsurpassed. For four minutes on the air, the average guest star receives from $1,000 to $2,000. Special guests have received from $4,000 to $5,000 for a single appearance.

Certain programs have proved to be a mine of gold for the professional who is drifting for the moment or who stands in need of some ready cash. Among these programs, Rudy Vallee's hour has the top position. His claim is assured both by the length of his hour, the time he has been on the air, and the persistent top quality of his performers. He has guest-starred everybody from Susanne Fisher and Kirsten Flagstaid of the Met to Frank Fay and Tom Howard. Incidentally, "the fading star" certainly applies to Frank at the time of his guest appearance; but he has gotten a new start since his featuring by Vallee.

Shell Chateau and Radio Theater both specialize in movie stars and movie previews, with as many as four live stars whiling away the programs at the combined rate of about $10,000 every three minutes. Even the National Barn Dance has had Sigmund Spaeth, a famous music critic, sandwiched in between the various capers.

Several programs have had new life injected into them by the guest star method. Ben Bernie has starred Ethel Barrymore, Fred Allen has had noted guests, General Motors loosed a golden flood when it had the cream of the Met, and the concert world gracing its Sunday night hour. This fall it bids fair to pay and pay again with its headliner, Fred Astaire. Fred harvested quite a few dollars guesting before he took a program of his own, and Eleanor Powell had a spot on Flying Red Horse Tavern before her collapse. Bing Crosby parades his friends of the movie colony on the Kraft Music Hall as well as concert artists.

Wherever one turns now, he is sure to dial in on some famous person who has answered the call of radio—"the best of the field for its audiences."

Citadel, 13 — P. C., 7.

Rush season is over—the new boys are again paying for their own drinks, shows, cigarettes, etc. Hazing has taken on a new high. The world series was brought to a close with a ninth-inning Yankee spree in the sixth game, and the pledge dances are history. Several students have intimated plans for buying textbooks and putting in a few hours of study. Only a six-game football schedule remains to keep us awake after classes are over.

On Saturday the Blue Stockings will travel down to Charleston for their annual encounter with Citadel's Cadets. The Bulldogs will, or should, win by a one-touchdown margin. But the following week-end will be marked by a P. C. victory. The Hosemen take on Newberry in a fight that should easily be taken by the local lads. Wake Forest, Furman, Mercer and Wofford will be met on successive week-ends. We can't see a P. C. victory against the first three elevens, but the finale against Wofford should be pretty even. Anyhow, we will have gone against some mighty good teams, and will not be ashamed to admit we're from Presbyterian college—the place where men are men, and freshmen shine their shoes.

LITTLE MAN

Coach Walter Johnson's gentlemen of the gridiron got in shape for the pledge dance Friday night as they waltzed through an eager Erskine eleven with a few tunes to spare. The blue-stockinged warriors looked good from stem to stern as they shuffled through their paces under the big bulbs of brilliance.

Only one regret—the little man, James Jeremiah Dennard, didn't get loose for any of those long trots that made him such a colorful freshman performer. What's the reason? Our opinion is that he's too fast for his interference. What's the remedy? Well, you're familiar with the ancient policy of counting ten when you become angry before hastening into action. So, we suggest that the little man purchase an arithmetic text at his earliest convenience.

P. C. Climbs In State Grid Race

Victory Over Erskine Raises Hose From Cellar.

Presbyterian college moved upward in the S. I. A. A. standings when Erskine Flying Fleet was set the Little Four and climbed from deep in the cellar to rank fifth in that loop's standings.

Since the pre-game report [illegible] season starts this week will be at Charleston between Citadel's [illegible] Bulldogs and the P. C. Blue Hose, [illegible] Stadium will be [illegible] performance for the Friday night game. Should the Hose upset the Cadets the Carolina institution would climb from fifth to fourth place in state standing and become a more serious threat to Big Four members than has heretofore been believed.

With Carolina meeting V. P. I., Clemson taking on Wake Forest, Furman journeying to N. C. State, Erskine tackling Lenoir-Rhyne, and Newberry Presbyterian and two schedule for state teams will be completed during the week-end and several material changes take place in both state and general standings.

State, Big Four and Little Five standings are as follows:

Lights, Speaker Used For Game

Combination of Two Used For First Time In Varsity Game.

The 72,000-watt lighting system of Johnson field Friday night was used for the first time in a varsity football game in conjunction with the amplifying system purchased last year by the college.

The success last May of the lighting and amplifying system in discussion of the S. C. intercollegiate track meet led officials of the college to decree their use for P. C.'s first home game of the season Friday night and the second varsity game ever played beneath the lights in Bailey Memorial stadium.

For the game, Roy Forehand, assistant freshman coach, led the announcing team with several students aiding him in the work. The box at first-to be frankly understandable, the speaker system soon was tuned into shape and became an important feature of the night's festivities.

GOLF PLANS TAKE SHAPE

Still Indefinite, But Some Progress Being Made.

In response to President Jacobs' recent call for upperclassmen and freshmen interested in organizing a golf team, preparations are expected to take further form this week with tryouts scheduled for sometime within the next few days.

Players will have use of the Lakeside Country club for practice, and regular drill will be held throughout the fall. Students already signifying an interest in the new sport inaugurated by President Jacobs include Ralph Stowell, Louis Foley, Billy Gilmore, John Woodward, Bill McSween, Steele Caldwell, J. W. Todd, W. E. Pope, and Buck Patterson.

If enough interest and ability is shown in the fall, a schedule of matches with state schools, and possibly some out of the state, will be arranged.

Basketball Team Begins Practice

Intensive Workouts Not To Begin Until After Grid Season.

Fall basketball practice, an athletic innovation at P. C., began last week with candidates for both teams reporting for early drill under Coach Lonnie McMillian.

Practice uniforms were issued to the varsity candidates and light workouts were held last week and will be continued until the regular season opens. Forehand will assist in the coaching.

Most of the early practice will be spent drilling on fundamentals. Players will get much practice shooting at the basket and handling the ball, and will be trained into perfect condition for the opening of the season.

Between thirty-five and forty candidates answered Coach McMillian's first call. Five or six men returning from last year's varsity squad, plus the track freshman team of last year, should form one of the best teams P.C. has put on the hardwood in several seasons. As yet no statement can be made about the ability of the freshman team.

Freshmen Drill For Indian Tilt

Originally Scheduled For This Week, Game Postponed To October 22nd.

Emerging from the short end of a 33-0 count as the result of a tilt with the Carolina frosh nearly two weeks ago, the Anklets have been going through extensive drills in preparation for the Newberry game originally scheduled for Wednesday night, but postponed to October 22.

The benefit of an off date, coupled with the valuable experience gained in the Carolina game played on Johnson field, should prove big assets to the Baby Hose in the Newberry set-to. Coaches Waldrep and Forehand have noticed considerable improvement in charging, blocking, and passing. The educated toe of Charlie Thompson is being depended on to a great extent to boot the rats out of holes, as happened in the Carolina game.

B. B. Aycock, rangy tackle, has showed his ruggedness and ability in practice and should prove a real threat both offensively and defensively. Charlie Trammell, flee-footed back for the freshmen, is showing signs of being a real ball-toter. Godfrey, the galloping ghost from Gaffney, has been lugging the leather for sizeable gains and big things are expected from him this season.

The Newberry freshmen enter the game underdogs, but will put up a hard fight to upset the dope. Barring all injuries and mishaps, the Baby Hose should be able to account for their first victory of the season October 22, the game to be played here.

Major's Boys To Play For Pay?

In an interview with the local press Saturday, Major R. E. Wysor stated that the army would this year enter three teams in the annual intramural football competition staged immediately after football season. Last year only one squad was picked from the Major's boys to face the home guards.

Major Wysor stated that last year's 13 to 0 defeat of the single army team that was entered by a fighting band of home guardsmen would cast no damper on army hopes for a victory.

It was learned today from a source who refused to be quoted that military authorities plan to award scholarships this year to outstanding gridiron men of the student body in an intensive campaign to regain the athletic prestige lost last year when the home guards romped down Johnson field for two touchdowns.

When questioned as to the statement, Major Wysor refused to comment. Home guard log shots were likewise silent, but campus rumor had it that the non-military boys were contemplating the importing of talent from out of town, possibly from Erskine college.

State Scorers

Leading P. C. scoring, but far down the list in state rankings, are J. B. Jacobs, Hose captain, and Coon Weldon, who rank eleventh in number of points garnered by backfield aces of South Carolina.

Leading the list is Ashmore, of Wofford, with Robinson, Citadel, and Chet Smith, Citadel, trailing in second and third. Ashmore today had 81 points, the result of five touchdowns and one extra point.

More Weldon

With half-time drawing near, Weldon snagged a pass and galloped yards to score.

The third period brought no scoring, despite several Blue Stocking threats. One of these drives advanced the ball to Erskine's goal line but the Fleet held and prevented a score. Coach Jakie Todd gave his charges instructions to inaugurate a desperate attack in a fourth-quarter spell of victory, but the many passes that filled the air failed to materialize. The Seceders completed one pass for 40 yards, but a series of incompleted tosses cut off their victory-chance.

Gettys, the sparkling candidate for all-state end honors, and the diminutive 135-pound back, Aultman, stood out for Erskine. Presbyterian's tackles looked good, with the whole line playing hard. Weldon led the offensive and Jacobs' punts were superlative.

P. C. amassed a total of 105 yards from scrimmage to Erskine's 23, and chalked up seven first downs to a Seceder total of five.

PLAN TO FORM SOCCER TEAM IN MID-WINTER

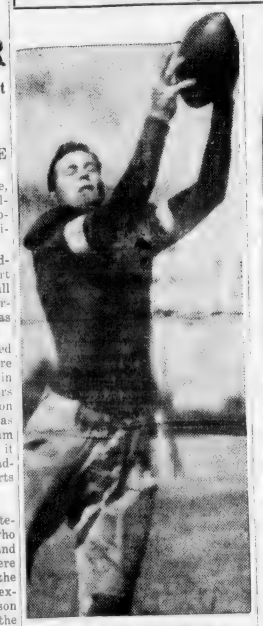
Expect To Organize New Sport After Football Season.

PLANS FOR OUTFIT STILL INDEFINITE

Although plans are still indefinite, it seems likely that Presbyterian college's already extensive athletic program will be enlarged by the addition of intercollegiate soccer.

No action in the direction of building and coaching a team in this sport will be taken until after the football season, but already there is considerable interest in establishing soccer as a new sport in the college program.

Soccer has never before appeared on the P.C. athletic calendar, yet there seems to be a spreading interest in this sport and for the past few years teams have been at work at Clemson and Furman. Coach Johnson, who has been interested in seeing a team started at P. C., is confident that it may become a popular and useful addition to the intercollegiate sports program here.



Coach Indefinite

There has been no definite statement made at this time as to who will have charge of the training and coaching of the new sport, but there are several men in this section of the state who have had considerable experience in the game. Coach Johnson will probably be unable to handle the assignment, since he will be busy with the boxing team during the winter months.

Work towards a P. C. soccer team probably will start soon after the close of the football season. The sport will be open to almost every student,

SECOND GAME UNDER LIGHTS IN TWO WEEKS

After an impressive victory over the Erskine Flying Fleet here Friday night, the Blue Hose will this week drill thoroughly against Citadel plays in preparation for the classic struggle in Charleston Friday night under the lights. Coach Walter Johnson is confident that his men have hit their stride and if their defense is as perfect as it proved to be in the game against the Seceders last week the Blue Stockings should be able to give Coach Tatum Gressette's men something to think about.

The P. C. defense will have to watch the diminutive "Rookie" Robinson when it comes to running back punts. Playing left halfback and weighing only 134 pounds, Robinson is fast and elusive in an open field with punts and kickoffs and verry consistent in place kicking extra points after touchdowns. Another outstanding performer in the Citadel backfield is Sophomore Chet Smith, 180-pound fullback from East Lansing, Mich. Smith is a first-rate passer and can also do a turn at line-cracking. Frank McNeil, flashy back for the Bulldog's who has been out with injuries for the past two weeks, should be able to get into this week's embroglio, having sufficiently recovered from his mishap.

The Calvinists should be able to meet the Citadel challenge man for man as Captain J. B. Jacobs and

If the elements do not interfere in Charleston Friday night, South Carolina football fans probably will be treated to one of the biggest battles in the state. On paper, the Bulldogs get a slight edge, but taking into consideration the revived attitude Coach Bussman's proteges have been taking, Citadel is going to have to fight to keep the score at home.

If the student body shows interest in establishing this new sport, a soccer team undoubtedly will be organized and trained for intercollegiate competition. Soccer is principally a winter sport and will probably attract a large number of students not engaged in other athletics during that season.

Furman university: Two players, Jim Aiken and Bob Anders.

Davidson college: Howard W. Covington, coach, and two players, Bronston Kenney and Carl Carlson.

West Georgia college: Two players chosen by tournament, Travis Jackson and O'Rear Treadaway.

Guilford college: James S. Parsons, coach, and two players, Howard Newkirk and J. B. Bowman.

South Georgia college: T. A. Clower, coach, and two players, Messrs. Harper and Sleep.

Gordon Military college: Two players.

High schools sending players are: Savannah, Fountain Inn, Greenwood, and Belton.

Notifications to be received tonight and in the morning are expected to add greatly to the list. Colleges already signifying intention of sending delegates have failed to report names because of selective tournaments now in progress.

Notice

Applications from new men for positions on The Blue Stocking staff will be received through tomorrow night. To applicants will be given trial assignments as soon as is possible and, if they qualify, they will be placed on the regular staff.

PLEDGE DANCES ENJOYED

the coming dance bands of the nation.

The Friday evening affair got under way a bit late due to the P. C.-Erskine game, but progressed in full swing from eleven until three. The tea dance, although just a little "stocky", was well-attended and the series was brought to a successful close with the Saturday evening informal from nine until midnight.

The dances were sponsored and carried out by the Panhellenic council, whose next presentation, the mid-winter series, will be held sometime after Christmas.

The members admitted were Arthur McElroy, Moffet Wylie, David Dingeman, Elizabeth McGee, and Adelaide Roberts.

Try-outs for the cast of the play, "Introducin' Susan," will be held this week and practice will begin immediately afterwards.

Eldred McLeod, president of the club, stated that the play would be completed and presented about the middle of November.

TENNIS CLINIC HIGHLY SUCCESSFUL

Grades Show Much Improvement Over Last Year

FAILURES FOR FIRST MONTH MUCH LOWER

List Shows 146 D's and 141 E's For Past Month, While Last Year 259 D's and 222 E's Were Recorded For Period.

FRESHMAN DEFICIENCIES HIGHEST IN STUDENT BODY

The number of D's and E's issued by the registrar for the first month of the 1936 session showed a marked decrease over the number in the corresponding period of 1935.

The rolls showed for October, 1936, 146 D's, 141 E's, and 2 incompletes, in comparison with 259 D's, 222 E's, and 18 incompletes for October, 1935.

Again this year the freshman class showed the greatest number of failures, with 94 D's, 100 E's, and 2 incompletes.

The number of students enrolled at the beginning of this year was 330, the same number as that of last year.

Instead of posting the marks on the bulletin board, the D's and E's made by each student were sent to his or her faculty advisor to be sent later to the parents.

By clasess, the marks are as follows:

October, 1936	D's	E's	Inc.

Y.M.C.A. Hears Professor Boyd

Interesting Talk Given On "Books and Experiences.

Laying particular stress on the age-old antithesis of books and experience, Professor B. H. Boyd delivered an interesting address on the subject, "Books and Experience," to the students at the Y.M.C.A. meeting Thursday night.

Mr. Boyd particularly emphasized the works of Plato, Wordsworth, and modern writers to illustrate this antithesis. He began with the fact that Plato excluded all poets from his "ideal state," in accepting experience rather than books, and showed how Wordsworth's works carried a great deal of antithesis.

"My purpose," Mr. Boyd stated, "is to show how experience is shown in books." He went on to describe an illiterate as "not one who has never read books, but one who has never experienced books and really lived them." He further stated that this experience is acquired through imagination, which he defined as "a faculty of human spirit which can transform books into living experiences."

In tracing the antithesis of books and experience to the present day writers, Mr. Boyd brought out the fact that the modern world would rather substitute experiment for experience. It says that this is a much longer process which draws practically the same results. In closing his lecture, Mr. Boyd left an impressive statement before his audience in saying, "Experience without imagination is merely a dull imagination without experience is sterile."

EXTENSIVE PROGRAM PLANNED FOR P. C. SPEAKERS, DEBATERS

Will Participate In Southern and National Tournaments.

TO ENTER STATE CONTEST

Professor B. H. Boyd and Hugh Holman, coaches of speaking and debate, announced this morning that Presbyterian college would be represented at the Strawberry Leaf Speech tournament which will be held at Winthrop college December 3-5.

At this tournament the following contests will be held: Debating for men and women, extempore for men and women, after-dinners for men and women, oratory for men and women, impromptu for men and women, and poetry reading for women.

The coaches are planning to enter contestants in each of these events, and those sent will be selectd from the group which answers the call for speakers and debaters issued today.

There are no class restrictions on this work. Freshmen will enter on the same basis as upperclassmen and every one trying out will be given a chance at all forensic activities of the school.

Extensive Program Planned

The Strawberry Leaf tournament is but the beginning of an extensive program which the coaches have outlined. This program includes a number of intercollegiate debates with several good trips, entering the South Atlantic forensic tournament, and possibly entering the Pi Kappa Delta tournament at Rollins, Fla. Every division of forensics will be treated and the state oratorical contest will be entered this year for the first time in several years. Coaches Boyd and Holman announced that there is a possibility that prizes will be offered for the best men in school in each of the divisions, and certainly in debate.

The query will be the Pi Kappa Delta one: "Resolved that Congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours for industry."

Every person interested in any form of speaking is urged to participate.

Colonel Pleased With P. C. Corps

Inspecting Officer Comments Favorably On Entire School.

Although there has been no official report as to the outcome of the annual fall inspection, according to unofficial reports Colonel H. P. Richmond, inspecting officer, was favorably impressed with Presbyterian college's military unit.

His words of commendation were not limited to the corps, but included the entire system of the college. Among those branches especially mentioned was the athletic department. He especially approved the great progress which the college had made during a short period of time.

Colonel Richmond was particularly impressed with the addition of the "pink" pants to the senior uniform. He pointed out that the similarity of Presbyterian college's uniform to that of the United States army would enable any student cadet who enlists in the army at some future time to use his same uniform.

As a whole the inspection gave convincing evidence that the P. C. corps for the present session is definitely up to the usual high standard.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

This year the faculty has discarded the old plan of posting grades on the college bulletin board in favor of a new plan whereby the student learns his grades privately from his faculty advisor. So we asked: "DO YOU FAVOR THE NEW SYSTEM OF POSTING GRADES?" and SENIOR JACK McALPINE replied:

"I am in favor of the new system because the student is able to know exactly where he stands at the end of each month and is able to obtain advice from his faculty advisor from whom he learns his grades."

When we interview a JUNIOR, JOHN HAMMEL, he said:

"I think that the method of letting the students confer with their faculty advisors to learn their grades is far superior to last year's helter-skelter 'bulletin board method,' but I believe that if all of each student's grades were typed on a slip of paper and placed in the mail boxes that it would be more convenient and time-saving, both for the faculty and students. Day students could get their grades from the officer of the day."

SOPHOMORE ROY HUTCHINSON was asked next and he replied:

"If the present system results in the students as a whole going to their advisors to find out their gardes, it should be very advantageous. On the other hand, if the students, particularly those having difficulty with their work, avoid consulting their advisors (for any of several reasons!) the system would be ineffective and its purpose defeated. I cannot say whether or not I am in favor of the present system."

Next we asked FRESHMAN HENDRICKSON, who said:

"I am not in favor of the present system because I think the grades should be posted publicly, and more frequently. If a student receives low grades it should be a stimulus for better work. If, on the other hand, he receives good marks, it instills self-confidence, a fact which increases his efforts to do even better. This is why I am not in favor of the present plan and would like to see grades posted more frequently."

CORPS PLANS MILITARY BALL

May Be Held On Night of December Eleventh.

The annual military ball, last year presented during the spring, will in all probability take place before the Christmas holidays, according to announcement from J. K. Collings, cadet major.

Due to the fact that last year the second semester saw dances by fraternities, the military, and other organizations, it is felt by military leaders that holding the annual ball during the first half of the year will to some extent relieve the situation.

Although nothing definite has as yet been done concerning the date for the affair, or in connection with securing an orchestra, the week-end just before holidays begin is being considered. Since Christmas vacation begins on December 18, this would put the dance on December 11. Collings said the college orchestra was being considered for the occasion.

Hollings further stated that the military would be responsible for only one dance, the ball, and would not attempt to sponsor a tea dance or Saturday night hop.

No discussion has as yet taken place within home guard ranks as to the sponsoring again this year of a Saturday dance. Since no chairman has been elected from the noncommissioned officers, such an election will have to take place before plans can be made.

Cast Chosen For November Play

Sock and Buskin Picks McElroy and Adelaide Roberts To Portray Leading Roles.

To head the cast of Sock and Buskin's November production, "Introducin' Susan," a committee composed of Eldred MacLeod, president, and Professors Boyd and Fish selected Arthur McElroy, transfer student, and Adelaide Roberts, freshman coed, for the lead roles.

McElroy will play the part of Dick Heatherby, a young college professor, and Miss Roberts will play the part of his wife, Susan.

Of the remaining cast of nine, five are boys and four are girls. The two students portraying the lead roles were admitted to membership last week, while the majority of the remaining nine are old members.

Work on the play will begin next week with President MacLeod assisting faculty advisers in the direction and coaching.

Delegates Named For Convention

Love, Campbell and Penland To Attend Press Gathering In Charleston Next Month.

To attend the state press association convention to be held in Charleston on November 13 and 14 with Citadel and College of Charleston as hosts, editors of The Blue Stocking and The Collegian announced today the names of two men from each staff who would represent the school.

From The Blue Stocking will go Sadler Love, editor, and Jake Penland, sports editor; while The Collegian will send Stuart Campbell, editor, and another staff member to be selected.

The 1936 session of the state press association will convene at 10 a.m. Friday, November 13, and will continue through the following day. The program will feature addresses by newspaper men, round table discussions of college press problems, and announcement of contest winners.

No plans as yet have been made as to when P. C. delegates will leave or by what means they will travel.

The association is composed of the following publication staffs: Clemson college: The Tiger (weekly); Coker college: The Periscope (weekly); Columbia college: The Criterion (monthly); Converse college: The Concept (bi-monthly), and the Parley Voo (bi-weekly); Furman university: The Hornet (weekly); Lander college: The Erothesian (quarterly); Newberry college: The Indian (weekly); Presbyterian college: The Blue Stocking (weekly), and The Collegian (quarterly); Winthrop college: Winthrop Journal (monthly), and The Johnsonian (weekly); Wofford: The Old Gold and Black (bi-weekly), and The Journal (bi-monthly); The Citadel: The Bull Dog (weekly), and The Shako (monthly); Erskine college: The Mirror (weekly); The College of Charleston: The College of Charleston Magazine; Limestone college: The Lantern.

GRANT, VAN RYN ADD TO COLOR OF FESTIVITIES

Delegates From Colleges and Universities In Four States At Demonstration Here.

COACHING WORK IS DONE IN AFTERNOONS

Ending a three-day venture which observers stated was perhaps the greatest single step ever taken for the advancement of tennis in South Carolina, enthusiasts, coaches, players, and Davis Cup stars last week brought to a close P. C.'s fall tennis clinic with exhibition matches on the indoor court in Leroy Springs gymnasium.

The clinic was formally opened Tuesday night with an exhibition match between two Davis Cup players, Bryan "Bitsy" Grant of Atlanta, and John Van Ryn of New York. Both of these men hold high national rankings and the town of Clinton was thrilled to see such a tennis exhibition. As a fitting climax to end hostilities along the tennis front, the clinic was called to a close in the gymnasium Thursday after several fast and interesting matches had been run off. Unexpected rain caused the tennisters to take to the indoor court Thursday night.

Large Attendance

In the course of the clinic, which lasted through a period of three days, many high schools and colleges were represented in the heated play. The players slept in the gymnasium and ate in the dining hall while they were here. The schools represented here included high schools and colleges from South Carolina, Georgia, and Virginia, Duke, Furman, Clemson, Davidson, South Georgia college, Elon, Savannah high, Greenwood high, Guilford, Newberry, Wofford, Appalachian, and others.

Bitsy Grant, the diminutive but powerful "giant killer," and John Van Ryn opened festivities Tuesday night at eight o'clock on The Pines courts with two sets of fast tennis jammed with thrills and excitement. Van Ryn opened aggressive early in the first set and had the count 4-1 on his favor.

In the next game, with the score 0-15 against him, Grant overcame his opponent's serve and took the next four straight games. From that point on the advantage shifted from player to player, both stubbornly refusing to give ground; but finally the never-tiring Bitsy broke through Van Ryn's serve and went on to take the set, 9-7.

Fencing May Be Added Here

Although no definite plans as yet have been made, there is a strong prospect that intercollegiate fencing, already sponsored by Carolina, College of Charleston, and other state schools, will be added to the P. C. sports menu.

From the faculty can be drawn a coach, since Professors Boyd and Fish are adepts, as is Turk Osman. Student supporters already have expressed a desire for the addition of fencing to the minor sports and Coach Walter A. Johnson has agreed to its inclusion.

Backers of the proposed team declare that the physical training and [illegible] would be [illegible] With [illegible] and [illegible] the date [illegible] 8 or 9 [illegible].

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

Whether or not it would be possible for the college, the army, or F.D.R. to purchase a new storm flag to replace the one (or should we say two) seen flying from the staff on several rainy days last week.

* * * * * *

And to rejoice and be exceeding glad that grades for the first month of this year were such an improvement over marks for the corresponding period of the 1935-36 session.

* * * * * *

If it is true that several boys, now that pledge season, the first part of football season, and the pledge dances are over are actually contemplating buying books. But it's only a rumor.

And to fervently hope that the steam line to Alumni, Spencer and the Science hall will be completed by spring holidays.

Honor For System

Last year the local chapter of Blue Key, national honor fraternity, passed a resolution stating that members of the Presbyterian College chapter felt the very definite need for a workable honor system and further provided that members of the chapter pledge themselves not to cheat and to report any member of Blue Key seen cheating. It was the purpose of Blue Key members to begin a campaign whose workings would be slow, yet whose purpose would be the ultimate erasing or diminishing of cheating on the P. C. campus.

That was just after the publication of news concerning the cheating scandals of the University of North Carolina and of our own state university. Colleges and universities throughout the nation paused in studying and playmaking to scrutinize their own systems and to find them wanting. Most of them found they had an honor system whereby the student council had the honor and the student body the system. P. C. found that it had such a system.

For one or two men, feeling the hypocrisy of the system, to attempt to turn up men seen cheating, although every member of this student body has pledged himself to do just that, would be the sheerest folly. We do not and have not advocated it. It would be a noble gesture, but the man or men might just as well leave school. Yet for some members of the student body to realize they are enrolled in a school operating under the honor system, whose chief principle is that is is the duty of each student to report infractions to the council ,and then feel that that system is operating only in the minds of dreamers of a Utopia, is difficult.

Last year, when the eyes of collegians throughout the country were on the honor system, THE BLUE STOCKING stated that the only alternatives in P. C.'s case were to turn the whole thing over to the faculty, to appoint student monitors, or to put teeth into the present system. We still hold, now that the flurry has passed, that these are the only alternatives. Either we have the honor system or we don't. At present, we don't. That the honor system will work has been proven at Virginia and V.M.I., yet it also has been proven, as in the case of P. C., that it will not work unless something is done to make it work.

Blue Key last year took the first step toward building up campus approval. Whether or not other organizations will have the progressive determination to follow Blue Key and create honor where now only system exists will lie with the organizations.

The Gleaner

Things at P. C. were running along fairly smoothly this week with memories of pledge dances and the modern Venus fading into obscurity when out of the very ether, as it were, came the Winthrop Johnsonian.

This usually staid organ for the dissemination of gossip anent "The Girls in Blue" fairly wrapped us around the cold radiators of our dormitory room. We quote:

"One sidelight on student thought—after this week-end: It pays to do 'em dirt!"

Ye gods! They're catching on, boys! And then, in the next paragraph, The Johnsonian quotes for the Mississippi Collegian the following poem:

I think that I shall never see
A girl refuse a meal that's free.
A femme with hungry eyes not fixed
Upon the gin that's being mixed.
A girl that looks at boys all day
And doesn't lead pure men astray.
A dame who may in winter wear
A coat that makes the seal despair.
Whose mind will countless thoughts contain.
Who builds her castles all in Spain.
Girls are made by fools like me.
But why, I sometimes fail to see.

Presbyterian College, Where Men Are Made. Winthrop College, where . . . . .

Since we feel in a very poetic mood this morning, we quote the bit of verse that fell from the pen of some erring journalist of the Daniel Baker Collegian:

Now I lay me down to rest
Before I take tomorrow's test.
If I should die before I wake
Thank gosh I'd have no test to take.

And from The Davidsonian, of Davidson College, whose Calvinistic atmosphere is said to equal the highly rarified air of our own campus:

Mary had a little dress,
It was little, dainty, and airy.
It didn't show a bit of dirt;
But gosh, how it showed Mary.

The Clemson Tiger informs us of the organization of a rather unique club on the campus of Tigertown. It seems that the lodge, fraternity, or whatever you might term it, is named The Horses' Necks. With new members being added each day, there seems every indication that membership will reach 1589.

Also, from an earlier issue of The Tiger, we have discovered that enrollment at Clemson has reached 1589. My word!

From "The West Point of the South," known to the rabble as the school "on the banks of the Ashley river," we can glean little or no information, since the last Bulldog to reach us was the issue of October 2. We suppose they still print it or mimeograph it or something, but, like love, it has passed us by. Anyway, in view of the fact that football is in the air and we ain't got much time for readin', we suppose it's just as well.

Movies For the Week

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Green Pastures." We probably will not need to say very much about this. You've heard of it on the stage, you've seen prevues of it on the screen. We believe you'll like it. Shows start at 2, 4, 7, and 9 p.m. Short and MGM.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Three Wise Guys." Damon Runyan, master of gangster dialogue, wrote this one. Players: Robert Young, Betty Furness, Raymond Walburn. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Walking On Air." A madcap heiress tries to bluff her way into matrimony. The songs are fair, the acting is fair, with Gene Raymond and Ann Sothern, but we know you won't miss it since Flash Gordon is still running. Secret: He's going to lick all the planet-dwellers and get the girl.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "The Crime of Dr. Forbes." As mystery pictures go, this one is pretty good. Players: Gloria Stuart, Robert Kent, Henry Armenta, Alan Dinehart. Three shorts.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Parole." Just as its name implies, this is the story of a man who came back to society to see if he could get a sporting chance. Players: Henry Hunter, Ann Preston, Alan Dinehart. Two shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Sundown Saunders." Bob Steele and machine gun six-shooters is about the only description for this one.

"WAKE UP AND LIVE"—By Dorothea Brande

Among the more or less vital plans for the organization of one's life, Mrs. Brande has found a new and simple one which works on a scale undreamed of except by a few far-sighted professors and scientists.

The history of her discovery is one of those "blinding light" affairs like the one that befell Paul on the road to Damascus. While reading a book on psychology by a man named Myer she was suddenly startled into the light by this sentence: "Now the removal of shyness which a hypnotic suggestion can effect, is in fact a purgation of memory—inhibiting the recollections of previous failures, and setting free whatever group of attitudes is for the moment required."

Mrs. Brande boils all this down to a mere statement that most of us are victims of a will to fail, and proposed a positive, not a negative, attitude toward our lives, associates, and work.

It is truly amazing to see with what acute observation she touches the very core of human laziness. She says that it takes as much strength to fail as to succeed, because one must needs exert himself to stop motion, and thus action.

In a detailed description of the general tenor of the failures of life, and the ways in which one may be a failure or temporize with failures, Mrs. Brande exposes to the merciless light of logic the little secret parts of us that we cherish and our little conditionings that make us try once, and forever after say, "If Id 'tried one more, I could have made it."

"Yes," she says in effect, "but you didn't try that last time and you could have and should have."

Her outline of the drawbacks of being a convert to this success plan is very complete, taking into consideration the pitfalls contributed by those who wish to see the old yoke kept on the aspiring novice. She warns that our wits must primarily be aimed against our own sluggishness—for we are our own worst enemies—and gives a novel set of rules and tasks that will spur our disused imagination to creative thought.

Surely this is one of the most easily understood, and practical of psychological pointers toward ultimate success.

YOU'RE Telling US

CONGRATULATIONS, MR. EDITOR

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

From the editorial page of The Blue Stocking have come encouraging words to those who are striving to make P. C. a better and more ideal college. Also there have been helpful suggestions which often have been followed to great advantage by the various organizations on the campus. The writer of these editorials has been impartial and conscientious in his arguments for and against certain reforms and changes. There is one phase of student activity, one of the most important, which he has not mentioned in complimentary words, because he would be classified as an egotist if he should print his name to an editorial commending his own words.

But I do wish to commend and compliment the present editor and his staff for the splendid way in which The Blue Stocking is handling the college news this year. They deserve praise for the excellent and commendable work which they are producing. We are not, however, insinuating that other staffs have not done good work with the paper, but we believe that the present staff is more cooperative and democratic than any staff in our three years at P. C.

Prizes have been won by The Blue Stocking in past years, but we hang out the garland to the fellows who are doing such fine work this year. When we get the paper on Monday nights now, we look forward to seeing it because we know that we shall have something to read instead of having to content ourselves with "fillers."

This past week the staff published the largest paper which has ever been published in the history of The Blue Stocking, eight pages of stirring and interesting news. Why should we not extend to The Blue Stocking staff our hearty congratulations and interest in the continued success of the paper. Greater success to you, Mr. Editor, and your faithful workers.

QUOTES

"I know of no way in which a semi-ready preparedness can be developed with less militarizing effect than when it is mixed with all the forces of a curriculum on a university campus." The University of Rochester's Chancellor C. W. Flint makes his defense of the R.O.T.C. system.

"No patriotic teacher should object to taking the oath of allegiance. It is an honor, not a reflection, upon character. It does not carry with it interference with the right of educators to determine the courses of study. Courses of study will be safe in the hands of loyal teachers." But the D.A.R.'s Mrs. William Becker forgets that those who promote the oath also promote interference with studies.

"If education is to realize its true goal it cannot confine itself to an academic discussion of life—it must become a part of life itself. I believe education is making a great contribution to the solution of our difficulties. It is creating interest and stimulating discussion. Letting every man have his say is the constitutional method of solving our problems. Why should we make teaching into a suspect profession by making our teachers take a special oath?" The Republican Alf M. Landon hands a question to the D.A.R.

"What is your time worth? Including the cost of your tuition, loss of labor, contributions through the college, and other items, your time in college costs about $1.50 an hour. You should have this fact in your minds throughout the four years." Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute's President Hotchkiss informs the freshmen.

The entire corps deserves congratulations on the excellent showing made on the annual fall inspection. Colonel Richmond was impressed by the neatness and general efficiency of the unit. Exact results will come later.

Company "C" broke through to take first and second places in the competitive drill for freshmen. Cadet Rutledge copped first honors, with Gilmore taking second. Reeves placed third.

Plans for the military ball are being pushed by the advanced corps. Cadet Major Collings has set the tentative date for the last week-end before Christmas holidays. Hitherto, the ball has been held in the spring; but due to the frat hops and regular Panhellenic affairs given during the second semester, the military hop will come as a Christmas dance. Music probably will be furnished by the Collegians under Harris Gray. Last year's hop was very successful and this one is expected to be an even bigger success. Better get your dates lined up.

Major Wysor is building a house on what is locally known as fraternity row. The Major plans a housewarming for the junior and senior classes at which he will furnish the house and students will provide the necessary warming materials. May the house be rushed to a quick completion. A little warming would go well on these chilly nights.

The special drill platoon under Major Harding is making rapid progress. An exhibition should be a feature between halves of one of the football games in the very near future.

Equipment Placed In Lounging Rooms

Games and Radio To Provide Amusement For Leisure Hours.

Part of the furniture for the Y. M. C. A. building has arrived and the rooms of the building have taken on an attractive and home-like appearance. More furniture will be added from time to time as it arrives.

In one room there is a living room suite, rug, tables, and chairs. In addition, there is a fine Stewart-Warner cabinet radio which adds very much to the enjoyment of the students as well as to the attractiveness of the room.

The seats for the chapel have arrived and a pulpit has been made for the room. The chapel also will have a piano and other equipment. The furniture for the ladies' room is still incomplete, but "Y" officials hope to have it sufficiently equipped in a short time for the use of co-eds.

Some interesting games for the use of students have been bought, including monopoly, badminton, checkers, etc. More games will be added from time to time. A large billiard table is now being secured. When the "Y" building has been completely equipped, it will be an additional attraction for Presbyterian college and will add much to the enjoyment of the students.

PAC-SAC EXECUTIONER FINDS SECOND-YEAR MEN RELUCTANT ABOUT GOING TO "CHAIR."

It all began about eight days ago when Editor Joe Patrick made the first announcement in chapel and the freshmen began the long parade to Nichols' studio to have their pictures made for the PaC-SaC, but the last, and by no means least, of that parade filled the reception room at the studio as late as Saturday afternoon.

The whole process of making these pictures for the annual is one that would baffle a first rate psychologist, not to mention Mr. Nichols, who is only a first rate photographer. It is interesting, therefore, to notice the student body from a casual observer's viewpoint as it makes this annual tour.

The afternoon after the announcement has been made in chapel, rats may be seen in large groups, handsomely attired (from the waist up!) on their way, frist to do what they've been told, and second, to have their picture made! Consequently, two or possibly three afternoons find every freshman's celluloid counterpart in the developing solution.

But the sophomores ——! Except for the first FEW who feel it their duty to escort a few of the rats to the "chair," they usually wait until the last possible day, and then harass the patient Mr. Nichols by their very numbers and their "sophomorishness," if you please!

Next the juniors and seniors will be compared, since they both usually follow the freshmen, with that feeling of confidence that the photographer must surely "do them right" since they have been either twice or three times before — with the results that they are the least of Mr. Nichols collegiate worries.

Well, you explain this phenomenon if you can, since we don't ever attempt such a thing, but let's see what Mr. Nichols thinks about it all.

"Well," he said, "the way I figure it is that freshmen are afraid not to come on time, juniors and seniors are old enough to know to come on time, and sophomores think they own the college and should be allowed come when they want."

With this sage statement, the man of many negatives turned into his dark room to erase bumps from the faces of pictured subjects, to perfect likenesses that will do honor to the 1937 PaC-SaC.

Y.M.C.A. To Begin Services Sunday

Rev. J. H. Marion, Rock Hill Pastor, To Speak.

In a recent issue of The Blue Stocking, the Y.M.C.A. announced that plans were underway to bring to the campus some of the most outstanding ministers and laymen in the states of South Carolina and Georgia. These plans have now been partially completed and two prominent South Carolina ministers have been secured to speak to the students in the near future.

Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., announced today that Dr. J. H. Marion, pastor of Oakland Avenue Presbyterian church, Rock Hill, will address the student body next Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock in the college chapel. Keller also stated that on November 9 Dr. J. N. Thomas, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, will speak.

President Keller expressed the hope that the students will cooperate with Y.M.C.A. officials in this venture in order that it might become a permanent feature of the campus activities.

KNOCK, KNOCK

During the past year, unusual emphasis has been laid on tennis and a movement to popularize and expand the sport has gained gradual momentum. The appearances of Wilmer Allison last spring, and of Mr. and Mrs. John Van Ryn, "Bitsy" Grant, and others in conjunction with the recent tennis clinic, were unusual and progressive features on the program of the racquet "coming-out party." Instead of applauding and encouraging this movement, many students have criticized it as impractical, injurious to football, etc.

We don't think tennis can, or should, supercede football as P. C.'s major sport. Most of all, we want good grid teams. But there is no disadvantage in our becoming a tennis center, or attempting to elevate the sport on the athletic pedestal. Many desirable high school seniors will be attracted to our school and other good will come of it. So quit knocking, buy a racquet, and start swingin'.

NEXT — NEWBERRY

Last season, amid a colorful homecoming setting, Presbyterian footballers honored their veteran coach by piling up 20 points against Newberry, making a point for each of Johnson's years of service to the college. And now the annual clash with the Indians looms again before us. There seems little doubt that the Blue Stockings will win. The question is—how much?

We don't believe the Indians will score. On the other hand, we can't see more than a pair of touchdowns for P. C. Newberry has a stronger team, and they will offer a more effective defense than last year. So we make the following prediction:

PRESBYTERIAN, 14 — NEWBERRY 0.

BAD BULLDOGS

The infirmary enjoyed a rushing business Sabbath evening. The house was full, and a rhythmic blending of groans issued forth from the old structure. The boys had just returned from Charleston, where they met The Citadel in a night football game. Judging by the way the patients looked, somebody cut off the light of Hagood stadium and handed the Cadets blackjacks, or else inmates of the Charleston county jail were dressed in Citadel togs and sent into the fray.

We predicted a 13-6 victory for Citadel—and still think the score should have been just that. The postponing of the game had a psychological effect on the Blue Stockings. They entered the clash in the wrong mental mood.

In addition, almost the entire team was taken from the field at one time or another, leaving second and third stringers to carry on against Citadel's first string. So don't take the four touchdown defeat too seriously—because Citadel is still just one touchdown (if any) better than P. C.

Frosh To Meet Newberry Here Thursday Night

Blue Sox To Seek Revenge For Trouncing By Carolina.

The Blue Sox today began their last three days of practice in preparation for their encounter with the Newberry frosh Thursday night on Johnson field. After a stinging defeat at the hands of the Carolina frosh, the Anklets will be seeking to redeem themselves by scalping the young Indians.

Most of last week's work was given over to stiff scrimmages with emphasis on blocking and tackling. Coaches Waldrep and Forehand also continually cautioned the linemen to charge fast and the backs to drive hard and low.

Much progress has been shown, the only men on the injured list being Thompson, Aycock, and Paul, who were unable to take part in scrimmage during most of the week. However, it is expected that the first two will be in shape by game time.

Barring further injuries, the entire squad, with the exception of Paul, will be on the field Thursday night. The starting lineup probably will be the same as for the Carolina game.

P. C. Crippled For Newberry Game

To Meet Indians At Newberry Friday Afternoon.

Crippled by the injury in Saturday's game of a score of regular starters, P. C.'s varsity Friday afternoon will meet the traditional rival, Newberry, on Newberry's home field.

Last week the Indians took a sound 32 to 0 drubbing at the hands of Cumberland college, and all season has found the football route rocky and beset with defeats.

Campus pessimists today pointed to the roster of crippled as a result of the Citadel game, mentioned the fighting qualities of the Newberry team, and pointed to the upset of 1933 when the Redskins, doped to lose by two touchdowns, trounced the Hose on Johnson field.

The following year P. C., led by Robbie Higbe, took revenge in a 14 to 0 victory, and last year the Hosemen celebrated homecoming and Walter Johnson's twentieth anniversary with 20 points and victory.

No plans have as yet been announced by college authorities for a shortening of class schedules to allow student attendance at the game, but a large number of supporters is expected to be on hand for the kick-off. The game is also Newberry's homecoming and should therefore attract an excellent crowd.

Among those injured in Saturday's game, some of whom are only slightly hurt and others of whom probably will not be able to play this week, are the following:

Ernest Evans, Harry Cox, June Moore, Ralph Waldrep, Claus Cappelmann, Vic Correll, Macon Hipp, Giles Batchelor, Jimmy Dennard, Pitt Bird.

Golfers Begin Informal Practice

Regular Work-Outs To Start In Two Weeks.

Informal practice for P. C.'s golfers, formal practice having been delayed during the absence of President Jacobs, continues at the country club.

Mr. Jacobs announced last week that he would not be able to have regular practice for a couple of weeks because of out-of-town business; however, he said a call would be issued upon his return and a definite organization formed.

Interest is high in the new sport. Players are obtaining their clubs from home and are making regular visits to the Lakeside club. During the season Major Wysor and President Jacobs will handle the coaching duties.

A definite schedule has not as yet been arranged, but all teams in the state will probably be met.

The band under Captain Shoemaker has started drill with rifles. It's really a treat to watch them. One never knows whether the rifle will be carried at right or left shoulder, or even at trail.

Major Wysor predicts a European conflict in which we will become embroiled. He vividly described how our inside organs would look strung out on barbed wire. A beautiful outlook for some hardy souls, but, personally, I'm a mighty good cook . . . .

Dream Train Gets Baptism Of Fire

P. C.'s new Dream Train, having arrived in time for the Charleston trip and having negotiated the low country safely, chugged away from the Fearnes Marion hotel, resplendent in garnet and blue colors, football players lounging in luxuriant ease. Johnson Hagood stadium was the destination.

Things were going fine, crowds were staring, and the boys felt right proud of the successor to the wheezing Dream Train of other years. Suddenly there was a sputtering sound, somewhat reminiscent of the hills of Georgia, and flames licked at the ignition wires. The bus balked.

The new rolling parlor rolled to a stop, players scrambled out, and the bumming began. They made it, too.

Just like old times, a member of the 1936 grid club was forced to resnack as he stepped from a borrowed automobile at the stadium.

SMITH FAMILY TOO MUCH FOR LOCAL ELEVE

CADETS LEAD BY 6-0 AT HALF-TIME PERIO

Citadel's Bulldogs cashed in on rough and rowdy style of play to p up four touchdowns and a 25 to 0 v ory over P. C. last Saturday evenin under the floodlights of the cad field.

Chet Smith scored three of touchdowns after diminutive N Smith had put the ball in positi with some brilliant footwork. T first tally came just before the en of the opening quarter. A 27-yard re by Nat Smith put the ball on P. C 11-yard stripe, and Chet Smith wen over for the score. On the heels o this, Nat Smith slipped through th Hose defense for a 55-yard run, but penalty nullified the play. Line plung es by Ed Hall gave the Bulldogs the next two tallies, and Ed Hall crashe through P. C.'s line for the fina score.

Jimmy Dennard was the leading ground-gainer for the Blue Stockings. He made several beautiful runs dur ing the evening and almost slipped through for a touchdown on severa occasions.

The major threat came when Cald well blocked a punt and fell on the ball on Citadel's 10-yard line. Hi mates lacked scoring punch, however and the attack failed.

The game, originally scheduled for Friday, was postponed until Saturday evening, due to rain and a wet field.

The Presbyterian team, which faces Newberry Friday, was badly crippled during the Citadel clash. Almost the entire first string suffered injuries and the closing stages of the game saw a patched-up and weakened eleven in action. June Moore was knocked out early, and Ralph Waldrep received a kidney blow that will keep him out of grid togs for a few days.

SKEETIN' STUFF

Funny: JIMMY DENNARD figuring why he gave a cute little high school girl his football numerals. Laugh: CURLY (JOE COLLEGE) CLEMENTS trying to beat RAT RICHARDSON'S time with his best girl at the dances. True love: THAD COLEMAN telling Dr. Jones the word "sweetly" conveyed the name Elizabeth to him. Spirit: RAT AYCOCK has a rat cap from every school in the state. New York: JANE STURGEON coming out in the rain with a cellophane rain cape. Compliment: LAURA FLEMING has a beautiful smile.

HELEN MAHAFFEY is all burned up to know who those wedding bells are going to ring for. Helen says she is looking for a good courting man but doesn't want to be "fooled" by the fickle finger of fate. We understand how you feel about this, "Dandelion," and will let you know.

SONNY (SPEED KING) McLEOD from now on is going to confine his dash and speed to some quiet parlor. There is no doubt that the cops who chased him for forty miles meant business. "Speed King" would have lost his car if the brilliant thought of leaving RAT ELLISON as security hadn't occurred to ERNEST PROPST. You're right, gentlemen—it's always best to have at least $25 in the crowd. MATT "THE COURTING FOOL" HIERS is taking dancing lessons from a cute dancing teacher around here every chance he gets. Matt has great ideas of becoming another Bill Robinson. It's good for a young man to have such great ambitions; but we could remind him that many a young man whose ambitions are so great has had to learn it takes more than ambition to "Step'n fetch it."

P. M. CLEMENTS, who swears he is a woman hater, again has succumbed to the charms of the cute "blonde blizzard with the black Oldsmobile" from down Charleston way. "Jeep" says he is first in then out, but we hope it turns out Grade A. The best thing you can do to hold her, "Jeep," is to take away that black Oldsmobile—then burn The Citadel.

JOE (G-MAN) COMMANDER caused quite a bit of excitement around 3 a. m. the night of the final dance. The boys in Alumni were awakened by Joe falling in the ditch being dug around the dormitory, and they were very much excited when "HONEST JOHN" NETTLES advanced the theory that a machine gun might be wrapped in the blanket Joe was carrying, and that he was coming to apply quiet and order to "Dear Ole Frog Hollow." They were very much disappointed when Joe continued on his way.

BILLY BURNS wants it known that this is the first time he has been really and truly in love, and that he would appreciate it if people, especially PUDGE PLOWDEN, would quit "snaking" on him.

COON WELDON was just a little disturbed when BOSWELL'S date said she would hand him a "line" that could hold "The Citadel." What did she mean, Bos?

PREDICTION: COTTON PARHAM is really in love this time. ALEX GETTYS, of the "Famous Battle of Gettys-burg," thought he was fighting the "Battle of Bunker-hill" a week ago Friday night. There is enough "boy" around Smyth to feed a team of horses — ask RAT PERRY. PETE HOLCOMBE is the happiest man in the world.

Desperate Move Wins Ball Game

The game had been hard-fought since the opening whistle. Both lines were driving hard, even though the football displayed was a little unorthodox. The giant bulbs of Johnson field cast a lurid glare over the field of battle.

A sigh of despair rippled across the south stands as the second hand crept around toward the half-time period. The visitors were leading 6 to 0. The puddles of water on the track cast up reflections of sad, gloomy faces.

The local team had the ball, or maybe it was the other team, was ready to snap it back, when suddenly the time keeper ran on the field.

"Half!" he shouted.

Both teams straightened weary backs and looked toward the referee. The head official look around him, looked once at the silent stands and the dreary faces, and turned to the two teams and the time keeper.

"Let 'em run one more," he said. "They ain't tired."

The ball was snapped back, there was a mad scramble, somebody stepped over the goal for a touchdown, somebody made the extra point, and Clinton's Bell Street school for Negroes defeated Greenwood's Brewer school, 7 to 6.

REPORTER UNCOVERS SCHOOLS FOR SUCCESSFUL "BUMMING"

FINDS CAMPUS DIVIDED OVER QUESTION OF WHAT TO DO WHEN STRANDED.

With checks from home coming in three days late or not at all, and freshman aspirants to Monte Carlo honors becoming more wary with each fleeting dollar, P. C. students are resorting more and more to that method of transportation known as "bumming," "hitch-hiking," or, simply, "snatchin' a hist."

To meet the ever increasing demand for more and better methods of obtaining rides gratis (free), The Blue Stocking, after diligent research, has unearthed several schools of thought on the subject. The days when boys simply stood on the side of the highway and waited for rides — and got them — have passed. Now the budding bummer must use more novel methods.

School Number One

One school of thought advocates this method: The student stands nonchalantly by the road sign, brushes imaginary ash from his coat lapel, and awaits developments. When a distant whir announces the approach of an automobile he begins to whistle, looks casually at the sky and the adjacent landscape, and then, when the machine is a bare thirty feet away, raises his arm and gives the well-known flick with the right thumb. Expounders state that the motorist believes the student to be a man of discrimination and is tickled pink when his own auto receives attention.

School Number Two

Then there is another cult which advocates a more sincere application to work. In the beginning, the student must be neatly dressed, preferably with over-coat (in seasonable weather) and scarf. As the car approaches, he should take an interested but respectful attitude and, when he is able to distinguish the color of the driver's shirt, the actual bumming, hitching, or snatching should begin.

Now this in itself is an art and whole columns might be written on the subject. But suffice it to say that the thumb should never be jerked, but rather should be held perfectly erect, pointing in the desired direction. So much for the thumb.

Now as the machine approaches, so advocates of the system advise, the young man should assume a gentle smile—not a laugh, mind you—just a gentle smile as though he were at peace with the world. This is calculated to insure the motorist of the lovable nature of his prospective guest. Percentages of rides have been known to increase immeasurably when this simple expedient was added to the bumming curriculum.

Practice Makes Perfect

Now for the final moment. As the car gets abreast of the student, he should lean slightly forward from the hips, feet close together, not forgetting the smile, and still holding the thumb erect. Then, lisping "Columbia?", or the desired destination, the complete exercise is brought to a close. For best results, adherents of the system advise practice, with a trunk or other object in the student's room serving as the automobile. Results will be surprising. But to look for a moment at the darker side of the picture, let us suppose that beyond the wayward hitch-hiker has discovered both methods unavailing and finds night approaching and his feet far from the grits of Judd hall and the double-deckers of Smyth. Taking for granted that the average funds in the pockets of such "stranded" (to use a technical term) hikers is approximately 15c, the first school of thought on the question advises the purchase of coffee and a doughnut, with the remaining 5c held as a reserve. Should there be no fraternity house in the immediate neighborhood and you can remember no alumni of the alma mater who might provide a night's lodging, School Number One advocates the student's spending the night in the local railway station.

See the Gendarmes

School Number Two, of a more practical nature, advises the hiker to throw himself upon the mercy of the public, i.e., to request lodging from the local gendarmes. Cots in police stations are said to be much more comfortable than are seats in Southern or Seaboard stations.

With careful attention to details and studious application to the principles of the business, backers of both schools practically guarantee a minimum average of 25 miles per hour and reasonably comfortable lodging for two out of three nights. When questioned as to meals, both schools were silent, hinting that such provision must be supplied by the ingenuity of the student.

Louis W. Jackson President C. of C.

Among P. C. alumni prominent in Anderson, Louis Jackson, class of '28, is making a name for himself in the field of business.

Mr. Jackson is president of the junior chamber of commerce of Anderson and is connected with the Anderson Hardware Co. Since his graduation, he has done excellent work toward furthering alumni organization in his immediate vicinity.

While at P. C. he was editor of The Blue Stocking, adjutant of the R. O. T. C. corps, and outstanding in campus affairs.

BACHELORS PLAY BALL

An ceremonies for the newly-organized Bachelors' club of Clinton, the local organization will meet the bachelors of Laurens Wednesday night on Johnson field in 60 minutes of [illegible] football.

Composed of members from the college and Clinton, the local team, in honor of the new highly commercialized intercollegiate system, Emory is expected to give a good account of itself. Perhaps members of the university [illegible] finishing in the Quartermain, Mac Nelson, Jeff Bo- reform movement.

But the system is nothing new in [illegible] others.

Lander Group To Lead Services

Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., announced this afternoon that a deputation from Lander college would conduct the weekly services Thursday night.

Originally schedulled to come to P. C. several weeks ago, the Lander Y.W.C.A. was unable to make the trip because of a severe storm on the night of the meeting.

Thursday night's program will consist of talk, music, and Bible study work. "Y" officials expect an excellent crowd, since Lander services are always well attended.

Emory Stresses Mural Program

Atlanta, Ga.—With college interest centering to a greater extent than ever before on intramural athletics this Methodist controlled university. For over 40 years Emory has confined participation in major sports to inter-class and inter-organization contests on the campus, and students voted several years ago to spend the money annually spent in intercollegiate minor sports on the intramural system.

Yet, despite the lack of an intense athletic hatred for other schools, Emory has steadily grown even during the depression, students and officials heartily endorsing the program that gives every student a chance at athletic participation.

Each freshman at Emory is required to spend several hours each week in some form of athletics, experimentation showing that the majority continue to participate in some form during the remainder of their college life.

Contests in the major sports are run on the league principle between classes, while fraternities and organizations have adopted the bracket system in the majority of sports. In addition, many of the sports have individual participation listings.

GRANT AND VAN RYN AT TENNIS CLINIC

The next set was comparatively easy for Grant, winning 6-2, but not without Van Ryn showing flashes of past form that put Grant to a test in the first rounds.

The spectators, estimated to be about 500, were well pleased with the sportsmanship shown by both of the players and were amused by Grant's ejaculations after missing a point. President Jacobs and Jack Stockton officiated at all of the Friday night matches.

"Midge" Van Ryn

The second match proved to be just as interesting as the first with the skilled participants, Bitsy Grant, teamed with Mrs. John Van Ryn, against Stockton and Van Ryn. The stocky Stockton, manager of Forest Hills tournament, demonstrated his ability to cover a court as it should be covered despite his girth. After two sets of furious volleying, tricky, lobbing, lightning service, and masterful footwork, the team of Mrs. Van Ryn and Grant proved superior. Both sets were packed with desperate arguments between Mr. and Mrs. Van Ryn as to court supremacy when they would slam the ball back and forth to each other until the point was made. Mrs. Van Ryne asked no quarter and exhibited the same brand of tennis that her skillful husband played.

In another interesting singles match Mrs. Van Ryn conquered George Beatty, pride of P. C., in one set, 8-6. Beatty got off to a faulty start and his opponent had taken three games before he seemed to get the range. However, after bracing himself, he managed to extend Mrs. Van Ryn to an 8-6 match.

Following these three interesting matches were several more matches between players of amateur standing throughout the South. The purpose of the clinic was to bring to the minds of the players their faults and to criticize their play. Many coaches from the leading Southern colleges gave their advice to the tennis enthusiasts and benefits gained from the experience were widespread. Stockton, who was in charge of the coaching activities, pointed out the following ten important essentials to become a good tennis player:

1. Watch the ball; 2. Position and anticipation; 3. Service; 4. Volley; 5. Attack-defense; 6. No man's land; 7. Brawn vs brain; 8. Beating yourself; 9. Temperament; 10. Condition.

ALUMNI! All alumni are urged to send in their alumni dues ($3.00), which includes a year's subscription to The Blue Stocking, as early as possible, Willard L. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Alumni Association, stated this afternoon. For convenience, alumni may fill out the blank below.

S. A. C. VOTES ON CHAPEL AND HONOR SYSTEM

Approves Senior Exemption From Chapel; Acts To Bolster Sentiment On Honor System.

IS FIRST MEETING OF ADVISORY COMMITTEE

Meeting for the first time Friday morning, the newly-formed student advisory committee had brought to its attention matters pertaining to senior exemption from chapel attendance, food, the honor system, and entrance of wash-women and other trades employees into the dormitories.

In the matter of senior exemption from compulsory chapel attendance, the S. A. C. put the stamp of approval by a unanimous vote on a petition from the senior class requesting optional attendance for the remainder of the year. The general opinion of committee members was that compulsory chapel for seniors was causing discontent and that attendance would be made optional.

Petition To Faculty

Marked as approved by the committee, the petition will be presented to the faculty this week. It was signed by 53 of the 61 members of the class.

Also by unanimous vote the committee agreed to refrain from cheating and to report any member of the committee seen cheating. This was done, said supporters, in an endeavor to spread the movement to other campus organizations.

Food

On the food subject, representatives stated that complaint from the student body had been received concerning the preparation of meats, the monotony of poached eggs, and the regularity of grits. The committee is to relay the complaints to the proper authorities.

As a final step, the S. A. C. recommended that something be done to prevent the entrance of wash-women into the dormitories, the complaint to be presented to the faculty.

Since it is desired that the group shall be as representative as possible, Chairman Raleigh Shoemaker stated today that criticisms or suggestions from the student body should be presented to members of the body, who would in turn request action by the entire committee.

Library Purchases Additional Books

Since the opening of school in September, more than 200 new books have been catalogued by employees of the library, Librarian Willard L. Jones announced today.

An additional 100 new books have been ordered and are expected to arrive within the next ten days. These will be catalogued and placed in the stacks as soon as is possible, Mr. Jones stated. The majority of these are parallel works for class research, but included in the shipment are a number of outstanding works of general interest.

Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind" proved so popular that an additional copy is also included in the ordered books. Placed on the shelves on October 5, "Gone With the Wind" has proven the most popular work of fiction in the collection.

Military Ball To Be December 11

"The Musketeers" To Sponsor Tea Dance; Home Guards Have Not Met.

Advance students in military, meeting this morning immediately after drill, decided definitely that the annual military ball would be held on Friday night, December 11, and that attempts would be made to have other organizations sponsor two additional dances on the same week-end.

For the tea dance Saturday afternoon, plans are practically complete for "The Musketeers," a local military society formed last year, to be responsible for finances and preparations. The non-military students, who last year sponsored the Saturday night dance, have not yet met. Cadet Major J. K. Collings, Atlanta, stated today that he would request home guard members to elect a chairman tomorrow morning and discuss plans.

The military ball will be financed by individual assessment of all junior and senior military students who intend to attend the dance. The Musketeers will work out their own financing plans, and the home guards will discuss details after the election of a chairman.

Committees appointed for the Friday night ball, all coming from the junior and senior military classes, are as follows: invitations: Legare, Patterson, E. A. Johnson; decorations: Patrick, Plunkett, Beatty; door and drink concessions: Bird, Hipp; financial: Collings, Plunket, E. A. Johnson.

Due to the fact that officers of The Musketeers did not return to school this year, Collings asked B. W. Legare, cadet captain, to take charge of the Saturday afternoon tea dance to be sponsored by the organization.

SOPH PLATOON TO DRILL AT FURMAN TILT

Making its first public appearance at the homecoming game with Wofford on November 21, Presbyterian college's crack sophomore platoon will bring something new to the formation of fancy R.O.T.C. drill.

Organized early this fall, the unit has made speedy progress under the capable direction of Major F. C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics. Unlike the drill platoons of other school in the state, the unit consists of sophomores only and is commanded by two juniors, Seargeant-Major Ashby Johnson and Sergeant Wandel Williams.

All maneuvers are silent, the commands begine given by whistle and executed without vocal instruction. The whole drill is continuous and is unbroken by any pause for command. In practice, held twice weekly, the unit has shown remarkable improvement and the commanders expressed themselves as being extremely pleased with the progress.

Major Harding also stated that the organization is to be permanent and will be continued from year to year as a part of the military curriculum.

Willard L. Jones To Attend Meeting

As a part of the program of the annual convention of the Southeastern Library association to be held in Asheville this week, Willard L. Jones, P. C. librarian, will respond to the address of welcome to be presented by George H. Wright, chairman of the board.

The meetings will be held in the palatial Grove Park Inn, Asheville, and will continue from Wednesday through Friday. Mr. Jones will attend all three days, delivering his response on the initial day of the convention.

Holiday Granted

Dean Marshall W. Brown stated this afternoon that the college administration would allow the student body to take the day following Thanksgiving as a Panhellenic holiday and further added that the college would give Saturday as an additional holiday.

Each year the administration grants one day as a Panhellenic holiday, which is usually taken in the spring on the day following finals. This year, however, the student body voted to request the holiday for the day following Thanksgiving, already granted as a holiday, in order that the time might be extended.

Dean Brown's announcement means that Thanksgiving holidays will begin at 3:20 Wednesday afternoon, November 25, and will end at 8:00 a. m. Monday, November 30.

NUMBER TRY FOR ORATORY AND DEBATE

Teams To Be Built. Will Enter State, Southern, and National Contests.

NO VETERANS RETURN

Answering a call that was issued last Tuesday morning in chapel, nine students, under the direction of Professor B. H. Boyd and Hugh Holman, have begun the organization of a forensic society, electing Ashby E. Johnson, Columbus, Ga., president of the group.

Three meetings have been held during the week, and a schedule of work for the year has been arranged.

The Presbyterian college chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, became inactive last year with the graduation of all its members. However, it will not become inoperative until the end of this school session and may become active as soon as there are five men who have taken part in at least three intercollegiate debates. Since P. C. is entering a full team in the Strawberry Leaf tournament December 3-5, it seems probable that Pi Kappa Delta will be re-established here at that time.

Resolution

Tuesday morning Holman announced plans for the formation of a debating team to prepare discussions on the Pi Kappa Delta subject of this year, "Resolved, that the congress of the United States should be empowered to enact minimum wage and maximum hour laws for industry." Announcement was also made that training is to be given to students interested in engaging in intercollegiate extemporary speaking and oratory.

Tuesday afternoon the students interested in the various forms of public speaking met for organization and discussion of plans. Nine men were present at the first session. They were A. H. Cartledge, R. W. Williams, E. A. Johnson, R. F. Hutchinson, J. R. Thomason, J. W. Barnhill, N. S. Heath, M. M. Norton, and D. W. Hudson.

At the meeting Holman took charge of the debating work and Professor Boyd called aside the three men who desired to specialize in oratory.

Thursday another meeting of the debaters was held, at which time teams were picked for the affirmative and negative sides of the question.

While all the candidates are relatively inexperienced, they seem greatly interested in re-establishing forensic activities at the college. Holman stated that he believes he has a nucleus for the formation of an efficient organization.

INDIANS UNABLE TO STOP BLUE HOSE VICTORY MARCH

PASSING ATTACK CLICKS IN SPOILING HOMECOMING

Presbyterian's crippled Blue Stockings limped through a decisive 27 to 0 victory over Newberry Friday afternoon in a colorful Indian homecoming spectacle that marked the Calvinists' second "Little Four" win of the season.

The P. C. line functioned in a smooth and potent manner and the backs shone as they executed a dazzling attack of ground and aerial warfare.

Thompson, Jacobs, Moore

Bill Thompson slipped through for a pair of touchdowns to take offensive honors, with Jacobs and Moore contributing the other two. Moore gave a powerful exhibition of blocking, running, and defensive work, and Jacobs got off some beautiful punts and passes.

The Hose touchdowns came after concentrated drives in the second and fourth quarters. Thompson, in a few runs, carried the ball over for the initial score from Newberry's 30-yard line. Weldon kicked the extra point.

Weldon was instrumental in maneuvering the pigskin in position for the second score. Moore crashed through for the touchdown and Weldon again kicked the extra point. In the final quarter, Thompson and Jacobs broke loose for long touchdown runs that swelled the total to 27. After Jacobs' score, Weldon kicked for his third placement of the game.

Empty Tepees

The Indians made two major threats, neither of which materialized. Once they advanced to Presbyterian's 10-yard line, and later in the contest to the 12, before the attack was checked. But the men from Clinton clearly outclassed their opponents in every department, rolling up 14 first downs to Newberry's eight, passing, punting, running, tackling and blocking exceptionally well.

The Blue Stockings entered the fray deprived of full strength. Dennard, Evans, Waldrep, Correll, Beeman, Bird, Ritch, and others were still suffering from injuries received in the Citadel encounter.

Students Hear Marion Speak

Rock Hill Minister Is First In Y.M.C.A. Series.

Sunday afternoon at 3:30 Rev. J. H. Marion, pastor or Oakland Avenue Presbyterian church, Rock Hill, spoke in the college chapel, initiating the Y.M.C.A. plan of bringing to P. C. outstanding ministers of the South.

Mr. Marion used the 27th Psalm as his text. His specific text was taken was Psalm 27:18, "I had fainted had I not believed."

He stressed the fact that college alone does not fit us for life. One must have a good spiritual background, as well as a diploma, if he is to face life successfully. He said, "College degrees are fine things to have but they are little protection against the devil. Sheepskin diplomas are valuable, but they make poor shields against iniquity."

In concluding his sermon he urged the college boys to cultivate a spiritual life as well as a desire for scholastic and athletic honors.

Next in the Y.M.C.A. series will be Dr. J. N. Thomas, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Charleston, who will speak on November 9.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Another set of tests has come and gone at P. C. and like a reminding echo a discussion of the honor system arises all over the campus. So we asked a few of those who seemed especially interested, "WHAT DO YOU THINK SHOULD BE DONE TO MAKE THE HONOR SYSTEM MORE EFFECTIVE AT P. C.?"

PRESIDENT OF THE STUDENT BODY SHOEMAKER, voiced his opinion thus: "I think some means should be found of making each student feel a personal responsibility in this matter through the cooperation of the social and honorary organizations on the campus. An an example, any member of these separate organizations should feel it his duty to turn up any fellow member that he sees cheating."

KEIT DARBY thought a moment, then replied: "The honor system is the most civilized of college institutions and to be effective it must be the product of the better natures of the students. It's more a product of pride than of force, so it must be allowed to take its own course if it is ever to become a success.

Next we asked SOPHOMORE POPE, who answered: "The student council is too small. If it were enlarged so as to include four men from each class, our honor system would certainly be more effective. Also, cheating could be practically abolished if the council would let it be known that they had firmly resolved to stop all cheating."

CO-ED JANE STURGEON told us to "Create such an atmosphere around the campus that if anyone is seen cheating, he would be disgraced in his fellow-classmates' eyes; as it is now, he is only disgraced if caught."

HEATING PLANT TO BE READY BY END OF WEEK

T. J. Jackson, superintendent of yards, stated this afternoon that the heating system, now under repair, would in all probability be completed by Thursday or Friday of this week.

Begun in September, the work is intended to increase the amount of heat available to buildings affected. Defective pipe has been replaced and both steam and hot water carriers encased for insulation and protection.

P. C. Track Star Loses To Cupid

Turk Osman Marries Miss Mary Ella Williams, P. C. Co-ed.

What the best track stars of the South were unable to do four years ago was accomplished Thursday night when a little fellow with a bow and arrow broke Turk Osman, threw cinders in his face, and then led him into the home-stretch.

Osman, graduate of P. C. in the class of 1932, perhaps the outstanding track man of the state, Thursday night was married to Miss Mary Ella Williams, a member of the P. C. senior class, the ceremony being performed in the Second Presbyterian church, Charleston, by Rev. J. N. Thomas, pastor.

Before attending P. C., the bride was a student at Limestone, William and Mary, and the Medical College of Virginia. She is a member of Kappa Delta, national sorority, and of Chi Delta Phi, honorary society. The daughter of Dr. and Mrs. H. B. Williams, Columbia, Mrs. Osman has been prominent in capital city society.

Osman is field secretary of the college and has resided in Clinton for the past two years. While at P. C. he was a member of Blue Key, of Pi Kappa Alpha, and prominent in campus affairs.

The couple will make their home in Clinton.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

If it would not be a good idea to appoint or elect or detail a few coeds to help with the cheering. There's nothing like a sweet appeal to "Pep it up, pep it up!"

* * * * * *

And to wish that the Dream Train's cab and trailer both had been painted the same colors.

* * * * * *

If the addition of a full-time musical instructor and director to the college faculty would not be a distinctly progressive move for both student body and administration to back.

* * * * * *

How swanky the band would look if the college or the military could supply red capes, or something of the sort, for between-halves display.

Debate and Oratory

Last year a representative of P. C., competing in the national contests of Pi Kappa Delta, forensic fraternity, was the only speaker from east of the Mississippi to advance beyond the semi-finals. When it is realized that more than 150 colleges and universities were represented, the importance of the achievement is more heavily emphasized.

This year the response to the call for candidates for debating teams and oratorical honors has been more widespread than ever before. The material on hand, although every member of last year's debate team graduated, will, we believe, be of sufficient quality to insure the continued success of forensic endeavor at P. C.

Last year THE BLUE STOCKING mourned the absence of a P. C. entry from the lists of state oratorical competitors. We saw pictures in the daily papers of entries from practically every college in the state—yet of a P. C. entry there was no mention. We held that such an omission was, to say the least, negative advertising for a school facing the new era we believe P. C. to be entering.

But this year Coaches Boyd and Holman have announced that the school definitely will enter the state contest and that, furthermore, everything possible will be done to encourage the training of a team of debaters as competent as that of last year. The benefits to be derived from forensic endeavors are too clear to need explanation. The large number of candidates reporting Tuesday morning illustrates the fact that students realize those benefits.

With a student body entirely back of the enterprise, with enthusiastic, capable coaches, it seems that P. C. is destined to eclipse its past showings in debate and oratory.

CHAFF

— By —

The Gleaner

Although we don't want to seem in the least Victorian or prudish, we are still somewhat aghast at the gleanings from the mail of the past week. In days gone by we have held in high respect the ideals of the normal in industrial college up at Rock Hill, but our faith was greatly shaken several days ago when, without the least warning, the girls printed the following little verses in the Winthrop Johnsonian, quoting from The Sewanee Purple:

Ode To Autumn—

The golden leaves of Autumn—
Mother nature wrought 'em—
Now end the summer's larger joys
As collegians don their corduroys.
No longer do we swim in scanties
Cut to shock our maiden aunties.
No longer do we dress like Tarzan—
Summer's ended. Winter draws on.

Yea, verily, winter draws on. But what ho, lassies, we ain't got none! It's us for the tall timber.

Loungeing idly about the campus the other day, as boys are wont to do, The Gleaner came upon two small urchins, each contemplating the wonders of nature and the horrors of freshman math.

Said we to the boys: "Why haven't you bought any books?" for, be it known, there was nary a printed work in sight.

First Freshman: Ain't thought much about it.

Second Freshman: Didn't know we was supposed to have none.

The Erskine Mirror is quite het up about the return to the campus of a telescope that has been in hock, or something, in Columbia. Evidently allowing enthusiasm for the joys of astronomy to get the upper hand, a front page news story quotes: "We're expecting after this is made that Professor Leslie will be able to conduct student tours through the heavens."

P. C. students will form line at gymnasium for advance sale of student tickets. It may be your last chance. Ridin' to glory on a trumpet!

The Tiger informs us that, of 34 transfer students to Clemson this year, P. C. leads the list with four good men and true. When we sort of spread the word around that four of the boys had gone over to the other side, we heard from every quarter, "Why come?" Well, The Gleaner just doesn't know. Maybe you can tell us. Maybe it's the back to the farm movement. Gust a guess, you understand.

Father: My son sure is broadminded.
Ditto: That's all my son thinks about too.
—Indiana Bored Walk.

He: I suppose you dance?
She: Oh, I love to.
He: Great. That's better than dancing.

She had just received a beautiful skunk coat from her husband.

"I can't see how such wonderful furs come from such a foul-smelling beast."

"I don't ask for thanks, dear," said her husband, "but I do insist on respect."—Exchange.

With these sage words, The Gleaner folded up his little scythe and crept into his tent. It beats all how these collitch boys do go on.

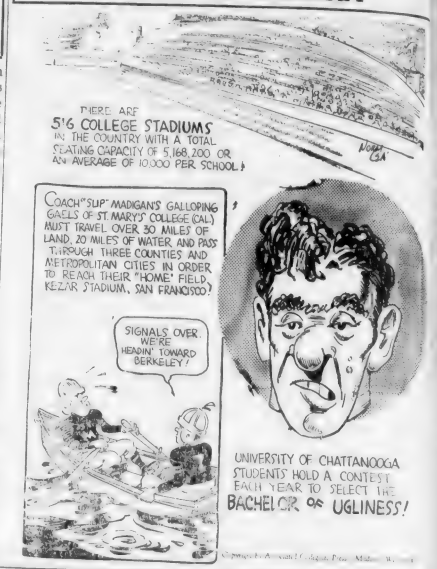
This Collegiate World

Business men can talk all they wish about college education not helping young men along in the practical affairs of life. This department knows definitely they are wrong.

We've just been hearing about the young collegian in the University of California at Los Angeles. He bought a very expensive make of automobile. In four months he had paid out a big bill in repair expenses. That made him angry. He did this:

On the side of the beautiful car he painted the words: "This is the last (blank) car I will ever buy. In four months it has cost me $300 in repairs." Then he proceeded to drive it slowly through the business district, and particularly in front of the Blank agency. It was only a matter of hours before the agency bought the car back from him and took over all the repair bills!

The grounds keeper at the University of Georgia took one look at the lawns the other day, sat down, shook his head and had an inspiration. His poem appeared in the college paper next day. It read:



U. of Georgia's son or daughter,
Do you love your alma mater?
If so, it should be your duty
To protect her vernal beauty;
Man or woman, youth or lass,
Please don't step upon the grass.

Would you believe it? Here we had thought that the literary lights had blown out of sports. Bill Shakespeare graduated from Notre Dame, and Henry Wadsworth Longfellow left Northwestern. But no. Now "The Last of the Mohicans," James Fenimore Cooper, has popped up at Marquette U.

Some of the students at the University of Kentucky go to great lengths for an education. Imagine covering 11,800 miles just to go to school. From China? India? No, they live only about 30-odd miles from the campus, but they commute daily. One of the fellows figures that he burn approximately 785 gallons of gas during the school year, which amounts to — let's see — maybe you'd better figure it out for yourself.

Monkeys are not socialists, but rugged individualists, says a University of Missouri psychologist. We are not quite sure what this proves.

"DARKNESS AND DAWN" — Alexis Tolstoi

To those who shy clear of Russian novels as a matter of consistent practice, there is thrown this attractive bit of noveltistic lure that should win them back to the ranks of Russian enthusiasts. To be sure, this is no history of a light love affair or the further adventures of Dead-eye Dan.

The love is an all-inclusive kind that is buffeted by storm that was the Russian revolution of 1918. The adventure is raw and rather indiluted, but it is realistic and stabs deep into the secret feelings that one reserves for the searching writings of a few treasured authors.

Unlike his noble kinsman, Alexis Tolstoi writes in the manner of Dostoyuski, Gorgy, and Rushkin. He has a deeper understanding of the people than is found in the elder Tolstoi. There breathes forth from the pages of "Darkness and Dawn" an atmosphere of the eternal oriental and mysticism of the Russian people. It is quite plainly stated by the characters that Russians are what they are—not to be changed by revolution—because they don't have any cognizance of law replaced by beneficent government, only law replaced by wild looting and anarchy as a relief from centuries of oppression.

The story centers about two sisters who represent the decadent intellectual circle of Russians who lived in Petrograd. It presents their personal experience in detail, but reduces t importance very cleverly to fit last half of the book. The sisters terrible hardships after the hus of Katin, the elder, is killed on Russian front. Roving bands of bers take Danusha, the younger, strip her, leaving her beaten and frozen in the snow. To her, that resents the revolution.

Telegin goes to fight from a se of duty and is captured. His exp ences among the Austrians and escape form one of the most comp ing parts of the book. The war quences approach a perfection in blending of psychological interpre tion and raw action that is ra paralleled in modern fiction. Kat second husband, Roshin, also i the war and it wrecks his mind peculiar way that is possible only few.

The internal struggle of Russia ter the war makes the insight the Russian revolution clear but sta and the people's struggle to obta some solution for their difficulties real and often sad revelation. YOU'RE Telling US

SIX PAGES

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Although I realize the fact that getting out a college paper is sometimes not such an easy job, I do wish that something could be done about so many four page issues. This year we've had six issues and half of them have been four pages? Why can't a school of this size get out a six-page paper every week?

Last year it was the same way, with even more of the papers of the four-page breed. I don't know whose fault it is, but it seems to me that the staff could find enough material to fill six pages if it is willing to write it? What about it?

A good six-page paper would do credit to the school, while a four-page sheet is so crammed full of ads that there is little room for anything else. I've been here only two years, but it does seem to me that The Blue Stocking should keep step with the school and grow along with it.

Why can't we have a six-page paper every Monday night? —M.

(Editor's note: Not through any desire of the staff to escape extra work is The Blue Stocking so often limited to four pages, but rather through a very definite lack of wherewithal to pay for its printing do we find it necessary to limit the size of the paper.

In a town the size of Clinton, already over-sold with advertising from six publications, we find it impossible to realize enough revenue to even as much as send the editor on a spr to Greenville. Our Chesterfield ad sold through a national agency a we may expect it to continue for se eral months. As for the Lucky Stri ad, sometimes we have it and som times we don't. For example, it can this week on Thursday afternoon an we had no notice of its arrival unt then.

So here is the real difference While last year the Wofford newspa per received from the student activ ties fee a total of $655.00 for ten i sues, an average of $65 per issue, an Carolina's Gamecock received fro the same source a total of ove $1000.00. The Blue Stocking wa granted only $335.00 for the year Since 34 issues were published, tha gave an average of slightly ove $9.00 per issue. Wofford has Spartan burg to canvass for advertising, Car olina has Columbia, both large cities as compared with Clinton.

And so you can see that the pres ent allotment, which is $55 less per issue than is Wofford's, we can only do our best to make ends meet, with occasional six-page issues, and hope that they do meet. We believe you will understand our point. If we can't, we can't, no matter how much we may want to).

Practice Begins For School Play

"Introducin' Susan" Cast Starts Work For November Production.

Rehearsals for Sock and Buskin's play, "Introducin' Susan," began Wednesday afternoon, Professors Boyd and Fish, assisted by Eldred MacLeod, president of the club, directing the practices.

To be presented in November at Florida Street school, "Introducin' Susan" is a three-act farse built around the episodes of a young professor, whose part is portrayed by Arthur McElroy, transfer student. Playing opposite him is Adelaide Roberts, freshman co-ed, who takes the part of his wife.

LANDER LEADS 'Y' MEETING

P. C. Hears Delegation From Greenwood College.

Being host to a deputation team from the Lander college Y.W.C.A., the Y.M.C.A. enjoyed an excellent program on "Beauty" Thursday night.

Opening the meeting, Miss Mary Glynn Chambers, leader of the group, introduced the members of the team, Miss Mary Harbin, Miss Aileen Mills, and Miss Mildred Hughes, pianist, gave a brief introduction to the program. Following Miss Chambers, Miss Harbin gave a colorful talk on the beauty of music, in which she introduced several famous poems on music.

After Miss Harbin's talk, the audience heard the talented voice of Miss Mills, as she sang, "Dear Lord, Forgive." Later in the program, Miss Mills again rendered a lovely selection, accompanied by Miss Hughes.

Miss Chambers again addressed the audience on "Christ's Love For Us," and cited several instances illustrating this love. She then closed the program with a prayer.

The program Thursday night was the first this year to be presented by a deputation from another school, but the program committee is contacting other schools in the state that additional presentations of this nature may be given during the coming year. It is also the plan of the organization to return these engagements at various times throughout the year.

DEVIL DOLL!

Bloomington, Ind. — A.C.P. — Six years a devil!

That isn't the title of a book. It's just a segment-sentence description of the kind of life Mary Ann Wynkoop, freshman at Indiana university, has been living for the last half-dozen years.

Before coming to college, she did all kinds of odd jobs around the office of the Lebanon, Indiana, Daily Reporter, where her father serves as city editor.

Even though she is the first co-ed ever to enroll in the linotype operating class, conducted in the printing shop of the university press, Miss Wynkoop is right at home, for she has been a "printer's devil" ever since she was 12 years old.

INFIRMARY PRACTICALLY ENDS ANCIENT 'GOLD BRICKING' RUSE

Looking over the infirmary records recently, it was discovered that over 100 patients had been treated since its opening, for everything ranging from fallen arches to malaria, and had been sent away well. When interviewed, a few of these ex-patients were loud in their praise of the new infirmary, but especially were they impressed with the swell way in which they were treated by Mrs. "Mac," as they affectionately called Mrs. McSwain.

Dr. Rhame reported a sizeable decrease in the number of cases this year as compared with the number he handled up to this time last year, and a study of the record seems to indicate that the patients have been reduced to three separate groups. First, those who have been excused from "drill only" might be classified as the "sore" group, since they are the possessors of the 50 cases of sore eyes, toes, ears, thumbs, throat, and almost anything else that could get sore; but this year they go cheerfully (?) to class after brief treatment during drill period, for it seems that continued observation is very disastrous for the hopeful possessor of any variety of the "goldbrick disease."

Then there are the 19 who have been excused from classes (but not confined to the infirmary) who are placed in the "castor oil" group. They are beseiged with indigestion in all its forms, and the traditional "bad cold," which the oil usually cures but renders the patient unfit for any other business during the process.

Finally, there have been 12 real infirmary cases which were either the result of a Citadel or Tech game, if the patient happened to be on the football squad, or otherwise the results of malaria, flu, or tonsilitis, and it is from this group that one hears the greatest praise of the new infirmary and the kindness and consideration of Mrs. "Mac." When asked what she thought of the boys, she replied, "I think they have been most cooperative, and to my knowledge there hasn't been a single case of "gold-bricking" or a false complaint from any of them." Then after a moment she added, "I wish you would ask the boys to always come in without knocking and to remember to come to see those who are confined to the infirmary, since they get mightly lonesome at times."

As the reporter left he could not help but think of the words of one fellow who recently left the infirmary after a case of malaria, who said, "Do you blame me for saying that the infirmary has been the greatest single improvement made at P. C. in recent years"?

'Y' To Hear Brown

With Dean Marshall W. Brown as guest speaker, the Y.M.C.A. will hold its regular weekly meeting Thursday night in the college chapel.

Dean Brown will speak on his travels during the summer through New England. His addition to the program is expected to make an interesting and instructive variation.

SOX TO FACE TIGER OUTFIT NOVEMBER 6

The freshman football squad opened today two weeks of intensive drill in preparation for the game with the Clemson Cubs at Clemson November 6. Clemson served notice that it has another strong rat team by defeating the Carolina frosh at Columbia last week 19 to 7.

The Blue Sox left the field after the Newberry game in a battered condition. Several first stringers were unable to enter the game due to injuries, and several others were withdraw from the game for the same reason. As a result, the Indians gained a tie by a last-minute touchdown in a hard-fought game.

Papooses Come From Behind To Tie Frosh Team

P. C. Leads 7 to 0 At Beginning of Fourth Period But Newberry Tallies In Closing Minutes In Game Here.

IMPROVEMENT SEEN IN TACKLING, DEFENSE

In a rather slow starting game on Johnson field here Thursday night, the Newberry frosh fought the P. C. frosh to a 7-7 deadlock. A fair crowd saw the game played under the lights and watched the Sox draw first blood on a blocked kick and a recovery behind the Indian goal post.

Later, in the fourth period, however, the Papooses put on a tremendous burst of speed coupled with several beautiful passes to buck the ball over the goal for a touchdown. Mellet knotted the score at 7-7 when he split the bars with a neat placement. From that point on the two teams fought on doggedly in the middle of the field until the final whistle, neither being able to gain the advantage.

The Baby Hose completely outplayed the Indian frosh throughout the first half, threatening on several occasions to score and even carrying the ball down to the enemy one-yard marker only to lose it on downs.

The absence of Charles Thompson, ace kicker for the Hose, was a considerable setback. His services as a punter were sorely missed on several occasions, but Trammell filled the role ably. Thompson is nursing an injured hip and will not be available for several weeks.

Swift, stellar back for the Baby Hose, opened the scoring in the third period when he fell on a blocked punt behind the Newberry goal that had bounced off the chest of his teammate, Griffin. Charlie Trammell annexed the extra point with a well-executed plamement. Newberry put on a belated drive in the fourth quarter that netted them a score after some beautiful runs by Mellet. Lambeth accounted for the actual score when he crashed the line and went over standing up. Mellet kicked the extra point.

Lambeth was undoubtedly the shining star in the Newberry offensive and accounted for some neat tackles that pulled his mates out of danger. For the Calvinist frosh, Griffin, B. Moore, and Aycock were outstanding.

Local Swains Lead In Clinton Victory

While P. C .swains courted in the gloom of Bailey Memorial stadium Wednesday night, two organizations known as Clinton Bachelors' club and Laurens Bachelors' club heaved passes, sighs and groans, as the local club romped to an easy though rheumatic 19 to 0 victory over the visitors in a unique football game.

Organized, so the story goes, to while away the time while P. C. students take the cream of the crop of the fairer sex, the Bachelors' club saw its first enterprise go over in a big, briusing way. With such brilliant stars as Alfred Plowden, Roy Forehand, and "Shag" Copeland, all P. C. students or former students, the local aggregation made up its plays in the huddle, the end yelled "Chunk me one!" and the boys loped down the field for yard after yard.

Campus rumor had it that the organization was a sort of suicide club, its members all having been disappointed in affairs of the heart, whose purpose is to end it all on the trampled sod of Johnson field. Officers were silent when questioned.

For president, the lucky, or unlucky (take your choice), suitors chose Frank Waldrep, P. C. freshman coach, with Red Copeland as vice-president, and "Muzz" Nelson, secretary-treasurer.

THE LITTLE FOUR

The "Little Four" of South Carolina collegiate competition composed of Newberry, Erskine, Wofford and Presbyterian, first two named elevens already have been handed defeat by humble Hosemen from Clinton, and on Saturday of the past [illegible] Erskine upset Wofford. Which leaves Walter's boys at the of the ladder, so to speak.

In a month, P. C. will fill her closing "date" of the season against the Terriers. During the interim, both teams will go against some mean competition. The Hosemen undoubtedly will have the crease removed from their pants by such rude aggregations as Wake Forest, Mercer and Furman, and the Terriers should develop in the meantime. But you may look forward to one of the best slaughters of the season when the Terriers get their teeth wrapped up in Walter Johnson's homespun hosiery.

For some reason or other, we have a notion that Walter Johnson's warriors will slip over a touchdown during the course of play. But there's two sides to every story, and the Wake Forest subject matter will undoubtedly include not one, but several touchdowns. Off hand, we'd say:

Wake Forest 26; Presbyterian 7.

3. Jimmy Dennard or Coon Weldon in an 80-yard touchdown sprint.
4. A couple of co-eds assisting in the cheerleading.
5. A P. C. victory over Furman.

P. C. VICTORY RAISES HOSE IN STATE RACE

P. C.'s 27 to 0 victory over Newberry Friday today placed the Hose at the top of the Little Four, with Clemson and Furman still tied for top honors in the state race.

The game this week between Carolina and Citadel is the only scheduled state game, but inter-state games will shake up still further the general standings of the teams.

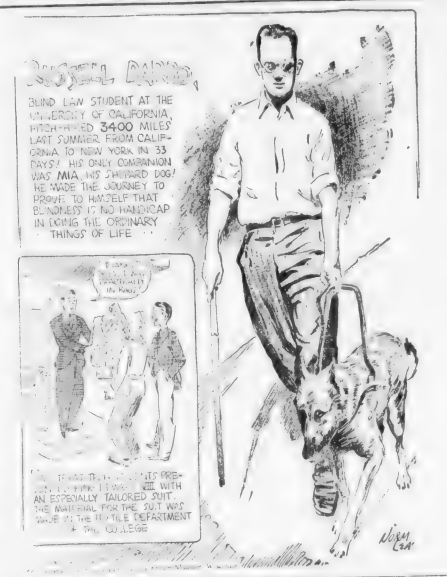
P. C. TO MEET WAKE FOREST FRIDAY NIGHT

Baptists Are Favored To Win, But P. C. Shows Improvement.

After emerging in fair shape from the tilt with the Newberry Indians Friday, the Blue Stocking varsity is beginning to get down to real work in preparation for the Wake Forest game in North Carolina next Friday night.



Coach Johnson should be able to throw a full-strength eleven against the Tarheels with the possible exception of Ralph Waldrep, who sustained a kidney injury in the Citadel game. Vic Correll also is on the injured list as a result of a twisted leg muscle, but should be able to see considerable service in the game Saturday.

The dope points decidedly towards Wake Forest as a result of their successful conquests against N. C. State and Clemson. When the Deacons and the Calvinists meet, the former will be able to present a formidable array of stars including the shifty and speedy Kitchins, who calls signals for the Wake Forest gridmen. Kitchins is a splendid field-general who directs his plays at the right place at the right time and he should be headed for conference honors. The Baptists also will have a line that will outweigh the Presbyterians five pounds to the man and this fact should give the North Carolina boys a considerable advantage in the power plays.

In the meanwhile, Head Mentor Johnson will drill his men consistently and will lay particular stress on the principles of tackling in skull practice. The Citadel game two weeks ago brought out clearly the fact that slip-shod tackling cost the Blue Stockings much yardage. The varsity will

Frosh Cabinet Appointed For 'Y'

R. W. Williams, chairman of the freshman council, announced last week the names of the men chosen for the council for the year 1936-37.

The men named were: R. C. Hardington, W. C. Hart, D. W. Hudson, S. T. Lipsey, C. C. McSwain, M. M. Norton, J. Gilliland, G. A. Taylor, J. R. Thomason, W. H. Wilkerson, D. M. Huntley, J. B. McRee, and Lykes Boykin.

A meeting of the newly-elected council was held Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. Chester Keller, president of the "Y," explained to the members what is expected of them.

It was decided to meet each Tuesday night at 8:30. Later on in the year, the Y. M. C. A. will provide outside speakers for these meetings.

Bombs, smoke, bursting shells, stacato bursts of machine gun fire, cracking rifles—war, under cover of darkness, will be fought to the bloody finish on Johnson field the night of the Furman game. Between halves a sham battle between the blues, attacking, and the reds, defending. Of course the blues will win on account of the blues always represent the U. S. and the U. S. doesn't lose. This sham battle was a feature last year of the Newberry game and was very impressive. The boys who had dates last year will tell you it was great fun because it was dark and you know how scared girls are of the dark, especially with all the fierce war going on.

The military ball will be formally opened by a parade under the lights at which the honorary colonel will review the corps. Major Collings has no statement as yet as to who his sponsor will be. However, it's a cinch she will hail from Atlanta, and who can ever forget the charming, beautiful lady who served in this capacity last year.

The junior class has finally decided on a white uniform for formal and social purposes. The seniors, at their last meeting, voted against any sort of dress uniform. The home town girls should get quite a thrill when the study juniors walk the streets in gleaming whites. It seems that the main reason the boys voted for the white uniform was to "wear it home on week-ends." Can it be that some of the lads can't go to town with their lady loves without a uniform Beware of the wench who falls for brass buttons. You can't wear them always.

With the regular football season drawing to a close, plans are in the air for the greatest of all classics fought on Johnson field—the army-home guard brawl. The army was beaten last year in a freak upset, but the corps is expected to show the pacifists a brand of ball they never even heard of before in the coming encounter.

With their spark pluk, Doug Patton, lost to their ranks by graduation, the home guards are pinning their hopes and money on Buchan, Love, Wallace and, last and least, "Winthrop" Norton. Walt Williams, "Tarzan" Langston, "Screw-arm" Suggs will furnish the veterans for the army. Recuits will be drawn from the freshman class to a large extent with a few sophs and juniors thrown in. The odds are about even, due to last year's freak win. It was rumored that the referee sported a new tie and was seen going to several two-bit shows on home guard money last year. Just a rumor—maybe.

still two to go before Christmas.

Predictions: HONEST JOHN NETTLES and a gal from Goldville painted Columbia red this week-end. BILL THOMPSON is the biggest "heartbreaker" to date on the campus.

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

CASINO THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "His brother's wife." We predict you'll like this one. It's the story of a young doctor who goes to the jungle to save life and finds his soul. Robert Taylor, as the young doctor, and Barbara Stanwyck, as his brother's wife, do fine work. Also MGM and comdey.

Wednesday and Thursday: "We Went To College." Well, well. It's another of those rah-rah pictures. Usually the college hero is on the salt and pepper side of fifty, but somebody's go to make the money. Players: Charles Butterworth, Walter Abel, Hugh Herbert, Una Merkel. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Two-fisted Gentleman." In spite of the title, it is not a Western. It's Jimmy Dunn as a tough guy who has cement between the eyes, with June Clayworth as the sweet young thing. And last, but not least, the redoubtable Buster Crabbe, in No. 5 of Flash Gordon. Please don't crunch the peanut shells.

BROADWAY THEATRE

Monday and Tuesday: "Follow Your Heart." The music is not bad, the acting is fair grade, and there are three shorts. You make your own decision. Players: Marion Talley, Michael Bartlett, Walter Catlett.

Wednesday and Thursday: "Human Cargo." If you want to see how the news-hawks do it, at least in the movies, then this is the chance. It's the story of a star reporter and a society dame who wants to watch the presses roll. Players: Claire Trevor, Brian Donlevy, Ralph Morgan. Three shorts.

Friday and Saturday: "Comin' Round the Mountain." You're right, stranger, it's a shoot-'em-up. Gene (Little Boy Blue) Autry swinging the lariat and crooning to the doggies. Relief: Last chapter (don't miss it!) of "Darkest Africa." We can't wait either.

Coming: "The Great Ziegfeld," at The Casino, with prices at 30c.

P. C. Graduate Marries In N. Y.

Announcement has been received here of the marriage of James Robert Horton, a graduate of P. C., to Miss Elizabeth Juanita Harrison of Liberty, the ceremony taking place earlier in the month at New York's "Little Church Around the Corner."

Mr. Horton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Horton, Clinton. He now holds a position as district manager of Western Union Telegroph company.

The couple will make their home in New York, after a wedding trip to Charleston by boat and a visit to relatives in South Carolina.

Bandsmen Get Snappy Uniforms

Princeton Musicians Now Dress With the Best.

New York. (ACP)—When Princeton swamped the Harvard football team last November by the score of 35 to 0, Tiger fans (except Mr. W. A. G. Le Boutillier — were completely happy.

Mr. Le Boutillier, class of 1910, had noticed another thing other than the score-board. After the game he said:

"Harvard's band was a knockout. And unfortunately, everybody agreed it was. Some of the Princeton rows just knew what through turns, and some were there just to see the game. And the audience were all nothing but an ordinary black sweater and a crazy-looking orange hat."

Now Mr. Le Boutillier and a number of his friends have remedied the situation. They met at the Princeton club recently and formed a group called "Friends of Princeton Band." The secretary sends soliciting contributions from 20,000 alumni.

"The response was fine," said Le Boutillier. "We have already received in the neighborhood of $1,000. We have bought new uniforms, we have started a band fund, and have even purchased some new instruments."

Mrs. Packham Smith, conductor of the Princeton band, tells in a letter to Le Boutillier of the entire change of attitude shown by musicians:

"Eighty per cent more instrumentalists have turned out than ever before. The band as a whole has greater ability this year than in the past. And the drum major is one of the outstanding twirlers in the country."

When asked how this year's band would stack up with Harvard's, Mr. Le Boutillier said: "It will be exactly as good."

College Prexy Talks On Citizens

Believes Future of State Dependent On Youth.

Geneva, N. Y. (ACP)—Dr. William Alfred Eddy, president of Hobart and William Smith colleges, rocked the world of education when he announced a four-year course in responsible citizenship as a requirement for a bachelor's degree in his institutions.

Before an inauguration day audience of 2,000 persons, including representatives of more than 150 colleges and universities and the judiciary of New York state, President Eddy said:

"We believe that the worth of the state in the long run is the worth of the individuals composing it; that irresponsible citizens cannot hope to set up a responsible government; that dishonest individuals cannot expect honest public finance; that jingoistic and bellicose people cannot operate a pacific League of Nations; and that aloof, fastidious scholars will not turn into alumni impassioned for social justice."

"The theory that a liberal education will make a citizen responsible automatically is attractive but untrue. The truth is that a student is infected by the enthusiasms of his campus, whatever they may be. Football, science, literature, or art claim his interest his life long; but where Main street and the town hall are treated as beneath the scholar's contempt, the alumnus is, not unnaturally, equally prone to carry that contempt to the grave."

Declaring himself in favor of active promotion of athletics and every other form of activity on both campuses, Dr. Eddy said:

"I have been puzzled at the notion sometimes expressed that enthusiasm for football is hostile to the intellectual life, as though the lethargy of the classroom would disappear if lethargy could somehow be enforced in the gymnasium. I fail to see how exuberance in athletics, dramatics, or social life inhibits intellectual activity."

Miami Operates On Lean Budget

Oxford, Ohio. (ACP).—Miami university is operating on a lean budget these days. As the result of Governor Martin L. Davey's veto of appropriations amounting to $76,900 for 14 items necessary for the efficient operation of the school, Miami has no funds for library books, supplies, general equipment, repairs, and wages for student assistants and ground workers.

W. P. Roudebush, secretary of the university's board of trustees, states that the school hasn't the authority to incur expenses on credit and that it will have to struggle along without these services and supplies at present.

"It will paralyze the operating and educational activities of the university," he said.

DR. BECKMAN IN TOWN

Dr. Peter Beckman, a graduate of P. C., who is connected with the State hospital, Columbia, was a visitor in Clinton last week.

Dr. Beckman is a psychiatrist and mental hygienist of note. He is the conductor of clinics in mental hygiene throughout the state and has rendered great service in the field of psychiatry.

Several men showed great improvement Friday in the Newberry game and their services are going to be greatly counted upon in the strenuous game in the Tarheel state Saturday. DEACONS DOWN P. C. AT WAKE FOREST

FIVE SENIORS CHOSEN FOR WHO'S WHO

Shoemaker, Collings, Patrick, Love, and Jacobs Selected By Student Council.

TO REPRESENT P. C. IN ANNUAL PUBLICATION

The student council last week nominated five seniors for the annual publication, "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges," the selections being based on qualities of character, scholarship, leadership, and possibility of future usefulness.

Purpose Of Book

Who's Who, published at the University of Alabama, last year contained biographies of students from over 400 universities and colleges throughout the country. Its purposes, as stated by the editor, are to furnish incentive to students, to serve as a means of compensaton, and as a recommendation to the business and social world: The number of students selected by each college is limited to one per cent of the student body, except in cases of colleges with enrollments of less than 500, in which cases a total of five is allowed.

I.R.C. Chooses New Members For Group

The International Relations club tests, open to the entire student body for the first time this year, were held by Dean Brown Thursday afternoon for the purpose of selecting 13 new members for the club.

The test was strictly objective, in which there were questions concerning current events in the United State, foreign countries, and ordinary daily news items of interest. Many of the questions were based on the political situation of the world while there were also a number of queries concerning the identification of world-famous persons.

For the first time this test was open to the entire student body including freshmen as well as co-eds. Heretofore, the tests have been open only to upperclassmen.

The questions used in the test, said Dean Brown came chiefly from such magazines as Time, Literary Digest, and other publications containing items of world interest. Most of the questions concerning foreign affairs came from the Literary Digest.

New Members

Of the 35 who took the test, the following 13 were high-scorers and were therefore selected as new members of the club: Verna McLeod, R. K. Timmons, these two making the highest marks; Dugald Hudson, Cliff H. McLeod, E. S. Buchan, Fred Allen, John Stubbs, Louis Heckle, Arthur McElroy, Creswell Fleming, William Gilmore, Myra Wise and Malcolm Norton.

Tom Newland, president of I. R .C., announced today that the first regular meeting of the year will be held Wednesday night at 7 o'clock. Both old and new members will be present and the old members will present an interesting program.

EUREKA!

For the first time this year residents of Spencer and Alumni dormitories and frequenters of the science hall and administration building this morning heard the faint gurglings of steam in the radiators of buildings.

Begun soon after the opening of school in September, actual laying of the pipe for the heating system was completed last week, but it was then found that the boiler had sprung leaks that would require expert attention. A man was brought from out of town and work was completed last night.

Students who now shiver from force of habit were making rapid plans this morning for thanksgiving services at points of vantage in the several buildings affected.

Home Guards To Give Dance Dec. 12

Will Follow Military Ball. M. H. Jacobs Heads Committee.

Upon the election last week of Montague Jacobs, Kingstree, as chairman of the non-military students, it was definitely announced that the home guard would sponsor a Saturday night dance on December 12, the night following the military ball.

As plans now stand, the military will sponsor the Friday night ball, the "Muskateers", local military club, the Saturday afternoon tea dance, and the home guard the Saturday night dance. Harris Gray and his orchestra will furnish the music, and will probably have as an added attraction a torch singer brought over from Limestone College, Gaffney.

Committee

Jacobs' election to head of the home guard was done at chapel on Tuesday. Jim Collings, cadet major, appointed Sadler Love and Jacobs to act as temporary chairmen of the home guards and, in the election that followed, Jacobs was elected permanent chairman from a list of three nominees. He has appointed a committee of Love, Wallace, W. R., Degner, and Buchan, with himself as chairman, to finance the project.

MILITARY WILL STAGE SHOW AT FURMAN GAME

Sham Battle To Take Place During Friday Night. Soph Platoon Will Not Drill.

BANDS OF FURMAN AND P. C. TO PLAY

A sham battle with the field in darkness and music by the bands of both schools Friday night will be the highlights of the activities arranged as side features of the Furman-P. C. game to be played on Johnson field.

Tickets for the game have been on sale for several days and sales prophsy the largest crowd ever to assemble on the local field. All seats are reserved and admission will be $1.65, all seats going at this price.

Bleacher Seats

Negotiations are under way for the placing of bleacher seats at the end of the field and, should this be possible, children will be admitted to these for 40c. Otherwise, all seats will be $1.65.

P. C. students will be admitted to reserved seats in the south stands by presentation of their athletic tickets and a ticket stub to be obtained from the office of J. H. Hunter, business manager.

Friday night's sham battle is under the supervision of the military department and plans are that machine guns, rifles, and a field piece will be used. Last year's exhibition at the Newberry homecoming game was outstanding from the point of spectator interest and Friday's battle will eclipse that of last year, say participants.

Although it was stated last week that the sophomore platoon would drill at the half, Ashby E. Johnson, cadet commander of the drill unit, said this morning that this was an error and the platoon would not make a public appearance until November 21, homecoming.

The Hurricane, favored to win because of its defeat of the Citadel team that trounced P. C., will find tough going because of the return to the line-up of injured regulars. Also, the fact that the Hose will be fighting on their home field will help to even matters.

GRADES

Grades for the mid-semester will go in at the end of this week, said Mrs. Lillian Brown, registrar, this afternoon. The second month will end on Saturday, and professors have until Tuesday to report grades to the registrar's office.

Following the new method initiated this year, students will obtain marks from their faculty advisers, this information being obtainable by Thursday or Friday of next week. For mid-semester reports, not only are failures and near-failures recorded but averages in each subject.

Enterprising students may obtain their grades from their faculty adviser, write home immediately, and thereby get a letter to irate parents giving alibis before the reports reach their destination.

Rev. J. N. Thomas To Preach Here

Charleston Minister To Lead Services Sunday Afternoon.

Sunday afternoon at 3:30 the second of the series of YMCA services, featuring some of South Carolina's most prominent ministers, will be held in the college chapel, Reverend J. N. Thomas, pastor of the Second Presbyterian Church, Charleston, having been secured for this occasion.

Rev. Thomas is one of the state's most popular ministers. He is of the type which appeals especially to the young people. In view of this fact, the YMCA chose him to speak.

Services conducted a week ago by Rev. J. H. Marion, Rock Hill, were well attended and YMCA officials today expressed the hope that Sunday's services would likewise draw a number of students. Since Dr. Thomas is both well known and well liked thruout the state, indications are that attendance will be excellent.

Daniel, Wake Forest Back, Is Star of Game For Demon Deacons Saturday.

ENTIRE P. C. LINE FUNCTIONS WELL

Wake Forest shoved across three touchdowns to register an expected 19 to 0 victory over Presbyterian Saturday night in a chilly get-together. Three thousand spectators shivered from the cold blasts of winter as they watched Hobo Daniel and Dallas Morris in touchdown sprints, featured by Morris' 62-yard return of a punt.

The Blue Stocking offense was held at bay throughout the game, despite a pair of threats in the third and fourth quarters. In the third, Weldon ran the kickoff back to his 30-yard line, and the Johnsonites inaugurated a drive that reached the Wake Forest 15-yard mark before a pass interception brought it to an end.

Hipp, Holcombe, Davis

The Blue Stockings exhibited flashes of neat defensive work, this being especially apparent in the second quarter. Hipp, Holcombe, and Davis were the defensive stars. Holcomb, in the first string line-up, recovered a fumble and played a heads-up game along with Hipp and Davis.

Dennard accounted for three of P. C.'s six first downs with some fancy footwork in the last quarter.

First Tally

The Demon Deacons made their first score in the second quarter. Warren stepped out for gains of 16 and 18 yards. Daniel and Morris plowed the line, and Daniel bucked the line to climax a drive that had originated on the Wake Forest 38-yard stripe. Early in the third period, the Deacons got started again. Daniel passed to Mauney for a 20-yard gain, and Daniel skirted end for 29 yards and a touchdown. The Blue Stockings received the kickoff, but could not gain. They punted, and Morris stepped of 62 yards in a beautiful touchdown run.

Wake Forest made 11 first downs to Presbyterian's six, and piled up a rushing total of 289 yards to the Hosemen's 85. Both coaches drew heavily on their reserves during the course of play.

The starting lineups:

Presbyterian	Wake Forest
LE—Holcombe	Shore
LT—Boswell	Beaver
LG—Shaemaker	Souther
C—Cox	Dale
RG—Davis	Bryan
RT—Hipp	Swan
RE—Batchelor	Mauney
QB—Degner	Allen
LH—Reynolds	Morris
RH—Weldon	Warren
FB—Jacobs	Daniel

Score by periods:

Wake Forest	0	6	13	0	19

Scoring touchdowns: Daniel (2), Morris. Point after touchdown, Morris (placement).

Officials: Referee, Graham (Notre Dame); umpire, Hill (Wofford); head linesman, Burke (Illinois).

INFORMAL BLUE STOCKING POLL DETERMINES HOW P. C. COLLEGIANS WILL VOTE.

Tomorrow millions of people in the nation will go to the polls to scratch ballots and send to the White House some poor, innocent candidate who never did anybody any harm. Tonight P. C.'s political parties will do eleventh hour organizing, brother will turn against brother, fraternity lines will falter, even NYA workers will forget their picks in the mad enthusiasm that is expected to rock the campus.

Lacking the time, the initiative, the energy, and the foresight to conduct a campus poll to determine the trend of national politics, the Blue Stocking last night made an informal count of various political factions. Not unlike The Digest poll, The Blue Stocking poll is an attempt to obtain cross-cut opinions of the number 1 choice for president.

No Committee Members

Smyth lay silent, most of the boys having gone to Christian Endeavor. But at last we found one Montague Jacobs, who was studying business law. "Who," we asked, "do you want for president?"

The stalwart football end dropped his book with a clatter. "How many more times have I got to tell you guys that the committee's full? You're gonna keep worryin' me till they'll be so many on the committee nobody will come to the dance!"

Laurens hall, lying adjacent, was the next object of your reporter's affections. Said Tarzan Langston in answer to our query, "Don't worry me, don't worry me. Can't you see I got work to do?" He continued his setting up exercises.

Bryan For President

Our first victim in Alumni, known erroneously as "Frog Hollow", was "Yippee" Jacobson, chapel monitor. "'Yippee' ", we said, "what about the presidential election tomorrow? Who do you think will go in?"

"Yippee" thought long and carefully. "Well", he said, "I'm not sure, but it looks like to me William Jennings Bryan will break the tape first".

Just as we went out we saw "King Kong" Cappelmann. Before we could get by he saw the pencil and notecut and stopped us. We tried to pop the question but he would not tarry. "Just say that it's O.K. If you can't play football, but I'm not in favor of tearing up the chapel seats to make an indoor court." And all the time your correspondent was trying to get out of the door.

Blease Strong In Spencer

The boys in Spencer, with the memory of cold weather still fresh in their minds, were wrapped in red flannels. Coleman (Windy) Cross pulled his head from under a pillow. "Friend," he muttered, "It don't matter to me. If you gotta quote me, I reckon Cole

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Listening to the various comments on the subject every Monday night, we decided to ask this week, "WHAT FEATURE OF THE BLUE STOCKING DO YOU THINK ADDS MOST TO THE PAPER?"

Here is what CHESTER KELLER told us:

"The editorial page is so rich and thoughtful in its presentation of practical questions that I unhesitatingly cast my vote for the editorials as the most outstandnig department of the paper."

NEIL WILSON, however, presented another thought, as he said:

"I find the book review section of The Blue Stocking not only interesting but also very beneficial in selecting just which book I would like to read. I wish to especially commend the writer's review of Margaret Mitchell's "Gone With the Wind," in which he adequately embodies within a few words the spirit and character of a long and intricately woven novel."

Next we asked genial "JUNE" MOORE, who replied:

"I think the sports page adds most to The Blue Stocking. I believe that today a college is rated by its sports as well as scholarship, and the sports page brings the sports of Presbyterian college to the eyes of the students. PENLAND'S 'Pen-Points" also keeps us familiar with the athletic programs of other schools in the state. This is why I think the sports page adds most to the paper.

We asked Freshman JULIAN JONES, who put down his "traveling rock pile" and told us:

"I think the editorials each week add most to The Blue Stocking and are more widely read than any other section or department."

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

And to venture that we'd like to see a sign placed outside the "Y" building notifying the general public that it is the Y.M.C.A. We've got something, let's let visitors know we have.

* * * * * *

And to rejoice that I.R.C. has at last shown a little life. For awhile we thought the Spanish revolution or something had cleaned up the organization.

* * * * * *

If demons really did run up at Wake Forest Saturday night. We've heard a lot about demons, but Demon Deacons seem to have them beat.

* * * * * *

And to hope, continuing along the same line, that all Baptists aren't so tough. We'd like to see a certain tornado we know dribble out into a gentle breeze and the house of magic destroyed by fire.

What law the college would have broken had the repairs to the heating plant been completed before school opened, rather than when the thermometer was hovering around the freezing point and students were hovering around electric irons trying to keep warm.

Breaking the Ice

Last week the newly-formed student advisory committee held its first session and recommended to the faculty the exemption of seniors from compulsory chapel attendance in accordance with a senior petition requesting such action. It was believed the faculty would meet shortly thereafter, but no meeting has been held and announcement of decision will have to come next week.

Granting the senior petition is the first recommendation the new committee has sent to the faculty bearing the stamp of approval of the organization. We have already stated that we believe such a change would further the cause of true religion on the campus. We have already inferred that forcing seniors to attend daily chapel is much like forcing a small boy to eat ice cream. After a few years the cream begins to sour in his mouth if for no other reason than because he is forced to eat it.

Organized in an attempt to bring about a better undrstanding and feeling of cooperation between student body and the faculty and administration, the committee's first venture—its recommendation that seniors be exempted from compulsory chaped—will put to somewhat of a test the faculty's willingness to meet the student organization half-way. Granting senior chapel exemption will be a minor concession, but its result may be very far-reaching in building up a better spirit of mutual regard.

Faculty and student observers will watch with keen interest the outcome of P. C.'s latest development in student government, and will sincerely hope that the new committee's attempt to bring about closer cooperation will not be slowed, at least until it has grown to sufficient strength to merit its continuance next year.

Rah-Rah Boys

Friday night you will sit in the south stands, perhaps with a date by your side, and cluck with impatience when the halfback muffs a pass. You'll whistle and stamp your feet when, and if, P. C. makes a touchdown. When Furman makes a nice gain you'll sigh heavily and mutter about the guards or tackles. And down in front, on the gravel path, three or four fellows with megaphones will turn purple in the face and grind their teeth trying to get you to do a little organized cheering.

We want you to see what people throughout the state think of the fighting qualities of P. C. teams. We want you to concentrate on what they will think if the students in the south stands are not making themselves heard Friday night.

Leading cheers is not in itself especially pleasant. But leading cheers that shade off into whispers must be exquisite torture. If the student body will resolve to stick with the cheer leaders, win or lose, this business of holding the megaphone will not be such a thankless task.

The Gleaner

An inquiring reporter from The Old Gold and Black of Wofford put the following question to victims: "What is your opinion of Wofford students as a whole?" Most of the business people said they were good old boys, but the local belles thought that "Clemson boys are duckier." Now ain't that something? It looks like its open season on Terriers, what with Erskine boys loping all over the place not so long ago.

Applicable in nine cases out of ten, the following little ditty, squib, or what have you, would certainly not apply to the current thriller, "Flash Gordon":

For you, my love, for you,
I'd battle snow and ice.
There's just one thing I'll never do,
And that's see the same show twice.
—Los Angeles Junior Collegian.

Life of a P. C. joke: Freshman military student borrows Esquire from the major and memorizes best joke he can find. Tells it to Forehand at football practice. Forehand says, "Some stuff. Heard it when I was playing end my sophomore year." Aforementioned Forehand passes it on to Pudge Plowden, who thinks awhile and then swears it started in Summerton some years ago, and wasn't so hot then. Laughs to date: Nary one. Two months later, Dr. Fish tells it in zoology class and students stomp floor out of classroom and roll in aisles with savage mirth.

It seems, from what the Auburn Plainsman has to say, that guys and dolls out West are plenty tough. Many citizens will not believe the following little tale:

First Westerner: Yes, stranger, I lost my wife in a card game.

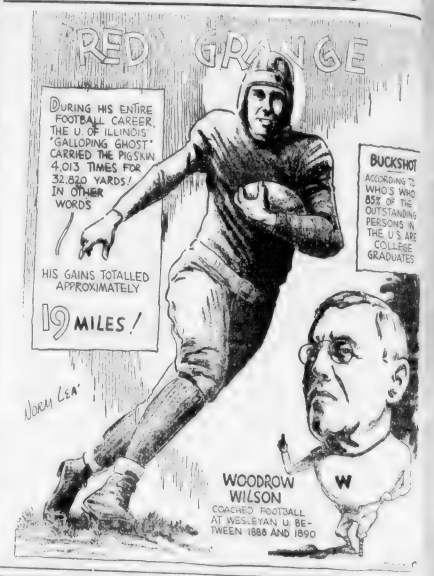
Second Westerner: What! You mean you put her up as a stake?

First Westerner: No. She trumped my ace and I shot her.

We don't know just how to take the harsh words Winthrop's Johnsonian flung our way last week. Being of a sociable disposition, we pass them on to you, fair reader. Said The Johnsonian: P. C.'s Gleaner seems to be trying to usurp the place of Oscar of The Tiger in our affections. End quote.

About all we can remember about that little spat is that Oscar wanted the girls to name their paper "The Tigress." But that's not worrying us. What gets us, in the light of some of the cracks the lassies have printed, is what that word "usurp" means. We wonder if it has anything to do with the little verse snipped from some exchange and labelled "Punishment":

I kissed her tempting ruby lips
An act quite diabolic,
For since I stole those honeyed sips
I have the painter's colic.



It seems that over at Erskine they sling some kind of a party or frolic known as a "soiree." Now a soiree, be it known, is a gathering, a get-together, a social, engaged in by members of the men's student body in joint session with members of the female student body. The following is taken from The Mirror's account of one of these institutions:

I hear first—soulful singing, silly serenading, raucous racket or what have you?—then pattering raindrops—crunching footsteps—fading voices—deepening silence.—They've gone.

Ah, me! A few chords, professor, a few chords while we stand and sing three verses from "Baby, Won't You Please Come Home." And don't go 'way cause that ain't all!

Johns Hopkins is seeking a fund of $500,000 to balance its budget.

YOU'RE Telling US

Arctic Regions of Spencer,

Dear Editor:

We are beginning to get warm under the collar in spite of the fact that the thermometer in our room is registering little more than the size of our waists. (Name is not C. D. Jacobs, either). If we can thaw out the bearing of this typewriter and manipulate said machine in spite of the encumbrance of an overcoat, we'd like to formally gripe about the situation.

They did dig the ditches for the new lines this summer, but they had to wait until cold weather to lay the pipes. They had to get the pipes laid before they could test the boiler (to count the leaks); then they had to send for a man to fix the boiler, and the next step hasn't been started yet.

Waiting for cold weather before repairing the heating system is like taking out insurance after the house burns, but we don't need to patch the roof when the sun is shining, and we can't do it when it is raining.

Do we get a refund on the money the college didn't spend for our coal (cold)?

Frigidly,
Two '37's.

Perhaps the thing that is most taken for granted, after the fact that music will emerge, or some sound, when we turn on the radio, is the announcer. He is omnipresent and forms a much more important cog in the machinery of broadcasting than casual opinion would surmise.

As an inspiration to young hopefuls, announcing does not hold out much chance for a position, or soft work in a position. The radio announcer has the most diverse hours of any sane human being except night watchmen and a few other benighted persons. His pay has none of the multiple zews that one is acquainted with in everyday movie envelopes. His requirements are so rigid that one degree does not start the enumeration of those after the names of most of the crack announcers of the day.

Correct Diction

There must be fluent and correct diction, primarily, in an announcer, and it is easy to see how Southern drawls or Western and Northern brogues could effectively kill any chances of otherwise capable announcers on the networks. A knowledge of language is required, and the cool judgment of an announcer under emergency studio condition is proved before he has a national opportunity to let a superb silence escape him.

One announcer at the conclusion of a program saw the tense leading lady throw her script away and prepare for a glad yell of relief. Quick action prevented a cry of Banshee proportions from startling half a million happy homes. Another lady was reading her script and came to a place where she had lost a sheet. With a "back in a minute" she dashed out of the studio to get the lost page. The announcer had the happy idea of inventing "a page from our musical album while Mrs. Smith finds her s ing one."

$100 Is Tops

The pay of $100 a week is near for announcers. Consider the tops other fields and you perceive why profession is not overcrowded. Hay on Amos and Andy, Jimmy Wi lington with Eddie Cantor, Don W son with Jack Benny, and Mi Cross with General Motors and Ma Key are a few of the best announce They have the gift of adapting announcing so that it becomes an tegral part of the program. This one of the best means of becoming fine announcer.

The next time you listen to y newscast, or your favorite cigare program, or to late orchestras, thi of and notice the quiet care wh the announcers unfailingly exerci They deserve a lot of credit.

The Collegiate World

It's fairly late to be giving advi to men who are about to exprience Leap Year date, but males at Was ington University, knowing that suc things will be going on until Decembe 31st, offer these suggestions to a collegians:

Be sure to keep your escort waiting at least 20 minutes.

Load your pockets with combs, powder puffs, and mirrors. She will b disappointed if she hasn't anything t carry.

Of course she'll provide you with cigarettes and gum. Under no circumstances light your own cigarette. I would make her feel bad.

During intermissions in dancing order at least a double chocolate malted milk. She doesn't want you to think she's a miser.

Be subdued and meek at all times, but insist on your rights. Taxis are availabe at all hours.

Prof Schlitz, at a certain Southern college, wants all his students to answer "here" instead of "present" when he calls the roll. Perverse Mr. Space usually insisted on answering "present" when he heard his name—much to the displeasure of the prof.

One day Professor Schlitz was in ill humor. He called the roll and got the class-anticipated "present" from Mr. Space.

"Present, hell," shouted the professor, "you're here like the rest of us. This ain't no Sunday School."

Why waste "pin money" on pinball machines? -Students of Ohio State University, according to a survey conducted a short time ago, spend on an average $1,500 a month on these machines. Losers never seem to abandon the idea that they can beat the "pinball pirates". Losing is only added stimulus to play again.

Dr. B. M. Wood, of the University of California, warns everybody of the futility because of the results of his experiments. Using a mechanically accurate release, he hit the designated hole ony 28 times in 865 attempts for one score in about every 33 shots. Using a hand release, he was successful only 14 times in the same number of shots.

"You just can't win on a pinball machine," says Dr. Wood, but he knows secretly that his findings won't deter the ever-egotistic people who have overheated coins in their pockets.

DEAN BROWN ADDRESSES 'Y'

P. C. Faculty Member Tells of Trip Through New England States During Summer.

A number of interested students heard Dean Marshall Brown Thursday night at the YMCA meeting in an address on his tour of the eastern and northern states this summer. He stated as his purpose the giving to his listeners a factoral relation of the tour.

Mr. Brown traced his travels from his first stop—historic Williamsburg, Virginia, where he encountered many interesting relics of the old days. Leaving Williamsburg, he went to Charlottesville, where he visited the homes of Thomas Jefferson and James Monroe.

From there he continued his route upward through Richmond, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, Princeton, New York, and into the New England states. Making an extensive tour of these states, he then traveled through Maine into Canada.

Visits Quebec

While in Canada, he visted Quebec, which he described as one of the most picturesque places in North America. He also visited the shrine of St. Anne. From Quebec he went to Montreal, which he described as a prosperous American city.

His route then returned to the United States where he visited the universities of Michigan and Wisconsin, respectively. From these universities, he began his tour down through St. Louis to New Orleans. He made the statement that New Orleans was the most interesting city he visited.

Mr. Brown was accompanied on this tour by Mrs. Brown and was traveling in the interest of the college, contacting the more prominent universities in the east and north.

Frosh Council For 'Y' Meets

Tuesday night the freshman Y. M. C. A. council met at the "Y", R. W. Williams, chairman of the freshman council, presiding.

During the meeting, various plans for the year were formed. The chairman appointed several committees to carry on specific parts of the council's work. Several speakers, including Major Wysor, Professor Boyd and Dr. Dudley Jones will be heard at future meetings.

The meeting was brought to a close with a talk by the chairman. He urged the members to seek to improve themselves physically, mentally, and spiritually while at P. C.; and by their influence, to lead other to do likewise.

REPORTER DISCOVERS EXISTENCE OF STRANGE MALADY ON CAMPUS

FINDS THAT DISEASE SEEMINGLY CHAINS VICTIM TO CHAIR. MANY SUFFER.

To the ranks of sophisticated and blase seniors down through the less erudite classes to the noisy freshmen there has come a dread disease that touches a few and then moves on. These need only to speak a word before they have given this dire affliction to others. It seems that the campus must needs be warned of the dangers incurred in running afoul of one of these sad and lonely waifs on the outskirts of humanity.

The symptoms are almost never all present in the subject at once, but they usually occur about six or eight hours before normal bed-time in the "Y" building and often it requires several strong men to tear the victim away from his seat. It appears that these deathly pale creatures seek company, for they invariably collect in twos on opposite sides of a table and sit in a tensed, humped position, their hands trembling uncontrollably and their breath coming in soft gasps.

More Symptoms

Every now and again (at intervals of from one to sixty minutes) one reaches forth a trembling forefinger and seems to push at a small (perhaps imaginary) object. The other will usually roll his eyes in terror, and utter cries of "Czech! Czech!" Some call this the Hungarian mädness from this peculiar utterance. Others may put their own interpretation on the shivering and sweating fits that accompany a movement by either of the two. On the movement of one, his companion usually cries some unintelligible gibberish sounding like "uraschnaik". The one who moves, leers and drolls appreciatively at the mouth when he hears these queer cries.

After hours and hours, perhaps the fortune-favored observer will see color coming back to the cheeks of one of the diseased and he may get up and totter to his nearest support screaming "czech mayet" or some similar sound. The second of the pair will often faint on hearing this really astounding cry.

After a deal of medical reseach, the doctors have pronounced the disease involuntary and a subdued branch of hysteria. A few of the most noted say it dates from antiquity and call it by the name of "chess". Be careful the next time you see a red and black beard with a snarling beast-man on either side. He might infect you!

Musketeers Pick Legare President

Plunkett Vice-President, and Thompson SecretaryTreasurer of Organization.

Ben W. Legare, North Charleston, was elected president of "The Musketeers," local military organization, to fill the unexpired term of Dill Ellis, who left P. C. to attend West Point.

Legare is cadet captain of company "C", R. O. T. C. editor of The Blue Stocking, and has been prominent in military affairs. He announced as the first project of the year the sponsoring of the tea dance on the Saturday afternoon following the military ball.

George Plunkett, Conyers, Ga., was chosen vice-president of the organization, and Bill Thompson, Camden, secretary-treasurer. Other members include Bird, Patrick, Collings, and Patterson.

Y.M.C.A. To Hear Goldville Minister

Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., announced today that Rev. E. S. Jones, pastor of the Goldville Methodist church, would conduct the weekly services Thursday night.

The subject of Mr. Jones' talk could not be obtained, but he is expected to deliver an interesting lecture on the Bible. "Y" officials expect a program of this nature to be well attended.

BLOCK "P" TO HOLD DANCE AFTER GAME

Athletic Organization To Stage Affair On Night After Homecoming Game With Wofford.

That a dance would be held on November 21, the night following the homecoming game against Wofford, today became a certainty with the announcement by President E. W. Evans that the Block "P" club would sponsor such an affair.

To make final arrangements for the event, Evans appointed a committee of Marion Bird, Joe Patrick, and Joe Commander. Present plans are that the dance will begin at 8:30 and last until midnight, Harris Gray and his orchestra furnishing the music.

Script

The usual price of P. C. Saturday night dances, $1.00, will in all probability be the admission.

Since homecoming this year is expected to be an outstanding occasion of the year and many alumni and friends of the college are to be on the campus, officials of the club today stated that an excellent attendance was anticipated.

SENIORS TEACH AT CAMP

Three P. C. seniors last week began educational extension work at a Negro CCC camp outside of Clinton, the teaching counting toward requirements in education.

The three men, B. W. Legare, D. M. Mann, and C. E. Johnson, last week observed present methods at the camp and this week will begin active work.

Lucky for You
—It's a Light Smoke!

NO PENALTIES FOR THROATS!
—It's a light smoke
If you're hoarse at the game, it won't be from smoking...if yours is a light smoke—a Lucky. When the man with the basket yells "cigars, cigarettes," yell back for a light smoke . . . yell "Luckies!"

Guard that throat!

Block that cough...that raw irritation...reach for a light smoke...a Lucky! Whether you're shouting, and cheering the team, or just talking and singing and laughing at home, there's a tax on your throat you can hardly ignore. So when choosing your smoke, it pays to think twice. Reach for a light smoke...a Lucky...and get the welcome throat protection that only Luckies offer—the exclusive protection of the process, "It's Toasted." Next time you go places, take plenty of Luckies. They not only taste good, but keep tasting good all day long...for Luckies are a light smoke—and a light smoke leaves a clear throat—a clean taste.

P. C. Holds Place In State Race

Furman and Clemson Lead the Loop, With Carolina and Citadel Next In Order.

Carolina's 9 to 0 defeat of The Citadel last week removed the Bulldogs from championship competition, while P. C., which did not face a state foe, held to the fifth place position in the state football race.

Furman and Clemson, each having won two games within the state and lost none, hold the top hand in the Palmetto bracket. Should either suffer a defeat before their Thanksgiving day battle the picture of championship would be speeded.

Far to the bottom of the list are Newberry and Wofford, neither having been in a state game and both having been defeated twice.

In points scored, Citadel leads with 78 and Carolina tucks in second with 47. Presbyterian has 41 tallies to take fourth scoring place.

	Won	Lost	Pts.	Opp. Pts.

Furman 20, Presbyterian 0.

Last week we predicted a three-touchdown victory for Wake Forest, and so did it be. And now, along comes Furman. P. C. has been pointing for this game all year, and will be in an advantageous position, in that the boys will be cavorting on home soil. Then, too, Furman just filled a mighty tough assignment in licking Davidson, and runs into some more mean competition after their trip to Clinton. But they can't let down, what with their clean state slate and their reputation at stake.

We predict a 20 to 0 victory for the Hurricane—but if the Blue Stockings succeed in calming it down to a light breeze, this little piggie will go to market with no regrets.

THE HALF-WAY MARK

Football season has passed the half-way mark, with only three weeks of competition remaining for state teams. The title race early divided into two groups, the Big and Little Four. The latter group is currently headed by the Blue Stockings from P. C., who have won from Erskine and Newberry. If they defeat their remaining opponent, Wofford, they will have established Little Four supremacy. This game promises plenty as a close, interesting scrap between two evenly matched teams.

The Big Four has Clemson and Furman in the leading roles. Carolina and Citadel are running third and fourth, respectively, with neither in position to capture first place. The Clemson-Furman game should again take the limelight, with two undefeated teams facing each other and the Palmetto crown awaiting the winner. Last year Furman upset the previously undefeated Tigers, and has enough power to repeat this year.

AROUND THE CIRCUIT

Twenty thousand, the largest crowd ever to attend a sporting event in South Carolina, witnessed the annual Carolina-Clemson spectacle in Columbia during Fair week . . . The same number of deaths resulting from football participation has occurred this year, to date, as was recorded during the 1935 season . . . Clemson's national football rating for 1935 was ninety-fifth . . . South Carolina's Gamecocks' place two hundred and thirteenth . . . P. C. didn't rate . . . Hawk Evans hopes to play big league baseball some day.

Boxing Practice To Start Soon

Cappelmann Leads P. C. Hopes. Intramural Fighters To Enter.

Fourteen upperclassmen and twelve freshmen signed up for boxing last week and practice will start immediately after the close of the football season late in November. Already several candidates have begun to take workouts.

For the varsity, Coleman, Moore, Nettles and Lambright seem to be the brightest prospects, with Cappelmann practicall always a sure winner. They showed up unusually well in intramurals last year. The freshman group includes a state high school champion from North Caroina, R. Buchan.

A schedule of mathes will be announced within the next two weeks. The complete list of candidates is as follows: varsity: Clements, Evans, Hiers, Carson, Coleman, Kimbo, June Moore, Williams, Burns, Todd, Nettles, James Booth, M. Moore, and Lambright; freshmen: Carroll, Spratt, R. Buchan, McKellar, Bryant, Worrell, Buie, Crews, Griffin Moore, Allen, and Rawls.

Injured Players Much Improved

Only Correll and Waldrep To Be Kept Out Friday.

Recovering slowly from injuries received in the Citadel game two weeks ago, nine P. C. football players this week continued to show improvement.

Of the men on the injured list only two are expected to be held out of the Furman game Friday night. Ralph Waldrep, end, received a kidney injury and definitely will be out, perhaps for the remainder of the season. Vic Correll, first string guard, has shown some improvement, but probably will not be able to play this week.

Other men not making the Wake Forest trip because of injuries, including Bird, Beeman, Cappelmann, and Culp, will be used if their improvement continues.

J. B. Jacobs, who received a slight knee injury in the Wake Forest game, will take things light in practice this week but will be able to start against the Baptists.

FROSH OUTFIT TO MEET CUBS IN THIRD TILT

Clemson Favored Because of Win Over Strong Carolina Team Last Week.

The baby Blue Hose, drilling hard in preparation for their encounter with the Clemson Cubs Friday at Clemson, Saturday completed a week's work in which Coaches Waldrep and Forehand pointed out and corrected the mistakes of the Newberry game. Much time was spent polishing the offense and improving the defense against line smashes.

The entire squad, with the exception of Thompson, is in good condition and is expected to put up a good fight against the rats from Clemson. However, the kicking foot of Thompson will be greatly missed. The Cubs will be favored to win because of their victory over the strong Carolina frosh.

Coach Waldrep would not announce a starting lineup, but indicated that most of the squad would see service before the game was over. Stars in the Newberry game who are expected to show up well against Clemson include Moore and Aycock in the line, and Swift and Griffin in the backfield.

Ready To Go

PITT BIRD

Unable to make the Wake Forest trip because of injuries. Bird, Columbia, senior linesman, has had his hands full with the injury jinx. Now on the road to improvement, he is expected to see service in the Furman mix-up.

PASS IN REVIEW

SIMON LEGARE

Blizzards descend from the north—the military takes to the gym—Spencer inhabitants descend en masse on the "Y" building—professors lecture with chattering teeth—it's flannel time down South.

It begins to look as though the system of trenches which have turned our campus into a mole hill would never produce any heat. Why not utilize them for war games? Students of Spencer and Alumni could drive whoever is responsible for this lack of heat into the ditches and shell them with clods of dirt mixed with rocks. Maybe the administration is trying to literally "Make Men" by immuning our bodies to cold. Perhaps a few pneumonia deaths followed by lawsuits would help. Anything to drive the ones responsible from their cozy, heat-filled houses and make them realize that the residents of the above mentioned dormitories were rapidly freezing.

The Musketeers Club, organized two years ago as a forerunner of Scabbard and Blade, has begun to take an active part in campus affairs. Though there are only six members of the group left, they will undertake to put on the ten dance on December 12 as an opening to bigger things. An honorary military fraternity is needed on this campus. Perhaps the unit is too small for a membership in Scabbard and Blade, but it can support a local chapter.

Rats who have been called before the battalion to give commands had better take advantage of this opportunity and show their wares. Unusual ability will be remembered when corporals are picked

Roy Forehand, Lee Quarterman and Alfred Plowden, all either coaching or doing post-graduate work, have been assigned to the military department to act as supervisors in company drill. By doing this work these men, second-lieutenants in the O.R.C., will be credited with six hours a month towards their first-lieutenant bars in the reserves.

Plowden has been assigned to Company "A", Quarterman to "B", and Forehand to "C". Plowden and Quarterman were lieutenants here last year and Forehand was a captain. These men should render valuable assistance to the corps.

Well, it looks like Benny and Adolph have decided to get together and run the big show across the pond. We wonder how the boys will decide which is to be head man. We also wonder how Hitler will keep his Saxon strain Pure, and Mussolini his Latin. If the two countries are to be allied, the well-laid plans of men and dictators may go amiss.

P. C. TO FACE STRONG FURMAN TEAM HERE FRIDAY NIGHT AT 8

Blue Stockings Begin Drill For Game With Famous House of Magic. Exhibition Between Halves Will Be Feature.

Presbyterian College continues to plod along its Murderer's Row football schedule Friday with a night tilt finding Furman University as their opponents. After seeing some fast company in Wake Forest last week, The Hose are pointing for the Furman clash this week. The game should prove to be a thriller as the schools are traditional rivals and put up stiff fights when pitted against each other.

In the dope-book, Furman holds the upper hand by virtue of the sparkling play against Georgia, the win over The Citadel, and the overwhelming victory over Mercer University. But P. C. will by no means be an easy win for the Furman boys to grab off without a stiff struggle.

Blue Hose Ready

The Calvinist squad, undaunted by their defeat at the hands of the Wake Forest Deacons last week, drove hard today in preparing for the Furman classic Friday night. Coach Walter Johnson expressed the belief that he would be able to send a full strength eleven against the purple-clad Baptists from Greenville. Although four guards and two centers are on the casualty list, they should all be ready and eager for action at the starting whistle on Johnson field Friday night.

Added attractions at the game will be a fancy drill platoon and a sham battle which will take place at the half. The former executes its movements without commands and in a very pretty military spectacle. The latter, instructed by Major Wysor, shows some of the real theories of Military Science applied on the battle-field.

Juniors To Use White Uniforms

Seniors Decide Not To Purchase Dress Outfit.

By Ashby Johnson

The matter of summer uniforms for members of the advanced corps of the college military department was settled last week when the members of the senior class voted to discard the idea and the juniors decded to buy a full-dress white outht.

Impressed by the stories of seniors returning from camp who greatly bemoaned the need for such an outfit at Anniston, the juniors held several meetings to decide what action the class should take. Major Wysor suggested that either a white military mess-jacket or a dress uniform would solve the problem. After some discussion, a majority of the juniors declared themselves in favor of the complete white outfit.

Shoulder Knots

The uniform selected is the regulation white duck variety. These may be worn as standard uniform by those members who continue their military training, either with the Officers Reserve Corps or with the reguar army. While in college the men will wear shoulder knots of the college colors which will be removed for wear after graduation.

Since the entire corps is not similarly outfitted, the juniors will not wear the new uniforms to drills or formations at school. However, they should be of great service at military social functions and at the summer encampment.

Added attractions at the game will be a sham battle to be fought during the half, with the field lights off, and band music by P. C. and Furman bands.

Caught: RAT B. MOORE is that way about a GOOD gal back in York County—that's her name. Roses'n Lilacs: BEBE DILLARD takes our vote for the sweetest co-ed. Speed: "AGGIE" JONES has dated 15 different boys in the last two weeks. Some Stew: "DITTY" BIRD having to pay $1 to the city of Greenville for jay walking.

"SCREW-ARM" SUGGS AND "HAWK" EVANS are mowing down competition for the favor of two cute little girls down Ninety Six way. They are all set on having their way—even the old folks leave home when the two gallants arrive. The last time they were down the house was theirs all alone—"and not a creature was stirring, not even a mouse"—Oh Yeah!

ALLAN (TIMID) JONES is the most bashful man in school. Last week he had a date with a cute school teacher in Laurens, but when he called to ask if it would be all right to come on out she informed him that she was "correcting papers", but to come on. Our hero's heart failed him and he never went. Now if that ain't being bashful, "goodness gracious".

"Much love to my DARLING COTTON from your Betty"—Its wonderful how that phrase can bring so much Joy into "COTTON" BOSWELL'S heart. If its true love, we hope it lasts forever, but how does "COON" (LOVER) WELDON fit into the picture?

We agree with "FRAN" MIXSON that LOUISE is the sweetest girl in the wide, wide world.

"LIB THE BEAUTIFUL" has finally kicked "CUE BALL" PARHAM. We will give the details as soon as we get the straight of the freshman LIB is making eyes at. We hate to see it happen—but she does have cute eyes.

The "ugliest" girl was pushed by fate into the waiting arms of WINTHROP NORTON. She was such a dissapointment to Norton that he was ashamed to take her to dinner. Such is life—and women.

Books Placed In Y.M.C.A. Room

Books from the library this afternoon were placed in the reading room of the Y.M.C.A. to provide reading material for students in leisure time.

Willard L. Jones, librarian, said today that the books are not to be removed from the "Y" room and are placed there solely for the purpose of leisure reading while in the building.

The collection taken from the library includes works of popular fiction, biography, cowboy ballads, jokes, and other books. They will be changed every two weeks.

Magazines ordered by the Y.M.C.A. for the reading room are expected to arrive this week. Publications ordered include Collier's and weeklies and monthlies of a like nature.

San Jose State college is now sending out life-time athletic passes to graduates who, while students, proved their high quality in the field of sports.

BLUE STOCKING AND COLLEGIAN ENTER CONTEST

Send Delegates To Meeting of College Press Association In Charleston.

BOTH ENTER ARTICLES AND CONSECUTIVE ISSUES

Five Presbyterian college students, two seniors and three juniors, will leave Friday morning for Charleston to attend the annual meeting of the South Carolina College Press association, The Citadel and College of Charleston this year being joint hosts to the association.

Those attending will be Sadler Love, editor of The Blue Stocking, senior; Stuart Campbell, editor of The Collegian, senior; and three juniors, Jake Penland from The Blue Stocking, Keitt Darby from The Collegian, and William P. Jacobs, III, from The Collegian.

Features of the two day gathering will be addresses by outstanding journalists of the state, round table conferences, a banquet, and the announcement of contest winners.

The Blue Stocking entered the issues of September 28, October 5, and October 12 in the contest, three consecutive issues being required by constitutional rulings. The Collegian entered the issues of October, December, and March, all published last year under the direction of George Oliver, editor.

For individual entries, The Blue Stocking submitted articles by Penland, Darby, and Love; while The Collegian entries were by Campbell, Oliver, 36, Holman, '36, Gasque, '36, and McLees, '36.

Goldville Minister Speaks To Y.M.C.A.

Talks To Group On "Four Absolutes" Last Week.

"There are four things which are absolutely necessary to the life of a Christian," said Rev. E. S. Jones, pastor of the Goldville Methodist church, in an address before the Y.M.C.A. at its weekly meeting Thursday night.

Mr. Jones introduced his subject with a brief discourse on absolute honesty, stating that honesty is a quality essential to clean character, and leaving with the audience this thought: "If you do, say, or think anything which is not of your best self, you are dishonest." He described absolute honesty as honesty in all things.

The second quality brought out was that of absolute purity — purity of mind and body, which was followed by that of absolute love. Mr. Jones illustrated this quality with the old thought, "Greater love hath no man than this: to lay down his life for another."

The fourth and last absolute which Mr. Jones spoke of was absolute Christ, which he said is above all things and essential to everything. This, he said, is the greatest of the four absolutes and should always be classed as such.

Mr. Jones' talk was enjoyed by those who attended and apparently provoked much thought among students. Several messages of this type are scheduled for future meetings of the Y.M.C.A.

Four Pages

Due to the fact that Lucky Strike advertising orders have expired and the present allotment from student activity fees is insufficient to meet financial needs, The Blue Stocking is forced today to return to four-page issues.

Only by increased allotment or advertising may six-page issues be resumed.

Rev. J. N. Thomas Speaks To Group

Large Audience Hears Address By Charleston Minister.

"I believe in God because I cannot explain the world without God, and because I am acquainted with God," said Rev. J. N. Thmoas, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, Charleston, at Y.M.C.A. services held yesterday afternoon in the college chapel.

Mr. Thomas chose a few verses from Psalm 19 for the scripture reading, which was followed by a solo by Hubert Wardlaw.

The subject which Mr. Thomas used was: "Why I Believe in God." He said that college is a very trying time in one's life. College men who have grown up with Christian ideals must strive to hold their faith during their college careers. The Charleston minister said that we may know God by his handiwork but it is so much greater to know him face to face as a personal friend.

In conclusion, he charged his audience to know God through consecration. "God stands at the door and knocks and we who would hear him must lift the latch," said Mr. Thomas.

I. R. C. HOLDS FIRST SESSION

New Members Meet With Club For First Time.

After the meeting of the International Relations club on Wednesday night, President Tom Newland said that he was well pleased with the club's prospects for the coming year. The new members, who met with the club for the first time, offer much promise in the way of ability and enthusiasm, added Newland.

The program consisted of talks on Spain by Keitt Darby and Stuart Campbell, Darby taking the loyalist side and Campbell, the rebel. These discourses were followed by a group discussion of the situation. In this way the new members were enabled to form an idea of the aims and activities of the I. R. C.

Business discussed included the sending of three delegates to the Little League of Nations to be held at Winthrop college December 13 and 14. A program committee consisting of Peden Smith, Stuart Campbell, and Keitt Darby was appointed to have charge of the programs for the year. All members unexcusedly absent from the regular meetings, to be held on the first and third Wednesdays in each month, will be assessed 25 cents. New books for the club library will arrive shortly and be catalogued.

With an eye to developments in the are of terpsichore (the dance, to you) a recent eye-opening variety has been disclosed that is absolutely the last word in the almost-forgotten style of swinging. Initiates of this cult of shine boys are going around with a mystic look on their faces—and not in circles.

Northerners, such as our Maine boys, say that it is the last word. Southerners, like the rest of us, call it the "Yankee dance." There is a severe apprenticeship which must be served if one is to become proficient. First the courage is screwed up to fever pitch while one goes madly from girl to girl, shagging, trucking, kicking and being kicked, and any other form of unleashed abandon that is Southern (or local) dancing.

Then you must learn the art of looking one way and going another. People who have looked a bottle square in the eye several time often find this a bit difficult.

After this, if you still want to, you can "Yankee dance." You pick out the girl who would like most to dance with, and go break on someone else. This dance, it must be understood, is one of providential, not entertaining, character.

The accepted procedure, provided you have not made a mistake and broken on a girl to whom you haven't been introduced, is to do a nice little uncomplicated shag. When you have settled down, whisper in her ear what is to happen. If she does not break for the nearest door, you know you have a woman, not a jelly fish.

Upon agreement, one catches tight hold of the back of the girl's dress (or a good handful of skin if there isn't any back to it) and after a few false starts walks off to the side and she walks off to the side. At this point you should accompany the young lady if you wish to dance further, but several resourceful young men have sneaked out of a sticky situation quite neatly by walking in the opposite direction and keeping

Publicity Dept. Puts Out Game Programs

For the first time in the history of Presbyterian college the publicity department of the school is publishing the programs for home football games. This arrangement is unique in that it gains more cooperation from the advertisers, thus making possible bigger and better programs.

Heretofore, football programs have been a mercenary venture at P. C. Now, however, with the profits being received by the school, the publicity department is able to put out a program that compares most favorably with any in the South.

Also it allows for a great reduction in the price. Such a program selling for the extremely reasonable price of ten cents has already proved its worth in increased circulation. With more people buying and reading P. C.'s football programs one may expect a greater interest in football itself and in the Presbyterian team.

Hugh Holman, publicity director, expressed himself as well pleased with the prospect of increasing interest in Presbyterian college football by producing such programs.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Now that they have had sufficient time in which to form a definite decision on the matter, we thought it would be interesting to note a "transfer's view" of P. C. So we asked several of them, "WHAT DO YOU, AS A TRANSFER, THINK OF P. C., AND WHAT SINGLE PHASE OF THE COLLEGE HAS IMPRESSED YOU MOST?"

We found SHIELDS CROKER, late of Presbyterian Junior college, very busily engaged in the qualitative lab. When we questioned him he replied:

"I don't know what's in this solution, but I do know what there is in P. C. . . . I think P. C. is an ideal school for the development of a well-rounded character. Here we find completely adequate provisions for the student to participate in all sides of life, and that is why I believe this student body is superior in character and training to that of any other school in the state. The thing which has impressed me here is the congeniality and pleasing personalities of the students."

R. A. BURGESS, who attended Davidson college last year, was interrupted in the midst of his evening meal, but he gladly paused long enough to answer:

"Now I think the spirit of the school is what I like most about it here. In this respect P. C. is comparable to no other school. Not only in Clinton is this spirit known, but also throughout the state and South. The thing which impresses me most about the college is the friendly attitude of the boys. Everyone greets everyone else with a smile and a sincere 'hello'."

WAYNE POTTER was in the library as we walked in, and after a brief 'stack-room conference' with this former Emory university student, we found that he liked P. C. . . .

". . . because it is a well-rounded college where each student finds activities which interest him." Then he thought a moment and replied to the second part of our question: "I believe the most outstanding thing about P. C. is the fine type of leadership developed here; leadership which I noticed before coming here, as a distinguishing mark of a P. C. graduate."

FIGHTING HOSE DROP GAME BY 14 TO 0 SCORE

Entire Team Fights Great Battle Here Friday Only To Lose Before Odds.

ICY WEATHER CUTS DOWN ATTENDANCE

Presbyterian's spirited Hosemen gave a magnificent exhibition of fight and fortitude to hold Furman's Big Breeze to a 14-0 win Friday night under the floodlights of Johnson field. Three thousand shivering spectators watched the Presbyterian machine reduce the House of Magic to the size of a small bungalow, and score an amazing moral victory over the highly rated purple and white.

Hipp, Beeman, Dennard, and Reynolds scintillated in their respective positions and the entire eleven came through with a wonderful brand of play. The Furman line, led by Bob King, made it easy for an all-star backfield to execute many dazzling runs of well-timed precision.

June Scott, who is headed for an all-state berth, continued the ball-carrying brilliance that has been of such value to the Hurricane in its grueling schedule.

The House of Magic looked like a powerful moving van as the game opened, but a touchdown-drive failed to materialize when Jacobs intercepted a pass and advanced the ball to the P. C. 38-yard line.

Furman Scores

Furman got a big break in the second period and capitalized with a touchdown. Jacobs got off a bad punt in his own territory to put the Baptists in position to score. The punt, hindered by a strong wind that swept across the field, traveled only six yards. June Scott traveled 12 yards in four runs and Jenkins went over for the score. Bob King made a well-executed placement.

Dennard Shines

The scoreless third period was featured by the play of P. C.'s mighty little man, Jimmy Dennard, who wormed through the big Purple defense for two first downs. During the course of play, the little soldier intercepted three passes, and was on the sending end of the heave that was completed in the final quarter. He was injured, and taken bodily from the field on this play.

The final quarter opened with Furman in possession of the oval on the P. C. 21. A strong drive had been in progress when the third quarter ended.

Wind Blows Again

A long over-the-goal pass intended for Maddox was incomplete and it seemed the Stockings would take the ball on downs, but Watson picked up 11 yards in two line thrusts to make it first and ten, and on the next play followed neat interference to advance to the P. C. one-yard marker. He dived over right tackle for the second Baptist touchdown. King again kicked the placement.

A drive late in the quarter was stopped by the fighting Presbyterians and shortly afterwards the contest ended.

June Moore backed up his line in characteristic fine fashion. Jacobs continued his excellent toe work and Caldwell looked good in his bid for a regular flank.

Staff Meeting

A special meeting of the entire editorial staff of The Blue Stocking will be held tomorrow night at 6:45, immediately after supper, in The Blue Stocking office on first floor Spencer.

Since elections will be held at this time for editors of class issues, every staff member is asked to be present.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

And to state, as has since come to our attention, that the delays in the heating repairs were not the fault of the college administration, but were due to causes beyond the control of the local authorities.

* * * * * *

And to regret a recent boast that the lights are still in dormitory halls. It seems that the only thing to do is to install special locked cases for the bulbs. We wonder if that would be possible and practical.

* * * * * *

If castor oil and the infirmary have restored to health and happiness those members of the student body who last year lounged in bed and sent in their names on sick report.

* * * * * *

That what P. C. needs most is not a good five-cent Cadillac, but an alma mater the band can play and the student body sing.

* * * * * *

And to express thanks for the student body to the two co-ed cheer leaders who last week had the nerve to "stand below on the gravel path."

* * * * * *

And to add further thanks and appreciation to the football team for the great scrap put up Friday night.

Showmanship

Speaking at a pep meeting on the night before the Furman game, President William P. Jacobs told students that he had informed authorities of the Greenville university, who were doubtful as to whether or not they should accept financial details in regard to the game, that when P. C. put on a show that show was something to leave the cows and shoats for, something to cluck to the old mule about. Those were not, of course, President Jacobs' words, but they convey the idea.

We have been to football games in this state at which the students selling tickets did not even know the price of the tickets. We have been to others at which the stands were rotten and decayed, the seating arrangement poor, and the scramble to find a designated seat as fruitless as last winter's box from home. We have also been to others handled somewhat better. But the manner in which the crowd was handled Friday night, the general condition of the grounds, and the expert showmanship exhibited through the sham battle during the half have not been excelled, we believe, in this state.

In order that small teams may be able to finance their football teams it is necessary that John Q. Public dig down deep into his pocket and pull out the necessary funds to attend home games. To make him do this the small college has got to do more than put a scrapping team on the field. It has got to show him every courtesy and consideration, everything possible for his convenience; it has got to exhibit a very excellent brand of showmanship that will bring him back again next year. And this is what P. C. did Friday night.

To the students who handled what turned out to be one of the largest crowds this school has ever seen is due much credit. To Major R. E. Wysor and the men who staged the sham battle are due congratulations. And to the great showmanship that lay behind the success of the entire night's entertainment—to this, especially, do we take off our hats.

What Armistice?

Wednesday, they say, is Armistice Day. We'll hear speeches about this great land of the free, we'll see parades, perhaps, and tingle to the strains of The Star Spangled Banner. To us, that's Armistice Day.

But in veterans' hospitals throughout this country Armistice Day will not mean that. Crippled ex-soldiers will stand on crutches to salute Old Glory as the troops go by; gas-ridden lungs will strain to reach the high notes in the national anthem; thousands of half-crazed, blinded, shell-shocked men will wonder if, for them, there really is an Armistice.

To us who never knew at first hand what war can mean, Armistics Day is symbolic of flag-draped speakers stands, of sleek, well-fed politicians who bleat of "those boys who lie beneath Flander's Fields"—and cock one eye to the right to see how the old hokum is going over with the backwoods voter at the side of the platform.

To the thousands of those men who do lie beneath such crosses there can be little meaning to Armistice Day. Nor can it mean much to those who waited for letters from the front and got, instead, a cable from the war department. To those men whose arms and legs rotted at the bottom of French trenches, to those who lay in German machine gun emplacements and felt gangrene eat into a mangled chest—to these men all the fanfare, all the hullaballoo, cannot bring back life, strength, and health.

As we stand upon the threshold of another great war, we, the voters to come, the youth who will have to fill the trenches of the future, must realize that against such carnage as the world saw in 1918 there can be no armistice. There can be no cessation of hostilities against the needless sacrifice of human life, against the ravages of mustard gas, of saw-tooth bayonets.

And so that is why today we see crippled veterans, bleak homes, blind old men who should be young men, and ask—what Armistice?

Swish—a collegiate exclamation usually employed as a descriptive term for fast music, a trim little craft, or other matters pleasing to the ear or eye.

Rock 'em—an admonitions to dance, as "Rock 'em, baby, rock 'em."

Fiscal—pertaining to the body: "The team is in good fiscal shape."

I hear yuh cluckin'—Your words are clearly audible, but I have difficulty in understanding their meaning.

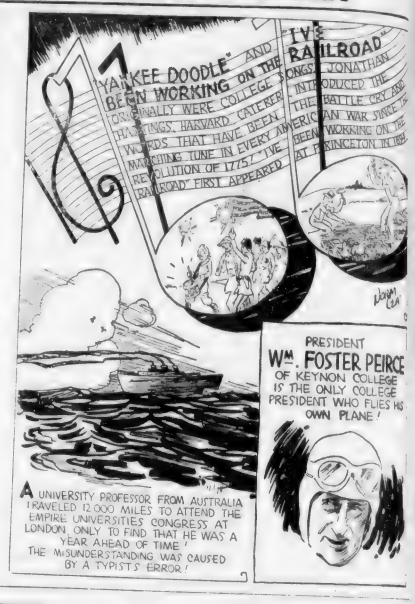
Quarterback — a minor refund from the office of the business manager.

Snatch — an admonition to freshmen to grasp the far side of a straight chair.

Good ole boy — a brother in the lodge; an intended object of a loan.

Dirty bum — referee who penalizes the home team.

We've often wondered, in our childish way, how things are done out where the West begins, or, as some put it, out in the studios that nurtured Flash Gordon of aerial fame. It took the following little story from The Annapolis Log to set us straight:



The scene is the dress rehearsal of "Noah's Ark." Hundreds of people and animals are running about. But above all the confusion can be heard the shrieks of the electrician: "What lights shall I use? What lights shall I use? What lights shall I use?"

And the heavens opened and a voice comes to him, "The flood lights, you sap."

The Gleaner had hoped, in his simple way, that election talk was all over. We thought that when F.D.R. picked up his 500-odd electoral votes and laughed and laughed that it was curtains for such as the name-it-and-you-can-have-it we plucked from the Rensselaer Polytechnic. Quoth the poet:

I think I shall never see
A party like the G. O. P.
A crowd whose loving heart is pressed
So close to Wall Street's garden breast.
A crowd that looks to Hearst all day
And lifts its oily head to pray.
A crowd that now all coyly wears
The DuPonts' sunflower in their hair.
A crowd that courts in evil fate
That intimately lives in hate.
Speeches are made by fools like me.
But only Hearst can make the G. O. P.

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

The student who advocated, in your October 26 issue, a six-page paper every week, was dead right. Only he didn't go far enough. Why stop with six pages. Since, according to his idea, the only excuse for putting out a measly little four-page sheet is that the staff members are so darn lazy, I advocate making it eight pages, and also a daily—not just a plain ordinary weekly.

In view of the facts, Mr. Editor, I suggest that you begin immediately to publish a daily eight-page newspaper. I was a member of The Blue Stocking staff during my four years at P. C., and although I suggested this improvement many times, the editor and other staff members were so lethargic they were unwilling to carry it through. Now, I feel that a progressive editor like yourself will see the merit in my suggestion and will act on it without delay.

Some objection might be made to this plan because of the limited amount of advertising to be obtained from local merchants, but this should cause no worry. One wonders, anyway, what The Blue Stocking does with the colossal sum it receives every year from the student activity fund.

I hope you will consider my proposal favorably, Mr. Editor. In my present situation, upwards of a thousand miles from home, many of my associates scoff at the mention of Presbyterian college. And if I could show them a daily eight-page newspaper put out by my alma mater they would certainly sit up and notice.

AW, SWISH IT, BOYS

Last week we predicted a 20-0 victory for Furman over P. C. But that was before our entrance into chapel one evening to take part in one of the most enthusiastic and spirited pep meetings ever pulled. The spirit lingered, and was very much in evidence the next evening. Coach Walter Johnson gave all he had, the team gave all it had, and after the game a local dug store gave the Furman team all the aspirin it had.

Yes, dearie, it was a wonderful display of genuine spirit, determination and co-operation. Every man on the P. C. team played hard, and with a sincere desire to give his team a victory. They would have never held the Hurricane back without it. And Presbyterian scored a moral victory worthy to be recorded.

LITTLE SOLDIER

Scoop Latimer, who covered the Furman game for the Greenville News, threw quite a few bouquets to the Hosemen, and lauded their gritty play. He gave Beeman and Moore a good write-up, but it was the little man, James J. Dennard, upon whom he elaborated.

Scoop described Dennard as being built so close to the ground that he couldn't determine whether he had a headache or a corn. But he also rated him as "about the best player in the country for his inches." Which pleased the little man so much that he paid yours truly that quarter he'd been owing for so long.

Clemson Frosh Down Baby Hose With Big Score

P. C. Team Falls Under Score of 33 To 0 At Clemson Friday.

The powerful Clemson freshman machine ground out a horrible 33-0 victory over the garnet and blue clad freshmen from Presbyterian Friday afternoon. The game was played at Clemson on Riggs field.

For the first quarter the P. C. rats handled the situation like veterans, but soon the agriculture boys began to open up their bag of tricks and the tide immediately turned in favor of the larger and more powerful gridmen. The P. C. offense just could not seem to get under way, as there were numerous fumbles in the backfield and several times backs were thrown for heavy losses.

The score of the game was exactly identical with that of the P. C.-Carolina game played here several weeks ago, and it might be added that Clemson had the more powerful rat eleven. In the decisive Clemson victory, the whole team displayed perfect teamwork, running together with perfect co-ordination and choosing the proper plays at the proper time. It would be difficult to pick an outstanding star for the Baby Tigers without naming the whole team, so impressive was the play of the entire aggregation.

For the P. C. eleven, Trammell, in the backfield, did more than his share of lugging the ball and picked up substantial yardage almost every time he ran with the ball. Godfrey and Kee were the other stars for the visiting Presbyterian eleven.

"MONTY" JACOBS is a very disillusioned young man. He wrote his gal up Winthrop way a nice letter inviting her down for homecoming, but in the excitement he forgot to sign his name. Now anyone who has tried to copy one of "Monty's" papers will tell you he has a style all his own, so it is easy to understand that the "Sweetness" recognized his handwriting. A few days later "Monty" heard from her — "Monty, Darling, please be good. You and 'STOOP' and 'COTTON' got tight the other night and invited me up for homecoming. I doubt if I can come." You're right, women just can't understand.

"DEKE" REYNOLDS has a very good reason to appear as if the world were not treating him right. Two days after his best gal kissed him and told him how much she enjoyed the dances he got a letter from home saying she was confined to bed with a severe case of poison ivy. That's why "DEKE" is down—he just can't understand it. "DEKE" says a snake in the grass is all right, but that poison ivy has him stumped.

Number Engage In P. C. Athletics

Figures Released On Intramural and Intercollegiate Sports.

A total of 186 students participated in intercollegiate sports at Presbyterian college last year, according to announcement from Walter A. Johnson, athletic director, while 319 took part in intramural athletics.

In varsity intercollegiates 40 took part in football, 15 in basketball, 22 in baseball, 19 in track, seven in tennis, and 10 in rifle. For the freshmen, 51 took part in football, 10 in basketball, and 12 in track. In intromurals, 44 took part in football, 68 in basketball, 60 in baseball, 76 in tennis, 31 in swimming, and 40 in boxing.

No intercollegiate swimming or boxing was held last year; however, these sports will be included this year. Another intercollegiate sport, golf, is also in the program.

Clemson, Furman Lead State Race

P. C. Leads Little Four Competition In Palmetto Group.

Clemson and Furman, with three victories and no defeats, and an equal number of points scored against opponents, today led the state teams for supremacy of the football roost.

P. C., losing Friday night to Furman, is still in fifth place, but leading the Little Four with no chance for an upset so long as the Calvinists trounce Wofford at Presbyterian's homecoming on November 21.

Complete state standings for all teams are as follows:

TO MEET BEARS FRIDAY NIGHT

Game To Be Played At Macon. Next To Last For P. C.

After acquitting themselves nobly in the fracas here last week with Furman's house of magic, the Presbyterian varsity is grooming for an invasion of Macon, Ga., this week to meet the Mercer Baptists in a night game.

The Baptists, led by the versatile Alan Bloodworth, boast a well-balanced aggregate and should furnish some dazzling competition for the Presbyterians Friday night. Some will well remember how last year Captain Bloodworth ran unchecked against the Calvinists with apparent ease. The Mercer captain will be ably assisted in the backfield by Al Owens, hard-plunging halfback. In the starting lineup is also found Red Tison, who is headed for fame as an outstanding tackle.

The two teams appear to be on pretty even terms, but the fact that the game is to be played in the Mercer boys' own back yard will give them a slight edge. However, the Johnsonites are conceding nothing and the fact that J. B. Jacobs, who has been outkicking everything in Southern football circles, is fully recovered will have a great deal to do with the outcome of the battle. The Hosemen can expect to gain yard after yard on punt exchanges with the Maconites, but it must also be remembered that the diminutive Bloodworth is no slouch at kicking himself.

Glenn Beeman, who has been on the casualty list since the Citadel game, saw some real action in the Furman game and is in the pink of condition for the game to be played this week. Beeman is almost certain of an all-state berth and if he continues to play the brand of ball he played against Citadel and Furman, he will be a "natural."

Coach Walter Johnson, along with his charges, is not pessimistic over the outcome of the Furman battle, knowing that P. C. stool only an outside chance for a victory.

A.L.T. Secretary Visits P. C. Chapter

Harry E. Maugans, national traveling secretary of Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity, was a guest of the local chapter of the organization during the past week-end. During the course of his stay, Mr. Maugans witnessed the Furman-P. C. game, visited the A.L.T. chapter rooms, and contacted alumni, actives, and pledges of the fraternity.

Mr. Maugans is currently making a tour of the Southern colleges in which chapters are installed. In an impromptu meeting of the local group Sunday morning, he complimented the Presbyterian student body as a whole as being "one of the finest in the South." He left Sunday afternoon for Chattanooga, where he will visit the Alpha Lambda Tau chapter at the University of Chattanooga.

Hastings Wyman Marries This Month

Cupid continued his depredations into the ranks of late P. C. graduates with the announcement this week of the engagement of Hastings (Wee) Wyman, of the class of 1931.

Wyman is to marry Miss Elizabeth Allen Babb, Laurens, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Erskine Todd Babb this month.

While at P. C., Wyman took part in a number of extra-curricular activities. He was a member of The Blue Stocking staff, The PaC-SaC staff, The Collegian staff, the boxing team, president of Block "P" club, and a member of Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity.

Senior Petition Tabled For Time

A senior petition for chapel exemption for members of the class of 1937 was last week tabled by the faculty until its next meeting, in accordance with the ruling applying to new business.

The petition was drawn up several weeks ago, submitted for approval to the student advisory committee, approved by the student group, and then passed on to the faculty.

The ruling which automatically tabled the request holds that all new buiness must be held over for two weeks before a vote is taken. The next faculty meeting is scheduled for Wednesday, November 18, at which time the petition again will be introduced.

Chi Beta Phi To Send Delegate

Chi Beta Phi, honorary scientific fraternity, Wednesday night discussed plans for sending a representative to the national convention to be held in Huntington, W. Va., the latter part of November.

It was decided to send the president, Furman Wallace, as delegate to attend the entire convention. No representative was sent last year and Chi Beta Phi looks forward with interest to this year's meet.

P. C. HOMECOMING GAME SATURDAY

MAGAZINE WINS SECOND PLACE AT CHARLESTON

Blue Stocking Fails To Place. Penland Takes a First, McLees and Love Thirds.

P. C. DELEGATION ATTENDS CONVENTION

(By the Editor)

Second place in general excellence for The Collegian, P. C. quarterly, a first place to Jake Penland for a news story, and third places to Robert McLees, '36, and Sadler Love for entries were the only laurels Presbyterian was able to gather when awards were made Saturday night at the final banquet of the state press association held at Charleston.

The Blue Stocking, which last year placed second in general excellence, failed, under this year's staff, to place except for the two individual awards named above.

Penland's Story

Penland's story, the state varsity track meet, was judged by the editor of the Charleston Evening Post. With first place went a cash prize of five dollars. McLees' third place was won on a one act play, "John Hobbes' Cellar," which appeared in last year's magazine. Love's third place was for a feature story, "William Rivers," in The Blue Stocking of October 12, this year.

Of the state magazines, The Shako, Citadel, took first place, The Collegian second, and The College of Charleston Magazine third. Last year The Collegian placed first.

For general excellence in newspapers, the judge ranked in order named, The Johnsonian, Winthrop; The Hornet, Furman-G. W. C.; and The Mirror, Erskine. The judge for the papers was Mr. Douglas Freeman, editor of The Richmond (Va.) News-Leader.

Despite the rather disappointing showing of the P. C. publications, staff members attending the convention report an excellent and profitable series of meetinigs. The P. C. delegation, composed of Love and Penland from The Blue Stocking, and Campbell, Darby and Jacobs from The Collegian, was quartered at the Fort Sumter Hotel.

A business meeting, two banquets, a football game, a dance, and other entertainments filled the program.

Approximately sixty delegates attended from the following colleges of the state: Wofford, Furman, Erskine, Citadel, P. C., Newberry, College of Charleston, Winthrop, Coker, Converse, and Clemson.

Y.M.C.A. Hears Talk On Peace

Using as his subject "World Peace," Claude Nelson addressed the Y. M. C. A. Thursday night.

Mr. Nelson particularly stressed America's importance in the war situation today, stating that she had her choice of taking one of two courses—she may form an alliance with England and announce to the world that she intends to fight for England's principles, or she may declare to England and to the world that she will not enter another war.

"The first of these alternatives," stated Mr. Nelson, "would be a betterment of the present situation, while the second levy a tremendous embargo on munitions and food supply." He went on to say that were

Elections Held For Class Issues

Johnson, Hafley, McCormick Chosen By Paper Staff.

To edit class issues of The Blue Stocking the editorial staff of the college paper last week elected Ashby Johnson, junior issue; J. B. Hafley, sophomore issue; and Pete McCormick, freshman issue.

The first of the class issues will be published a week from today and will be under the direction of the juniors. The sophomore and freshman issues will come on the two Mondays preceding Christmas, the sophomore issue on December 7 and the freshman on December 14.

According to custom the various class editors will appoint staffs coming entirely from the class which they represent. The paper for that week will be written, edited, and made up by the men thus appointed without assistance from the regular staff.

The junior staff for Monday's paper is as follows: J. B. Penland, John Woodward, C. H. McLeod, E. F. McLeod, Dean Power, W. R. Williams, A. K. Darby.

CLUB PRESENTS PLAY ON FRIDAY

At Florida Street School At 8 O'clock. Lead Role and Name Are Changed.

To meet the emergency which arose when Arthur McElroy, leading man, suffered a sprained ankle, Sock and Buskin last week chose George Beatty to portray the role McElroy was originally scheduled to fill, and set Friday night at 8 o'clock as time for the club's first production.

At first entitled "Introducin' Susan," the play has been given the name, "Just a Friend of the Family." Eldred MacLeod, president of Sock and Buskin, stated today that the new name is believed to suit the production better than its original title.

Mercer Comes From Behind To Beat Blue Hose

P. C. Leads At Half, But Bears Turn On Steam.

PUNTING IS FEATURE

(By Jake Penland)

Mercer's Bears piled up a 154 yard rushing total to whip Presbyterian 30 to 6 on Saturday afternoon after the Blue Stockings were checked in a first period offensive display that netted their only score. The Mercer machine functioned smoothly after recovering from the initial Hose jab at victory, and gradually gained the momentum that led to a decisive win.

The Blue Stocknigs scored after a sustained drive that had originated in midfield. A 16 yard pass from Jacobs to Dennard put them in scoring position and Jacobs went over. From then on the Hosemen were outclassed and unable to threaten the Bear kingdom.

Owen Flashes

Paced by Al Owen, Mercer scored in the third quarter to even up the count, and checked up two more in the fourth. Owen took advantage of an almost impenetrable interference wedge to click off 65 yards for the first score.

A fourth quarter P. C. fumble was recovered by this same Owen, who then passed to Lawrence for a 25-yard gain. With the oval on the seven yard stripe, Billy Smith went over. Bloodworth kicked the extra point. A little bit later on, Bozeware got behind his interference to contribute a 67 yard touchdown jaunt to the Blue Stocking route. Bloodworth again place-kicked.

The P. C. secondary gave a strong defensive account of itself, and Captain J. B. Jacobs continued his long-range kicking.

P. C. Students Lead In Church Services

To Preach Sunday Morning and Night In Clinton Churches.

Cliff H. McLeod, president of the Ministerial Club, announced today that members of the club will have charge of the preaching services in the local churches next Sunday evening in accordance with the program of the club to supply the churches at certain periods throughout the school year.

The schedule of students to preach and the hour of services is as follows:

W. Chester Keller, Baptist, 7:30P. M.; Cliff H. McLeod, Broad Street Methodist, 7:30 P. M.; W. H. Wilkerson, Baptist, Clinton Mill, 7:30 P. M.; Ralph Hughes, Thornwell Orphanage, Presbyterian, 4:00 P. M.; Hubert G. Wardlaw, Methodist, Clinton Mill, 11:00 A. M.

Services at the First Presbyterian church will be conducted by M. C. Patterson the following Sunday night.

TO MEET WOFFORD TERRIERS AS ALUMNI RETURN TO CAMPUS

Old Grads To See Crack Platoon Perform Saturday Afternoon.

EXPECT LARGE CROWD FOR FINAL GAME

(By Ashby Johnson)

The football tilt between P. C. and Wofford college, an alumni banquet, open house by the various campus organizations, and a display by the military department will make the Homecoming week-end beginning Friday night an active one for students and returning alumni.

The extensive athletic and social program planned for Saturday promises to make the annual Homecoming Day one of unusual interest and activity. Plans for the occasion are under the direction of Mr. W. L. Jones, class of 1928, who is secretary of the college alumni association. He announces that the program for the day calls for an Alumni luncheon and brief business meeting for members of the association.

Old Grads Return

Correspondence with various alumni organizations indicates that a large number of graduates may be expected for the festivities. During the morning these guests will be encouraged to visit classes and inspect improvements and changes in college equipment.

While no formal program is planned for the morning, the fraternities will be taking an active part in the entertainment of the returning alumni. At 1 p. m. an alumni luncheon will be served in Judd Hall. This will be followed by a brief business meeting. At that time President W. P. Jacobs will deliver a short sketch of the progress and plans of the school.

At the meeting new officers for the Alumni Association will be elected to take the post in the Alumni Trustee board left vacant by the re-election of Mr. Jacobs when he accepted the position as president of P. C.

P. C. vs Wofford

At 2:30 the principal attraction comes off in the annual Homecoming football game in which the Hosemen hope to provide the entertainment at the expense of the Wofford Terriers. During the half a demonstration will be sponsored by the college military department. A special platoon of sophomores who have been receiving training for the past few weeks are putting on a silent drill routine. This platoon, directed by Major F. C. Harding and commanded by two Juniors, E. A. Johnson and W. R. Williams, has reached a satisfactory state of proficiency and is putting on its first public demonstration.

The attendance and entertainment at Homecoming is being directed by the officers of the Alumni Association. The officers of this organization are: President, Dr. P. O. Rhame, '26; Vice-President, L. W. Jackson, '28; Secretary, W. L. Jones, '28.

Last Round-Up

JIM COLLINGS

Tackle on this year's varsity, Collings, Atlanta, will play his last game Saturday afternoon against the Terriers.

GRADES SHOW LITTLE RISE

Statistics On Mid-Semester Marks Released.

According to the report issued by the registrar, the number of D's and E's for the first two months of the 1936 session showed only a slight decrease over the number in the corresponding period of 1935.

The report for 1936 showed 248 D's, 178 E's, and 14 incompletes in comparison with the 1935 report of 258 D's, 188 E's, and 36 incompletes.

Sent To Parents

The marks made by each student for the half of the first semester are sent to his or her faculty advisor to be sent later to the parents. This method was adopted successfully at the beinning of the first semester to take the place of the old method of posting the marks on the bulletin board.

The marks, according to classes, are as follows:

November, 1936

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * * *

And to state that, since there seems to have been some doubt as to the author of BLUE STOCKING editorials, all editorials under the present staff have been written by the editor and all in the future will be written by him unless they are signed editorials. If you think you've suffered a personal affront, see the editor —he wrote it.

* * * * * * *

And to urge that all alumni who may be readers of this paper take time off from their duties to come back to see us Saturday when P. C. meets Wofford in the Homecoming Day game, the last on the 1936 schedule.

* * * * * * *

And to sigh with just a tinge of relief that the next issue of THE BLUE STOCKING will be under the direction of an all-junior staff.

* * * * * * *

What would happen if over-confidence, playing in the Blue Hose line-up Saturday afternoon, should cause a Wofford victory, a spoiled P. C. homecoming, and a loss of the Little Four championship.

* * * * * * *

But to state as follows: Know ye all persons that by these presents the editor of this sheet, after the past week-end, does hereby change, alter, and revise the name "THE BLUE STOCKING" to read "THE FADED SECOND-RUN SOCK," in accordance with a recent suggestion.

"We Don't Go!"

If your mind has gone beyond the title of this editorial and deduced that it concerns church attendance and, having done this, has further leaped to the conclusion that we intend to preach church attendance, then you are doomed to disappointment. We have no faintest intention of telling you that you should go to church.

But what we are concerned with, since it is as much a campus problem as anything else, is why those who don't go stay at home, and whether or not the Y. M. C. A. services will help the situation. The whole subject was brought to our attention last week from discussion we heard about the matter. Some said that they did not go at home and would not go in Clinton. With these we are not concerned, since we have said above that this is not a missionary attempt.

The students we are concerned with are those who say that they do attend church while at home but fail to do so while in Clinton. At the "Y" services last week the attendance was excellent. The speaker had a real, practical message to bring and he knew how to go about it. He seemed to know that young people of today put little stock in high-flung phrases, in worlds doomed to hell, and pay as you enter Christianity.

That the move of the administration and the Y. M. C. A. will meet with the continued approval and cooperation of the student body seems apparent. Perhaps the importation of more men like Rev. J. H. Marion, Rock Hill, and Rev. J. N. Thomas, Charleston, will pull reluctant students from Sunday papers and letters home.

It it does, then causs for poor chuurch attendance in the past will be inconsequentian in view of the work that will be accomplished through Sunday afternoon services in the future.

"Just a Friend of the Family"

Continuing a campus dramatic revival begun last year with the successful presentation of "Three-Cornered Moon," Sock and Buskin will Friday night present the first of its plays planned for this year. "Just A Friend of the Family," a three-act comedy, has been selected by the club, with the assistance of able faculty advisors, because of its general appeal to the P. C. student body.

For the past fw years cultivation of dramatic ability at P. C. has been at a rather low ebb, broken here and there by spasmodic attempts to revive lagging interest. Other schools throughout the state and South have found it profitable and possible to stress dramatic work, and we believe that P. C. will find it so if it is possible to maintain campus interest. No matter how enthusiastic cast members may be, Sock and Buskin's success will depend to a great extent upon the attitude taken by students in general to the endeavor.

That attitude must insure the financial success of ventures by student attendance at productions and, still more, must do all in its power to prevent Sock and Buskin's following in the way of other organizations that have in the past expired from lack of enthusiasm.

No one is trying to make a "killing" Friday night. All profits made will go in the club treasury and will be used for defraying future expenses. Therefore, your presence in the audience when the curtain goes up on "Just A Friend of the Family" will not aid individuals, but, rather, will aid the advancement of campus dramatic interest.

We take for granted that you will enjoy the production. We believe that you will. Dig down for the "necessary," and realize as you dig that you're going down to Florida Street school for good entertainment.

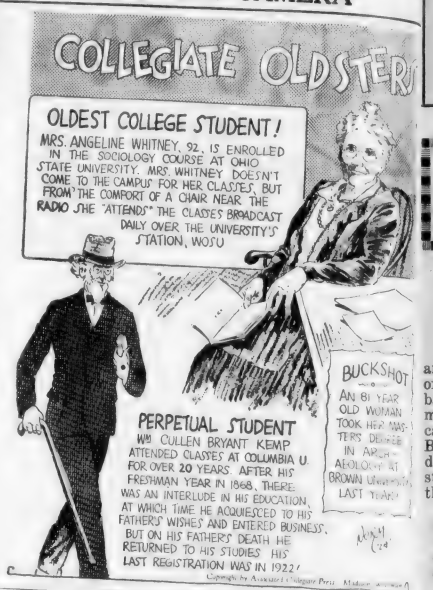
SIMON LEGARE

R. O. T. C. Superaltives

Most militaristic—Timmons
Best commander—Robby Rogers
Most promising cadet—Nexson
Best looking in uniform—C. D. Jacobs
Best prospective corporal—Kee
Greatest loss to military—El Padre Matthews

The special drill platoon should come through Saturday with flying colors, judging from the noise they're making just outside Spencer's window. Those boys should be given a bit of pink lace or something as a tribute to their hard work. When the rest of the corps takes to the gym on cold mornings they're right out on the field. In the afternoon while others study—or better, sleep—they disturb our rest by drilling on the plaza. They say practice makes perfect—here's hoping.



Major Collings has announced that the army will resume its old custom of having company football this year. Instead of having only one picked team to beat the home-guards in the annual classic, the winner of the tournament between the three companies will undertake this task. This method gives every one a chance to play in at least one game. "Mrs. Mac" says she'll have accomodations in the infirmary for any member injured. The colorful spectacle which is the army-home guard brawl always furnishes a large sick report.

All senior officers had better begin picking their sponsors for the Military Ball. The corps will "pass in review" under the lights before the senior sponsors. Who knows but what some smouldering flame of love will be kindled by the sparkling brass buttons on that night. It's a good chance to "shine" for the uniform-susceptible kay-dets.

Some of the officers seem to be having trouble in exercising self-control on the drill field. Many even use profanity of a mild sort to relieve their feelings. Brother officers, there is no excuse for this. Take Major Wysor for example. One day last week he was viewing the progress of his new house and talking to a carpenter. The Major was wearing one of his famous race track suits when he felt a shower of what he took to be rain descending upon his back. On looking up to discover the cause—well, why not come out and say it—a carpenter on the roof, with a huge wad of tobacco in his mouth, did what all chewers must do.

It just so happened that the Major's suit received the greater part of the deluge. Here's the moral—without saying a single word (out loud) the Major calmly went away and changed his clothes. With such an example of self control to follow, never again should an irate officer vent his wrath by using profanity.

CAMPUS CAMERA

YOU'RE Telling US

Editor The Blue Stocking:

Every year since I have been at P. C. there has been a lot of squawk about the food. Last year an organized effort on the part of the student body resulted in a great improvement in our meals and the dining hall system. This satisfactory condition has continued and even improved this year.

In spite of this improvement, the Sunday night suppers (?) are still in the rut. The only variation in the menu for the past three years has been the difference in hot and cold tea. Because of this fact many students either eat little or don't go to Sunday night supper at all.

Last year the suggestions of the "food committee" were really appreciated by the administration and resulted in improvement. Why should it not act in a similar way regarding Sunday night suppers? —SENIOR.

Editor The Blue Stocking:

Every once in awhile I read letters to the editor in The Blue Stocking that I don't think should be published. Some of them are entirely prejudiced and some of them rave about things they don't know anything about. Only a week or two ago we had one about the heating repairs that I don't think should ever have been printed.

It seems to me that it's the job of the editor of The Blue Stocking to read these letters over before they are sent to the printer and reject any that seem to be of the sort I mentioned above. We all know that boys sometimes write such letters just to get things off their chests and half the time don't mean what they say. But it looks bad to have things like that going out from the college and having people outside of the college reading them. At the most, bad advertising.

Now if the editor would select letters from those submitted and let those be printed that are up standard I think it would help matters a lot. What about it?

—X. Y. Z.

(Editor's Note: In spite of the fact that we realize there is some truth to this argument. The Blue Stocking will continue to print all letters meeting space requirements whose content is not of an obscene or profane nature. Such printing by us means is a mark of approval by the staff, but is merely a recognition of the right of free speech.

Although letters at times do get far, although many times they do not coincide with the editor's opinion they will not be refused because of this so long as they meet our other requirements. The Blue Stocking reserves as its priviledge the right to say what it pleases, within the bounds of decency, in its editorial columns. In like manner is the student entitled to take issue with the editor, the paper, the faculty, or the administration through the medium of letters.

As for the bad advertising, The Blue Stocking has little to say. But we do remind X. Y. Z. that this is a college paper—not a circular.

To sum up the matter, we might add this, paraphrasing the words of one who lived before Furman beat P. C.: WE MAY NOT BELIEVE A WORD YOU SAY, BUT WE'LL DEFEND TO THE DEATH YOUR RIGHT TO SAY IT.)

BULLPUPS DEFEAT P. C. FRESHMEN

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

PREDICTION

Presbyterian 26, Wofford 0.

SILVER LINING

Having spent the week-end in Charleston participating in the annual S. C. College Press get-together, we neither saw nor heard of the outcome of P. C.'s game with Mercer until late on the Sabbath day. And speaking of the convention, the only awards we men of hosiery brought back with us consisted of a few complex cases of pink toothbrush, smokers' cough, and other maladies. But back to Mercer—and more misery. We attribute the 20 to 6 defeat to (1) the smooth and precise Bear interference, (2) the strain of P. C.'s preceding engagements, and (3) the fact that the game took place on foreign soil.

But there's always a silver lining. For us, in the shape of the finale—a bit of fast and furious football between P. C. and Wofford. Activity will take place on the local lot, and will be colored by the presence of a goodly group of old gradds. Homecoming and victory—a pleasant combination.

ORCHIDS TO YOU

If you don't think P. C. has undergone a creditable season, take a gander at our record to date:

P. C. 0 — Clemson 19.
P. C. 14 — Erskine 0.
P. C. 0 — Citadel 25.
P. C. 27 — Newberry 0.
P. C. 0 — Furman 14.

The Citadel score would have been much smaller had not the Cadets crippled our men early in the contest. The Furman score speaks better for us than it does for Furman, and in holding Clemson to three touchdowns we've done as well as any other state teams.

JOHNSON AND JACOBS

Congratulations to Walter Johnson, one of the best coaches in these here parts, and to J. B. Jacobs, who has proven a splendid captain. The former prepares his men, the latter pilots them.

Johnson is consistent—admired and respected by those under him. A good influence, a capable coach, and a gentleman. Jacobs is clean in his playing, sincere in manner, and a dfinite asset to his team. We are glad Coach Johnson will stick with us—on and on. And sorry that the brilliant kicking, generalship, and all-round play of Captain Jacobs will be missing in '37.

HOSE OUTFIT POINTING FOR WOFFORD TILT

Began Work Today For Homecoming Game To Be Played On Johnson Field Saturday.

As a fitting climax to their dazzling play throughout the latter part of the season, The Presbyterian Blue Hose are pointing for the annual homecoming game here Saturday afternoon, the Wofford Terriers to furnish the opposition.

The Calvinists have been showing their ability in their last three games to date, deserving considerable merit for their outstanding performance against a highly-touted Wake Forest eleven, and Furman's house of magic. After a poor start at the first of the season, a renaissance took place in the ranks of Walter Johnson's hustling charges and since the Citadel game the Blue Hose have been playing football in the real sense of the word.

The game to be played here against Wofford the coming week-end before one of the largest homecoming crowds ever expected at P. C. should be outstanding from all standpoints. In addition to the game, which should be jammed with thrills, Major Harding has arranged a special drill to take place between halves. The drill, which has been worked out by the ceaseless and untiring efforts of P. C.'s newest addition to the military department, is to be executed by a group of picked sophomores and should prove to be a beautiful military spectacle.

The fighting Hosemen will enter the game decidedly favorites over the Terriers, but one may rest assured that Wofford never dies on the field until the final whistle and the opposition has successfully proven its superiority. The Spartanburg boys will bring Glenn Harding, 200 pound tackle, with them and he should prove a veritable thorn in the side of P. C.'s defense. Being a senior, Harding will be doing his "swan song" for his alma mater and a great and creditable performance is expected of him by all. Wofford also boasts many other stars in their pony backfield which has been clicking consistently.

Not to be overshadowed in the least is Presbyterian's star guard, "Bottle Beeman," who has been the spark-plug in the Hose attack throughout the entire season. Other seniors who will get their last crack at college football during their career are: Jim Collings, Hawk Evans, Bill Degner, J. B. Jacobs, Vic Correll, Bill Thompson, Johnny Hutchinson, J. B. Steenbergen, Shoemaker, Montague Jacobs, Coon Weldon, Cappelmann, and Marion Bird.

Begin Practice For Basketball

Initial practices in basketball, drawing approximately two dozen men for varsity and freshman squads, began last week under the direction of Coaches McMillan and Forehand.

Until the end of football season, night practices will be held twice a week. Fundamental and screening drill will occupy candidates for the most part, screening being a new addition to the system for this season.

Varsity men working out now include Cleckler, Majors, Cavin, Woodward, Holden, Foley, Shamhart, Johnston, Cole, and Hammel. Batchelor and Holcombe will report immediately after the close of football season. Due to an injury, Capt. Waldrep will not be able to practice until after Christmas.

Coach Forehand is drilling the freshman squad right along with the varsity. He states that he has no individual stars, but several have shown promise and a formidable team may develop.

Fencing Plans Move Forward

Fencing, the latest proposed addition to P. C.'s rapidly growing athletic program, received new impetus last week with the announcement by Coach Walter A. Johnson that the college would furnish masks if interested individuals would furnish foils for themselves.

A number of students having already ordered blades,it seems definitely certain now that instruction may begin within the next several days.

"Turk" Osman and Professors Boyd and Fish will coach the new sport. Due to the difficulty of learning to fence well, no matches will be held this year; however, if enough progress is made, a schedule will be arranged for matches with other schools next year.

Frosh Lose To Citadel Team

In a fast exhibition of colorful football featured by many long punts and several long dashes, The Citadel freshmen turned back a fighting Blue Hose frosh aggregation, 21 to 0, on the local field Friday night. The Sox completely outplayed the Citadel gang for the entire first quarter and held the score to 6-0 at the completion of the first half. Coming back the second half the Bullpups turned on the steam and rolled up fifteen more points on two touchdowns and a safety.

P. C. marred a perfect chance for scoring early in the second quarter when Thompson recovered a Citadel fumble on the latter's nine-yard stripe and then failed to tally on three line plays and a pass. Citadel took the ball and ran it out to about midfield and the only real threat had been repelled. It was shortly after this that Frank Huguenin, Citadel fullback, took the ball on an off-tackle play out to the sidelines and crossed the double marker for the first Bullpup score. From this point on the Citadel rats had the situation well in hand.

For the Presbyterian team, Thompson, Aycock, Strain, and Godfrey turned in creditable performances, while Spain, Huguenin, and Murphy were instrumental in the Citadel victory.

BOYD ADDRESSES COUNCIL

"He that knoweth to do good and doeth it not, to him it is a sin," is the subject which Professor Bernard H. Boyd chose to use in his address to the freshman council last Tuesday night. The meeting proved to be one of the most interesting of the current school year.

Quoting Professor Boyd, "Our sins of omission are often greater than our sins of commission. Failing to tell others about Christ is a sin of omission. As Christians, it is our duty to live Christian lives and to speak to others about him."

Members of the council are eagerly anticipating their future meetings, when they will again have the privilege of listening to outside speakers.

P. C. WINS HOMECOMING GAME, 20-7

ALUMNI HAVE ACTIVE DAY

Football Game, Luncheon and Dances Make Homecoming Big Day For Old Grads.

JACKSON ELECTED ALUMNI PRESIDENT

The Presbyterian college homecoming was enlivened for the large number of returning alumni by a week-end full of planned activity. Officers of the Alumni association were elected at a luncheon Saturday noon.

P. C. was prepared to meet grads returning to the "old alma mater" with an active program climaxed by the football victory over Wofford college. An alumni luncheon at the college dining hall brought many of the graduates together for a business meeting at which Louis W. Jackson of Anderson, was elected president of the Alumni association. Entertainments by fraternities and the Block "P" club ,an address by President W. P. Jacobs, and a demonstration by the military department of the college filled out the program.

Although no alumni activity was planned for before Saturday noon, many graduates returned to the campus Friday or early Saturday morning. Shortening of all Saturday classes and serving an early dinner to the students enabled the Alumni association to take over the college dining hall for a combination luncheon and business meeting at noon. At that time Mr. Jacobs addressed the association, explaining the progress and plans of the school to the alumni. He pointed out that in spite of increased tuition, the enrollment this year was unusually large and that more applications for enrollment had been sent in than could be granted.

At the meeting officers of the association for the coming year were elected. Louis W. Jackson, '28, of Anderson, was chosen president of the organization, Dr. D. O. Rhame, Jr., '26, of Clinton, was elected vice-president, and John E. Osman, '33, field secretary of the college, was chosen secretary-treasurer.

Wysor Speaks At Y.M.C.A. Meeting

Addresses Students Thursday On "Christianity and War."

"The influence of Christianity in bringing about world peace is not a failure, for it has never been tried." This was the context of an address delivered by Major R. E. Wysor, of the college faculty, at the regular Y.M.C.A. meeting last Thursday evening. He made this observation in answer to the question of what relation there is between war and Christianity.

Following its policy of providing speakers to address the student body on pertinent questions, the Y.M.C.A. cabinet asked Major Wysor to express his views on the subject of "War and Christianity" at the meeting Thursday night.

After giving various definitions as to what war is, Major Wysor propounded the question, "What is peace?" He said that nations are always warring with one another, the only difference being that sometimes they fight with arms, at other times with diplomacy. "Are all wars wrong?" he asked. "I think not. There are still some things I will fight for and believe it is so with many other men," he stated.

Major Wysor said that disarmament is not the final solution of the problem in his opinion. He said that

DRAMATIC CLUB PRESENTS PLAY

Sock and Buskin Pronounced Success By Local Audience.

Friday night at the Florida Street school Sock and Buskin, the college dramatic club, presented a three-act comedy, "Just a Friend of the Family," before a large and receptive audience. This presentation, featuring George Beatty and Adelaide Roberts in the leading roles, provided two hours of hilarious entertainment for an audience composed of college students, faculty members, and a number of residents of Clinton. The play was directed by Dr. H. S. Fish, Professor B. H. Boyd, and Eldred McLeod, president of the dramatic club.

The plot of the play was cleverly worked out and provided a great deal of entertainment for the audience. After a slight delay, the curtain rose on a supposedly happy couple whose characters were portrayed by George Featty as Dick Heatherby, and Adelaide Roberts as Susan Heatherby. The temperamental wife soon determined to leave her husband and seek a divorce. Finding himself without a wife just when his rich but eccentric Aunt Cordelia, portrayed by Frances Shaw, was to visit his home, Heatherby asked three different characters, including Bob Black, a football player dressed as a lady, to pose as his wife. To his consternation, all agreed to do so and arranged to appear at very inopportune times. Aunt Cordelia's fainting spells and the appearance of the various bogus "wives" provided an amount of amusement.

Difficult characterizations were well portrayed by the lead actors and by Frances Shaw. "Just a Friend of the Family" was one of the best amateur productions presented in Clinton in several years. The supporting cast performed its mission to perfection. Polly Roberts, Wandell Williams, Eldred McLeod, Helen Mahaffey, Lib McGee, Moffet Wylie, Thad Coleman, and Roy Hutchinson presented characterizations worthy of praise.

Producers and audience seemed well pleased with the play. The following comments were offered:

Dr. H. E. Spencer said, "I liked the play very much. The producers did a good job. The players executed their parts well."

Dr. M. G Woodworth commented, "The play was well presented."

President E. F. McLeod said, "I wish to express my thanks to Doctor Fish and Professor Boyd, to the members of the cast, and to all who supported the venture. We are well pleased with the presentation."

Norman Creech said, "I think Frances Spratt stole the show."

As a result of the splendid reception of the production, President McLeod stated that it will be presented in adjoining communities.

Plans Go Forward For Military Ball

Moonlight Parade To Feature Colorful Week-end.

With the completion of plans for a moonlight review of the batallion, the selection of a home guard committee, and the arranging of an invitation list, much progress has been made in the work towards the annual military-home guard dance series. This series, scheduled for the week-end of December 11 is one of the most colorful social events of the year and is creating a great deal of interest.

Plans for the occasion are being made by a committee appointed from the members of the advanced military corps and the non-R.O.T.C. students. The series will consist of the annual military ball on the evening of De-

Next Issue By Regular Staff

In accordance with The Blue Stocking's policy of having class issues put out each year, this week's paper is being published by a staff chosen entirely from the junior class.

The following issue, which will appear November 30, is to be in the hands of the regular staff.

The two issues remaining to be published before Christmas are to be the work of the two lower classes. The Blue Stocking of Dec. 7 is the sophomore issue and will be published by a staff selected by James Hafley, Sophomore editor. The following number, to appear Dec. 14, will be in the hands of a freshman staff headed by Pete McCormick.

R.O.T.C. GAMES TO BEGIN DEC. 3

Army, Home Guard Teams To Play In Intramural Classic.

ARMY TO PLACE THREE TEAMS IN COMPETITION

Once again the time draws near for the annual battle to decide who is supreme in intramural football. The first game is scheduled to take place Thursday, December 3, according to announcement made last week by Major R. E. Wysor.

A new plan is to be put in effect this year. Formerly a team chosen from the entire army had fought it out with one from the home guard. This year the army will be represented by three teams, one from each company. The home guard will furnish the fourth team and a draw will be made for pairings in the first round. The two winners in the first round will fight it out for the championship of the campus.

The eligibility rules will be practically the same as last year. Anyone who has been out for varsity or freshman football this year or who has made a letter or numeral is ineligible to play in this event.

The coaching staffs for the four teams have not as yet been chosen; however, it is likely that J. B. Jacobs, Jim Collings, and Bill Thompson will act as head coaches for the three

PUNSTER OFFERS ADVICE FOR CONDUCT AT MILITARY BALL

(By A. K. Darby)

In view of the forthcoming struggles that will all too soon invade our campus and leave in their wake desolation and piercing mourns of the wounded and distressed, it is of the greatest importance that all be informed of the proper manner to conduct themselves while under fire. To avoid embarrassment and be completely within control at all times, be wise and investigate the worth of the precepts that an initiate of last year's battle of the sexes advances.

The zero hour will be at nine o'clock on the evening of December 11, 1936. First you must get a girl who has army tendencies, Salvation or Regular; then over the top and let the bums break where they will. Everyone knows that a good impression is much more to be desired than a pretty girl.

Keeping this in mind, beg, borrow, or steal the best looking uniform you can and proceed to get as military as possible. The simplest way to make a [illegible] is to knock the cadet [illegible] at shooting his shoe [illegible] and say. This will [illegible] a scene [illegible] and don't forget to [illegible] Be sure that you have your belt buckle a bit on the left side so that when partaking of a bit of "Yankee dance" (remember) you may make some intentionally funny remarks and the belt buckle can incur an appreciative reception as it gently tickles your lass. This advice is free to all, but patents are pending.

One more portion of the bitter draught, (advice; you dope!) and your correspondent retires to watch operations. Stay clear of seniors who seem to resent recurrent breaking on their one and only. One doughty underclassman felt a tap on his shoulder at last year's fray and, on turning around to wish the next guy better luck than he had had, was run clear through both cheeks by a glittering saber held in the hands of a raging senior. With a fortunate bite, the underclassman managed to escape with a part of the saber and minor injuries, but the rank and file may not be so lucky. Even he was troubled for [illegible] marks making [illegible] of metal out of [illegible] dollars.

Comments On Homecoming

* * * * * *

It certainly makes us believe that "the younger generation" lacks ingenuity and that we lead a very dull existence, to hear the old grads tell of how they raised cain in the "good old days."

* * * * * *

The Alumni Association has our heartfelt thanks for the early dinner hour and consequent shortening of classes. Every ten minutes helps in a class which made to seem unduly long by the fact that Homecoming has offered a swell excuse not to prepare for it.

* * * * * *

We must arrange a night game for our returning grads in the future. Apparently many of them were counting on a chance to see the "bright lights" for the first time. Well, there is the state track meet for them still offering the opportunity.

* * * * * *

The Alumlite must be fulfilling its mission of keeping our graduates informed of P. C.'s affairs. Most of the alumni seemed to know more of what is going on here than we do. At least they seemed to have a very definite idea of the program and plans of the college.

The Forgotten Man

Although the politicians' open season is over and it has become almost unfashionable to praise the poor neglected citizen, we would like to use this issue to make mention of the Forgotten Man of campus life, the Junior.

It seems that before a student may hope to burst into the dazzling light and glory as a dignified Senior, he must first go through one year's period of obscurity and neglect as a Junior. During his third year he holds a position somewhat like that of a third vice-president who is kept quietly in the background and forgotten while he becomes seasoned and mellowed. In the collegiate world this period of obscured training seems necessary before one may assume the dignity and glory of Seniorship.

In each of the other classes the student may impress himself and the world in general with his importance. The lordly Senior may look down from his towering heights as he shouts hoarse commands on the drill field, calls student body meetings, or knits his brows over the puzzling problems of student publications. The Freshman has his own athletics, cabinets, and organizations where he may shine. The Sophomore is able to impress his own importance on the Freshmen anyway. Unable to cope with these conditions and too proud to vent his spleen upon the Freshmen, theJunior must remain in his obscurity.

We would like to speak a word in defense of our class and perhaps extend a bit of apologetic praise. What is the Junior doing as he patiently waits in the dim outer circles of the spotlight? While senior officers are shouting orders and making a display of their brilliance, the juniors are handling the important duties of [illegible] They hold the [illegible] Seniors like well known [illegible] Juniors [illegible]

Contact With the Churches

As long as Presbyterian College remains under the jurisdiction of the churches of Georgia and South Carolina and receives support from them, every effort should be made to keep them interested and informed about the school. No possible method of establishing this contact could be found better than the direct representation and deputation work in the two synods. It seems that several of the college departments have struck upon this idea at the same time, and three distinct movements are under way to reach the churches of both synods through student speakers and deputations.

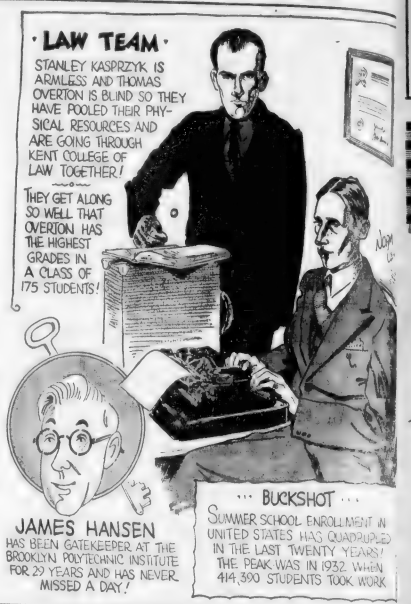
We extend our congratulations to the representatives of the college for their success in contacting the churches in this vicinity and for the favorable comment received from every community where they have spoken. We believe that our school can have no better form of advertisement than personal contacts of the students themselves and have enough pride in our student body to feel confident that its representatives will create a more favorable impression of our school than would unlimited printed publicity.

Before long delegations will be leaving P. C. who have received intensive training preparing them to instruct as well as to act as representatives of the college. These men are really equipped to render valuable service in the communities where they will be sent and can be counted upon to represent the school creditably throughout the two states. Anyone who questions the impression made by the few deputations already sent out might be interested to hear the results of a recent service. One enraptured mother told the delegates, "Oh, I just hope my son will grow up to be like you young men." Well, she doesn't know them as we do, but, anyway, they are giving the college an excellent reputation at the point where our strength lies, the churches.

—E. A. J.

Where Honor Is Due

When The PaC-SaC appears at the end of the year there will be a number of pages given over to organizations styled as honor fraternities of different natures. On the Presbyterian College campus there are honor fraternities for every branch of student activity: scholastic, literary, religious, and general leadership. Yet it is difficult to explain what these groups ever do..



So far as the campus as a whole can learn, the activity of most of these organizations consists of an occasional meeting and perhaps the election of officers. It does not seem unreasonable to expect some organized activity towards the good of the school. The members of honor fraternities are without exception the leaders in their respective fields. They should naturally be looked to as the ones to initiate movements towards betterment of the college. This expectation is certainly not without precedent, since many institutions owe a large part of their advancement to movements sponsored by similar honorary fraternities.

We realize that it is mighty easy to criticise lack of activity without suggesting what should be done. At the same time, we feel that the student body is looking to its leaders for certain definite improvements. For instance, what of the laxity of the honor system? Last year the student council called for the support of the various campus organizations in this matter. The response was half-hearted and accomplished exactly nothing. If organized groups of campus leaders do not take the initiative in this matter, what is the chance for an efficient student government? A pledge to support the constitution, which every student has taken anyway, will not establish ideals of honor; but uncompromising support will.

There is certainly every reason to think that there should be some cultural influence outside of classes on the campus of a liberal arts school. Hibernating literary and journalistic fraternities are doing little towards this end. Surely an honorary scholastic fraternity might do more than meet and select new members. We think there are enough complaints concerning poor food, misdirected religious influences, lack of school spirit, and misunderstandings with the faculty to encourage the campus honorary fraternities to cease merely to exist and begin to function.

—E. A. J.

CAMPUS CAMERA

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

The tortures inflicted upon freshmen in our colleges and universities today are lukewarm in comparison with those in the days of '09 and '10. In some quarters, "hazing" is looked upon as a childish and often harmful practice. Clinging to such a tradition as the wearing of green hats does seem insane, but when we realize how much farther some foreign universities carry initiations, we see that our hazing, now on the decline, is mild.

First-year men at the University of Holland must keep their heads shaved to a high polish; they must use doors in entering campus buildings. Viewing their "must" conduct from the standpoint of the habits formed they can, if they desire, become agile second-story workers by the end of the first year. They must enter and leave by way of windows.

Perhaps the men at Northwestern university realize the impossibility of ultimately escaping women. Resigning themselves to this inevitability, and trying to facilitate matters for the girls, they proffer these humble suggestions, speaking for the "fellow across the hall."

Wear a delicate perfume; otherwise he's liable to think there's a stray cat in your purse.

Be nice to the poor boy. After all, it's his money.

Don't stall him off too long; he might not come around again.

When he asks you for a kiss, don't say, "Oh, you'll spoil my make-up." If you do he's apt really to spoil your whole make-up.

Wear a good, flavored lipstick, and, by all means, one that comes off. He likes to show it to the boys when he gets home.

Don't order milk when the others are having highballs. Order coffee. He'll stay nicer longer.

Don't introduce him to the [illegible] mother till you've closed the door behind him. He might leave you at the steps.

Don't take his fraternity pin seriously. He doesn't.

Don't say "good night" 'at 12:30 a one o'clock night. He's liable to "goodbye" to you.

Don't talk about other fellows with you're with him. Men are funny that.

Prodigies usually compensate their genius in some manner. A year-old mathematics wizard at University of Louvain, in Belgium concentrated so much on his abilities that he had the mind of a five-year old child in other respects. Professor Arthur Fauville of the University states that after special training, this boy improved greatly, his IQ increasing from 55 to 77 within 15 months.

THE HANGOVER

No more do thousands stand and cheer
And glorify his name,
And fight to be the first to say,
"You played a jam-up game!"

With ordinary woes.

THE FINALE

We were gooder than they were, which accounts for P. C.'s 20 to 7 victory over Wofford Saturday in the season's finale. Although we expected a bigger score, the Hosemen scored a decisive victory and ended the season successfully and happily.

Personal nomination for the team's most valuable player—Captain Jacobs. And for an all-state guard berth—Glenn Beeman.

THE SEASON

Presbyterian ended fifth in state standings, headed the "Little Four," and held some strong out-of-state teams to close scores during the 1936 season. In no case was the play of the team disappointing or embarrassing.

The '37 season holds promise. The schedule is the most ambitious, yet the most sensible one arranged in quite a while, and Walter Johnson can always be counted on to put a capable team on the field.

FRESHMEN WIN FINAL CONTEST

Anklets Defeat Wofford Frosh 14 To 0. Thompson Scores Twice.

The Presbyterian college freshman team ended its 1936 football season with a 14-0 victory over the Wofford Pups at Spartanburg Thursday afternoon. Scoring late in the second and fourth periods as a result of a spectacular pass attack, the Anklets brought home the bacon in the final game of the season. The score was 14 to 0.

Although outgained in every department, the P. C. frosh were able to keep the game under control largely through the spectacular kicking of Thompson and excellent defensive work in the shadow of their own goal. The Wofford frosh showed offensive strength by running the ball 520 yards for 20 first downs. P. C. total yardage was 241, with 6 first downs. The defensive work of the Anklets in the center of the field left much to be desired, but spectacular goal-line stands stopped every Wofford threat short of the promised land.

Making use of two penalties and capitalizing on a well-directed passing attack, the Presbyterian freshmen crashed through for two touchdowns. The first came in the second quarter when Trammell flipped a pass to Thompson, which was good for 22 yards and a tuochdown. It was a second aerial attack which placed the ball on the Wofford six-yard line in the fourth quarter. Thompson carried the ball across from that point on an off-tackle play. Trammell place-kicked both extra points.

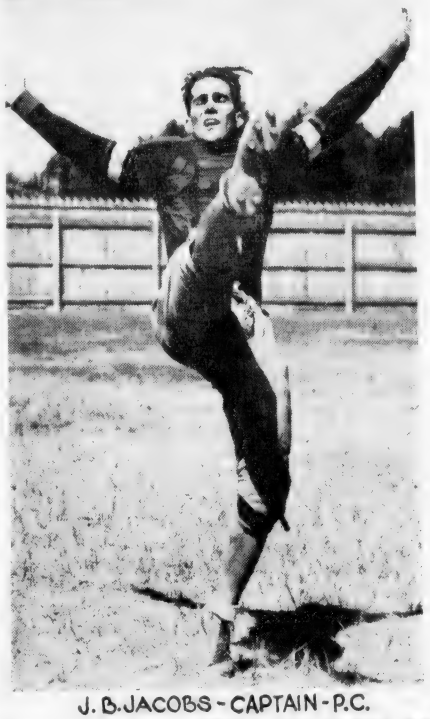
The Terrier Pups made their most active threat early in the third period when a forward pass gave them a first down on P. C.'s one-yard line. Magnificent line play kept the Wofford backfield bottled up and the Anklets took over the ball on downs on the 8-yard line. Thompson kicked out of danger. Several other sustained drives were started by the Wofford frosh but each bogged down before reaching the 20-yard line.

Although the offensive of the P. C. freshmen was not spectacular and little gain was made by the Presbyterian backs, excellent defensive playing gave the Hosemen control of the game. Most prominent in the stopping of the Wofford running attack was Captain Hood Strain. Be Moore played an exceptionally good defensive game at end for P. C. Griffin, P. C.'s alternate captain, was the most consistent ground-gainer in the frosh line-up. For Wofford, Davis, big hard-charging halfback, was an outstanding player. Carroll also was a star for the Pups.

Presbyterian's starting line-up was: Bullock, le; Dixon, lt; Captain Strain, lg; Finney, c; Booker, rg; Hendrickson, rt; Moore, re; Thompson, qb; Trammell, lh; Godfrey, rh; Griffin, fb.

P. C. To Play Seven State Games In '37

Football Schedule For Next Season Is Announced.



The entire South Carolina collegiate grid make-up will be taken on by Walter Johnson's P. C. Blue Stockings in addition to three out-of-state foes in 1937, according to information recently released.

This is the most ambitious schedule ever to be undertaken by the humble Hosemen, who topped the "Little Four" this season. Emory and Henry has been substituted for Wake Forest, and South Carolina has been added. The former aggregation is coached by Billy Laval, who piloted the Gamecocks for several seasons, and previous to that produced winning teams at Furman for many seasons.

The 1937 schedule follows:
Sept. 18—Clemson at Clemson.
Sept. 25—Georgia Tech at Atlanta.
Oct. 2—Erskine at Due West.
Oct. 8—Citadel at Clinton.
Oct. 15—Newberry at Clinton.
Oct. 23—Furman at Greenville.
Oct. 30—Emory and Henry at Emory, Va.

GROUND GAINER

J. B. JACOBS - CAPTAIN - P.C.

Captain Jacobs has been one of P. C.'s most valuable players all year as a blocking back, and finished his football career in a blaze of glory when he starred as a consistant ground gainer against Wofford Saturday.

Basketball Work Now Underway

With members of the football team now available, cage activity has taken on a new high and an intensive practice routine is being inaugurated.

Although Coach Lonnie McMillian will find a shortage in veteran stock, he has a capable group of sophomores with which to mould the 1936-37 five. Majors, Cleckler, Cavin, Woodward and Johnston join with Captain Waldrep in offering an experienced background. Waldrep is the only veteran who played regularly last year.

Giles Batchelor, a sophomore from Eatonton, Ga., gives indications of becoming the mainstay of P. C. court play for the next three years. He has speed, basket-shooting accuracy, defensive skill and the knack of person-forming smoothly. He plays guard or forward.

Les Holden scintillated at the pivot position last season in a frosh uniform, and has plenty to offer his varsity mates.

Pete Holcomb, the third member of the sophomore trio, will in all probability land a varsity berth. He is a cool, smooth player, but needs a little more accuracy at the basket.

Captain Waldrep, who will remain inactive until after Christmas due to a grid injury, will hold down one of the forward positions, and Kimbo, a sophomore, is a strong guard threat.

Although a definite lineup hasn't taken shape, the probable starting five will be: Forwards, Waldrep and Holcombe; center, Holden; guards, Batchelor and Kimbo.

Blue Hose Boxers Prep For Season

Uniforms were issued today to candidates reporting for the first session of varsity boxing practice. While the 1936 schedule has not been arranged, Coach Johnson has already begun working his fighters looking towards a number of difficult meets which are being considered.

Although the team will be considerably hampered this year by lack of experience, a number of the boxers have shown that they have the "stuff" in the R.O.T.C. meets. Of the candidates reporting, Cappelmann, Lambright, J. L. Clements, P. N. Moore, and Nettles are among the best bets to land places on the team. Cappelmann, captain of the squad, is certainly the most experienced and promising boxer. Though he has put on weight and can no longer fight in his old class, light-heavy, he can be expected to handle any competition he will meet in the unlimited class. While the other candidates have had less experience, all have shown ability to use their fists that gives promise of a good team.

Boxing rates as a major sport at P. C and is always one of the most popular of winter athletics. There will be no freshman team, but first-year men will be trained along with the varsity fighters and will have non-decision matches arranged during the year.

and Wofford, played on Johnson field Saturday afternoon. Between the halves of the game a demonstration for the benefit of the alumni was staged by the college military department. A special platoon composed of sophomores marched on the field and went through a colorful drill routine entirely without command. The demonstration was the first of this type to be sponsored by the R.O.T.C. unit and won considerable praise from the graduates.

Informal entertainments by the fraternities and a dance Saturday night sponsored by the Black "P" club furnished the social element in the homecoming program.

nature and is the final social function before the Christmas holidays.

Cadet Major Collings, who is directing plans for the military ball, announces that all arrangements have been completed for the occasion. The week-end will be featured by a moonlight review of the batallion in honor of the dates of the senior members of the advanced corps. The review will precede the military ball Friday evening and will be held under the lights of Johnson field. The entire cadet corps will parade at that time before an honorary staff composed of the dates of the senior military class.

The Musketeers, who are staging the Saturday afternoon tea dance, are members of the senior class who last year organized as an honorary military fraternity. The group is headed by Cadet Captain B. W. Legare. The committee which is making plans for the "home guard brawl" was picked last week by the non-R.O.T.C. students, working under the direction of M. H. Jacobs and Sadler Love.

Ben Legare, chairman of the invitations committee for the military ball, states that the invitations have been printed and a number of them already issued. All members of the advanced corps wishing to have any invitations extended are asked to give names to members of the committee early this week.

Music for the three dances will be furnished by "Hap" Gray's orchestra. Since the new armory is not expected to be finished before the end of the year, the dances will be held in Copeland hall.

DEBATING TEAM OPENS SEASON

members of the organization are displaying considerable ability and may be expected to develop into an efficient team. The chapter of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, which became inactive last year through the graduation of all its members may be re-established as soon as there are five members of the present organization who have taken part in at least four intercollegiate debates. This reorganization will undoubtedly be possible before the end of the first semester.

The meet with Winthrop which was held last Friday was called solely for the purpose of giving the teams of the two schools some practice in the discussion of the question prior to the tournament in December. In this pre-season try-out a negative team composed of Hutchinson and Hudson and an affirmative team of Black and Cartledge met a deputation of four girls from the Winthrop debating society in an non-decision debate. The Winthrop teams were Misses Virginia Willis and Elizabeth Ham for the affirmative side of the question, and Misses Robinson and Pruitt discussing the negative.

STUDENTS PREACH IN LOCAL CHURCHES

W. H. Wilkerson, speaking at the Clinton Mill Baptist church, used the topic, "The Abundant Life." The regular Sunday afternoon service at the Thornwell Memorial church was conducted by Ralph Hughes. In the evening Hubert Wardlaw addressed the congregation of Bailey Memorial Methodist church at Clinton Mills, using "Manhood" as the subject of his message.

The service at the First Presbyterian church, scheduled for last night, was postponed until next Sunday night, and will be conducted by Cliff H. McLeod, who will use "The Yielded Life" as the subject of his sermon.

Next week's evening service at Broad Street Methodist church will be turned over to a representative of the P. C. Ministerial club. M. C. Patterson is expected to be the speaker for that occasion.

army teams, with other army men on the varsity squad as assistants. Vic Correll is a likely choice to direct the play of the home guard.

Due to the division of the army's forces the home guard will be favored to capture the title again this year; however, there will be several sophomores in the army eyeing an appointment to the advanced course who will put forth their best efforts seeking to gain recognition.

Last year the home guard, after a hard-fought battle, emerged victorious by a score of 13 to 0. This victory was due largely to the excellent running of Patton and Winget, home guard backs, who are lost year's team by graduation

MAKE AWARDS FOR BLOCKERS NEXT TUESDAY

Jacobs Trophies To Be Presented At Annual Banquet Here Next Week.

P. C. PREXY HONORS CONFERENCE BLOCKERS

To honor the man "who carries the man who carries the ball," William P. Jacobs, president of P. C., will next week award his ninth trophy to the outstanding path-clearer of the state and will present similar awards to the best blockers of the Southern and Southeastern conferences.

Climaxing a day that will be filled with meetings of coaches and athletic directors arranging state basketball schedules, a banquet will be given in Judd Hall at 8 p. m., Tuesday night, December 8, at which time the three awards will be made.

Unsung Heroes

The Jacobs blocking trophies have for their purpose the honoring of the unsung heroes of college football, the men who take out the safety man, the halfbacks, and the linesmen so that fleet-footed runners may break the headlines with 95-yard touchdown sprints.

Begun in 1928, when Padgett, Clemson, received the state award, the scope of the plan was broadened in 1933 to include the Southern conference, and in 1935, also began recognition of the outstanding blocker in the Southeastern conference.

Tuesday's events will begin at 1 p. m., with a meeting of basketball coaches and athletic directors in the gymnasium. This will be followed by a basketball clinic in which the P. C. quintet will demonstrate changes in the rules. A meeting at 4:00 p. m. for track, football, baseball, and basketball coaches will end the afternoon program. The banquet will come at an hour yet to be decided.

Gathering of votes, the blocking selections to be made by sports writers, coaches, and officials of the state and two conferences, will begin this week.

List of Winners

The following is a complete list of winners of the Jacobs Trophy:

South Carolina
D. D. Padgett		Clemson
1929—	Hugh Stoddard	Carolina
1930—	Gray Salley	Clemson
1931—	Fred Hambright	Carolina
1932—	Bill Hutt	Furman
1933—	Bob Griffin	Furman
1934—	Harry Bolick	P. C.
1935—	Jack Shivers	Furman
Southern Conference
1933—	George M. Smith	V. P. I.
1934—	George M. Smith	V. P. I.
1935—	Herman P. Snyder	U. N. C.
Southeastern Conference
1935	Riley P. Smith	Alabama

They Cleared Paths For Scoring Stars

Principals in the Jacobs blocking trophy awards, begun in 1928, are the men pictured above. By their unselfishness, sports page heroes have galloped to touchdown after touchdown in Saturday afternoon classics. Not until P. C.'s President William P. Jacobs instituted his awards eight years ago had their sportsmanship been recognized.

Club To Present Play In Section

To Show Production In Neighboring Towns and Stage New Play Later.

The first presentation of a play by the Dramatic Club having taken place on Friay night, Nov. 21, the club meeting Monday afternoon to discuss future plans and ideas, decided not to stage another presentation until second semester. This was the first meeting of the entire club since work on the production began several weeks ago.

Rather than start on a new production in the near future, members of the club agreed that performances of the play, "Just a Friend of the Family," should be repeated in neighboring towns and plans went forward for a performance in Laurens at an early date. It was announced today that rehearsals would not cease ex-

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

The other night over in the dining hall your reporter talked to several different groups of students, asking them generally, "WHAT DO YOU THINK OF THE PROPOSED ALMA MATER AS PLAYED AT THE WOFFORD GAME AND WHAT IS YOUR OPINION ON CHANGING THE ONE WE NOW HAVE?

In the first group were F. T. WALLACE, H. P. BROWN and BAXTER CARPENTER.

They refused to be quoted separately, but were collectively opposed to the old Alma Mater. and were not in favor of the new one.

We wandered on down to the next table where CHESTER KELLER told us, "I like the proposed Alma Mater all right but I believe I prefer the old one." And here FRESHMAN DALZIEL of the band broke in to say that he liked the new selection, "with possibly a new arrangement," and then HUBERT WARDLAW spoke up: "Well, I believe I still like the old one."

Next it was JIM COLLINGS, who said, "I think the new Alma Mater is all right . . . it certainly sounds better than the old one. I'm in favor of it." BILLY BURNS said, "Well, it's this way between the two . . . (and he flipped a coin). Evidently, he didn't particularly like either of them.

JUNE MOORE said, "I think the band played the new Alma Mater better than the old one, but I still think there is room for improvement."

Extension Work Makes Progress

P. C. Students Speak In Nearby Churches On College and Religion.

From the student body at P. C. there are several talented speakers who are eager to show the churches and general public that Presbyterian College is carrying on a high type of religious work and christian relationship through the splendid cooperation of the men who compose its body. They are making it possible that South Carolina and Georgia can, to a certain extent, see just what type of work is being carried on by the students in the churches and various religious organizations in the two states.

John Osman, is head of these delegations and is assisted by Professor B. H. Boyd. These two arrange the engagements and select the topics as well as advise the delegates. The delegations thus far have been composed of Bill McSween, Jack McAlpine, and Wandell Williams.

The hope of rendering a great service and telling the people of the South of the leaders that P. C. produces has inspired the plan. The college, for the past several weeks has been sending these dele-

P. C. DEBATERS TO ENTER STRAWBERRY LEAF TOURNEY

Will Compete At Winthrop With Twenty Colleges Last of This Week.

Pleased with the showing made by the debating team in their debate against Winthrop on November 20, Hugh Holman, director, has laid plans for sending the team to the Strawberry Leaf Tournament to be held at Winthrop Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

This conference will be attended by teams from every college south of Philadelphia and east of the Mississippi. Each school will enter both a negative and an affirmative team in five debates during the three days of the tournament. The query for these debates is given by Pi Kappa Delta: "Resolved, that Congress should be empowered to fix maximum hours and minimum wages in industry."

No announcement of team standing will be made until the end of the tournament, when the total number of points made by each team will be computed and a loving cup awarded to the winner.

Already plans are being made for the South Atlantic tournament, covering the same territory as the Strawberry Leaf, which will be held in March, 1937.

P. C. representatives are not yet definitely certain for the tournament opening Wednesday, but negative and affirmative teams will be entered.

Frosh Nominate Men For Office

To Vote Tomorrow On Class Officers and Councilman.

Election of a freshman councilman and officers for the first year class will take place tomorrow, nominations having been made last week at a special class meeting. Voting will be by secret ballot, each class member depositing his ballot with the officer of the day.

Should second races be necessary for any of the offices, the extra election will be run off as soon as possible.

Nominees

For freshman councilman were nominated the following: Charlie Thompson, M. D. Shuler, Jimmy Carroll, Jimmy Richardson, H. Paul, Bill Hart, J. C. Griffin.

On the ballot, which will be prepared by the student council and distributed to freshmen, only one name should be checked.

Nominations for president of the freshman class included the following: H. Paul, Roy Hendrickson, Hood Strain, Fred Allen.

For vice-president: Jimmy Richardson, Hugh Rutledge, Charlie Thompson.

For secretary-treasurer: B. Moore,

Regular Issue Today

Editing the paper today because of the after-Thanksgiving rush, the regular staff will next week again step aside so that class issues, begun last week with the Junior issue, may again be resumed.

Next week's Blue Stocking will be edited by the sophomores, headed by J. B. Hafley, while the paper of the following week, the last before Christmas, will be the freshman issue, edited by Pete McCormick. All class issues are published by a staff selected wholly from the class represented.

The regular staff today edits its last paper of the calendar year, and the next to last under the present editor. The last issue will be on January 11, after which a new editor-in-chief will be elected by the student body from the junior class.

Prof. Boyd Initiates New Theme System

What possibly may be a forerunner of greater things to come was instituted here recently by Bernard H Boyd, professor of English, as a method of dealing with freshman themes, long the agony and despair of English teachers throughout the country.

Professor Boyd's system, by which each freshman receives individual and private instruction and criticism on his creative writing, is intended to establish closer contact between instructor and pupil and to show more clearly the errors in the written work.

"Creative writing cannot be taught in the class room," said Mr. Boyd, as he explained that the greatest handicaps to young writers are of a psychological nature, rather than of a grammatical from.

Assisting Professor Boyd in his work of providing individual instruction and assistance to freshman theme-writers are Mrs. John Osman,

CLASSES PICK LEADERS FOR PAPER, ANNUAL

Collings and J. B. Jacobs Take Honors In Superlative Contest For Juniors and Seniors.

BLUE STOCKING AND PaC-SaC ARE SPONSORS

Jim Collings, and J. B. Jacobs are the most versatile members of the upper classes, according to a student poic run off last week under the sponsorship of the Blue Stocking and Pac-Sac. Each of these men was picked as the leader in three phases of campus life and tied for a fourth.

Ballots cast by the members of the senior and junior classes indicated the qualities of various members of the upper classes in the opinion of their mates. In an effort to ascertain who the students think are the leaders in different respects, the poll was conducted with selections made under twenty subjects. Several of the races were extremely close. The final check-up found Jim Collings and J. B. Jacobs tied as choice for best all round man. A similar situation arose over the selection of the handsomest upperclassman. Will Wallace and Laurence Weldon received in equal number of votes.

The largest majority of the poll was in the choice of the best journalist. Sadler Love received seventy-five percent of the votes cast in that race. Bebe Dillard was chosen as the most popular co-ed by a majority nearly as large.

The results of the poll were as follows:

Best all-round man: Jim Collings and J. B. Jacobs (tie for first), Raleigh Shoemaker, Joe Patrick.

Most popular student: Collings, Shoemaker, J. B. Jacobs, Commander.

Most friendly: Collings, McAlpine, Commander, J. B. Jacobs.

Best sport: McAlpine, Collings, Correl.

Most talented: Gray, Love, Patrick and Collings (tie).

Best informed: Campbell, Patrick, Love and McAlpine (tie).

Most dignified: Keller, McLeod; tie for third, Legare, Garrett, Ralph Caldwell and Gray.

Best journalist: Love; Patrick and Penland, (tie), Campbell.

Handsomest: Weldon and Wallace (tie), Gray, Witherspoon and Patterson (tie).

Ye ladies man: Legare; Shoemaker and Gray (tie); Commander and Patterson (tie).

Best physique: J. B. Jacobs, Weldon, Shoemaker, Langston.

Best all-round athlete: J. B. Jacobs, Ernest Evans, Weldon, Ralph Waldrep.

Best business man: Yow, Garrett, Bird, Patrick.

Most popular co-ed: Bebe Dillard, Myra Wise, Verna McLeod and Joyce Pitts (tie).

Most likely to succeed: Patrick, Collings, Love, McAlpine and Ashby Johnson (tie).

Best speaker: Wandell Williams, Keller, Wardlaw, Collings.

Most intellectual: Campbell, Patrick, Ashby Johnson, Cliff McLeod.

Best magazine writer: Love, Campbell, Darby, Cliff McLeod.

Best student: Campbell, Patrick, Ashby Johnson, Frank Johnston.

HARRY BOLICK HOLDING OWN

Harry Bolick, injured last week in an automobile accident near Kingstree, was reported today as holding his own after being given a 50-50 chance for recovery by attending physicians.

Injured at the same time, Mrs. Bolick has been released from the hospital and is now with Bolick, who at last report was still in a semi-comatose condition at a Kingstree hospital.

A graduate of P. C. in 1935, Bolick was all-state fullback, a state champion boxer, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy in 1934, and outstanding in campus affairs. Since graduation he has served as football coach at High Point high school, High Point, N. C.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

Americanism: Paying a couple of dollars for liquor, an additional three dollars for a ticket, riding two hundred miles to see the big Thanksgiving Day game — and passing out thirty minutes before the kick-off.

* * * * * *

As Christmas holidays approach and the end of the semester is just around the corner, we pause to wonder if student interest in college affairs isn't just as dead today as it was when we, as freshmen, dodged sophomores through a long pre-Christmas week.

* * * * * *

Why is it necessary to close one room in the "Y" building for a vast majority of the time, opening it only for special cabinet meetings, when students, not especially interested in cabinet meetings, are interested in additional space in which to spend leisure time? That's what they're asking us. And we don't know.

* * * * * *

"Pledge": "I have given very little aid on this test because I didn't know much and have only copied half of my neighbor's work, the remainder being practically illegible."

More Progress!

Although nothing definite has as yet been done toward taking such a step, and we are not prepared at this time to print news on either side, rumors have come to us, as they have perhaps come to you, that P. C. may in the near future change its fundamental system of class attendance. Furthered by members of the faculty who have seen the proposed plan work outstandingly well in Northern schools, the change would substitute informal discussions with professors for the present lecture system.

As we understand it, the plan would apply only to the junior and senior classes, the under classes continuing the lecture system until it is felt that the change has been perfected to a sufficient degree to warrant its extension. To install the new system it would be necessary to add a number of new instructors. Students would be left largely to their own initiative, with professors providing the proper and needed guidance. Under this plan the mentally strong would not be slowed by those who learn more slowly, and all would gain by the more personal contact with instructors.

Should P. C. be able to install such a system we believe that it would immediately establish for itself a unique position throughout the South. To the best of our knowledge, there is no school in the South today in which the proposed system is in use. Its establishment on this campus would mark P. C. as destined for greater progress to come, would mark it as an institution that is not satisfied with the good points of old plans but is continually striving to give to its students the best that science, exprimentation, and progress can provide.

We are now in the process of completing four years of so-called education at this institution. From the experience of these four years we can say that something is certainly wrong with a system in which some students are retarded by others, in which all suffer from a lack of close contact with instructors. And P. C. is no different from other school. Perhaps next year this school will lead the way toward greater service in the field of Southern education.

"All Hail To Thee . . . "

For four long years we have seen bands try to play P. C.'s Alma Mater. For four equally long years we have heard student voices strain, notes waver, and cheer leaders blush as the trumpet hits the sour notes of "P. C., P. C."

Realizing that certain sentiments must of necessity cling around the tune that has been the Alma Mater of this school for many years, and understanding at the same time that although it may be a sorry one, yet still 'tis our own, THE BLUE STOCKING must, however, go on record as favoring very definitely some change in the school song. We feel that the unhappy experience at the Furman game, when the band attempted the chorus, is but a final straw to the already heavy load. We saw at that time the expressions of students and faculty members around us. The unanimous appearance seemed to be one of embarrassment.

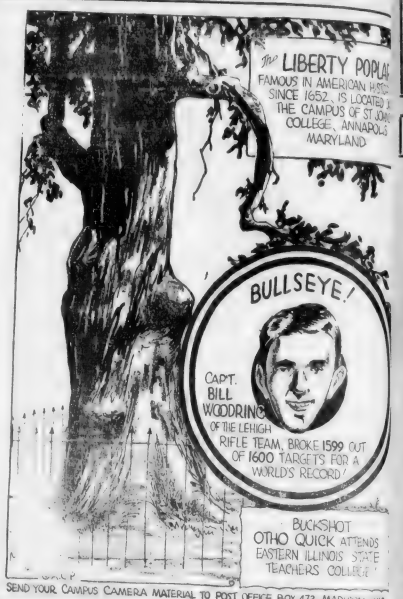
At the Wofford game the band played a new tune, proposed as an Alma Mater to replace the one now in use. While we believe that the new melody is somewhat better than the old, we do not favor using it as P. C.'s Alma Mater. We believe that the benefit to be drived, meager as it would be, would not warrant the change.

We believe that the search should go on to find some tune that has more musical appeal, one that bands may play without fear of embarrassment, one that students may sing without fear of injured vocal chords. We have none to offer. We know very little of such matters; but we believe that somewhere P. C. should be able to find a tune, whether it be old or new, that will fit the requirements.

Certain it is that this college should not go much further along toward the end of the year without remedying the matter.

Alumni To Come

Perhaps the most outstanding tie that binds old students to the school from which they have graduated is a strong, united alumni association. Sad to say, in the years that lie behind P. C. has not been noted for the strength of its alumni association. But within the last two or three years we have noticed, with increasing interest, the great efforts being made by the administration to add to alumni strength.



To members of the class that will graduate this year, and to the classes that will come after it, the weakness or strength of the alumni association is essentially important. Contacts with alumni in this matter of obtaining jobs have been known to carry great weight. When, and if, P. C. can organize active alumni chapters in the important and key cities of the South, graduates of the school will find it much easier to establish contacts that will lead to positions.

In order to cement more firmly the ties between graduates of, say, 1927 and 1937, we believe that it would be of great help were the senior class of each year invited to attend the alumni banquet held in the fall, the last of which was preceding the Wofford game two weeks ago. In this way and through this means, the graduating class would begin, even before leaving school, to feel itself a part of the alumni organization. It would meet and mingle with the members of classes of years gone by, would learn the value of preserving ties with an organization to which it can lend great aid and from which it can receive perhaps greater aid.

As the class of 1937 draws nearer to its collegiate journey's end, we believe its members will tell you how much more secure it would make them feel did they know that hundreds of alumni throughout the South were still vitally interested in P. C. and her graduates. Speaking strictly from a selfish standpoint, the undergraduate body of this school has no more vital problem than that of doing all in its power to further alumni organization.

Naturally, since this college owes much of its support, both actual and spiritual, to its alumni, its officials are extremely anxious to keep its graduates closely connected with the school. Beginning the assimilation of seniors each year into the organization would be the initial step toward adding strength and unity. The only method that we can think of is to give them active participation in the fall gathering.

The Gleaner

The latest issue of the Wofford Old Gold and Black to reach The Gleaner left him wondering whether it was merely the brand or the fact that it struck an empty stomach. Page 1 of the Terrier sheet was labelled "Old Gold and Black." The editorial page and the back page were labelled "The Parley Voo." And know ye that The Parley Voo is published by the girls at Converse!

Whether the trouble lies with the local florists, or whether the fault is that of the man who sells four and five roses in Spartanburg, we still do not know.

The Clemson Tiger, quoting one of the A. & M. college profs, defines the kinds of lies the student may expect: Just plain lies, damn lies, and college catalogues.

Over at Winthrop the girls threw a week or two ago a square dance. The girls frolicked until their hearts were content, yet nary a male was present. Swing it, sister, swing it! And, so, we're told, it still pays to do 'em dirt.

Boxers To Open Drill This Week

Many Report For Practice; Season's Schedule To Be Announced Soon.

The leather-pushers at Presbyterian College will be given a chance to prove their pugilistic ability at the first practice of the boxing team which will probably be called some time this week. Coach Johnson announced early last week that the boxing schedule for the year had not been completed as yet, but he has already been putting some of his worthy charges through their paces.

Lack of experience will be the main worry of P. C.'s fighters, although some of the men have already demonstrated clearly their ability in the R. O. T. C. matches last year. A large number is expected to be at the practice which will be probably announced some time this week. Of the hopeful candidates, Claus Cappelmann, Ed Lambright, "Joe Louis" Clements, June Moore, and John Netties, stand in line for a sure berth on the leather flinging squad but anything can, of course, happen.

Due to lack of experience last year, Coach Johnson was forced to call off allmeets and hold his material to this year, so that some of the worthy candidates would be given a chance to gain more experience. Boxing rates as one of the favorite winter sports at P. C. and, although there will be no frosh team, the rats will be given a chance to work out with the varsity men and are encouraged to do so.

SKEETIN' STUFF

— By —
D. W. DAVIS

Thanksgiving: The time of year when a person lets a stomach full of turkey cause him to do many foolish things — including thanks for many things which have happened or should happen.

These were some of the thanks we heard as we flapped our wings around St. Peter's keyhole: JOHNNY "PUSSLE" HUTCHINSON — "and thanks for letting me find out early that that girl I had a late date with after the dance was a saint instead of a siren, because I was so tired." LEE QUARTERMAN—"thanks for letting CUTE GIRL MAHAFFEY give me a date—I tried so long." BARREL JIM COLLINGS — "thanks for all this wonderful turkey:" LIB McGEE — "and thanks for cotton too—he's so sweet."

G-MAN COMMANDER — "thanks for all this dry cleaning—now I can get ELEANOR that bracelet." AGGIE JONES — "and especially for Clemson, I offer thanks." DUCK DEGNER—"and thanks for not taking her any farther away than Central—I couldn't take it, Dear Saint Peter." DIDDY BIRD — "for Sarah being so sweet to me." NORMAN CREECH—"and I would be so thankful for somebody to love."

SMOOCHER JOE PATRICK—"and thanks for keeping my name out of Skeetin' Stuff—I'm so scared of Margaret." SNAKE-RAT TURNER — "and thanks for me and all this snake." RAT SHULER—"and I give thanks for letting me get my time back with Ann." LITTLE MAN PENLAND—"for that girl of mine (?) in Greenville who writes me twice a week. RAT BROOKER—"and thanks for letting me find out she was a gold-digger before Christmas." MAT HIERS—"and I am also thankful to all these foolish women who have contributed to my art gallery."

And on and on it went. We finally had to leave, but not before we said, "Thanks for my little blue sweater, and especially for the one that made it possible, and all these "swell" guys that give the "Skeeter" Stuff to skeet.

INTRAMURAL FOOTBALL TO BEGIN ON THURSDAY

Company "A" Meets "B" Thursday; Home Guards Play "C" Friday; Finals On Saturday.

With every team entered in the series making definite plans for the use of rumble-grumble football to replace the currently popular razzle-dazzle style, army and home guard forces began today to groom their charges for the intramural fray to open Thursday afternoon when Company "A" meets Company "B."

The winner of the "A" vs "B" battle will annoint five mussies and wait with more or less fear and trembling to meet the winner of the game the following day between Company "C" and the home guard, i. e., the campus defenders, or non-military students. The championship struggle will take place Saturday afternoon under the present plan.

Practice (?) Begins

Uniforms were to have been issued this afternoon and practice will begin when and if coaches can entice prospective all-campus men from the warmth of dormitory rooms.

To coach Company "A," J. B. Jacobs has been appointed; for Company "B," Jim Collings; and for Company "C," Bill Thompson. Chief pilot for the home guards will be Vic Correll. Each of the coaches will be assisted by other members of the varsity team.

Only men who have not participated in either freshman or varsity football will be eligible for the intramural games.

1935 All-Campus

The following all-campus team, selected last year following the annual clash for the intramural football championship of the campus, includes several men who will romp this week when the Home Guard attempts to retain the title:

Ends: Mixson, Home Guard; Donnan, Army.

Tackles: McClary,* Army; McNatt,* Home Guard.

Guards: Love, Home Guard; Tuten,* Home Guard.

Center: Buchan, Home Guard.

Quarterback: Guerard,* Army.

Halfbacks: Patton,* Home Guard; Walter,* Home Guard.

Fullback: Winget,* Home Guard.

THE ALL-STATE

The editor of this column, having seen each of South Carolina's teams in action at least once, presents, for the third consecutive year, his selections for the 1936 all-state eleven:

Ends—King (Furman, Gettys (Erskine).
Tackles—Black (Clemson), Gaffney (Carolina).
Guards—Bryant (Clemson), Beeman (P. C.)
Center—Lewis (Clemson).
Quarter—Berry (Clemson).
Halfbacks—Scott (Furman), Folger (Clemson).
Fullback—Jacobs (P. C.)

TALKIN' ABOUT IT

King is the finest end in the state, and probably one of the best to come up in the past few years. Gettys, Erskine's superlative wnigman, easily proved his right to the other end position by his consistently great performances during the season.

Clemson's rugged Manuel Black is a certainty at one tackle. But our other selection, Gaffney, won't find favor with the press as a whole. Which doesn't worry us a bit, as we think he's too good to be left out.

Bryant and Beeman get our vote for the guard positions because of their aggressiveness and defensive skill. Neither is great, but their work throughout the season has been outstanding, and of particular value to their respective teams.

Centers were as scarce as hen's teeth, with Lewis of Clemson, and Kiss of Carolina, standing out as the most capable. We pick Lewis because of his work against state teams. Kiss was best against out-of-staters, but did not play as regularly as Lewis.

The backfield is "choice." Berry at quarter, and Scott and Folger at the halves, have no opposition. Jacobs, at full, may have been shaded in some phases of the game by Smith and Jenkins. But after considering his kicking brilliance, magnificent spirit and other qualities, we figure he's the man.

GONE WITH THE WIND

Clemson, like other good South Carolina grid elevens, is gone with the wind—the wind being in the shape of Furman's Purple Hurricane. In a well-attended Turkey day get-together, the boys from Greenville slipped over a pair of second-semester touchdowns to make the beasts bawl.

In winning, Furman scored an upset. Very few souls predicted a state championship for the Baptists. But with three influences hard at work, they won every state engagement, whipped Davidson and almost took Georgia. The three influences were Coach Dizzy McLeod, Flankman King, and Halfback Scott. And by the way, the margin of victory over Clemson and P. C. was the same—two touchdowns.

Plans for membership in Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatic fraternity, were also discussed at this meeting. It is hoped that the club will be able to petition a charter in this organization before many weeks have passed.

It is thought advisable that the club wait until next semester for the presentation of a new play, which will in all probability be an entirely different type from that of Friday night.

Army vs Home Guard

Prodded by threats from an irate and harassed P. M. S. T., the army boys will hold out stars for the final game should it appear later in the week that the home guard will reach the finals.

Odds on the series, vacillating from pole to pole as information of new prospects have arrived, seemed this afternoon to have become more definitely settled. Early afternoon quotations in regard to an army or home guard victory were fixed at even points, even money.

Carolina.

Followed by Clemson and Citadel, Furman was the only state team to complete an unbeaten season against other state opponents.

For fourth place, P. C. and Carolina fought to a tie, the Presbyterians winning three and losing three, while the Gamecocks won two and lost two. Since P. C. won by comfortable margins every game against Little Four opposition, her claim to Little Four championship supremacy is undisputed.

Library Lists Number Of Books

Books catalogued in the library since September today reached a total of 329 according to a statement issued today by W. L. Jones, college librarian. Most of these volumes are parallel books on science and literature, but includes some new French readers and late fiction.

Outstanding among the works of fiction are: "Informal Sketches of the 19th Century," illustrated with sketches by Currie and Ives. Also included is Sir Patrick Harvey's "Oxford Contribution to English Literature," and "Drums Along the Mohawk," a story of Revolutionary days in New York, by Edmunds.

FRESHMEN PICK CLASS OFFICERS FOR THE YEAR

H. Paul Named President; Rutledge, Vice-President; and B. Moore Secretary.

JIMMY CARROLL NAMED TO COUNCIL

In the elections of the freshman class here last week, Jimmy Carroll, Be Moore, Hugh Rutledge, and Huiet Paul emerged victorious in the respective offices for which they were running. The results at the frosh poll were very close, with keen competition, and a run-over was necessary in the election for student council.

After the run-over, Jimmy Carroll was elected to the council. Carroll distinguished himself in high school at Summerville, where he was named best all-round athlete, being especially good in track activities.

For president of the freshman class, Huiet Paul was chosen. He graduated from Charleston high where he was outstanding in all phases of campus activity, scholastic and athletic.

Hugh Rutledge was named vice-president of the lower class, and he also hails from Charleston, where he is noted for his ability as a taxidermist and a student of natural history.

Be Moore was elected secretary-treasurer of the class after a heated race. Moore is from York, where he was captain of his high school football team. He was also a member of the Block "Y" club of the school.

I. R. C. Nominates Model League Of Nations Delegates

Six Members Chosen To Represent Club At Winthrop.

At a meeting of the International Relations club last Wednesday night, six delegates were selected to attend the Model League of Nations at Winthrop this week-end. Those chosen to attend this gathering were: Cliff McLeod, M. E. Norton, Arthur McElroy, R. K. Timmons, Tom Newland, and Verna McLeod. The committee will be the guests of the college for Friday and Saturday, returning Saturday night.

During the course of the meeting interesting talks were made by Jim Collings and George Beatty on subjects of international interest. Collings chose as his subject the German-Japanese Pact and brought out some important points of this treaty. George Beatty followed him with an equally interesting discourse concerning the latest developments of the War Debt.

After these talks were made a general discussion ensued and plans were made for the activities of the club for the remainder of the year.

Dr. Jones Speaks At "Y" Meeting

Addresses Meeting Thursday On "Caricatures of Worship."

Using "Caricatures Of Worship," as his subject, Dr. Dudley Jones addressed the students at the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting held in the "Y" building Thursday night.

The address held great interest to all as Dr. Jones laid particular stress on the fact that, since we are human and liable to error, every worship service, no matter where it is held, has some flaw in it. He also stated that some services were greatly twisted, the usual reason for this being that the leader had not sufficiently prepared himself to conduct the worship group. He may read the Scripture lesson carelessly or offer prayers that are merely expletives.

"In spite of the flaws in a service," Dr. Jones added, "one who participates in it sincerely can reap great benefits. There is emotional uplift in a song and every prayer draws us nearer to God. All in all, every service will contribute to the worship of God."

Other Y. M. C. A. news of interest is the activities of the Frosh "Y" cabinet which met last Tuesday night for the purpose of electing officers. At this meeting, Hubert Wilkerson was named president; Milton Norton, vice-president; and Bill Hart secretary and treasurer. They also laid plans for a freshman paper which will be published by the cabinet biweekly. The editor of the proposed publication, "Ambassador of Good Thought," is to be Dugald Hudson.

Senior Petition Refused

Dr. M. G. Woodworth announced Friday afternoon that the faculty had refused to grant unlimited chapel cuts to members of the senior class. The announcement came as a result of the submission of a petition to the faculty by the senior class through the student advisory board.

Dr. Woodworth also stated that a committee of the faculty had been appointed to formulate a statement of the reasons for the action taken by the faculty in their regular meeting last week. The statement will be read in chapel by President Jacobs sometime this week.

It is believed that certain concessions will be made to the advantage of the seniors and if this is true, they will be enumerated along with the reading of the regular statement.

P. C. DEBATERS TAKE HONORS AT ROCK HILL

Strawberry Leaf Tourney Pronounced Great Success.

With the return of the six delegates from the Strawberry Leaf tournament held at Winthrop college in Rock Hill, there was completed one of the most interesting series of intercollgeiate debating in the history of Presbyterian college forensic activity, according to those who attended.

Ashby Johnson, Gus Cartledge, Roy Hutchinson, and Dugald Hutchinson represented P. C. in debating, while Hubert Wardlaw and Wandell Williams were the representatives in extemporary speaking. Wardlaw won second place in his division, while Williams took third with a brilliant speech.

According to the negative debaters, their most interesting opponents of the questions, "Resolved, that congress shall be empowered to fix maximum wages and minimum hours for industry," were the representatives from Dartmouth college, whom they also considered the best debaters in the whole tournament. They listed as the most outstanding points of the Dartmouth team, their natural ability, sound logic, and clever wit. Among the many representatives from colleges south of New Hampshire and east of the Mississippi that P. C. speakers met, were Asheville Teachers' college, Emory and Henry college, Elon college, North Carolina and Dartmouth.

The team reported that almost every meal was a banquet, accompanied by an entertaining program and after dinner speakers. Especially did they enjoy the informality and friendliness that prevailed during the tourney, and although their schedule is not yet completed, both teams are looking forward to returning to the Strawberry Leaf tournament next year.

The debaters were informed that their coaches would receive within the next few weeks, the decisions of the judges accompanied by a constructive criticism of their speeches.

Bolick's Condition Greatly Improved

Complete Examination Proves Injuries Not So Series As First Believed.

News comes from the Kelly sanitarium in Kingstree, that Harry Bolick, popular P. C. graduate, is greatly improved over his serious condition of last week following an automible accident between Cades and Lake City. Most students here remember Bolick, who graduated in 1935. He was all-state fullback that year, an outstanding boxer, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy, and prominent in campus affairs.

Last week Harry was given only a 50-50 chance to live but the crisis has passed and his friends are expecting a full and speedy recovery. An X-ray examination showed that he suffered a fractured skull, but no

The other morning in chapel, while waiting for the bell to cease its usual "eight-minute" toll, we overheard two students talking. Said one: "Why don't they have a co-ed conduct chapel for a change?" . . . So that is why we decided to ask this week, "WHAT DO YOU THINK OF HAVING A CO-ED LEAD THE CHAPEL PROGRAM OCCASIONALLY?"

Said DEAN POWER, serious-minded junior: "Well, I believe it's a good idea . . . that is, if they take part in other things, why not have them take part in chapel activities?"

After justly reprimanding us for using his initials when we recently quoted his brother, FURMAN WALLACE replied to our question, "I believe they should take an active part in the chapel program, since they are beginning to engage in other phases of college activity."

We casually asked Freshman AIKEN TAYLOR, who was busy at the time, reading about life in life. "Yeah, I think it's a fine idea, really. Say, is this for The Blue Stocking?" When we answered in the affirmative, he thought again and said, "I think co-eds should have charge of the chapel program sometimes since they are now attending chapel; but this doesn't mean that I think they should be allowed to vote or hold office."

Military Ball To Open Series On Friday Evening

Musketeers' Tea Dance Friday Afternoon, and Home Guard Affair Saturday Night.

The military ball, seasonal high spot of the social calendar, will be held on Friday evening in Copeland hall, with "Hap" Gray and his Collegians swinging for the occasion. A Saturday afternoon tea dance, sponsored by The Musketeers, precedes the Home Guard "brawl" that evening to terminate a colorful series.

The ball, an annual affair, will be featured by an moonlight parade earlier in the evening in honor of the senior officers and their sponsors. The R.O.T.C. corps will be dressed in full uniform, with white belts and gloves to add color to the occasion. Each company will ten formally salute their company sponsor.

The climax of the evening's activities will be the grand march and saber arch for the advanced men. This will be followed by an R.O.T.C. no-break ,and will bring to an end the season's outstanding social function.

The tea dance is the first dance ever to be sponsored by The Musketeers, a newly organized group of advanced men, and is being planned carefully by its members. The Home Guard "brawl" sponsored by the non-military men, is expected to be a good dance and should be enjoyed by all. Invitations have been sent out over the entire state, and a large crowd is expected to attend the series.

THREE WINNERS OF BLOCKING TROPHIES TO BE HONORED

Sabados, Gormley and May To Be Presented With Awards Here Tuesday Night.

S. C. ALL-STATE TEAM WILL BE GUESTS ALSO

The presentation of the Jacobs Blocking Trophies for the state of South Carolina, the Southern Conference, and the Southeastern Conference will take place at a banquet given in the dining hall of Presbyterian college at 7:30 tomorrow evening.

In addition to the best blockers in the south, the members of the Associated Press All-State Team as selected from the votes of eleven sports writers of South Carolina will be present. The members of this team are as follows:

William Bryant of Clemson, left guard.
Harold Lewis of Clemson, center.
Paul Gaffney of Carolina, right guard.
Orville Rogers of The Citadel, right tackle.
Bob King of Furman, right end.
Joe Berry of Clemson, quarterback.
J. B. Jacobs of Presbyterian, halfback.
June Scott of Furman, halfback.
Mac Folger of Clemson, fullback.

This greatest of South Carolina teams for the year of 1936 will meet for perhaps the only time in their lives and together with the winners of the Jacobs Trophies will make up quite an aggregation of football heroes.

The presentation of the trophies, as a part of the program will be broadcast over radio station WBT, announced President William P. Jacobs, donor of the coveted trophies. This will be a novel experience at P. C. as nothing of this type has ever met with any great degree of success here.

It was thought at first by many that the winner of the South Carolina Trophy would be a member of the previously named All-State Eleven but after a meeting of football experts and officials throughout the state last Thursday night, it was rightfully decided that the honor should be bestowed upon A. A. Sabados, Citadel backfield ace. Being only a sophomore, Sabados, whose home is in Aurora, Illinois, has distinguished himself all season for his brilliant blocking and should develop more of a threat during the next two years of his varsity football career.

Presbyterian College will also have an All-Southern end in the refectory tomorrow night, for Bob King, All-State flankman from Furman has earned that distinction. P. C. enthusiasts were given a chance to behold a brand of King's stellar play when Furman met P. C. here on Johnson Field November 6. All agree that King deserves all credit that is coming to him due to his masterful performances on the gridiron this season.

These class issues are a part of the program of the regular paper each year and will be completed with the frosh issue next Monday night. This will be the last edition of The Blue Stocking before Christmas. It will be taken over by the regular staff at the beginning of the new year.

DR. McSWEEN IS HONORED BY RELIGIOUS CLUB

Taken In As Result of Work In Southern Religious Circles.

The Ministerial Club announced today that the Reverend John McSween, D. D., of the Purity Presbyterian church of Chester, has been elected to honorary lifetime membership in the club. Dr. McSween was singled out and selected by the club as its honorary member to be elected during 1936-1937 from the Presbyterian Church in South Carolina only after discussion and careful consideration of the foremost ministers in the state.

Dr. McSween was elected in accordance with the constitution of the club which provides that a minister from each of the states of South Carolina and Georgia shall be elected in the fall of each year and the other in the following spring. The selection of such men is based on the outstanding work they have accomplished and the desire of the members to have such men as honorary members. He was selected on the basis of his outstanding work as a minister and his work while president of this college, his exceptionally fine ability as a preacher, and his closeness to the members of the club, many of whom were associated with him in the past.

In accepting honorary membership in the club, he said, "I accept with sincere appreciation the honor your organization has conferred on me. . . I am deeply touched by this mark of your consideration and I am warmly interested in the fine plans which your club is making."

Dr. McSween is well known to many of the students of P. C. because of his past relations with the college as president. During the spring of 1935 he felt the urgent call to return to the active ministry and accepted a call to the Purity Presbyterian church of Chester, where he has remained since then. He is recognized as one of the most outstanding ministers and leaders in the state, being particularly noted for his fine ability as a public speaker. For his ability and good work his name has been placed in the Who's Who In America. During his stay here at the college he gained the good will and admiration of those with whom he came into contact and is well beloved by the college students and the people of Clinton.

Dr. McSween as the Ministerial Club's first honorary member has accepted an invitation to speak at the special installation and initiation services of the club to be held at the First Presbyterian church in Clinton on Thursday evening, December 17, at 8 o'clock. The college students and the people of Clinton will be invited to these services to hear Dr. McSween. The definite program for the services will be announced later, said Cliff McLeod, Ministerial Club president.

Glee Club Cut To 27 Members

Interesting Trips Planned For Club By Dr. Huntley.

After nearly two months of practice from time to time, Dr. S. M. Huntley, director of the Presbyterian College Glee Club, announced his final choice of 27 songsters to compose the club. Those whose singing ability netted them positions on the roster were: Collings, Plunkett, McAlpine, Newland, Wylie, Taylor, Cousins, Patterson, McLaurin, Hansell, Cunningham, Potter, Beatty, Gray, Clements, Hughes, Hart, Blackwell, Coleman, McSween, Worrell, Williams, Ward, Law, Heath, Hemphill, Smith and Wilson.

Dr. Huntley is well pleased with the work of the club to date and is making plans for several long trips through South Carolina and Georgia.

After reading the returns on the Spanish civil war, we Southerners have got to stop bragging about what happened to us when Sherman pulled his famous march to the sea.

Speaking of war, we folks surely don't want to wish the aviation industry any trouble, but when we read more every day about the European situation, we wish the Atlantic ocean was twice as wide as it is.

(More War News). FLASHES FROM THE FRONT: War is expected to break out on the P. C. campus any time this week. In this unavoidable civil strife, the Home Guard is expecting an air raid from the Army forces, but are busy building up an impregnable defense that may embarrass the organized forces.

Only fourteen more shopping days till Christmas, the season when so many love quarrels come to a climax and remain at this point until the closing stages of the Yuletide season. Students here return to classes to buckle down to real work prior to mid-term exams which take place during the latter part of January.

Sportsmanship

Although Presbyterian College has never had the privilege to boast of the best athletic teams in the country, and seldom, even in the state, its is a recognized fact that she does have an undefinable spirit that keeps it in the running in all activities. Sometimes, around the various campus circles, some assume a dubious attitude and remain silent on the question of "P. C. spirit." Other "Doubting Thomases" even venture to say "Where is it?" It is the kind of attitude that tends to have a demoralizing effect on the spirit. However, this group is in the minority on the campus and we are sure that it will remain so until it is entirely wiped out.

Whether on the football gridiron, on the track, the baseball diamond, or even on the debating floor, P. C. has always been noted throughout the country for its true sportsmanship. Never, under any circumstances, has P. C. been found guilty of resorting to dirty tactics. A fine example of the clean principles here occurred last year in the Tech game down in Atlanta. Tech won 33-0 but not until after they had fought one of the gamest and cleanest teams they had ever met. The game was announced over the radio and the announcer paused a moment to remark that he had never seen such a clean exhibition of football played against Tech. In this game P. C. received only one five yard penalty while the Yellow Jackets were penalized one hundred and ten yards! This is only one glowing example of the sportsmanship that exists here; hundreds more could be mentioned.

Tribute goes to Walter Johnson, head mentor of athletic activities. For twenty-one years his name has been heralded throughout the state and it resounds in athletics halls of fame. His sound reasoning and principles have been directly responsible for the advancement of the school he loves; his ceaseless efforts have succeeded in obtaining the acclamation and praise of the entire South which recognizes his ability and respects his work.

The alumni here are becoming more united than ever and all say with pride that they are graduates of Presbyterian College and personal friends of Walter Johnson. The alumni are the backbone of the college and as long as we have true and devoted members to fill the ranks of that organization, P. C. will always be strong contenders for the "Sportsmanship" title. This worthy quality has been handed down to us from previous generations of graduates and may we long keep its fine standards aloft!—J. B. H.

Sophomore Daze

We, the sophomore class of Presbyterian College rightfully claim the "Forgotten Man" title. A freshman is lowly in some respects but he at least has the eyes of the campus focused on him at all times. The sophomore does not desire special attention but he does demand recognition from the high and mighty juniors and seniors. It seems that after having gone through the tortures and afflictions of freshman life the soph passes into remote inactivity and ceases to be the man of the hour.

Two weeks ago in this column the juniors claimed that they occupied the despised background position, but we want to take this opportunity to refute their points and submit reasons for our meriting this position. To a man in the junior class, life is just beginning for him. He is given the opportunity to make the advanced class, he may be taken into membership by the Blue Key, he may be elected to high student offices, and countless other honors may be conferred upon him as he sits back and takes it easy.

On the other hand, the sophomore is being regarded as a "second year freshman." His last resort is the awkward freshman upon whom he ventures to voice his wrath and exercise his power of supreme being. Finally, even the freshmen see his plight and turn their attentions to someone higher. The sophomore seems to be in the embryonic stages of development. During this second year metamorphosis he remains quietly in the background while brilliant thoughts are evolving in his cunning brain. He knows that his day will come and he quietly awaits it with all the subtlety he can command.

Touchdowns

"To honor the man who carries the man who carries the ball" is what the Jacobs blocking trophy is given for each year by the president of Presbyterian College. The quality of being a good blocker is the most unselfish characteristic demonstrated on the gridirons each year all over the country and such a quality deserves recognition and reward.

Tumultous thousands cheered shifty backs as they crossed the goal line this year and heaped praise on pass receivers as they traveled the remaining distance of the field to tally. Credit must be given where credit is due, but the man who clears the path for these scores really deserves most of the credit.

Presbyterian College had the distinction of having a winner of the Jacobs trophy in her ranks two years ago. Some of us will remember his unselfish attitude and spirit coupled with his sparkling play and will to win, no matter what the odds were. The W. P. Jacobs blocking trophy is an award donated each year to the unselfish football player by an unselfish man. We may be proud to boast of having the donor of this trophy as president of the college since it is an award for unselfishness characteristic of the P. C. spirit.

The Clinton Rotary club, realizing the value of honoring the interference runner, will sponsor a banquet which will be held in Judd hall tomorrow night. At this banquet, three unsung heroes of the Southern, Southeastern, and State conferences will be givn due praise and honor for the great things which they have so unselfishly demonstrated at all times throughout the season. The trophies will be presented during the course of the banquet by the president of the Southern conference who will also act as guest speaker. Winners of the coveted trophies—Gormley, May, and Sabados—WE SALUTE YOU!—J. B. H.

CAMPUS CAMERA

The Collegiate World

Great poets, artists and statesmen have sprung from Harvard, but surely the school excells in producing past masters at the fine art of publicity.

You all remember the communist flag on the Supreme Court building a few months ago, but how many recall the hilarious stunt pulled against Yale a few years back? Someone from Harvard stole the Yale bulldog. When day broke, they scattered bits of hamburger at the foot of the statue of John Harvard, then let the dog follow his nose. A photographer was handy and the next day papers carried pictures of the Yale bulldog licking the feet of John Harvard!

It may all be rationalization, but it will make many college readers feel good inside, to learn that a psychologist at Oregon State university has just declared his conclusion that "B" students are the most successful. Those that get "A" continually, he said, are generally the meek and submissive type that professors can convince of anything. "C" people, he declared are mostly the independent and defiant type.

The University of Washington does not know whether to take it all as a compliment or an insult, but they're puzzling their heads about the recent statement of Frances Farmer, movie actress, and one of their graduates.

A college education, says the actress, robs a woman of her capacity to live. Elucidating, Miss Farmer declared a girl is "fairly normal" when she enters college, but the strain of trying to meet each problem rationally and intellectually is too great for her.

"Women live on emotion," she said, "and when that is taken from them by too much introspective thought they're not feminine anymore."

It's an ill wind that blows no good and a poor death that doesn't add to the life of two boys at Purdue university.

They now work their way through school as professional pallbearers at a funeral home. Fee: two dollars a carry.

You've heard it a hundred times not more, but here it is again: the new winter-model guise: "Boy Beast!"

It all happened at Red Wing, Minnesota—this dramatization of the time-honored "man-bite-dog" gag.

Ray Billy gave rookie journalism instructors the latest version when he tried to capture a libertine weasel. As all good weasles will in similar circumstances, this one stopped his mouth around Billy's hand. When the "fur-fang" assumed tendencies, refusing to be turned loose, Billy bit him hard with his strong teeth until the animal passed out.

TRIBUTE

The 1935 football season has passed on to its reward (may it rest in peace), and the pounding of rubber-clad feet is beginning to attract the interest of the sport-minded collegian toward the hardwood court.

Before looking into the future let us briefly review the season of pig-skins, cleated feet, and helmeted heads. Presbyterian College closed a successful season week before last with a brilliant homecoming win over the Wofford Terriers from Spartanburg. This grand finale gave the Blue Hose the undisputed Little Four championship of South Carolina, since they had previously won over Erskine and Newberry.

In the state P. C. tied with Carolina for fourth place honors. P. C. having three wins and three losses to their credit, while the Gamecocks were victorious in two games and losers in two.

Outside the state, the Calvinists didn't fare as well, but we can be proud of a team that gave a good account of themselves against the heaviest of odds, and showed the teams they played that our's is a team that is not to be taken lightly in any conference.

In closing, let us give credit where credit is due—to Coaches Walter Johnson and Lonnie McMillian, for their ceaseless and untiring energy in directing the team, to the team that made their efforts worth while, and to the "Hunkies," whose so-called intestinal fortitude made them stick to a thankless job so that the varsity might have a punching bag on which to test themselves.

BACK INDOORS AGAIN

Now, on to basketball. The Presbyterians long have been termed "the goat" of basketball in Palmetto cage circles, but this year the worm seems to be turning. With one of the most promising squads he has had in a number of years, Coach Lonnie McMillian hopes to mold a team that will be a strong contender for the coveted state title. Up until the time of this writing, Coaches Forehand and Waldrep have been putting both the varsity and frosh squads through their paces, Coach McMillian being tied up with his football duties, but the latter is expected to relieve his two understudies at the earliest possible opportunity.

It would be difficult to pick a starting quintet for either squad at the present, but the varsity will probably consist mainly of sophomores who composed last year's strong freshman aggregation. Captain Ralph Waldrep, who suffered a back injury during football season, will be unable to see any real action until after Christmas, but has been taking light workouts with his team-mates.

In these early practices the team is demonstrating that they are willing and capable of showing a brand of basketball that would delight any coach's heart. The student body can assure these boys that they will be backed to the limit, win or lose.

BOXERS DON MITTENS

Coach Walter Johnson's call for boxers has brought a response that is surprising as well as pleasing. The men who showed promise in the R.O.T.C. matches last year have turned out almost to a man. These men will form the basis on which an undeniably fine team is being built. — Bouquets go to Captain Cappelmann, who will, no doubt, lead his men through a very successful season.

WET GROUNDS

The "Intra-Murder" football games that are scheduled to be played in the near future are being anxiously awaited by the student body. These games promise to be the most interesting seen at P. C. in many years from the standpoint of comedy and technique. The idea of having company teams instead of one team for the entire army seems to appeal to the whole school. In view of this fact, the dope points to the home-guard, as they will not be required to meet the full army strength as last year.

Even if the games aren't the best from the standpoint of good football, we believe we can assure more laughs than "Large" Evans gets from Donald Duck comedies.

Basketball Work Well Under Way

Early Practices Show Good Material On Hand.

A successful season is assured both the freshmen and varsity basketball teams here this season. After several weeks of preliminary warm-up practice, the two squads have begun to settle down to the real grind and have been put through their paces by Tutors McMillian, Waldrep and Forehand.

On the varsity, sophomores will play the major roles with at least three and possibly four men on the starting line-up. Holden, Batchelor, and Holcombe are among those assured of a first string berth and with a little varsity competition experience they should be able to give a sizable account of themselves in South Carolina basketball circles. Besides the sophomores named above, Captain Waldrep, Frank Johnston, Woodward Cavin, Cleckler, and Majors have been outstanding in recent scrimmage performances. The report of Kimbo's loss to the squad came as a severe blow as his services had been counted on greatly and Coach McMillian feels this loss keenly. The schedule has not been completed yet but games have been arranged with every team in the state and negotiations are being made for games with the University of Georgia and Georgia Tech.

The outlook for the type of Freshman team that will be put out is still rather indefinite although a fair team which may develop into a threatening aggregate is very probable. Coach Forehand and his boys have been holding regular practices and he reports the spirit to be high although stars are absent. In recent scrimmages the following men stood out at their various posts: Griffin, J. C. Griffin, Reynolds, Jones, Fleming, Richardson, Maher, and Buie. The frosh schedule includes games with every team in the state except Citadel and as soon as it is completed should include games with several Georgia prep schools.

Thought: We agree with "AWK" TIMMONS that a man who fell during the sleet as much as HE did, need make no apologies for keeping his wrath up so much. LOVE: HANDSOME BILL THOMPSON calls his girl "gun-powder," 'cause no one can hold a candle to her!!!

Quit: I bet Mr. Dionne was mortally "stork" mad 'bout this time last year! Fun: "WINDY" CROSSS admits every girl he ever went with made a fool of him—that just goes to prove the lasting effect of some women, "Windy" ole boy! More fun: Cute "SULLY" SULLIVAN courting a cute little German gal named Zelma Swink.

This is no PUBLICITY when I say that people who "amooch" in certain class-rooms around and about need more privacy than a glass window with Bon-Ami on it can afford.

"COTTON" BOSWELL is in love for keeps this time. At the last dances his gal told some one he looked exactly like Robert Taylor. We ain't saying "yes" and we ain't saying "no," but anybody who says "COTTON" looks like Robert Taylor MUST be in love—nothing but love could be that blind.

It's rumored around that "TWO-GUN" MARION MILLER and his gang of Rough Riders with the big shiny boots, bought them because somebody told them that "riding" was a major sport around P. C. They weren't disappointed when it was found the boots weren't necessary 'cause they look good anyhow. "Rabbi" KELLER has held "SUELLA DENSON'S hand so much lately that it's doubtful even to "Rabbi" what the outcome will be. "FOOTSIE" YOW wants him to know that he doesn't have to save Suella, but if he ever did have any to save, to save two—one for him and one for LEE.

Remember: Love is like a stock market in that it is always fluctuating and you never know what to expect.

Blue Hose Boxers Show Real Spirit

Daily Work-out Sessions Prove Strength of Squad.

Last year, due to lack of material, Presbyterian college did not have a boxing team, but this year the outlook is very promising. Collegiate boxing circles will be treated to the sight of an almost new boxing team with the exception of Cappelmann, who saw much service two years ago. Coach Johnson has several competent leather-pushers on hand and is engaged in arranging a schedule which should call for many long trips. A definite announcement of the schedule will be made in the next few days, matches being assured with Clemson, The Citadel, Georgia, and possibly the University of Florida.

Among those who have been working out diligently in the gym this week are: Ben Legare, J. B. Evans, Curly Clements, Manny Moore, Wandell Williams, Frank Booth, Billy Gilmore, Dave Carson, Thad Coleman, Jim Booth, Ed Lambright, Billy Burns, Charles Kimbo, and Captain Cappelmann.

With the above named pugilists showing such form and ability as they have in the past week of practice, P. C.'s fighters will be able to stack up with any team in the state.

There will be no freshman team this year. However, some of the outstanding rats may appear in exhibition bouts from time to time. Some of the frosh now working out with the varsity and who show promise are: Ralph Buchan, Bryant, Bullock, McKellar, and Bill Moore.

Radio And Recordings

The regular radio column is absent in this issue, but we are giving the dope on some of the new popular numbers that have recently seen released.

Decca has just released a recording of Gilbert and Sullivan in medley form, done by Jack Hylton's English outfit, which a few of our "swing enthusiasts" might like. This is an extra large record and contains selections from the following: "The Mikado," "Iolanthe," "The Gondoliers," "H. M. S. Pinafore."

Another "twelve-incher" getting back to the land of swing, is Decca's recent release containing a variety of tempos by Jimmy Dorsey, Frances Langford, Bing Crosby, and Louis Armstrong. It can't miss: "Pennies From Heaven," "Let's Call a Heart a Heart," "So Do I," "Skeleton In the Closet."

If you like Shep Field's rhythm, the following Blue Bird releases can be gotten from any musical shop: "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Easy To Love," "I'm Talking Through My Heart," and "You Came To My Rescue."

Intramural Play Set For This Week

Present Plan Is For Series To Be Finished By Friday.

Due to the condition of the weather last week, the intramural football games have been postponed until this week. If the elements permit, all the games will be played during the course of this week. The present plan is for "A" company to meet "B" company Tuesday afternoon, and "C" company to meet the Home Guard the following afternoon. The winners of these two engagements will be pitted together in the finals probably Friday afternoon.

Jacobs will coach 'A' company, Waldrep is assigned to "B," Bird to "C," while Correll will take over the coaching duties of the highly touted Home Guard. A complete starting line-up has not yet been obtained for "A" company but the probable starting aggregations for the other teams will be:

"B" Company

Beatty	left end
Adams	left guard
Johnson	center
Huntley	right guard
Shaw	right tackle
McCleod	right end
Woodward	quarterback

broken bones or serious chest injuries as was first feared. It will require several weeks of hospital care before Bolick will be allowed to return to his home, hospital authorities stated.

At the time of the accident Mr. and Mrs. Bolick and their little two-year-old son, Harry, Jr., were en route to Kingstree to visit relatives for the Thanksgiving holidays. Bolick's car had a head-on collision with one containing Mrs. D. L. Allen and Miss Emma Crouch, both from Charleston. Both of the cars, after the terrific impact were turned in the same direction headed north. The Charleston women were on their way to Hartsville when the crash occurred. They suffered only minor injuries about the head and face.

For the past year, Bolick has been a member of the High Point, N. C., high school faculty and coach of the football team.

RELIGIOUS CLUB MEMBERS TO BE INSTALLED SOON

Dr. John McSween, Former P. C. President, To Conduct Services Thursday Night.

DR. L. ROSS LYNN TO CHARGE MEMBERS

The Rev. John McSween, D.D., pastor of Purity Presbyterian church, Chester, will preach at the First Presbyterian church next Thursday evening, Dec. 17, at 8 o'clock, on the occasion of the firmal installation of the Ministerial club of Presbyterian college.

The service will be a union meeting of the Ministerial club, the college Y.M.C.A., and the churches of Clinton.

Dr. McSween was recently honored by the club by being given honorary membership for his outstanding leadership and work in Southern religious circles. He will bring a message that will be of special interest to college students and it is hoped that the college students will avail themselves of the opportunity to hear him. As one of the outstanding ministers and leaders of the state, he is particularly noted for his fine ability as a preacher. He is a former president of Presbyterian college, where he gained the good will and admiration of those with whom he came in contact and is well loved by the college students and the people of Clinton.

The purpose of this service is for the formal installation of the Ministerial club. After Dr. McSween's message Dr. L. Ross Lynn, president of Thornwell orphanage, will deliver a short charge to the club members.

At this service the college glee club, under the direction of Dr. S. M. Huntley will make its initial public appearance for year. The club will render several special selections as well as serve as the choir for the evening.

Special prayer groups are being conducted in the different dormitories under the direction of the Y. M. C. A. in preparation for the service.

The Ministerial club has been preparing for sometime for this service, and invites the college faculty, the student body, people of Clinton, and others to hear Dr. McSween in his first appearance to preach in Clinton since he left the college.

Reasons Given For Rejecting Unlimited Cuts

Faculty Committee States Position In Letter To Jacobs.

Eight chapel cuts a semester for each senior were last week granted by a faculty committee appointed to deal with the matter, and reasons were at the same time outlined for a decision announced the preceding week to refuse a senior petition for optional chapel attendance.

In a letter to President William P. Jacobs, the committee, headed by Dr. M. G. Woodworth, stated that the petition rejection was based on three reasons.

The letter listed (1) sen'or duty to attend student body meetings and exert influence in student affairs; (2) the religious atmosphere for which parents send their sons to P. C., and (3) the faculty need for senior cooperation in making "this college definitely and strongly Christian."

The communication stated that the request for optional attendance had been rejected without a dissenting vote. Earlier it had received approval by a vast majority of the senior class and the unanimous approval of the student advisory committee.

Freshman Issue

This issue of The Blue Stocking, the last edition before the Christmas holidays, and the last of the class editions, was organized and edited solely by a staff chosen from the freshman class by Pete McCormick and under his editorship.

The next issue of the paper will appear on January 11, immediately following the close of the Christmas holidays, and will be published by the regular staff, headed by Sadler Love, present editor. That issue will be the next to the last under the present staff. The student body will elect a new editor for the second semester from the junior class.

MODEL LEAGUE DELEGATES TO GIVE REPORTS

I.R.C. Meets Wednesday Night To Discuss Further Plans.

A regular meeting of the International Relations club will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 in Dr. Spencer's classroom. I. R. C. members who attended the Model League of Nations assembly at Winthrop college last week will give reports.

The club is planning an interesting event, to take place sometime between February 15 and April 1. Plans to bring Edward Bradby, field secretary of International Student Service, to Clinton are being carried forward.

Following an extensive tour of Canadian colleges and universities, Mr. Bradby will spend several months in this country. During his stay, he will devote six weeks to lecture engagements in colleges and universities in the United States.

Educated at Rugby and Oxford university, where he received first class honors, Mr. Bradby served for two years as secretary of International Student Service in England. He is now a member of the international staff and is engaged in the central office of International Student Service at Geneva.

As an active leader in European university circles and a specialist in international affairs, he comes to the United States with first-hand knowledge of current European events. He is also anxious to describe the student and youth movements of Europe to American undergraduates. The significant roles played by young people have affected the international scene and should therefore be of special interest to American audiences.

"Y" SERVICES CONDUCTED BY VISITORS

An interesting and challenging program was given by representatives of the Columbia Bible college at the regular "Y" meeting last Thursday night.

The meeting was called to order by the local "Y" president, with songs and prayer, after which the meeting was turned over to Joseph McCullogh of the Bible school. He introduced the other members of the group: Barber, Quantz, Norton and Hood, and told of their trip into ten states visiting colleges and giving their testimonials. Included in their stops were: Bob Jones college, Moody Bible institute, Wheaton and Stanton.

Week-End Dances Are Big Success

Home Guard Affair Is Most Successful of Series.

The past week-end featured a series of brilliant dances sponsored by both the military and home guard groups. The dances were well attended and have been declared very successful by all who attended any of the delightful affairs.

The first of the series was the military ball, by far the most brilliant in its conduct and its costumes. All military men attending were outfitted in uniforms and white belts for this occasion. The second of the series was the tea dance, sponsored by The Musketeers, an organization of military men. This dance was very well attended. The third of the series, and probably the best, was the so-called "home guard brawl."

The military ball was by far the most thrilling spectacle with its uniformed splendor and grand march. The hall was decorated as a fitting background for a military affair. The color scheme was red, white, and blue, with an American flag as a background for the orchestra.

The tea dance, although the hall was not packed, was declared a success by the sponsors. The Musketeers, a small organization of military men, is to be thanked for this dance.

The home guard "brawl," as it has been ineptly termed, was by far the most enjoyable of the series of dances. This ball was well attended and was declared a success by all concerned. It was informal and was replete with all the elements that go to make a successful affair. The young men of this institution were looking their best and the dates were looking very well indeed. The spirit seemed to have been moving and every one was in a mood for dancing.

All in all, the series of dances featuring the past week-end are to be considered quite up to the standard set on previous occasions. The music furnished by "Hap" Gray and his Blue Stockings was of the best in the county, there being a few novelties that were very amusing.

Erskine Debating Team Downs P. C.

Strawberry Leaf Tourney Results Not Yet Announced.

The Presbyterian college negative debating team, composed of Roy Hutchinson and Dugald Hudson, was defeated by the Erskine affirmative team of Messrs. Grosman and Calhoun, in a debate held here last Wednesday evening.

The query was, "Resloved, that congress should be empowered to fix minimum wages and maximum hours in industry. This is the last debate for the P. C. teams before the Christmas holidays. They have previously debated six times. The results of the Strawberry Leaf debates held at Winthrop last week are not yet known as this paper goes to press.

Week Of Prayer Being Observed By Student Body

Meetings Being Held In Various Dormitories and Sections.

The week of prayer has made a promising beginning with the hearty cooperation of a good number of the student body. It is hoped that this co-operation will continue and the numbers will increase from night to night.

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE PAYS TRIBUTE TO BEST BLOCKERS

Banquet Given In Honor of Trophy Winners At Gala Affair Attended By 200 People.

SOUTH CAROLINA ALL-STATE TEAM PRESENT

On the evening of December 8th, two hundred coaches, football players, sports writers and guests from various parts of the South gathered in the spacious dining hall at Presbyterian college to pay tribute to the most unselfish football players in the Southeastern and Southern conferences and in the state of South Carolina. The occasion was the awarding of the W. P. Jacobs blocking trophies.

The meeting was begun at 7:15 with a dinner served in the insuperable style of Mrs. Hunters, the mistress of the dining hall. Accompanying the dinner in grand style was music furnished by the Blue Stocking orchestra under the baton of "Hap" Gray.

At exactly eight o'clock the program was put on the air as Fred Kirby introduced Prof. H. E. Sturgeon to the audience. Prof. Sturgeon gave a short history of the awards and then introduced President William Plumer Jacobs, who was to make the awards.

President Jacobs gave an interesting talk on the unsung heroes of the football world, the blocking stars; after which he introduced the winner from the Southern conference, John Gormley, of Maryland, and awarded the Southern conference trophy and medal. Next President Jacobs introduced Bill May, winner of the coveted Southeastern conference trophy and presented him with the loving cup and the medal. Both winners gave a speech of gratitude and thanks.

Thirdly, the winner of the South Carolina honors was called up and introduced, Andy Sabados, of The Citadel. A number of boys receiving honorable mention for the state trophy were: Jenkins, Furman; Folger, Clemson; Sanders, Clemson; Black, Clemson; Gaffney, Carolina; Glenn Beeman, P. C.; J. B. Jacobs, P .C. captain, and June Moore, P. C. This closed the trophy awarding for the evening.

The toastmaster, Prof. Sturgeon, then asked the entire audience to rise for a moment in tribute to Dan McGugin, famous coach of Vanderbilt, who is now deceased.

Next on the program were several speakers who were introduced by Prof. Sturgeon. These speakers were, with the exception of Jake Wade, the sports editor of The Charlotte Observer, coaches from various Southern colleges. After these speakers

Harrry Bolick Is Expected To Recover Fully

Has Been Moved From Kingstree Hospital To Father's Home In Charleston.

Harry Bolick, graduate of P. C., who was injured week before last in an automobile collision while en route to Kingstree, has improved very much and has been moved from the Kelly sanitarium in Kingstree, to Charleston. Although physicians state that it will take time for the skull fracture to heal, he is expected to recover fully. It was stated last week that there was only a fifty-fifty chance for his recovery, while now, after many signs of improvement, it is stated that there is much hope for a rapid recovery.

Mrs. Bolick and their small son were not seriously injured, although Mrs. Bolick was more painfully injured than was first thought. She

Frosh Course Is Beneficial

Professor Boyd Instructs Classes In Theme Writing.

Prof. Bernard H. Boyd of the English department, has made the first attempt with success of placing a new method of theme study in the hands of his freshman classes. He is pleased with the results already obtained from his newly established system. Prof. Boyd says that the method is nothing new, something similar being used in most Northern schools, thus giving a student personal guidance.

The newly installed system consists of seven hours of guidance each week in theme writing. On Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, from 1:15 to 2:15, students meet their instructor according to their schedule, bringing with them their last graded theme. Eight students are taken an hour, approximately eight minutes being given to each one. His mistakes are pointed out and corrected, thus giving a few minutes each week for private instruction to each individual.

Assisting Professor Boyd in the most thorough method of teaching freshman theme writing ever used here are Mrs. John Clement, assistant in English, and Hugh Heaman, college publicity director.

Holidays Begin Friday

The past two weeks have been eventful ones and we are now beginning the last school week before the Christmas holidays, which will begin on next Friday, Dec. 18. After Friday there will be no more classes until Jan. 5, 1937, when the regular schedule will be resumed. Supper will be served on Monday evening, Jan. 4. All college activities will be discontinued from Friday until that time.

A special schedule for Friday has been announced by Dean Brown, as follows:

First period	8:00 to 8:50
Second period	8:50 to 9:40
Third period	9:40 to 10:30
Fourth period	10:30 to 11:20
Lunch	12:00

Just Jabbering

* * * * * *

The student body at P. C. is in high praise of the changes which have been made in the location of the canteen and postoffice. The new arrangement affords all the room that is necessary in the usual 9:05 rush.

* * * * * *

The effort to inspire a new and more satisfactory Alma Mater has become very relaxed in the past two weeks. It is necessary that one be written soon in order that the student body may become familiar with the tune and words before an occasion should arise when the Alma Mater would be needed. After all, every college has an Alma Mater.

Congratulations, P. C.

The Tennis Clinic which was held here during October and which was made possible by President Jacobs, is the first event of its kind in the history of the United States. Appearing in the Collegiate Digest, college national weekly photo paper, was a picture of the clinic and several interesting remarks were made about the clinic's sponsorship. The Collegiate Digest is read by almost every college student in the United States and therefore the reputation of P. C. will be more widespread.

We are proud of the success of the clinic and we take great pleasure in thanking President Jacobs for the great work which he did in enabling P. C. to sponsor this event. We also express many thanks to the great national stars and the high-ranking college players who presented such thrilling and entertaining performances. Most of us recall the exciting points of the matches between the great national stars and we'll never forget that long see-saw between Bitsy Grant and John Van Ryn.

Not only do we express thanks for the stirring performances but we should like to thank each of the stars for the patient attention which they so willingly gave the college tennis hopefuls who were eager to improve their game.

Those three fleeting days passed all too quickly and the performers were gone but were not forgotten so easily. In many campus conversations now that subject arises.

So, after expressing our sincere thanks to all who may be concerned we should like to close by saying that such events of national interest help to build a better and more impressive school. And so, for being the proud sponsor of the first event of its kind, a tennis clinic, we say: "Congratulations, P. C."

Merry Christmas

Around another corner comes the Christmas holidays which hold much enjoyment for the sons of Presbyterian College. All of those love-thirsty gals and son-loving parents will rejoice in having the boys at home once more, after three long months of study and hard work. There will be parties, dances, dates and friendly gatherings to take up much of the time, while the ever-interested parents desire the presence of their sons at home to relate all of his college experiences and to explain how he made that "E" on English, or why he got those ten demerits during the first two months of school.

But back to the subject of the holidays themselves. Christmas holds in store for many of us disappointments, for others happiness. It may be a day of sorrow or it may be a day of joy; one never knows what the future holds in store for him. But with no thought of disappointment or sorrow, we gleefully and joyfully look forward to Friday when books will be closed and college will be forgotten for a while, and when the old Christmas spirit will be revived when we wish to one another: "A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND A HAPPY NEW YEAR."

Why Mothers Get Gray

A report card goes home every month. That card has on it one "B," two "C's", one "D," and two "E's." (More reasons). Some times a notice is sent to the parents that their son has missed a number of classes as well as chapel, and he has received 14 demerits, and due to this a re-matriculation fee of $10 will have to be paid. The mother immediately sends the $10 and writes her son to ask him about it. She gets no answer for the next two weeks, and finally gets a telegram from him asking her to wire him $5 immediately if not sooner. She does so, feeling that he must need it or he wouldn't have wired for it. The son receives the money and feeling that he is rich to a degree that he has too much money, he immediately starts finding ways in which to spend it. In doing so he has to loaf a lot and step out among the girls often, and this causes the same thing to happen that did in the first place.

Explanation:

The son goes to school at the first of the year with about $10 extra in his pocket and starts finding ways to spend it. He goes to the show quite often and loafs a lot. He goes to see some dame about every other night and spats a little too late. Therefore, he doesn't have time to study, this being the reason for the "D's," "E's," and "C's." In staying out too late at night he comes in very sleepy and usually oversleeps, getting up for chapel about once a week and missing his first class at least twice a week. This is probably the only possible explanation of: WHY MOTHERS GET GRAY.

Council Action

(Since this issue of the paper is edited by a staff composed entirely of freshmen, and we feel that we lack background information necessary, Sadler Love, editor of The Blue Stocking, has been asked to comment on the recent council controversy.—Freshman Editor.

Completely aware of the fact that any organization on this campus taking sides in a highly controversial question adds many enemies and few friends to its cause, and yet believing that expression of opinion is one of the chief functions of this paper, we intend to state THE BLUE STOCKING stand on the controversy that almost caused student council resignations.

The issue, as we see it, was this: (1) The council, after three former warnings, requested the return of periodicals taken from the library and stated that if not returned a search of dormitories would be made. When none was returned an immediate search was made, and, as a result, two men were convicted of possessing stolen articles and suspended for two weeks. (2) Several members of the council are said to have stated after the trial that they would favor a lighter sentence, and certain members of the student body called for the students to vote a request for a lighter sentence. The president of the student body stated that any such vote, were it carried, would signify lack of confidence in the council, and intimated that resignations would follow.

After discussions had been heard pro and con, the student body refused a motion to request a lighter sentence, the proposal polling a vote of approximately 25 per cent.

THE BLUE STOCKING takes the stand that the matter should have been handled through the student council. The councilmen who believed the sentence too heavy should have called for a re-opening of the case and put the question to a vote within the council. We are not concerned with personalities but, rather, with issues. Since the guilt or innocence of the two men could not be decided by the student body, having not heard the case, students were incompetent to judge the degree of sentence.

The president of the student body, believing that any such action would lessen prestige and strength of P. C.'s entire student government system, preferred resignation to acceptance. We believe that we might have done the same thing.

With many details of administration of the present council we have disagreed, but until that council is proved incompetent THE BLUE STOCKING attitude will be one of support. Now let the dishes fly!

Kollege Kut-ups

Hoot Mon

'Tis said that the favorite jeer-cheer of a college in Scotland is: "Get that quarter back."

Guilty

An officer had arrested a young man on some minor charge and had taken him to the judge.

Judge: "What is your occupation, young man?"

Young Man: "I go to college, your honor."

Officer: "That's a stall, judge. I searched his pockets and found money in them."

Bare Necessity

P. C. Student: "These hour lectures always make a new man of me."

P. C. Co-ed: "You mean they give you something you've been lacking?"

P. C. Student: "Yeah. Sleep."

Honor System

College Professor: "Will everyone please turn in your paper—and don't forget to include a carbon sheet between each paper so I can correct them all at once."

Rest To the Weary

If all the students who sleep in class were laid end to end—they would be more comfortable.

CONGRATULATIONS

The banquet, presentation of the Jacobs trophies, and the other gala events connected with the awarding of the trophies, have passed. It was truly a gala occasion; the three men, all fine specimens of young manhood, were given the warmest of P. C. welcomes and the best time possible. We hope they enjoyed their visit here and that they will long remember their stay in our midst. So it is with the greatest of respect and applause that we say: "CONGRATULATIONS to JOHNNY GORMLEY, ANDY SABADOS and BILL MAY."

DISASTER — SUCCESS

Jules Carson, Wofford football coach, whose team suffered the most disastrous season of his entire coaching career, was honored by the coaches of South Carolina when they selected him to act as their president for 1937. Congratulations, Jules Carson.

WHAT! NO SPEECH?

The ever-popular "Scoop" Latimer, of The Greenville News sports staff, brought the banquet audience to its feet with an inspiring speech. The only thing that was lacking was THE SPEECH.

VARSITY BASKETBALL TEAM

The varsity cagers have everything in the line of good material this year. Waldrep, Holden and Holcombe all rise above the 6-foot mark, and Batchelor and Johnson don't miss it very far. They have the spirit, speed and stamina, and are expected to give opponents worlds of trouble. In "Lonnie Mac" McMillian, P. C. has one of the best coaches in the state. He has already given the boys some very deceptive plays and there are plenty more up his crafty sleeve. More power to you, Blue Hose.

DECIDING GAME TO BE PLAYED ON WEDNESDAY

"A" Company Ties "B," While Home Guard Defeats "C" In Elimination Games.

Due to the fact that, although "B" and "A" companies fought to a 0-0 deadlock in the intramural football series last week, "B" company led in first downs and will therefore play the Home Guard team tomorrow afternoon for the campus championship.

"A" Compnay vs "B"

Companies "A" and "B" fought to deadlock in the first game of the current intramural football season, which opened last Tuesday.

The game opened with Woodward, of "B" company kicking off. "A" company receiving, immediately started a march down the field which was featured by a pass from Clements to Huggins. "B" company put up a stubborn defense and staved off this threat. The first half ended with neither team having seriously threatened to score.

"B" received the kickoff to open the second half and with Taylor and Griffin leading the way with several nice gains, the ball was carried to "A's" five-yard line where they lost the ball on downs. At this point the game was interrupted by a friendly fracas between two of the opposing soldiers. The game was continued after the latter were warned by the referee.

Playing especially well for Company "A" were: Clements, Donnan, Witherspoon and Huggins. For "B" company: Woodward, Taylor and Griffin in the backfield, and Johnson, Mixson and Beatty in the line were outstanding.

In first downs, "B" company was more successful than "A," making six to the latter's three.

Home Guard 9, "C" Company 0

In the second game, the Home Guard was victorious over the team representing "C" company by the score of 9 to 0.

The first period was fairly even, with neither team threatening, but the Home Guard gained the upper hand in the second stanza when Jacobsen's 60-yard kick was taken by Gilmore behind his own goal where he was immediately tackled by Coe, giving the Home Guard two points as the result of a safety.

The Home Guard scored the first touchdown of the year in the second period when they made a sustained drive to the two-yard line, where Buchan drove the ball over for the touchdown. Todd sent one straight through the uprights for the extra point. The first half ended before play could be started.

The second half was featured by the defensive play of both teams and a pretty runback of a punt, for a touchdown, by Commander, of the Army. The play was called back, however, and declared unofficial.

Parham and Coe, at the ends, Love and Propst in the line, Todd, Buchan and Jacobsen in the backfield were outstanding for the Home Guard. For "C" company, Wardlaw, Byrum and Hafley in the line, Clement, Commander and Jones in the backfield played good ball.

The Home Guard, with seven first downs, were superior in this department, the Army registering only four ten-yarders.

YE OLDE GOSSIP

J. Lee Spratt

The author of this humor (?) column is afraid to write about W. K. (CHARLES ATLAS) McINTOSH, who has muscles like steel cables and hardened tendons, and who tends to shoot the bull about a threat made directly after the escapade at the Sanitary Cafe in Spartanburg.

JOE (G-MAN) COMMANDER went to Columbia last week to straighten out this picture business. . . . THE SKIRT said he wasted a lot of bus-fare . . . SHE also mentioned a place where HE could go. . . . A certain DAME from WARE SHOALS came up to see DeLEON (VOICE OF EXPERIENCE) REYNOLDS on Sunday morning bright and early—she also brought with her two girl friends, one of which ROBERT LAMAR (BOB TAYLOR) BOSWELL took care of quite capably . . . THE DAME couldn't understand the Voice's actions, so he took her down to Goldville and out under a bridge to explain his queer ways . . . SONNY McLEOD has told us that he is now uncrowned KING OF SMOOTCH at Columbia College. We wonder who the unfortunate victims could have been.

We know that the LANDER LILIES and the WINTHROP MOLLS will be horribly dismayed to learn that GEORGE (GOLDENTONE CROSBY) DAVIS will not moan to the shriek of HAP GRAY'S P. C. BLUE STOCKINGS' saxophones and piccolos—HAP himself will do the dangerous task . . . We wonder if STUPE BUCHAN ever straightened up the little homecoming affair with HARRIETT. It seems that STUPE and HARRIETT were in the tea room and STUPE told the waitress to sit down and have supper with him and let HARRIETT wait on the table. . . . SNAKE TURNER took ARHTUR (RADIO) ERWIN'S girl, DOT ADAIR, to see Flash Gordon the other night . . . BILL (POLLIE BAR) SWIFT went along also, escorting MISS MAE WEIR. They had to hold POLLIE BAR in his seat when Flash fought and killed the fire dragon. . . . RAT (WIMPY) JULIAN JONES seems to think he is "the man about town." Nobody is pushing you WIMPY. Now, how many different girls did you say you had dated?

We wonder who SNAKED on JIMMY RICHARDSON the past weekend . . . We also wonder what technique the CLEMSON CADET used to SNAKE on P. C.'s own ROY FOREHAND. We are looking for this to happen again if the CADET can get leave . . . Somebody has it bad, but don't look now, because I think it is HAMMOND ADAMS . . . LARGE (GRIN and GAL) EVANS says he will certainly regret it if he doesn't go to MAINE. . . . We relax to give deep thought and try to imagine who will feel the worst Sunday morning—LUKE FOLLEY or BUSTER McINTOSH.

P. S.—One last request before we draw the curtain on this silly chatter. Please pray for the NEWBOY who wrote this column—he will certainly need it.

Cagers To Play Tomorrow Night

Play Carolina At Columbia In Season's Opener.

Opening the 1936-37 basketball season, the Presbyterian varsity cagers will meet Carolina in Columbia Tuesday night in its initial contest.

Under the skillful guidance of Coaches McMillian and Waldrep, the P. C. varsity basketball candidates have been hard at work for several weeks.

Depending mostly on speed and deception, the attack this year will be based on a figure "S" system, which should give opponents plenty of trouble.

The absence of Forehand, Waldrep, Levi, Adams, and others, will be greatly felt, but with such sophomore stars as Holden, Batchelor, and Holcombe to fill their shoes, the team should soon round into shape, and give P. C. one of its best quintets in years.

Coach Johnson made public the following schedule last week:

Dec. 15—Carolina at Columbia.
Jan. 9—College of Charleston at Clinton.
Jan. 15—Erskine at Clinton.
Jan. 27—Wofford at Spartanburg.
Jan. 28—Newberry at Newberry.
Jan. 30—Clemson at Clinton.
Feb. 1—Citadel at Clinton.
Feb. 4—Erskine at Due West.
Feb. 6—Furman at Clinton.
Feb. 11—Carolina at Clinton.
Feb. 19—College of Charleston at Charleston.
Feb. 20—Citadel at Charleston.
Feb. 25—Newberry at Newberry.
Feb. 27—Furman at Clinton.

Freshman Schedule

Jan. 15—Erskine at Clinton.
Jan. 27—Wofford at Spartanburg.
Jan. 28—Newberry at Newberry.
Feb. 4—Erskine at Due West.
Feb. 9—Wofford at Clinton.
Feb. 25—Newberry at Newberry.

Note: This schedule is not complete. Additional games will be added at an early date.

In closing the gala event, President Jacobs gave a fine speech and asked that members of the audience come up and meet the winners of the trophies.

PLANS ANNOUNCED FOR NEW LIBRARY

Staff Elections Tomorrow A. M.

STUDENTS TO NAME THREE FOR OFFICES

Voters Will Select New Editor, Managing Editor, and Business Manager.

WILL TAKE OFFICE AFTER NEXT PAPER

Students of the college will go to the polls tomorrow to choose an editor, a managing editor, and a business manager for The Blue Stocking in the first major election of the year. The men selected will take over the paper after next week's issue.

For editor, the staff nominated Ashby Johnson, Columbus, Ga., while Cliff McLeod, Ocala, Fla., was named as an additional nominee by students. For managing editor, the staff nominated James Hafley, Atlanta, Louis Heckle, Fort Valley, Ga., and D. W. Davis, Rock Hill, being added to the list by the students.

Business Manager

The staff nominee for business manager is John Bonner, Pacolet. Additional nominees are J. L. Hammel, Blue Diamond, Ky., and Billy Gilmore, Atlanta.

Johnson, staff nominee for editor, has held the elective office of managing editor on The Blue Stocking during the past year. McLeod, the only additional nominee, has been a staff reporter for the past year. Both are members of the junior class.

Balloting for all three offices will take place tomorrow and in the event second races are necessary in the managing editor and business manager elections, run-offs will be held as soon as is possible.

All nominees for Blue Stocking offices were approved by the board of publications whose duty it is to see that no incapable men are offered for election. All names were approved by the board, with the exception of one man nominated for editor who was rejected because he had never done work on the paper.

Students Meet In Forum Discussion

President Jacobs Sponsors Gathering For Fostering of Original Thought.

As an initial experiment in student discussion of outstanding questions of national and interational import, President William P. Jacobs Wednesday night was host at a forum to which several seniors and faculty members were invited.

President Jacobs explained that his action was in line with the college's policy of attempting to develop original thinking among P. C. undergraduates, to replace the prevalent "slide-rule" educational methods of the day.

Government Regulation

For the night's discussion Mr. Jacobs chose the question of to what extent government should enter into regulation of industry. Points brought out included right and advisability of government's regulating minimum wage and maximum hours; attempts to regulate "untruthful" advertising; and governmental control of the medical profession.

Students present were high in praise of the forum experiment and expressed the desire that more such discussions might be held.

Faculty members present were Dean M. W. Brown, Dr. N. G. Whitelaw, Professor B. H. Boyd, and Hugh Holman.

Students present were Raleigh Shoemaker, Jim Collings, Sadler Love, Chester Keller, Marion Parham, Joe Patrick, Claus Cappelmann, and Cliff McLeod.

NOMINEES

A complete list of men nominated for elective offices on The Blue Stocking staff and approved by the board of publications is as follows:

Editor: Ashby Johnson and Cliff McLeod.

Managing Editor: James Hafley, Louis Heckle, D. W. Davis.

Business Manager: John Bonner, Billy Gilmore, J. L. Hammel.

Election in all three offices will be held tomorrow and run-offs, where necessary, will be held as early as is possible.

CHICAGO PAPER LAUDS COLLEGE

Chicago Tribune Speaks Highly Of P. C. System.

The unique and progressive educational program of Presbyterian college has recently received attention and very favorable comment from Dr. John Evans, educational editor of The Chicago Tribune. In the January 3 issue of that paper Dr. Evans voiced his approval of P. C.'s program which he traveled to South Carolina last year to study.

Particularly does Dr. Evans praise the work of Bernard H. Boyd in breaking from traditional methods of instruction and establishing the Princetonian system of tutorial oversight for undergraduates. Quoting from the recent article in The Tribune: "Mr. Boyd states that creative English writing cannot be taught in the class room at all. As an extension of conventional class-work he has instituted a clinic in creative writing. Dr. Evans supports this effort because of the added stress placed on creditable work rather than on correct grammatical construction.

The article further points out the importance of this type of work at P. C. and a few other small schools as an indication of the present trend of the national educational system.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

With The Blue Stocking election scheduled for tomorrow, we thought this would be a good time to ask the question, "HOW CAN THE NEW EDITOR IMPROVE THE BLUE STOCKING?"

Having asked several students, we cornered T. Q. JONES:

"Well, I am glad that you asked me because there is one thing which I believe would make an improvement, and that is to have a regular weekly column by President Jacobs . . . perhaps it could be called 'From the President's Chair'."

WALT WILLIAMS was busy cutting ABRAM BRIGGS' hair when we walked in, but he replied as he worked:

"I think the paper is all right as it is, but I've often thought of having a foreign exchange—say with an English college . . . I don't believe that I have ever heard of any other South Carolina college doing that."

Then BRIGGS, who had kept very, very still during this conversation, suddenly said:

"I think the biggest improvement the new editor could make would be to persuade the college to appropriate enough funds next fall to permit six-page editions every week."

Now Freshman TIMMONS also gave us a good idea when he suggested that the International Relations club supply a weekly column of a brief summary of world news of the foregoing week.

College Left Large Number Fine Volumes

Dr. W. I. Sinnott Wills P. C. Eight Thousand Books.

WILLARD JONES TO BRING BOOKS HERE

Announcement has been made that Presbyterian college has been made the sole and unconditional possessor of a library of almost 8,000 books through the will of the late Dr. William Isadore Sinnott of Salters, S. C.

Dr. Sinnott, who died recently at the age of 81 years, was one of the outstanding scholars of the Presbyterian church and had accumulated since he was 14 a wonderful library emphasizing history, biography, poetry, classics, and modern fiction. Many of the books are over 100 years old, and with the exception of 200 willed to the Historical Foundation of Presbyterian and Reformed Churches, Montreat, N. C., and 200 bequeathed to his adopted daughter, Mrs. J. H. Long, they were, together with the sum of $100, left to the library of Presbyterian college.

Outstanding Scholar

Pastor of Union Presbyterian church near Salters, and Central Presbyterian church near Kingstree for the last 24 years, Dr. Sinnott was beloved by his congregations and the people of his community, and spent much of his time in study. He was preeminent in scholarship, alike in the fields of theology, philosophy, Hebrew, Greek, and Latin languages, history, and ecclesiastical law, and in 1924 had conferred upon him the degree of doctor of divinity by Presbyterian college.

The college will take possession of the books immediately.

Schedule Listed For Boxing Team

An incomplete boxing schedule released last week by the athletic department lists four matches for the season. Negotiations are now underway for a match with the University of Georgia.

The schedule as announced last week is as follows:

January 14, Thursday — Atlanta Y.M.C.A. at Clinton.

February 12, Friday — Clemson at Clemson.

February 19, Friday — Carolina at Columbia.

February 26, Friday — Citadel at Charleston.

Singers Leave On February 8

Glee Club To Make Trip Including Georgia Cities.

Presbyterian college's 1936-37 glee club will leave February 8 for its initial tour of the school year, present plans calling for return of the songbirds on Friday or Saturday, February 12 or 13.

The opening engagement of the tour will be in Anderson on Monday, following which the tour will turn south into Georgia, halting at Marietta, Moultrie, and other points.

Performances will be given at noon and in the evening throughout the week. The noon appearances will usually be before high school audiences and the clubmen will wear informal dress. For the evening performances, the boys will button the stiff collars and attempt to hold down the shirt fronts of tuxedos.

Before leaving for the extended tour, it is probable that several programs will be presented locally.

The programs will consist of "Calvary," "Volga Boatman," "My Rosary," "Sylvia," and other numbers.

JACOBS SAYS PRECEPTORIAL SYSTEM ALSO BE INSTITUTED

President States Bonded Debt Now Retired and Outlook Is Extremely Bright For the New Year.

Definite plans for a new library building to house 50,000 volumes, and for the gradual introduction of the preceptorial, or socratic, system of education were last week outlined by President William P. Jacobs as he discussed with a representative of The Blue Stocking the future of Presbyterian college.

"P. C.," stated Mr. Jacobs, "is now on a sound financial basis, and the great future which is in store for the college is closer than ever before."

Bonded Debt Retired

The bonded debt of the college, with the exception of bonds totaling $11,000 which cannot be found, has been retired through the use of a part of the endowment fund, and increase in tuition for the present year has aided materially in reducing other obligations of the institution.

With financial matters gradually becoming less complex, President Jacobs believes that his plans for a greater P. C. may soon begin to materialize. Architectural plans for a new library, probably to be constructed across the street from the present library, are already drawn up.

The proposed structure would provide space for adequate library facilities, for spacious administrative offices, and for seminar rooms which would be used in the preceptorial system. In the library proper, all furniture would be of the padded type, providing a maximum of comfort, with the idea in mind that a student does his best work when comfortable.

Plans For Comfort

The fittings throughout the entire building will be of the highest quality and of modern design. Ash trays, easy chairs, and all that goes to make reading a pleasure rather than a duty will be standard equipment.

In the basement of the new building will be a fire-proof vault in which will be kept the present collection of "Caroliniana," which is expected to be added to as soon as adequate facilities are provided. In addition, the vault will contain paintings depicting incidents in the history of South Carolina and articles closely connected with the growth of the state.

Preceptorial System

The preceptorial system of education, which stresses the group discussion of subjects rather than the lecture method, must of necessity be instituted gradually. At its point of highest efficiency, the system would require a faculty twice the size of the present one. Gradual additions will be made from time to time and the change will be made by departments, as Professor B. H. Boyd has already begun with his system in creative writing.

The general idea, stated President Jacobs, is that students learn original

Debate Team Practices For Tilt

May Meet N. Y. U. Toward End Of the Season.

The debating team has begun a light preparation for its next engagement, a triangular debate with Winthrop and Temple university in Rock Hill on February 4, Forensic Coach Hugh Holman announced today, but he also added that no intensive preparation would begin until after examinations.

The team will face a much more difficult series of debates in the spring, when it meets several clubs in dual engagements, and then takes part in the South Atlantic Forensic tournament on March 4, Coach Holman disclosed during the interview. The tournament, of national importance, is the goal of all intercollegiate debaters.

Coach Holman stated that he was endeavoring to schedule a debate with the representatives of the University of New York when they come South late in the spring, and also added that this would probably be the final engagement of the season for the P. C. team.

CALDWELL IS HOSE CAPTAIN

Cox Chosen Alternate Captain By Team.

Steele Caldwell, Chester, shortly before Christmas, was elected captain of the 1937 football team, with W. K. Cox, Woodruff, named alternate captain.

Caldwell during the past year played an excellent game at end and is expected to be one of the strongest pillars in the Hose forward wall next year. He is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Cox, Alpha Kappa Pi, has done fine work in the center of the line.

Harry Bolick Is Out Of Danger

Former P. C. Star Convalescing After Accident.

Harry Bolick, of the class of 1935, continues to recover at his home in Charleston from injuries received in an automobile accident Thanksgiving. His wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Todd of Clinton, and their infant son are also recovering rapidly from injuries and shock sustained in the wreck.

Bolick was injured while driving from High Point, N. C., to spend Thanksgiving week-end with his parents in Charleston. Although the former gridiron star's condition was considered serious for some time after the accident, he has improved steadily. Reports from Charleston state that he is rapidly regaining his strength.

It is uncertain whether Bolick will return this year to High Point, where he is teaching and coaching in the high school, but his continued improvement indicates that he soon will be able to resume his duties.

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

What the governors of North Carolina and South Carolina said to each other will have nothing, or practically nothing, to do with what this staff will say to the new editor when he takes over the job after next week's paper.

* * * * * *

The new preceptorial system which is to be gradually installed at P. C. may even go so far as to prevent sleeping in class, a custom that has been prevalent during the history of class attendance. And that would be indeed radical.

* * * * * *

So frequent have glee club practices become that difficulty is being found by some members in obtaining ample time in which to brush their hair. Rumor has it that cots are to be placed in the college chapel for the song-birds.

The New Editor

To replace a staff whose seniors are wearied by four years of journalistic endeavor, whose efforts have perhaps sunk into the inevitable rut, the student body will tomorrow elect a junior to take over editorial duties beginning with the issue of January 25, two weeks from today.

It has long been shop talk among nominees for the job that nobody wins a BLUE STOCKING election. The winner takes over the toughest proposition in school; the loser sorrows for a day or so and then rejoices in continued freedom. Certainly, if a measurement of the amount of work connected with running a college paper is taken into consideration, the man who wins tomorrow's election will be the loser. Perhaps he will not realize it until he tries to assemble material for his first issue during the week when staff members are more worried about exam failures than dead-lines. But, sooner or later, he will come to the realization that his is almost a full-time job.

To cheer his heart on publication nights, when he has watched the clock with awe and the presses with frenzy, wondering which will win the race, he will have those who will tap him on the shoulder at supper to demand apology for slights and supposed slights. He'll be unable to taste the flavor of Judd Hall's grits for worrying over how in the devil he happened to say in a headline that Smith was elected football captain when the story said Jones. If he tries to start things moving and make what he considers a few needed reforms, he will batter his head against the stone wall of campus politics, against the "so what" attitude.

If he tries to be funny, readers will scoff; if he tries to be serious, readers will stand and sing two verses of some selected hymn over the remains of his editorial page. And when it's all simmered down, when the pages are coming off the press with twenty minutes to spare, when he can find only three things about which the faculty could kick and four about which fraternities might squawk and students claim slander—when he's gotten this far he'll realize that it doesn't matter so much after all, that three per cent of the student body will read his editorials, that two per cent will disagree and the remaining one per cent won't care either way.

But he'll have a lot of fun. He'll learn what men are likely to do when they are angry, how they'll act when they have a guilty conscience, or what they'll do when they're too lazy to work. Yes, he'll learn a lot. We believe he'll learn more than he has learned in four years of memorizing theories and names of generals.

Dreams Come True

With President Jacobs' announcement in today's BLUE STOCKING that plans for a new library have already been drawn up and that another great stride is to be made through the gradual inauguration of the preceptorial system, we who have watched—sometimes with doubt—the dreams of a man, begin to see those dreams materialize. We see an educational system that had begun to take on all the aspects of a mouldering pine coffin leap to new life; we see financial difficulties that at one time seemed insurmountable begin to crumble.

Listening to his plans to make of the P. C. of tomorrow a college in which men learn, not memorization, but original thinking; in which men are taught to lead, we cannot help being caught up in the tide of enthusiasm which is carrying those plans toward culmination. We believe that world progress is led by the great intellectuals of the ages. We believe that great intellect—great leaders—can be built only through inspiring the desire for original thought, for free thinking. And the P. C. of tomorrow, as the P. C. of today is attempting to do on a small scale, will teach men to think.

President Jacobs' watchword, as we see it, is that whatever is worth doing is worth doing in a big way. The world as we know it in 1937 is not satisfied with mere achievement. The cry is for outstanding achievement, for progress beyond the highest ideas of a century ago. Presbyterian College is not going about this business of building a great school in any small or mean manner. Whatever has been done and whatever will be done will be accomplished in a big way.

The present senior class, entering P. C. when clouds of doubt and despair and uncertainty hung heavy over the campus, will leave in a few months having seen those clouds dispelled. Members of the class of '37 will leave with one regret paramount, a regret that was expressed in these columns last year when the ball first began to move: that they came to P. C. five years too soon.

The dreams are no longer figments of the imagination floating in a foggy sea of speculation. Today they have become realities.

Make Your Bets!

And so this week a student body wearied by the frolics of a Christmas vacation and goaded by the threats and promises of a disgruntled faculty will put the old shin guards on and buckle down to study for examinations that begin a week from today. In many cases, studying done will be the first of the year.

Being the subject of these tortures, being mere students, we are not, theoretically, supposed to know what is good for us and what is not. But this we know: given one week in which to skim lightly through the book, pausing here and there to pick out important items, any student averaging a good "B" in this college can pass the examination given in any non-technical course without meeting the class. They tell us that examinations are necessary, that they are an essential part of our modern system of education. This we do not believe.

Through last-minute cramming and placing too high a premium on the all-important grade, we have lost sight in the rush of the fact that almost none of this "crammed" material is remembered a week after the examination. We're not fooling ourselves. We realize that we can pass by cramming and that we'll remember none of it seven days later. Only those who administer the semester tests are misled; for they believe that through a series of allegedly fair questions they can determine the knowledge of a student.

Unable to cover all the material in a course or too lazy to attempt it, most students select the high points, use a process of elimination, and concentrate on perhaps a dozen important questions. The method is not to understand the background, but to memorize the facts that will pull a "C." A student of good intelligence, having an average knowledge of the subject, may through chance disagree with the instructor on the high points of the course—and that is just too bad, for it is the instructor who selects the questions.

We learn nothing by cramming, no human being can fairly cover four and a half months' work with questions taking two hours to answer, and the mark of the average student on an examination is governed by the laws of chance—his luck in picking the right questions.

If we're going to make education a gamble, why not place odds on the whole business, as is done with the ponies, and at least make the process interesting.

MOVIES FOR THE WEEK

Changing its former policy beginning today, The Casino will in the future run pictures of a higher grade than in the past under an admission system in which all shows will have a 25c minimum, with no 10c days. The Broadway will present five pictures weekly, the admission on Wednesday and Thursday being 10c.

No program will be shown at The Casino on Thursday due to fact that repairs to the front of the building will be made and a new sound system installed.

Casino Theatre

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

Carleton college students who dine at Burton hall turned the tables on Miss Boyce, the dietitian.

When Miss Boyce lost her voice temporarily, disgruntled gourmets seized the opportunity to berate her for serving certain dishes which they dislike.

Since she was helpless to answer them, the voice-less Boyce is enduring a lot of punishment. But she has the upper hand even now, for she still has a voice in the food choice.

No Kissing

A little blond co-ed at the University of Utah germinated the "kissing strike" that paved the way for similar movements on many of the college campuses throughout the country.

During a laboratory class, she pressed a glass slide to her lips, placed it under a microscope and screamed when she saw millions of bacteria dividing before her eyes.

Co-eds all over the campus took action and declared a "kissing strike" that included most of the girls. "Scabs" who refused to join the "anti-osculation" drive rationalized to appease the anger of striking females and to retain their par standard of exchange with the Utah men.

"Kissing may not be so dangerous if you use the right technique," argued one germ-kissing co-ed.

Another suggested that although bacteria may "go to town" under the microscope they are pretty helpless in the dark.

A freshman girl declared, "If you kiss hard enough, you can kill the germs."

Angered at being deprived of romance, the men organized an Osculation League to combat the resolute women. The league's first step was to call a strike on all dates.

This trend brought matters to a head. Science versus romance. There were no two ways about it. Since the men were unyielding the girls had to "kiss and make up."

No Soccer Team For This Year

Organization of a soccer team this year will be impossible because of the already extensive athletic program under way, stated Coach Walter A. Johnson last week in announcing that introduction of the new sport at P. C. would have to be delayed.

"Since we already have teams training in basketball, swimming, fencing, tennis, boxing, and before long, track and baseball, it would be next to impossible to get enough material for a soccer team,' 'added Johnson.

Plans announced earlier in the year called for practice to begin after football season.

Should it be deemed advisable in the near future, Coach Johnson stated that soccer might be added to the sports program.

Alumni Make Visit To Campus

Alumni returning to the campus over the past week-end included three graduates of the class of 1936 and one member of the class of 1934.

Walker (Scoop) Combs, editor of The Collegian in '34 and now teaching school in Atlanta, spent the week-end with friends. Combs has recently completed a novel and is at present seeking a publisher.

Members of last year's graduating class who came back to sample the grits of Judd hall included Preston (Prince) Charles, track man and journalist of note; Alan (Curly) Levi, former tennis team captain; and Jack (Dempsey) Pittman, track man and boxer.

Charles is doing graduate work in journalism at the University of Missouri, Levi is living in Charlotte, and Pittman is doing graduate work at the University of Georgia with George (King) Oliver et al.

P. C. BOYS, WELCOME!
CLINTON CAFE

Tennis Team Trains Indoors

Prospects Fair For Coming Court Season.

Due to the fact that several outstanding tennis performers have been lost to this year's team by graduation and other reasons, the outlook for the 1937 squad compares favorably with results of the last season's work done by the fine team which represented P. C. last year.

With plans already being laid for the state tennis tournament to be held here in the spring, the net sport is expected to receive new impetus as P. C. rapidly becomes the tennis center of the state.

Several Veterans

Fine work will be expected from these boys who were on last year's team: Parham, Grey, Beatty, F. Johnson, and Woodword.

Several of the less experienced candidates have shown themselves to be fine prospects and the outstanding among these are Creech, Jacobsen, and Power.

The frosh team will be built around Lykes Boykin, who was South Carolina state high school champion of 1936 and runner-up for the junior championship of the state. Thomason also has shown that he can wield the racket with plenty of vigor and will probably do fine work during the coming season.

Inside practices are being held in the gym at present, but as soon as the weather permits the racketeers will take to the outdoor courts.

Heavy Schedule

Taylor Martin, assistant coach, announced that the schedule would include every team in the state, as usual, and also that the team would probably make a tour through North Carolina.

Although the prospects are not as good as last year, George Beatty, captain of the varsity, stated that the team was probably a harder-working team and seemed to be more ambitious than the team of '36.

The first three members of the team will probably go to the Pinehurst tennis tourney which is to be held in the spring.

SEEK SENIOR FOR JOB WITH CLAIMS DEPT.

Representative To Interview Men On January 29.

To interview seniors interested in obtaining a position with the Liberty Mutual Insurance company, Boston, the claims department of that company will this month send a representative to P. C. to endeavor to uncover talent meeting the high requirements of the organization.

In a letter to Dean Marshall W. Brown, an official of the Liberty Mutual stated that W. T. Mast would be on the campus on January 29 and would consider applications at that time. Interested seniors are asked to turn in their names to Dean Brown as early as possible in order that an interview may be arranged.

Wants Thinkers

A memorandum accompanying this letter is of particular interest to Presbyterian college students in that it stresses the company's desire to obtain men who have been trained in the liberals arts colleges in preference to graduates of the technical schools.

To quote from the memorandum, "Technical graduates are usually interested in technical and mechanical lines, and are seldom adapted to our peculiar needs. The 'slide-rule' type of mind is helpless in the rapid-fire, psychological, touch-and-go contacts of this work."

The company, states the claims manager, is not interested in good men. The search is for men who are very definitely above the average, men with a liberal education, who have been taught to think."

Highly Selective

When members of the senior class last year were interviewed by a representative of this company, only James McClary, president of the student body in 1936, was selected from the applicants .He was enrolled in the company's training school at Boston and since the past summer has been on regular duty in that city. Of the number of students from all parts of the country chosen for training, McClary was one of the few to survive the training period.

The work, states the memorandum, requires men who can meet the public; who can think fast; are instinctively honest; have tact, and, above all, who have or can attain a knowledge of human nature. The starting salary is $1300 per year, and this begins with the period of training.

Chapman To Speak On Belgian Congo

A graduate of P. C. who is at present a medical missionary to the Belgian Congo will address the student body tomorrow at a special chapel meeting.

Dr. Jeff Chapman, now on leave of absence from his post in Africa, will talk on an unannounced subject which is expected to concern his experiences in the Dark Continent.

Dr. Chapman is a brother of C. G. and J. H. Chapman, of the class of 1936.

Schedule Services For Next Sunday

Columbia Minister To Preach In College Chapel.

Dr. Robert C. McQuilkin, of Columbia Bible college, Columbia, S. C., will preach at the Y.M.C.A. services in the college chapel next Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock, "Y" officers announced last week.

Dr. McQuilkin has made an unusual impression in a number of the outstanding colleges of the country. Recently, he conducted a series of special services at Wheaton college, Wheaton, Illinois, which started a movement of Christian revival which has spread throughout the entire college and is making its influence felt in other schools throughout the country.

Preacher of Merit

Dr. McQuilkin is a preacher and writer of unusual merit. At the present time he writes the Sunday school lesson in The Sunday School Times, one of the nation's leading religious magazines. Each Sunday he broadcasts the lesson over the Columbia radio station.

Three years ago he conducted a revival in Clinton at which services he made an unusual impression upon the students of the college and people of Clinton.

The Y.M.C.A. is anxious that the faculty and students of the college take advantage of this splendid opportunity to hear one of the state's outstanding religious leaders.

PASS IN REVIEW

SIMON LEGARE

SPANISH REVOLUTION

The Christmas holidays being over, we may expect a resumption of military activities on the Spansih front.

For the past month both sides have been playing the same tune, "Inching Along," but even that sounds like an exaggeration. The immovable object (Madrid). Why the rebels haven't changed their tactics and tried to pass around Madrid and onto the government's line of communication we don't know.

Though there was no certainty of the rebels' taking Madrid, both Hitler and Mussolini extended the glad hand of recognition to the rebels, apparently thinking that Madrid was "in the bag." This step proved a little premature, to say the least, and both dictators have been out on the proverbial limb. Dictators cannot "lose face"—in other words, they dare not back down. Knowing this, Hitler recently announced that Germany would not tolerate a Communist government in Spain, evidently believing that Italy would cooperate all the way, but instead, we find Mussolini signing a pact with Great Britain to maintain the status quo in the Mediterranean, meaning that, officially at least, they would keep "hands off" in Spain. Of course this does not prevent large numbers of Italians volunteering for the rebels, but Mussolini is too smart to follow the lead of Hitler when he can gain the friendship of Great Britain.

It is even hinted that Great Britain would not object to Italy's intervening in order to put the fire out before it sets fire to the rest of the world. Not a bad idea at all, unless other fire departments butt in. It is only too well known that there are about 25,000 Italians and Germans now fighting for the rebels, with a lesser number of French and Russians on the other side. In fact, we now have the spectacle of a world war in miniature, and, acting like a whirlpool, it will gradually become larger as it draws into its vortex those interested spectator nations.

The whole mess is significant in that it illustrates the many different ideas as to what constitutes a proper kind of government.

In any case, the Spaniard—individualist that he is—will accept his own type regardless of what happens.

"Y" To Sponsor Prayer Groups

Will Meet Weekly In Dormitories On Wednesday.

The Y. M. C. A. was so well pleased with the response of the student body to the prayer groups held in the dormitories recently that it has decided to hold one of these meetings each week.

Beginning Wednesday night at 10 o'clock these prayer groups will be held in the various sections and floors of each dormitory, conducted by specially appointed leaders. The services will be held Wednesday night of each week at the same hour, 10 o'clock.

Designated places and leaders will be published in The Blue Stocking from week to week.

NEW YEAR'S RESOLUTIONS

Everybody does it. Landon made a resolution to quit running for president, his campaign manager vowed never again to indulge in predicting, and Edward the Eighth, who sang "My Kingdom For a Kiss," resolved to eliminate crooning from his daily routine. Yes, yes—everybody does it. So we present a few voiced by a half dozen local athletes:

JIM COLLINGS—"To prove to womanhood that, even if I am a ministerial student, I can really swish it." JAMES DENNARD—"To grow at least 3 inches. And then I'll be five feet tall." JUNE MOORE—"To make people quit calling me an old cowhand, just because I'm a little bow-legged." CLAUS CAPPELMANN—"To change the sheets on my bed every six months, whether they need it or not." HAWK EVANS—"To get married and open up a drug store in my home town, Iva. I like to live the simple life." BIG EVANS—"To quit using Boswell's tooth brush."

COMPARATIVELY SPEAKING

Last year P. C. had probably the weakest basketball team in the state. This year the boys are going to win some games. Why not last year? Well, listen, and I'll tell you. Last year Bradley and Adams, a couple of good boys, held down the guard positions. Neither could shoot. Forehand, at center, dropped one through the hoop every now and then. The forwards had to account for about 70 per cent of the scoring.

Such a team isn't very dangerous. The guards should contribute at least 40 per cent of the scoring. If they aren't capable of it, the team loses 40 per cent of its strength. If the guards can't shoot, the opposing team will concentrate its defensive on the forwards—making it doubly difficult for them to score.

But there are some new hogs in the old pen. Batchelor, a sophomore, is one of the best in the state. As a guard, Batchelor will give the team something it has lacked for many years. Holden will do his part at center. He has a few weaknesses, but is always a potential point-maker. And that's somethin'. Ralph Waldrep, captain and forward, should line up with these two to form a trio of capable cage artists. And there's Holcombe, Frank Johnston, and others to round out a team that has more scoring power than any P. C. team in a long time.

We pick the Hosemen to finish THIRD in the state race. But more than that, they are going to put on some really interesting exhibitions during the winter and help to build up some court prestige for the local school of learning. Yes, yes.

BASKETEERS OVERPOWER CHARLESTON

Garnet and Blue Quintet Smothers College Maroons.

SCORE IS 47 TO 23.

Presbyterian's coming cage artists came through with a smooth demonstration of court play to decisively take the College of Charleston five, 47 to 24, in their initial local appearance of the season Saturday night.

The Blue Stocking sophomorci trio, classed as "inexperienced" in pre-season ballyhoo, appeared anything but that in its Saturday evening debut. Batchelor, Holden, and Holcomb amassed a total of 31 points to lend brilliant support to Captain Waldrep and Johnston, juniors.

Batchelor, key man of the Hose offensive, handled his job well and contributed eight points. Holden played a steady pivot game, and came through with some almost unbelievable one-hand tosses to add nine points.

Waldrep and Holcombe shared high-scoring honors with seven goals each. The P. C. captain showed a much improved style of play over last year. Holcomb's shooting was consistently superb and it was probably the best exhibition of his career. Johnston, playing his first year as a starting member of the line-up, fitted in well and should improve as the season progresses. Cavin did some nice relief work.

The Charleston five did not appear to be on a par with their teams of preceding years. Ostendorff and Johnson were the only performers capable of making any offensive progress.

The lineups:

Presbyterian (47)	G	F	TP
Holcombe, f	7	0	14
Johnston, f	0	0	0
Holden, c	4	1	9
Waldrep, g	7	0	14
Batchelor, g	3	2	8
Cleckler, g	1	0	2
Totals	22	3	47
Col. of Charleston (24)	G	F	TP
Ravenel, f	0	0	0
Ostendorff, f	3	3	9
Johnson, c	2	1	5
Beaker, f	1	2	4
Styler, g	0	1	1
Herbert, g	0	1	1
Lee, f	0	1	1
Burgess, g	1	0	2
Williams, f	0	1	1
Totals	7	10	24

Half time score: P. C. 21, C. of C. 6.
Free throws missed: Holden (4), Holcombe (2), Ostendorff, Johnson, Williams.
Personal fouls: Waldrep (2), Batchelor (3), Holcombe, Johnson (2), Ravenel, Burgess, Beaker (2).
Referee: Carter, (Furman).

No Intramural Finals

Due to inclement weather and the approach of first semester examinations, no plans for a play-off of the finals in the intramural football series have been made and it is doubtful that the championship will be played.

Jim Collings, cadet major, stated last week that he believed it would be impractical to attempt finishing the series.

Since "B" company was awarded the decision over "A," and the Home Guards soundly trounced Company "C," the finals would have been played between the Home Guards and "B" company.

Track Schedule Is Announced

State Meet On May 1. Post-Season Tilt With Florida.

Track activities at Presbyterian college will get under way some time within the next month and will conclude with a varsity meet against the University of Florida at Gainesville on May 8. This announcement was made by Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson last week.

P. C. is assured of having another strong troupe of cinder artists this year, although actual practice has not yet started. Many of the members of last year's squad will return with high hopes and great ability and many able sophomores who composed last year's frosh team will be added to the varsity ranks.

Seven Dual Meets

The Calvinistic tracksters have seven dual encounters slated for them in addition to the state track meet which takes place here on May 1. A post season meet against the University of Florida calls for a trip into the Land of Sunshine.

The state meet will begin on the afternoon of Friday, April 30, with the freshman meet and the varsity trials, and will be closed Saturday night, May 1. Both meets, preliminary and final, will be held on the track here. The schedule is as follows:

March 27, Saturday — South Carolina at Columbia, varsity and frosh.
April 3, Saturday — University of Georgia at Athens, varsity.
April 10, Saturday — Clemson at Clinton, varsity and frosh.
April 17, Saturday — Furman at Clinton, varsity and frosh.
April 20, Tuesday—The Citadel at Clinton, varsity.
April 24, Saturday—Wofford.
April 30, Friday — State Track Meet, varsity trials and frosh finals.
May 1, Saturday night — State Track Meet, varsity finals.
May 8, Saturday — University of Florida at Gainesville, varsity.

Twenty-Nine Get Varsity Letters

Twenty-Two Freshmen Are Awarded Numerals.

The Athletic Council of Presbyterian college, shortly before Christmas, awarded 29 varsity block "P"s to the members of its 1936 football squad, and 22 freshman numerals to the rat aggregation.

The men receiving letters were: John Hutchinson, Vic Correll, Bill Thompson, J. B. Jacobs (Capt.), June Moore, Coon Weldon, Glenn Beeman, Ralph Waldrep, Hawk Evans, Raleigh Shoemaker, Macon Hipp, Jimmy Dennard, Marion Bird, D. W. Davis, R. L. Boswell, Walker Evans, Jim Collins, Pete Holcombe, Giles Batchelor, Bill Cox, Bill Degner, Delason Reynolds, Lykes Henderson, Claus Cappelmann, Steele Caldwell, Montague Jacobs, Furman Wallace, John Steenbergen, and Buck Marks (manager).

The freshmen receiving numerals were: Bo Moore, Roy Hendrickson, Hood Strain, Buck Finney, G. L. Mabry, David Bute, Bill Bullock, Carlyle Griffin, Richard DuBose, B. B. Aycock, Walter Brooker, Billy Kee, Jack Paschal, Arthur Erwin, Thomas Dixon, George Davis, William Swift, James Bryant.

Golfers Begin Work For Season

Eleven Men Answer Call For Material.

Active plans for a golf team today were forward with announcement that eleven men will participate in one of the latest additions to P. C.'s already full athletic program.

Billy Gilmore, elected manager of the team last week, stated today that the aggregation would in all probability meet five or six teams this year. One match has already been definitely scheduled with Richmond Academy, Augusta, and it is believed that matches will be slated with Clemson, Furman, Davidson, and other schools.

No captain has as yet been elected, but a selection will be made in the near future.

The members of the Golden Gown ... that eight or ten memberships will be secured for team members in the country club, it will be necessary to cut the squad to this number later in the season.

Members of the squad include the following: Gilmore, Todd, Caldwell, Stowell, McSween, Clements, Coleman, Pope, Woodward, Folley.

Things that don't work—New Year's resolutions, and Christmas tie and handkerchief combination gifts. Smuggler: JOE PATRICK's latest love telling him he might be a chemist, but she certainly wasn't a research laboratory. Hocum: LUCY and BILL PEEKSEN swear it's there to stay now. Woof: HELEN MAHAFFEY wondering whether to tie the next beau she gets into a knot or not. Tricky: JIMMY DENNARD rushing back to see his love only to be told she was in "bed"—at 8:30, too! Question: What happens to the light that lights when the ice box door opens when the door is closed.

SUELLA DENSON and RABBI KELLER had their hearts in their business when they were always holding hands in the rain. Now Suella holds Rabbi's ring on her middle finger and Rabbi's counting days until he can hold Suella in his arms. It's a swell match and the echo of those bells sounds good to everyone. We wish them the best of luck and all that sort of thing and know they will be hoppy. Suella said she just made it before leap year ended, but Chester "ain't" arguing and we don't blame him because she's a swell gal.

The blinding lights of big New York completely changed the ego of the great "PITT" BIRD. The thing that astounded Hero the bestest was how beautiful most of the women were and the high cost of things in general. Pitt says he would much rather have gone to Atlanta and seen "Margaret." He's probably right there, eh?

"YIPPY" JACOBSEN is in with Cupid something awful. He even swears he is soon to be married. "Yippy" boy, you better go easy because you haven't forgotten the dates she broke and the candy she refused from you, or have you? You better think fast because women, once they learn to throw curves to you, have a wonderful way of keeping it up.

Great loves that have lingered through the year include: "PETE THE CHUNKER" HOLCOMBE and "BIRDIE" "COTTON" and "LIB," "SHORTY" HORNE and GRIER and Mr. and Mrs. J. CLAUS CAPPELMANN. That's an array for you, gentlemen—the most perfect of the perfect, but I just can't help but wonder what Cupid holds for them in the way of arrows for 1937. Let's hope for the best.

Dressed to kill in a coat of fur,
Lounging against a cocktail bar,
Baby, what I wouldn't give if you were
Just a third as naughty as you think you are.

STUDENTS SWEAT AND SWOON IN MAD EXAM-CRAMMING RACE

By A. K. Darby

Frightened professors held a meeting of protest the other afternoon in the cause of self-defense. One lurched into the meeting late with bloodshot eyes and hair dishevelled, screaming that he had had enough and that any further strain would be his finish. The other hard-pressed veterans clustered around murmuring in righteous indignation at the havoc wrought with their tempers and bedtimes.

The main speaker of the afternoon rose and expressed the tenor of the whole embattled group. "This has gone far enough, gentlemen," he said. "I myself have been both annoyed and, I might say, hacked by the oppressive and tense air of attention that surrounds every one of my classes. Why, all the boys are so wide awake they positively beam with concentration! I am simply unable to face them after all these weeks of the pleasant sound of snores to back up my lectures. Each year we are faced with the problem of getting the boys back on a normal percentage basis of inattention. What do you suggest this time?"

Campus Hums

This sample conversation serves very well to indicate the rush of activity that has suddenly engulfed the campus of our fair institution. Another recent instance is the sad plight of an erstwhile satisfied and careless sophomore who was amazed when the people on the floor below complained of the moisture seeping through. To his horror he discovered the source of the flood. It was his own forehead toiling and sweating under the unaccustomed weight of knowledge that had lain undisturbed between the pages of his textbooks. In desperation he had to devise a special headpack to catch the rivers that cascaded from his turbulent brows as he pored over his daily stint.

Casual observers on the campus have remarked the apparent eager and purposeful mood in which the students are flocking to classes of late. Some pessimists attribute this activity to the proximity of examinations, but there are well-informed persons who say that this sudden jump in attendance bears a remarkable correlation with the number of seniors who have exhausted their cuts and underclassmen who have the unlucky total of thirteen demerits.

Certainly the rare quiet which settles over the dormitories as the study hour approaches each night is the indication that something quite out of the ordinary is afoot—maybe it is examinations after all.

Another Brick Laid In Armory

With the end far from sight, construction on the armory continues to tantalize hopes for a series of dances there at least before the present student generation graduates. As far as the actual armory is concerned, the construction is almost complete, but the very necessary feature of flooring is as yet a mere rosy dream of the contractor. However, when the floor is finally put in, it will be the best that can be had.

There will be a sand and tar layer to support and cushion the two-inch thick sub-flooring, and the surface flooring is to be laid in maple. This is a very fine hardwood and will be the perfect dancing surface.

So that it may bear the name of armory without any misrepresentation, there is provision made for the rifle stacks of the National Guard, a rifle range, and the huge expanse of floor is also for the drilling of said guardsmen. Coach Johnson says that the grounds surrounding the building will be planted in shrubbery and ornamental trees, which should provide a very handsome setting for the dancers' paradise—of the future.

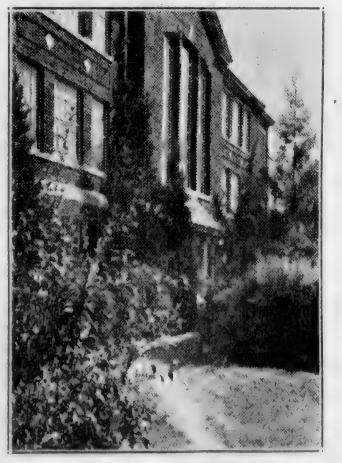
The walls of the armory are of brick, both inside and out, and the roof is supported by steel girders. The entire building will be a much-needed addition to the Clinton skyline and, like the turtle, it progresses slowly but surely toward completion and usefulness.

Sock And Buskin Plans New Play

To Pick Cast For Drama At Early Date.

The play, "Just a Friend of the Family," presented in December by the dramatic club, again will be given in Laurens sometime in February, according to the decision made today by the club.

Hailed as the best performance given locally in some years, the play has brought Sock and Buskin out of the experimental stages and has made it an organization from which much can be expected. Practice for the repeat performance will begin as soon after examinations as is possible.



During next semester the club expects to stage a drama which is still to be selected. Also plans have been made for the foundation of a local chapter of Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic fraternity, by members of the club who have met the requirements for membership.

Tryouts for membership in the club will be held immediately after the beginning of the second semester at a date wheih will be announced later.

Y.M.C.A. Hears Dr. D. J. Brimm

Addressing the Y.M.C.A. group Thursday night at 7 o'clock, Dr. D. J. Brimm spoke on the subject, "Logic of the Plan of Redemption." Before going into the main part of his talk, he stated that this was an exceedingly important topic and opened with a short prayer.

The first important fact brought out in the talk was the infinite heinousness of sin. "Man can't save himself," said Dr. Brimm. "God said there was only one way—Jesus Christ is the way."

Illustrating God's infinite justice, Dr. Brimm talked for a few minutes on God's method of forgiveness. "God cannot forgive men out of hand," he stated, "for it would not satisfy his infinite justice."

Dr. Brimm went on to explain that the virgin birth was the only way that God and man could get together. "All of our demerit was imputed to Christ on the cross," said Dr. Brimm, "and his merit was imputed to us." Also he brought out the fact that in Gethsemane Christ's human shoulders had to bear all the sins of the world.

Housing Unit Built For Bus

Another building has added to Presbyterian College's rapidly growing plant this week when work was completed on the housing unit for the newly purchased college bus.

This structure, built by the college and contributions from friends of the school, is a wood and steel building, forty-six by fifteen feet in dimensions, and will adequately house the eight-ton-capacity vehicle purchased two months ago.

Notice

There will be a called meeting of the Y.M.C.A. cabinet Monday night, at 8:00 o'clock. All members of the cabinet are requested to be present for this meeting. There will be a report read regarding the work of all committees by the chairman of each. Also the secretary of the "Y" will make a financial report.

thinking only through the actual act of thinking. To stimulate thought, it is highly desirable that the student enter as much as possible into the discussion. The preceptorial method attempts to train original thinkers.

Limited Student Body

When questioned as to the probable ultimate size of the student body, Mr. Jacobs said that in no case would enrollment be allowed ever to surpass five hundred, and that for many years to come it would be limited to slightly over three hundred.

"What we want," continued Mr. Jacobs, "is a small student body of leaders, of young people who have the ability and the ambition to learn to think as individuals."

The P. C. of tomorrow, as pictured by the president, would contain another boys' dormitory; a dormitory for co-eds; the new library; a new infirmary; a new Y.M.C.A., or community house; and a fraternity row.

"Like all big things," concluded President Jacobs, "our plans will take time. But whatever is worth doing is worth doing well."

Profs Journey During Holidays

Presbyterian College professors spread to the four corners of the nation when the Yuletide season gave them leisure in which to travel and return home.

The man traveling furthest is Dr. Neill G. Whitelaw, head of the department of physics, who spent the holidays with his parents in De Soto, Kansas.

Dr. Harold S. Fish, head of the biology department, spent the vacation period touring the Eastern seaboard, in Washington, with his parents in Maine, and in Florida.

Dean Marshall W. Brown and his wife, the college registrar, spent the holiday season in Chattanooga, Tenn.

Coach Walter Johnson worked at the college as usual, but took Christmas day off and saw the Georgia Tech-California football game.

Other professors returned to their home towns, or spent the holidays in Clinton.

Faculty Members Church Officers

The faculty of Presbyterian College takes an active work in the First Presbyterian Church of Clinton, an a recent church election raised several of them to officer's positons in the group.

William P. Jacobs, president of the college and formerly a deacon, was elected an elder along with Professor H. E. Sturgeon. Dr. A. E. Spencer, professor of Greek, and John H. Hunter were already elders.

Dean Marshall W. Brown was elected a deacon along with Coach Walter A. Johnson. Another faculty member holding this office is Prof. Bothwell Graham.

Librarian Works On Many Books

A librarian's work isn't all fun, moaned Presbyterian College's keeper of books, Willard L. Jones, this morning as he announced that he had catalogued some three hundred and sixty odd books in addition to the regular reference services to which the library subscribes and that these three hundred volumes necessitated the use of ever eleven hundred cards in the Dewey decimal system of card indexing.

The books catalogued covered a wide range, Librarian Jones indicated. Few fields of intellectual endeavor are neglected in the new selections, as everything is covered from philology and antique furniture to popular fiction.

"Gone With The Wind," is the most popular book in the library, Mr. Jones announced as he catalogued another new copy of it, purchased [illegible] the unusual demand. Nor[illegible]son's autobiographical story [illegible]temporary history, "The W[illegible] Transgressor," also has a l[illegible]ing list.

HECKLE AND BONNER TAKE OTHER JOBS

Editor and Managing Editor Go In On First Ballot Last Week.

LAST PAPER UNDER OLD STAFF TODAY

To edit its paper during the year beginning tomorrow, the student body last week elected Cliff H. McLeod, Ocala, Fla., junior, who defeated Ashby Johnson, Columbus, Ga., for the post.

For managing editor the voters chose Louis Heckle, Fort Valley, Ga., and for business manager, John Bonner, Pacolet.

Staff Nominees Lose

Staff nominees for editor and managing editor were defeated on the first ballot, while Bonner, staff nominee for business manager, received a majority vote only after a second race.

Earlier in the week the staff had nominated Johnson for editor, James Hafley, managing editor, and Bonner for business manager. Editor-elect McLeod was nominated by students, as was D. W. Davis, defeated in the managing editor race, John Hammel, runner-up in the business manager election, and Billy Gilmore, business manager nominee.

McLeod has served for the past two years as staff reporter on The Blue Stocking. He is president of the ministerial club, active in Y.M.C.A. affairs and debate activities.

Managing Editor

Heckle, elected managing editor, joined the staff last year and has also served as staff reporter. During the past semester he has handled the column, "News and Views." He is a member of the debating team, socially an Alpha Lambda Tau, and an assistant in the library.

Bonner, the only South Carolinian in the list of elected men, is an Alpha Kappa Pi and has been assistant business manager of The Blue Stocking for the past year.

The new staff, complete details of which are announced elsewhere in this issue, will take charge of the paper immediately, replacing a staff headed for the past year by Sadler Love, Rock Hill senior.

Mid-Winters Are Slated For Feb. 5

The first thing that will inject new life into the social whirl at P. C. after the roughshod recurrence of examinations is the series of mid-winter dances. These dances give promise of a large andw enthusiastic attendance and will be played by Wesley Kay and his orchestra.

Kay has acquired quite a reputation in South Carolina during the short time he has played here, and has made rhythm in several of the better night spots when he was located in the North. His style runs more to the dreamy kind of which Wayne King, Garber, and Lombardo are successful exponents. This does not mean, however, that he sticks entirely to this style. His aggregation of around fourteen pieces is versatile enough to play the swing which this school has championed for almost two years. The orchestra comes complete with torch-singer.

Date Is Set

Hick Harvin, president of the Panhellenic council which sings its swan-song with these dances, has set the dates for the week-end of February 5 and 6. There will be the usual three dances and the stipulation will run to about three dollars and a half.

Doctors Of Law In Spring

JOSEPH E. DAVIES

DWIGHT AUSTIN

According to plans announced in today's Blue Stocking, Mr. Davies, ambassador to Russia, and Mr. Austin, New York business man, will receive doctors of law degrees from Presbyterian College at ceremonies here sometime in April. Invited guests are expected to include the governor, congressmen, and other dignitaries.

EDITOR-ELECT ANNOUNCES STAFF FOR BLUE STOCKING

Few Major Changes In Policy, Says McLeod.

JOHNSON IS ASSOCIATE

Cliff H. McLeod, editor-elect of The Blue Stocking, today announced his staff for the coming year and made a brief statement as to the future policy of the paper.

To head the student journalists McLeod named Ashby Johnson, Columbus, Ga., who will serve as associate editor. Jake Penland, Columbia, will continue to handle sports.

"I plan very few, if any, fundamental changes in the paper," said McLeod. "As problems and occasions arise I'll try to meet them with their proper solutions."

The new editor, whose first paper is scheduled for next week, added that such minor changes as he might make would be determined during the next few days.

McLeod's complete staff, as announced today, is as follows:

Louis Heckle, managing editor.
Ashby Johnson, associate editor.
Jake Penland, sports editor.
James Hafley, assistant sports editor.
John Woodward, assistant sports editor.
Sgt. Maj. E. A. Johnson, R.O.T.C. editor.
Keitt Darby, feature editor.
Pete McCormick, assistant feature editor.
Robert Black, fraternity editor.
Alvin Chapman, alumni editor.
Eldred MacLeod, Y.M.C.A. editor.
W. P. Jacobs, III, art editor.
D. W. Davis, columnist.
Staff reporters: Robert Ellison, Robert Thomason, N. S. Heath, Moffett Wylie.
Coed staff reporters: Frances Spratt, Joyce Pitts, Bebe Dillard, Verna McLeod.
Billy Jones, typist.
D. M. Morrison, proofreader.

GOLFERS PICK CAPTAIN

John Woodward, Vienna, Ga., was last week elected captain of the newly-organized golf team whose schedule of matches is as yet indefinite.

Tilts with The Citadel and Richmond academy, Augusta, seem assured, and members of the team stated that prospects are bright for matches with several other schools in the South.

McQuilkin Talks To P. C. Students

President of Columbia Bible College Speaks At Sunday Afternoon Services.

By Cliff McLeod

"Young people are not different from those of my day, but their present standards are different," said Dr. Robert C. McQuilkin, president of Columbia Bible college, in speaking to the student body Sunday afternoon in the college chapel in another of the series of special services conducted under the auspices of the college Y.M.C.A. Dr. McQuilkin is one of the foremost ministers of the South and is in large demand in colleges and schools as a speaker.

In speaking on the subject, "The Life of Victory," Dr. McQuilkin said that the first step in achieving the life of victory is first to have a firm conviction that there is sin in one's life and a necessity for overcoming it. He used the seventh chapter of Romans as his scriptural lesson and stressed the fact that Paul in this chapter was expressing his wretchedness because of his sin.

No Idea of Sin

He further showed that Paul, however, was a man who wished to be good and was trying to be good. The modern world, unlike Paul, has no conviction of sin nor any conception of what it is. He said, "It's hard to be good, isn't it?" and continued by saying every man, Christian or not, wishes to be good.

He spoke much of the revival that recently came to Wheaton college, which he pointed out as being on account of the conviction of the students of their sins. If one were to look in God's mirror he would realize with Paul of old how wretched man is in his sin. God's mirror is His law and by it we can judge our moral condition. He closed his first point by making an appeal to the students to look into God's mirror.

In his concluding point Dr. McQuilkin said the next step in achieving the life of victory after we have been convicted of sin is to ask ourselves the question, "Who can deliver us from our sins which we in our own strength cannot conquer?" He gave the answer that Christ is the one who can deliver us, and concluded by making an appeal to the students to surrender themselves and their lives to Christ.

AMBASSADOR J. E. DAVIES AND DWIGHT AUSTIN TO BE AWARDED DEGREES IN APRIL

Collection Has Valuable Books

Eight Thousand Volumes Left To P. C. Library Include Many Valuable Works.

The arrival of 8,000 books at the Presbyterian college library this week presents the largest addition made to the P. C. collection in the history of the school.

The late Dr. W. I. Sinnott, of Salters, S. C., who willed to the college almost his entire library, had collected over a period of 67 years one of the most extensive collections of books in the state. Rare volumes of philosophy, theology, and history were interspersed with modern fiction and magazines to make a completely diversified library.

Physical Culture Books

A lover of children, Dr. Sinnott had also a great many volumes concerning them. Being a man who considered health an important factor in a scholar's life, he collected many works on physical culture. The collection is considered by Willard Jones, librarian, particularly suited to the needs of college students.

The task of cataloguing the collection, now begun, will require a considerable amount of time and labor. Several cards must be made for each volume and space must be provided.

Dr. Sinnott was so familiar with his library that at any time he was able to locate within several minutes any one of the several thousand volumes. Even while temporarily blinded by cataracts on both eyes he continued his life-long hobby of collecting books.

Since two trips with the college bus and one with a truck engaged for the occasion were necessary to transport the collection to Clinton, the extent of the addition made to the library may be imagined.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

With the beginning of final exams today, we decided to discover campus opinion on the subject of future exemption by asking: "DO YOU FAVOR A SYSTEM OF EXEMPTIONS FROM FINAL EXAMINATIONS?"

There was much comment here and there, so we chose the most interesting of the pro's and con's.

CARL JOHNSON, unable to continue reading "The State," because of the heated discussion going on about him, raised his voice:

"Certainly, I am in favor of exemptions, provided they be based on a fair grade scale, such as a requirement of "C" in everything, with exemptions in those courses in which the student has an 85 or above."

Now JAKE PENLAND raised his voice in protest, as he said:

"I am not in favor of such a plan, because while it would be an incentive for better grades among those whose grades are better than average now, it would create also an ill feeling toward them by the majority whose grades are not average."

Then, on the other hand, "BIFFET" GREEN, J. BROWN EVANS and JACK WITHERSPOON, who chose to speak as a group, said:

"Yes, we are in favor of such exemption, provided that it concerns all classes, and we suggest that a "B" average be required."

President Jacobs States Plans For Important Guests.

GOVERNOR, SOLONS ARE TO BE INVITED

Joseph E. Davies, ambassador from the United States to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, will, along with Dwight Austin, New York business man, be awarded a doctor of laws degree by Presbyterian college sometime in April, President William P. Jacobs told The Blue Stocking last week.

At the ceremonies for the awarding of the degrees, plans for which are already under way, Ambassador Davies will make an address to students, faculty, and dignitaries who will be present.

Prominent Attorney

Mr. Davies, who was only recently appointed envoy to Russia by President Roosevelt, was for several years chairman of the Federal Trade commission and an outstanding lawyer of Washington.

He served as counsel to the president of the Republic of Santo Domingo for some time, and has represented various governments in negotiations concerning the United States.

In addition to his achievements as a diplomat and attorney, Mr. Davies is said to be an outstanding scholar. He is a Phi Beta Kappa, a member of prominent clubs, and is married to the former Barbara Post Hutton.

Mr. Davies will come to the U. S. in April from Moscow, utilizing for the sea voyage his private yacht. He will be accompanied on the trip to P. C. by Mrs. Davies and several unannounced members of the diplomatic corps.

Austin Is Prominent

To be awarded a doctor of laws degree at the same time, the board of trustees named Dwight Austin, well-known business man of New York, and one of the outstanding financiers of the country.

Mr. Austin has for many years evidenced great interest in education, and shortly before Christmas visited the P. C. campus.

Plans for the occasion, to which will be invited the governor of South Carolina, congressmen, and others prominent in the affairs of the state and nation, are as yet in the embryonic stage. It is thought that entertainment in the form of a pageant or a series of skits will be provided, but details must of necessity be worked out at a later date.

A definite date for the ceremonies must also be set later in the year, since local plans must correspond with Ambassador Davies' return to America.

Semester Exams Commenced Today

Final examinations for the first semester began this morning and will continue through the remainder of the week, ending Saturday morning, and will be followed by formal registration for the second semester on Tuesday, January 26.

Class work for the next semester will begin at 8 a.m. on the following day, Wednesday. No college activities are scheduled for Monday following examinations, and since students who so desire may register during the

We Pause To Wonder . . .

* * * * * *

Add nuisances: the guy who tells you not to worry, that you've probably failed it anyhow.

* * * * * *

After one day and several hours of the first round, we are prepared to say definitely, rumors to the contrary notwithstanding, that exams have begun. Tomorrow, take two—they're small.

* * * * * *

Headline: "Another brick laid in armory." Sure, the one-armed man with shin splints laid it. One more by Finals, Honor-bright.

* * * * * *

Time, like the R. O. T. C., marches on. And after one look at the dining hall clock we venture that they're both out of step.

Onward

Perhaps you're sick of reading and hearing that this college is destined for a future that will make rosy look like a pale yellow. There is even the possibility that you look with disfavor, even with scorn, upon all such utterances. But whatever your reactions, whatever you believe to be the ultimate destiny of this institution, the staff that goes out of office today wishes to leave in the minds of whatever readers it may have the positive and even dogmatic expression of opinion that P. C. will reach heights as yet undreamed.

We have at times taken cherished traditions and tried to tear them to shreds. We have berated faculty, students, methods of instruction; yet through it all, through the hopes and despairs that have beset this college for the past several years, we have of late come to the realization that we are seeing something very vital taking life and growing to new strength beneath our eyes. It is our firm and sincere belief that any institution having the initiative to lead the way through the labyrinth of modern education, through the pitfalls of athletic professionalism, and down the path of greater service in this building of citizenship — we say that any institution showing such initiative and courage must of necessity be an inspiration to the students who have basked in its growing light.

If this college can teach men the fundamentals of fair play, the ability to think through a problem to its logical conclusion, disregarding fears and prejudices; and if it can teach men to live together in harmony and accord, respecting the rights of all, it will have solved for all time its problem of service. When the schools of the future, throughout this country, stress these salient points, rather than the output of mimeographed minded graduates, America will not have to worry about legislative inefficiency, Communism, and civil strife.

Teaching men the best that has been done and thought down through the ages, and endowing them with the ability to lead themselves and their fellowmen toward an ever-retreating, Utopian perfection will, we believe, be the climax of P. C.'s onward strides.

Yes, at times we have been critical, sometimes merely because we believed that criticism stirred new interest; but always, even as today, we have held tenaciously to the sincere belief that this institution is charting new courses on greater seas of service.

DAWN TO DUSK

— By —
SADLER LOVE

"The time has come," the walrus said,
"To talk of many things . . ."

Like the walrus, we find that the time has come to talk of many things, of many things we've wanted to do, of some things we've seen done, of other things that we perhaps should have done. But with this issue we can jam the keys of a battered typewriter, watch the ribbon torn to shreds, watch a new staff come in with new energy, new ideas, to draw its own picture of campus life as it is and as it should be.

When we took over this job last January we told you in these columns of some very definite aims we had in mind. We told you that we would attempt to give you all the news fit to print in a manner that would increase in attractiveness with each succeeding issue. We told you that this staff would stand on its own feet, that, when it believed itself right, would stand to its guns through hell and high water. In the past year we have seen plenty of both.

Everything that we have done we stand behind today, whether it be in connection with student affairs or with problems of staff policy. We have held that a free college press is one of the outstanding incentives to free thinking. We have had as much freedom and as much liberality as we desired. The present staff would not have worked under any other set-up.

* * * * * *

WE HAVE TRIED, as we believed it our duty, to take definite sides on all controversial questions concerning this student body. We have made enemies, and sometimes we like to think we have made a few friends. But always we have attempted to make a better school and a better paper our ultimate goal. To us, our success or failure will be measured by the sincerity, determination, and aggressiveness with which we have sought to put across our purpose.

We have heard it said that the present staff, bowing out of the picture today, was the most radical BLUE STOCKING staff in the history of the present student generation. What we have tried to do has been to get a few new ideas and then carry them through to their culmination. If this be radicalism, then we hope that we shall forever, verily, forever and forever, be radical.

* * * * * *

IT IS ONE OF THE EVILS of our publications system that the new editor rarely knows anything about the workings of the paper. He must start from scratch and build on determination. Some day we should like to see that remedied. On the staffs of the future we should like to see three men from the junior class who have been trained to take over the editor's job. And the finger of blame for failure to institute such a system must point down the years to other staffs, including the staff that retires this week. That is one of the things we should like to see done.

* * * * * *

THEN, TOO, WE SHOULD like to see an honor system with just a trifle more honor; a few more student councilmen who—and you won't like this—refuse to look the other way; honor fraternities that had other objectives than panels in the annual. Some day, far in he future perhaps, we'd like to see dances held in the gym, under faculty supervision, a subject about which we have had practically nothing to say since we believed that silence was to the best advantage of all concerned.

A student legislature to propose constitutional amendments, a jury system to try all violators of regulations—are these too far out of sight? We don't think so. Sometimes in the years that have gone by since we signed the yellow card we've wondered at the justice of a system whereby the accusers act as prosecuting attorney, as jury, as judge. It's a tough spot for a student council, a tougher spot for the accused.

* * * * * *

BUT TIME FLIES, as it sometimes will do, and we near the curtain call. To the administration of this college for its liberal attitude toward its amateur journalists; to a long-enduring student body; to a staff which has occasionally likened us to a slave-driver; to Mr. Harry Layton of The Chronicle, the only advisor this paper has had, and perhaps its best friend for a dozen years—to all these we would express thanks and the greatest appreciation.

As the curtain slowly falls to the tearful strains of Chopin's "Funeral March," we'd like to leave one thought—Don't start any rough stuff! We'll go quietly!

And so to bed goes Number 16, Volume XVIII, the last will and testament . . . .

THE COLLEGIATE WORLD

"Act and you shall receive" is the motto of men students at John Tarleton college.

These cadets have rebelled against paying out money to have their washings done. They wish to eliminate the expense of "nine cents a shirt" by laundering their own clothes. So they are going to give a play in early November, and with the proceeds they intend to buy a washing machine.

Prospects of success are not 100 per cent sure, but the men of Tarleton realize that if their performance is satisfying, "play-day" will mean "pay-day" and ultimately "wash-day."

Fly-Snatchin' Prof

All we know about him is that he is a professor of English at the University of Kentucky. But let not our unfamiliarity with him prejudice us against him—against his ultra modern classroom tactics.

It would be well for all instructors and profs who possess the undesirable ability to "sandman to slumber" the most alert students to take a few suggestions from this ingenious tutor.

His subject matter may be dry. His voice may be sleepily soothing, but his method of holding the attention . . . ah.

During a recent afternoon session, he noted that his audience was annoyingly indifferent toward his comparisons of English pastoral poems with Italian pastorals. If poetry wouldn't interest them, perhaps flies would. His right hand flashed out and closed over a buzzing fly. He squashed it, then tossed it aside.

Sleepy eyes blinked with amazement. Drowsy students nudged their neighbors. What? It couldn't have happened.

But the professor was not one of these selfish individuals who acts and conceals the cause of his conduct. He explains that it was a measure to wake up his class. He proceeds point out the defects of his system." Yes, flies were o. k. for mer and spring months, but about winter and fall?

SIMON LEGARE

A new semester after a week's layoff from drill should give us all a new lease on arms. To the seniors it means the beginning of the end of four years of service with the R.O.T.C. To the juniors it means the beginning of earnest preparation for camp. You have much to look forward to — or have you? The seniors wouldn't have missed camp for the world, but they wouldn't go through with it again for money. Those typhoid shots will be fun—yeah. We may be rambling, but if anyone reads this, be lenient.

This column has been our first and — we hope — our last experience at newspaper work. May the next R. O. T. C. editor have an easier time finding material for something which, after all, only a few faithful ones read. It has been swell fun in some ways. Last year the fiasco in the land of the Ethiopians, with Benny and the Lion, furnished endless material.

With the situation in Europe as tense as it is, this column may be filled with war news soon. It would have contained notes on the Spanish revolution, had the editor had sense enough to figure out just which side was which and what all the fighting was caused by. Now that the other European nations have taken a hand in tearing old Spain to pieces, bit by bit, the situation should be easier to write about. Anyway, the next editor had better hope that he can make more sense out of the darn thing than we could.

With talk of spring inspection already in the air and R. O. T. C. boxing bouts scheduled for an early date, the entire corps is steppig high. If the weather man would only call off this London-on-a-foggy-night business maybe ..some ..much-needed ..drilling could be worked in the schedule. You new men have combat problems to look forward to—if you survive the military exams we've heard so much groaning about.

The best of luck to the new military editor, etc. Take it from one who knows—he'll need it. And so—adios.

P. S.—Better brush up on your Spanish; you may need it—quien sabe?

Willard Jones Is In Hospital

P. C. Librarian, Taken Ill While At Work, Is Now In Spartanburg For Treatment.

Librarian Willard L. Jones, who was taken to Dr. Hnys' hospital by ambulance Friday when he suffered an attack of kidney colic while on duty, was yesterday taken to Spartanburg for treatment.

Mr. Jones had not felt well for several days and it is believed that the strain of removing the eight thousand volumes left the college by the late Dr. W. I. Sinnott, of Salters Depot, to the college library had brought about the condition.

His condition, while not believed serious, was described as very painful. It is doubtful as to just when he will be able to return to his duties.

During Mr. Jones absence, library work is being carried on by student assistants.

City To Have New Business House

Plans have been made by P. S. Bailey and J. A. Bailey for the erection of a handsome and modern two-story building on the vacant lot next to L. B. Dillard's store and facing on North Broad and Musgrove streets. It is expected that work on the new structure will begin within the next thirty days.

The new business house will cover the entire vacant lot, 69 by 129 feet. There will be five store rooms facing on the two streets. The largest room of the buliding, with entrances on both North Broad and Musgrove streets, will be occupied by Scott's 5c and 10c Stores, a chain operating stores in a large number of towns and cities throughout this section. No announcement has been made as to the occupants of the other three store rooms. Musgrove street will be widened ten feet to relieve congestion in that section, and this will make the location still more desirable for the erection of such a building.

The building will be one of the city's largest, most modern and attractive business places, with attractive fronts, large display windows, modern lighting and other features. It is planned by the promoters to begin construction at an early date.

LIBRARY ASSISTANTS PALE AT THE SIGHT OF 8,000 BOOKS

By A. K. Darby

A few days ago, the assistant who was currently laboring in the den of the usually taciturn but ferocious librarian of our fair institution was alarmed no end by a sudden shout that emerged from whence no sound above a whisper had ever before emerged. The whole library full of poring scholars stared aghast as the librarian jumped merrily into the air, clapped his heels together, and came down running on the other side of the desk. Their next view of him was one long to remembered. He was pounding madly down the sidewalk, evidently undecided whether to rush right home and tell the Mrs. or to go straight to the publicity department and get off a rush to the A. P.

With trembling hands, the luckless assistant reached forth and plucked from the floor the fateful missive that had fluttered there as the flustered book-curator had hurriedly departed. With rapidly moving lips, he read the letter to himself. With a faint and almost imperceptible "plop," he swooned and fell backward upon his face. The other occupants of the library, now beginning to sense that something the least bit out of the ordinary was in the air, stood up en masse and took a deep breath to see if they were correct.

Dead Soldier

Finding this to be a fact, they all dashed over and some quick-thinking junior produced a bottle from his hip and proceeded to infuse a bit of spirit(s) into the prostrate form while remarking to bystanders that he always carried a slug about with him—purely for just such medicinal purposes as this. Gasping, not for breath but for another slug, the assistant came to. "Where am I?" he said; then seeming to remember, he made a superb lunge for the door, muttering something about, "Wait 'till the other assistants get a load of this!"

Later that day—in fact, that night—the assistant who had been so rudely startled made his statement to the press as he lay sobbing and broken among the tousled bedclothes. He said, "Some friend has left the library 10,000 books. That was what was in the letter this morning that so unnerved, me. When I though of cataloging them, my tortured mind drew a veil over the rest of the picture."

A Weary World

When quizzed upon his movements after he left the library, the assistant answered that he had told each of his fellows and that they had all registered mingled horror and surprise. "That is," he said, "except Heckle. He was reading and didn't even look up, but put his hand into a nearby box of cigars and said, 'You're a good old boy,' as he handed me one."

"Frances Spratt was so out of sorts that she actually said ——," he went on, "and I last saw Witherspoon striding grimly up town in search of a liquor store."

His tale of the sorrows of the others of his desperate comrades contained all manner of lurid and pitiable description. Your reporter stayed and wept with him for the better part of an hour (I like the last seventeen minutes the best, but every man to his own taste). Finally, I left the sad assistant and trod my weary way back to my own dormitory. His last tortured utterance before I left was, "—— the guy who invented printing, anyhow."

The Gleaner

Ever on the alert for cracks directed toward his dear old alma mater, The Gleaner read with a great deal of amusement, nay, chagrin, the column in Clemson's Tiger misleadingly labeled "Talk of the Town."

We paused a moment on the word "Town," a question mark looming large before our eyes, but then skipped gracefully down the page. We read, as stated above, the article. We read it again.

We still can't quite figure it out. On the surface of the thing, it seems that the Clemson columnist viewed with a great deal of distaste and disgust a publicity release from P. C. concerning a certain "Boswellian Club" among the ranks of the faculty.

The whole thing, to us, savored strongly of the work of one Ashmore, to all intents and purposes editor of The Tiger, yet the entire article, some seven column inches, was in one paragraph. And Ashmore would, allegedly, know better than that.

Joining Anderson and Clemson colleges, Erskine this month began the broadcast of programs from radio station WAIM, Anderson. The facilities of the transmitter will be utilized on Sundays, Wednesdays, and Fridays. The Sunday services will be in the form of vespers, while the weekday programs will be presented by various campus organizations.

Best we've heard on the subject:

What is the greatest demotion in history?

Answer: From High Admiral of the British navy, to third mate of an American tramp schooner.

Kay Kyser to play at Auburn; Wesley Kay to play at P. C. What's in a name?

When Citadel boys returned from Christmas vacation they were immediately quarantined to prevent the outbreak of flu and to insure their health for semester exams. And all the time we, in our undergraduate ignorance, thought they were quarantined from September till June. It just goes to show that you can't beat education.

Daily Tar Heel, quoting student: "Carolina (UNC) is a hell of a place!" Tar Heel editorial writer, after glance at the weather, concludes that he's right. And as far as we're concerned, that goes doubles for Clinton, P. C., and their own particular brand of London fog, Ethiopian rain, and South Pole sushine.

Rusting Razors!

Incomplete reports from the college canteen today showed definitely that sale of razor blades and accessory articles had undergone a marked decrease since the beginning of examinations this morning.

Continuing the age-old superstition that to shave during examinations is to court disaster of the worst sort, action by P. C. men threatened to knock the props from under a razor market already weakened by collegiate action throughout the nation.

Professors were silent, students were obstinate, and the Holy Robbers, to wit, Y.M.C.A. managers of the canteen, quaked as razor blades rusted on the shelves.

Glee Club Sings

The college glee club last night presented one of its first entertainments of the year when the singers were heard at Lydia Mills.

The club sang at the usual Sunday night services of the community church, presenting several sacred numbers.

DIRECTOR HUNTLEY LISTS ITINERARY FOR GLEE CLUB

WILL PRESENT PROGRAMS IN STATE AND IN SOUTH GEORGIA. PROGRAM IS GIVEN.

Leaving the college on February 8, the glee club begins what promises to be another successful season, and a schedule that will send it on a long jaunt into Georgia, as far south as Valdosta and Moultrie, the singers returning the night of February 12.

After leaving here in the afternoon of the 8th, the club will give its first concert in Anderson that night, under the sponsorship of the First and Central Presbyterian churches. Spending the night in Anderson, it will go on to Madison, Ga., the next morning for a day performance at the high school there.

On the night of the 9th it will be in the heart of Georgia, at Fort Valley, for its third engagement, under the sponsorship of the Presbyterian church and the junior class of the high school. After spending the night there, the club will go on to Moultrie, where it will have lunch and give an afternoon performance before leaving for its night concert in Valdosta.

At G. S. C. W.

Here the organization will be the guest of the Georgia State College for Women until the next day. They will have supper in the college dining hall and remain there that night. Then, on February 11, the musicians will journey to Americus for another day concert after having lunch there. That night the club will travel up to Griffin for supper and its night performance afterwards. Finally, after spending the night in Griffin, the boys will complete their tour of engagements by giving a day performance in Marietta, and will return to the college the night of the 12th.

Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, director of the organization, said today he considered this year's schedule one of the best in the history of the club, and when asked what he thought of the club this year, he replied that, although it was small compared to some previous organizations, and contained quite a few new men, nevertheless, he had found the group as a whole cooperative, and that he was well pleased with its recent performance in chapel.

Program

Dr. Huntley also advised that the program would begin with the college pep song, "Onward, P. C." and would close with the Alma Mater, and that the remainder of the program would be as follows:

I
1. "Onward, P. C.
2. Piano solo—Darby.
(a) Glee club—"Son of My Soul" and "Calvary."
3. Double quartet—"Deep River" and "In the Time of Roses."

5. Glee club—"Winter Song"; "Song of the Volga Boatman"; "Two Little Fleas."
6. Trumpet solo—Harris Gray.
7. Baritone solo—Hansel.
8. Selections—Quartet.
9. Glee club — "Hark, Hark, My Soul"; "The Lost Chord."

II
1. Skitt—arranged by Hemphill.
2. Selections — Orchestra — Harris Gray and his boys.
3. Selections—Quartet.

III
1. Glee club—"Morning"; "Sylvia"; "The Blind Plowman."
2. Baritone solo—Cousins.
3. Piano solo—Darby.
4. Vocal duet—Cousins and Hansel.
5. Bass solo—Wardlaw.
6. Glee club—"The Rosary"; "The Chapel in the Moonlight."

Alma Mater.

Casino Installs New Sound System

The Casino theatre, popular playhouse of the city, has installed and used for the first time at its Friday afternoon and night performances, the new Western Electric Mirrophonic sound system, which gives to the audience a true reproduction of the original.

Manager Shealy stated yesterday that for a greater enjoyment of all talking pictures, The Casino has installed this remarkable new sound system that reproduces the full range of balanced, dramatic sound — from every sound from stark silence to soul-stirring climaxes. Mirrophonic, he states, will bring to every seat in the theatre a complete illusion of reality itself. It produces every sound effect that can be put on the sound track—with perfect balance, perfect naturalness. This theatre will now give living sound, thereby offering movie goers more thrills, and more enjoyment.

PING PONG

The common rabble refers to it as ping pong—manufacturers of equipment and blue-bloods call it table tennis. But by any name, it is probably the most interesting indoor game (except smooching and poker) ever developed. Ping pong has an enthusiastic following in Europe, and it is gaining rapidly in popularity in the States.

There are four tables available for tenants of the local lot, giving the average student an opportunity to familiarize himself with the game. This column suggests a campus tournament, sponsored by idle Blue Key, the Y.M.C.A., or a fraternity. Such competition would, among other things, lend impetus to the development of ping pong on the campus. This isn't an attempt to "majorize" the diversion. Just telling you it's swell indoor activity.

NIGGER IN THE WOODPILE

James J. Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, and No. 1 Challenger Max Schmeling are scheduled for a fifteen-round bout in June. The crown is at stake, and a Schmelling victory would mark the first successful comeback of an ex-champ in fistic history.

Schmeling is a German. Adolf Hitler is a German. The Jews hate Hitler. There are many Jews in the United States. So they have inaugurated a movement to prevent Schmeling from getting a well-deserved crack at the crown. And just because an element in our population is prejudiced, one of the world's finest and cleanest athletes probably will be robbed of fulfillment of a life's dream.

This group wishes to substitute Negro Joe Lewis in place of the stout Teuton who battered the blackamoor into unconsciousness in a July clash. Such action should not be tolerated at a time when world peace may suddenly become soaked with the clouds of war.

Freshmen Lose To Newberry Mill

In an exciting basketball game which was climaxed by a whirlwind finish, the P. C. frosh basketeers suffered a 32-30 defeat at the hands of the strong quintet from Newberry Mills on Tuesday evening in Leroy Springs gym.

The frosh got off to a quick lead in the early minutes of the contest, but the visitors came back in a short time to tie the score and eventually forge ahead. Some fine shooting and passing by Livingston and Merchant, of the Newberry team, enabled the visitors to hold a three-point lead at the half.

Close Finish

In the beginning of the second half both teams started out with a great deal of fast floor-work and the score on both sides began to mount. The visitors, who were on the smaller end of the count during the first ten minutes of the second half, suddenly sprang into action and ran up their score to 32 points. The frosh, trailing four points, made a last stand, but to no avail, R. Griffin scoring two foul shots to bring the score to within two points of the visitors' count as the final whistle blew.

C. Griffin was high-scorer of the night with 15 points, for the freshmen, while the playing of Livingston, of Newberry, with 12 points, was outstanding.

Many Out For Swimming Team

After a week of hard work-outs in the Leroy Springs pool, the P. C. swimming team is slowly but surely getting into shape for a season of interesting meets with the various state teams and possibly a few meets outside the state. The schedule will be announced later, and will be based on the progress made by the Hose mermen during the next few days, announced Athletic Director Walter Johnson.

Although only a few men are practicing at the present, others are expected to lend their talent to the team after mid-semester examinations. An array of swimmers including Propst, McSween, Caldwell, Beatty, and Pearson, will form the basis of a formidable group of tankmen that should meet with great success in intercollegiate swim circles.

TAKE 5 TO 2 COUNT

By James Hafley

Amidst the flailing, pounding, and flying of padded fists, the powerful Y.M.C.A. boxing team from Atlanta ripped out a decisive victory over the Presbyterian pugilists here Thursday night. Despite a forfeit in the middleweight class and Dean's loss to Lambright in the welter-weight ranking, the experienced boxers from Atlanta proved their superiority by lashing out a 5-2 win.

After a series of hard-fought, gruelling matches, the climax was reached when Cappelmann and Fielder, two aggressive heavyweights, were pitted in the final match. Lasting only one short round, the fight started off like a cool exhibition until Cap's fighting ire became aroused under a volley of haymaker rights from Fielder.

Kong Goes Wild

Tossing all pugilistic science to the winds, the Host captain opened up with a barrage of wild rights and lefts that had Fielder struggling in the ropes. But as soon as he could free himself he was back again at Cappelmann with those long haymaker rights that struck with the fury of a tornado. Cappelmann's savage fury was not quieted until one of Fielder's rights found his jaw for a knockout.

In the exhibition matches which preceded the main card, Carson and Coleman put on a fine show, as did Jim Booth and Bill Burns. The latter match was especially interesting, Burns coming from behind to smother Booth with long lefts to the face and body. Both of the matches were non-decisions.

Paperweights Slug

The first bout of the evening found Ralph Buchan, P. C. flyweight, and Ed Fambrough, Atlanta "Y" champion, squaring off in a colorful fight. Fambrough emerged victor, but not until Buchan had given a sizeable account of his pugilistic talent.

Curly Clements and Dillard, two 129-pounders, met in a clost match which was filled with scientific and crafty boxing. Dillard got the referee's decision, but was worried by Clement's shiftiness and elusiveness throughout the session. This being Clement's initial appearance in the squared circle, he assured himself a bright future by the showing he made.

Tommy Phillips turned on the steam during the latter part of the second round of his battle to knock out John Wells Todd, P. C. leather-pusher. Todd was the aggressor throughout the first round, but the second frame found the famed Phillips utilizing all his knowledge of scientific boxing to connect with a left jab to the jaw which sent Todd to the floor for the entire count.

Lambright Wins

Ed Lambright broke up the string of victories for the invaders by defeating Dean in a skillful boxing match. This is Lambright's first year of boxing an it is assured that his efforts will be rewarded with additional victories throughout the season. His aggressiveness and ability to "take it" is undoubtedly the reason for his victory. Dean attempted several "powerhouse" uppercuts which would have taken their toll had they landed, but Lambright's caution and speed assured that they did not.

In the semi-windup, Kimbo and Warren Wilson mixed it up in a rough match, Wilson, being the much more experienced of the two, gained a technical knockout over Kimbo in the second round, but not until he had taken some hard licks which jarred him considerably. Wilson, three times Golden Gloves champ of the Southeast, was without a doubt the most polished performer on the canvas and handled his opponent with the greatest confidence and ease.

The matches as a whole were most successful and gave valuable experience to the Blue Hose fighters. Coach Johnson was well pleased with the showing made against the experienced and aggressive "Y" team and expressed the opinion that with a little more experience his cohorts would win Southern intercollegiate recognition.

TRIP ERSKINE IN LAST LAP OF ROUDY BATTLE FRI

Local Lads Flash Neat Play To Continue Victory Streak.

Paced by "Streak" Batchelor, Presbyterian's cagers presented a superior offensive attack to defeat Erskine 32 to 27 in a clash that leaned toward roughness in the second semester.

Batchelor flashed down the court to make a pair of beautiful goals to give his mates an advantage as the game opened. The Hosemen had things their own way the first half and went into the final two periods with a seven-point lead.

Unnecessary roughness almost spoiled the game for P. C., as the Fleet got the best of the situation. A rally by the Seceder quint brought them within three points of the Presbyterian score, and the ultimate winner of the contest became a doubtful issue.

Home-Stretch

The Blue Stockings, with Frank Johnston coming through with some valuable play, and Batchelor and Waldrep dropping in a long shot and snow-bird, respectively, put the game on ice about three minutes before the final whistle.

McDonald rang up 11 points from his guard position for the Fleet, with Gettys and Pressley giving good assistance.

Caldwell refereed well, keeping the game under control despite the rough and ready attitude exhibited by both teams.

The line-ups:

INSTRUCTIONS FOR SECOND SEMESTER REGISTRATION

JANUARY, 1937

ADVANCED REGISTRATION

1. Advanced registration may be made at the office of the Registrar until noon, Saturday, January 23.

2. No registration will be made between noon, Saturday, January 23, and 2:00 p. m., Tuesday, January 26.

3. Students who register in advance need not be in college on January 25-26. The work of the second semester begins 8:00 a. m., Jan. 27.

4. Before a student matriculates he must first secure from the Business Manager a receipt for the satisfactory settlement of fees.

5. After a student secures a matriculation card from the Registrar's office, he should consult with his major professor or faculty adviser, who will indicate his approval by placing his initials on the matriculation card. The cards must be completely filled out, with proper catalog numbers and titles. After the cards have been filled out (on both sides) the two upper cards, together with the receipt from the Business Manager, are to be filed at the office of the Registrar. The card marked "Student's Memorandum" should be retained by the student. The two upper cards should not be torn apart.

6. Students who register early and wish to make a change in courses at the regular registration time on January 26 will not be charged any fee for change of course.

For regular registration on January 26, the general procedure will be the same, except that students will fill out the required cards in the college dining hall between the hours of 2 p. m. and 4 p. m. No charge will be made for changes prior to 4 p. m., Tuesday, but $1.00 will be charged for each change thereafter.

Collegian Deadline Is February 15th

Plans for the publishing of the next issue of he Collegian, quarterly magazine, are being rapidly formulated, according to Editor Stuart Campbell. This number will be the next to the last one of the current year.

Some material for the next issue already has been submitted. February 15 has been set as a deadline for receiving the new material. Immediately after the 15th the material will be submitted to the printers and the new magazine will be completed about the first week in March.

PUBLICITY DEPARTMENT MAKES RAPID STRIDES IN FIRST YEAR

DIRECTOR HUGH HOLMAN ALSO HANDLES "ALUMLITE" AND BULLETINS TO CHURCHES.

By Ashby Johnson

A recent check on the activity of the college public relations department discloses that this office has been very influential during the past year in making the South "P. C. conscious." This department was organized one year ago under the direction of Hugh Holman and has continued to function with increasing success.

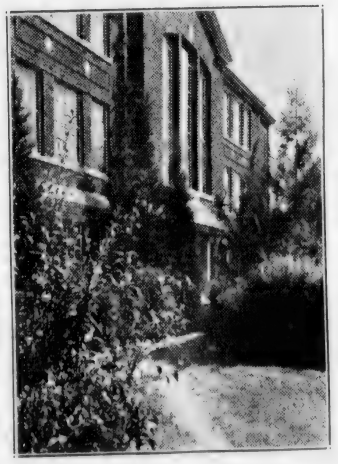
Three-Fold Job

In an interview regarding his work for the college, Mr. Holman revealed the methods his department has used to accomplish its mission. He states that the purpose of the public relations work is three-fold. Its primary object is the publicizing of the program and activities of P. C. through news dispatches to the various papers of the South. This part of the work has been unusually successful. Each day since the organization of the department two news dispatches have been issued for publication, keeping the public constantly aware of the plans and progress of the school.

A second purpose of the publicity work is keeping the churches of Georgia and South Carolina informed about the college and interested in its work. This has been accomplished through publications and announcements prepared in the publicity department.

Alumni Interest

Another important activity of this department is the maintenance of contact and creation of interest in the alumni. With this purpose in mind, the public relations department issues the Alumlite, a regular publication prepared for the alumni. This phase of Mr. Holman's work has been extremely important in encouraging increased activity among the graduates of the school.



The public relations office is responsible not only for the information sent out regarding the college athletics, but also has charge of all publicity concerning the program of the school which is released to the newspapers.

Of particular value to the college has been the publicity given to the system of creative writing instituted by the English department. An article by Dr. John Evans recently appeared in The Chicago Tribune praising the work of Professor B. H. Boyd in this field. Through the activity of the publicity office recognition was given by a number of the more important papers throughout the country to the college for its leadership in this educational work.

Last Issue

With this issue of The Blue Stocking the present staff steps aside to be replaced by men elected last week.

Changes made in elective offices include the following:

Sadler Love, editor, succeeded by Cliff McLeod; Ashby Johnson, managing editor, succeeded by Louis Heckle; Marion Bird, business manager, succeeded by John Bozeman.

In addition to the editor, Seniors Joe Patrick, Frances Spratt, and Jim Collings round out what has in some cases been four years of journalistic aeons.

Behavior Of Frat Men Challenged

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

Syracuse, N. Y.—The behavior of the individual fraternity men and not the purposes of the fraternity was the chief concern in the final sessions of the Interfraternity conferences held at Syracuse university.

"Unless we live up to fraternity criteria, our days are numbered," said John D. Scott, secretary of Delta Upsilon, during a round table conference. "It isn't the fraternity aims and purposes that are challenged but the behavior of the individual fraternity men."

Dr. Harry Rogers, president of the Brooklyn Polytechnic institute said: "Naturally fraternities such as at Dartmouth, with 75 members, fewer than 20 of whom are living in the chapter house, cannot be successful.

"The aims of the fraternity are to develop personality and character through warmth of close personal friendship. I doubt whether the freshmen know the seniors of their house at Dartmouth."

A. Blair Knapp, director of men's affairs at Syracuse university, stated that the issue was whether or not the fraternity is performing its main function, helping the student to get a "well-rounded education." He said that the chapters in Syracuse were doing their duty in this respect.

In hopes that non-fraternity men also would aim at better social standards, the social affairs roundtable decided to prepare and publish a uniform code of social practices to be observed by all fraternity men.

Y.M.C.A. Hears Carolina Team

Co-Eds Conduct Weekly Program In Interesting Session.

By Eldred MacLeod

Appearing before an unusually large audience at the weekly meeting of the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night, a deputation team from the Y.W.C.A. of the University of South Carolina presented an interesting and effective program.

In the opening moments of the meeting Miss Mary Culbertson, leader of the group, introduced the members of the team and announced their parts on the program. The devotional was led by Miss Wilbur Kirkland, assisted by Miss Martha Kirkland, who read the scripture from the 19th chapter of Matthew.

Following the devotional, a piano solo was rendered by Miss Margie Moorhead. Miss Moorehead is a talented pianist and her selection met with much approval.

Miss Emily McKetchin, the first speaker on the program, brought out interesting facts about the Sea of Galilee and the Dead sea, and used these facts as the basis for a comparison of people in the world today. Miss McKetchin concluded her talk with the remark that some people are full of fire and do everything for others, while some are practically dead and do nothing for others.

Renders Solo

After this talk, Miss Lillian Brunson rendered a vocal solo. She was accompanied by Miss Moorehead at the piano. Miss Mary Culbertson then spoke for a few moments on the theme that life is what one makes it. "We are only puppets in the great circle of life," stated Miss Culbertson, "and God gives us rational minds to distinguish between right and wrong."

Miss Culbertson further brought out the fact that God expects us to remedy the great injustices in the world today, and that through God we can be empowered to conquer what we will. "It is through Christ that we can obtain power to make life the glorious adventure that it should be," is the quotation that Miss Culbertson left with her audience.

Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., announced that due to examinations this week there will be no meeting Thursday night.

Students at Mount Holyoke college eat more than 1,200 loaves of bread and 5,200 rolls in one week, says Raymond Smith, college baker.

Financail difficulties in 1892 kept the University of Whita from becoming the Vassar of the West.

At this point another prospective registered as P. M. CLEMENT:

"Well, I object to exemption. I feel that there are two ways to look at the question; while it perhaps improve their grades, it would cause those who feel sure of exemption to "relax" their efforts during the exam period."

Lastly, but certainly not least, we talked to VIC CORRELL and QUARTERMAN, who said:

"By cracky, after we have been here four years and have at one time looked forward to enjoying this college as seniors, we think this privilege should be put upon a fair grade basis and adopted by the administration at the end of next semester at least."

CADET PROMOTIONS ARE ANNOUNCED

WORK OF SECOND HALF BEGINS WITH FEW CHANGES IN COURSES

Mathematics and English Departments Only Ones Affected At Start of New Term.

ALGEBRA TO BE TAUGHT IN SECOND SEMESTER

Classes will be resumed Wednesday morning when the second semester begins for this year after a two-day holiday, Monday and Tuesday. Monday was set aside for the purpose of second semester registraiton. Changes in courses for the semester's work were recently announced by Dean Marshall W. Brown.

Perhaps the most unusual change is that which takes place in the mathematics department. Math I, or college algebra for freshmen, which was given on the first semester, will again be given the second semester for the benefit of those students who failed this subject the first semester. No student who has not completed the first semester course will be allowed to take up Math 2, which is college trigonometry, without special permission from Dr. H. E. Spencer, head of the mathematics department. The section on college algebra will be taught on Tuesday at 2:25, Math 2, section D, taught by Dr. Whitelaw, will meet at 10:05 Tuesday instead of 11:00. B. and C sections will meet at the usual time. There will be no A section in trigonometry.

A further announcement was that

Freshman Goes To Prepare For West Point Test

Roy G. Hendrickson, of Milledgeville, Ga., a member of the freshman class and a graduate of Georgia Military college, left immediately after examinations for the West Point prep school at Fort McPherson, Ga., where he will begin study as the National Guard appointee of Georgia, in preparation for the entrance examination of the academy in March.

Hendrickson graduated from Georgia Military college with an enviable scholastic and athletic record, and also with a determination to enter the national military academy that has led him successively into the regular army, and National Guard units of South Carolina and Georgia. He first received an appointment in Georgia, and won a second alternative position; next, he enlisted in the regular army and spent a year at Fort Benning, Ga., where he attended the army prep school for West Point, and upon this examination he again won an alternative position. Still not discouraged, he came to South Carolina and enlisted in the National Guard, stood the examination again, this time winning the appointment, only to be told that since he was not an official resident of the state, he was ineligible. Still undaunted, Hendrickson tried the Georgia National Guard, and after the usual procedure he stood the examination and won the appointment and the chance to stand the entrance examination to the academy in March.

Hendrickson has a high scholastic average at P. C. in the freshman class, and in athletics he won his numeral in freshman football. Socially, he is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity. He plans to return to P. C. after standing the examination in March. If admitted to the academy after the examination, he will go there at the first of the summer after completing his year's work here.

The A Capella Choir To Sing Here In February

Well-Known Lander Group To Present Varied Program.

WILL BE HELD AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., announced today that the A Capella choir of Lander college, Greenwood, S. C., has accepted an invitation to give a program in Clinton on Sunday evening, February 7. The date set is tentative and may be moved up one week; however, definite announcement will be made later. The choir will give its program in the First Presbyterian church and will have a specially arranged program of songs by the entire chorus, solos, and other music for the occasion.

The A Capella choir is one of the best known choirs in the state and yearly makes a tour of South Carolina and other states. It is under the direction of Waldo B. Nielsen, B.A., M.Mus., A.A.G.O., who is a native of Sweden. He is well-known throughout the South as a musician of note and as director of music in colleges. He recently returned from a two months' trip to his native country and is preparing the choir for its initial appearance of the year, which will be here. According to the announcement, more definite information will be given later.

The bringing of this choir to P. C. is a part of the program of the "Y" to have glee clubs from other colleges of the state to render programs here.

New Athletic Circuit Formed

Professor Sturgeon Represents P. C. At Salisbury Meet.

Presidents and faculty chairmen of athletics of ten small colleges in the Carolinas and Virginia met at Salisbury, N. C., Saturday, January 23, and made tentative plans to form a new athletic conference. Professor H. E. Sturgeon, president of the P. C. Athletic council, and faculty member, represented Presbyterian college at the meeting. The colleges which tentatively agreed to join the conference were Catawba, Lenoi-Rhyne and Elon, in North Carolina; Presbyterian, Wofford, Erskine, and Newberry, in South Carolina, and Emory and Henry, and Roanoke, in Virginia.

Dr. Howard Omwake, president of Catawba college, was elected temporary chairman, and Dr. E. G. Purdom, of Guilford college, secretary.

Tentative eligibility plans were agreed upon, Dr. Omwake said, embodying a freshman one-year ruling, and others along the lines of the

COLLINGS LIEUTENANT COLONEL, JACOBS LIFTED TO CADET MAJOR

Lieut. Plunket Elevated To Captaincy. Beatty, Williams and Conrad Raised To Higher Rank In Battalion.

NEW ORDER EFFECTIVE WITH SECOND SEMESTER

Major R. E. Wysor, professor of military science and tactics, today issued an order giving cadet promotions for the second semester.

J. K. Collings, of Atlanta, Ga., was promoted from major and battalion commander to lieutenant colonel and battalion commander. J. B. Jacobs, of Clinton, was promoted from cadet captain and company commander to cadet major and executive officer. Cadet Lieutenant G. E. Plunkett, of Conyers, Ga., was promoted to cadet captain and company commander.

Other promotions announced today were: G. S. Beatty, Jr., from cadet first sergeant to seargeant-major and junior member of the executive staff; W. R. Williams from platoon sergeant to cadet first sergeant; C. D. Conrad from corporal to cadet sergeant.

Major Wysor announced as members of the battalion staff other than Lieutenant Colonel Collings, Captain J. W. Thompson, and E. A. Johnson, sergeant major and junior member.

The other member of the executive staff, besides Cadet Major Jacobs and Sergeant Beatty, is Lieutenant J. T. Suggs.

According to the announcement, the list of corporals will be published at a later date.

Collings, a senior, is vice-president of the student body, president of the glee club, a member of Beta Kappa fraternity, was first string guard on the varsity football team this year, and is active in various other student body activities.

J. B. Jacobs, a senior, was captain of this year's football team and was selected as a halfback for the South

Love Retires As Paper Editor

Sadler Love, senior, of Rock Hill, S. C., with the last issue of The Blue Stocking, retired as editor of the paper in favor of the next staff under the direction of the newly-elected editor, Cliff McLeod, of Ocala, Fla.

Love is socially a Pi Kappa Phi, a member of the national leadership fraternity, Blue Key, a member of the literary fraternity and other organizations. He is associate editor of The PaC-SaC and also associate editor of The Collegian. He was the eighteenth editor of The Blue Stocking and during his editorship got out 32 issues. He plans to enter the newspaper field, and has shown fine ability in the work he has done for college publications during his four years at Presbyterian college.

Insurance Head Delays P. C. Trip

Dean Marshall W. Brown stated today that W. T. Mast, of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company, of Richmond, Va., who is coming to Presbyterian college to interview members of the senior class regarding a position for one member of the class with Mr. Mast's company, will not arrive on the date originally scheduled. In a letter to Dean Brown he stated that on account of an untimely illness he would not be able to come as planned, but that, barring further illness, he would endeavor to be here on Friday, February 5.

The Inquiring Reporter

Now that the end of exams has brought the year's first important battle to an end, the next most important, namely, intramural boxing, is just over the horizon. So we decided that it would be interesting to let the boys who know the most about the subject, do a little unofficial matching for the coming "intramurders," as someone expressed it.

We asked a representative from each weight division on the varsity and freshman squad to pick two prospects who they considered would be well matched. So beginning with the light-heavyweight, we questioned KONG CAPPELMANN, who suggested CARLYLE GRIFFIN vs. D. M. BUIE as a likely combination.

In the middleweight class, C. T. KIMBO thought that H. E. TRENT and L. M. PERRY would be an interesting match.

Then in the junior welterweight group, E. G. LAMBRIGHT thought "LUKIE" CULP and P.M. CLEMENT would be evenly paired.

In the senior welterweight class, JIM BOTH suggested several good combinations, but decided that CECIL BUFFKIN vs. HAYNE TAYLOR would have the most interest value.

DAVE CARSON told us that he considered JAMES HAFLEY and BILL McSWEEN a good choice between likely prospects in the light weight division.

Last, but by no means least in importance, is the bantamweight field, from which RALPH BUCHAN picked J. L. SPRATT to fight FRED ALLEN.

Although several other equally good matches probably could have been added to this unofficial list, this will give some idea of the "treat" in store during those first three nights in February.

REPORTER FINDS VIRTUAL LONDON ON CAMPUS EXCEPT FOR THE ENGLISHMAN'S LOST "H's"

With a glance out of the window to remark once more the full extent of the semi-precipitancy that has been creating an Englishman's paradise for the last few weeks, your perrennial pursuer of the problems that plague our present unleaches what seems to be something of a scoop on the campus of the "Institution." That soupy stuff that seems to chill your marrow when you venture forth is nothing short of fog. Yes, fog—and I guess we'll have to face it.

There may be some small measure of consolation in the fact that the English probably endure more of it and more often, but the fact also remains that you can't go through life with the continual din of London accents in your ears. To combat this original and, to say the least, appalling plague, is not without the range of human ingenuity. The problem should scarcely exist for heavy smokers because it is a known fact that fog has an extremely delicate temperament—and who ever saw something with a delicate temperament that didn't cough and move away when the breath of tobacco smoke was wafted to its tender senses. The perfect cigar for the production of the devastating smoke is one of the type referred to by Dr. Jones as one "to be chewed, not smoked." I have seen perfectly good fogs curl up and steal silently away when a veteran hardy enough to lay onto one of these hemp-rope specimens emits a puff—not of satisfaction but for relief.

Fog has an amazing history. People are always running into one another in a fog, but you have never heard of a fog running into a person, or of two fogs running into each other, now, did you? Then there was Mark Twain's famous jumping frog of Calaveras County (or do you read Mark Twain—frankly, I don't). Roosevelt made a notable speech about the "forgotten man," and our politicians are continually dashing around in a fog. Don't you think so? (All West Point candidates are excluded from answering for fear of incriminating themselves).

Fogs are also very good for concealment, too. Why, I know of a boy who went walking with his best girl and was poached on by a leading snake of his campus. He got slapped six times before he found that there was somebody else doing the kissing. Of course, that is an extreme case. There is the highly humorous tale of the student who hid in the bushes alongside the path that his unfavorite professor had to take. The night was so foggy that when he threw the brick and ran, he got confused and ran the wrong way, thus encountering his own missile. Feature his chagrin.

Ah, me, will the sun ever shine again? They say it's ninety-three million miles away and growing dimmer every minute. Pretty thought, isn't it. By the way, the moon isn't shining at night either, and that's due partly to the fog and partly to the fact that it's not supposed to be shining at this time of the month. Ah, me—(Oh, I said that before, didn't I?) Omigawd, there's the sun coming out now. Well, don't say I didn't warn you!

To Mr. Love . . . An Appreciation

You have worked while others played and have now triumphantly ended your year's editorship of a paper which is better off for your having been its editor. Your hard labor, unselfish devotion to the policies of them, your unfailing interest and attention to their issuance are reflected in the pages of the papers you have edited. If sometimes you have been impatient with those of us who read, and the few of us who have at times sat in the seat of the scorner, and if you have wondered why some of us never spoke a good word now and then, remember that now you have come into your own after completing one of the most successful years of the editing of our college paper. The marks of your editorship will leave their indelible imprint on its pages of the future. Our desire is to emulate you and leave behind us the memories of a splendid editorship such as you have left us.

The sweat, the fury, the frenzy of it all is ours now, and you are free—until you come into your work again on one of the modern newspapers of our country. You have worked as though you realized with us that we shall not pass this way again. You have done well. We commend to you our deepest admiration and respect for your ability as a newspaper man and as a gentleman. Before you leave we hope to have you with us again in our editorial pages. We feel that you leave carrying with you the goodwill, respect and admiration of the student body, faculty and college administration.

Accept our best wishes for your future success. Good luck, and bon voyage!

Our Debut

With this issue we make our debut as editor of THE BLUE STOCKING. One might expect us to announce great changes to be made in the policies of the paper, but such is not the case. We shall only attempt to edit the paper as well as it has been edited in the past.

We feel that the paper is a very important influence in the determination of a student's attitude toward his college here on the campus. A college paper that does not try to cover extensively, fairly and impartially every phase of college life fails to serve the purpose for which it was founded. Any editorial policy that is contrary to this we feel is unfair to the students of Presbyterian college and is not worthy of their respect, or consideration. An editor must somewhat disregard his personal opinions in presenting news. His job is to print what news he can secure concerning student body life and its interests. This policy we shall attempt to follow as well as we can.

With this in mind we hope you will bear with us throughout our entire editorship in our efforts to make this paper an instrument for the betterment of the college as a whole.

SOUND OFF

By
Sergeant Major
E. A. JOHNSON

During the past week the attitude of the students towards the military seems to have undergone a great change. The mutterings we used to hear on cold mornings against eight o'clock drill have suddenly changed to devout expressions of "God bless the army" as the only department in school not requiring final exams. Whatever may be your attitude as to the necessity or usefulness of examinations, we are thankful for one course that gives credit for a semester's work and not one night of "boning."

Don't be surprised if you see a sudden interest in physical development appear, especially among freshmen. Put it down to R.O.T.C. boxing which will begin in another week. There is a fine supply of "cannon fodder" on hand ready to enter the squared circle. Major Wysor has made it plain that all participation is voluntary, but cadet officers have made it equally plain that all wise freshmen volunteer. There are also a number of sophomore leather swingers in the ranks. Perhaps they have an eye on getting on Uncle Sammie's pay roll next year and figure that it will help to show that they know the army's chief mission is to fight.

Any of you freshmen with broken hands, broken noses, or false teeth had better start talking fast and make it sound real. It's going to be too late when you get in the ring to discover there are no gates in it.

Many a cadet officer has longed for the use of corporal punishmen on the drill field. Freshmen seemed to find no difficulty in learning to say "Rat John Smith, sir" if there was a paddle enforcing the lesson. Maybe the same freshman could learn to say "Cadet John Smith, sir" if he had the same incentive.

Pi Kappa Phi looks forward to the election of officers this week at its regular meeting.

New officers elected last week by Pi Kappa Alpha are: President, Raleigh Shoemaker, a senior, who also is president of the student body; vice-president, Johnny Hughes, sophomore; secretary, James Hafley, a member of the sophomore class.

SKEETIN' STUFF

By
D. W. DAVIS

Since there is practically no real news that has developed during the past week of cramming and flunking, I should like to give you a few thoughts to show certain elements that we are capable of serious thought. How is this for thought during the new semester—'course no one will listen, but here 'tis.

My aim for the next four months shall be:

To respect my college, my work and myself. To be honest and fair to my fellow men, as I expect them to be honest and square with me. To be loyal to my school. To speak of it with praise and act always as a trustworthy custodian of its good name.

To base my expectations of reward on a solid foundation of service rendered. To be willing to pay the price of success in honest effort. To look upon my work as an opportunity to be seized with joy and make the most out of it, and not a painful drudgery to be reluctantly endured.

To believe in myself heart and soul. To carry an air of optimism in the presence of those I meet. To dispel ill temper with cheerfulness, kill doubts with a strong conviction and receive friction with an agreeable personality.

To remember that success lies within myself, my own brain, my own courage, my own ambition and determination. To expect difficulties and force my way through them. To turn hard experience into capitol for future use.

To make study my business. To know my characteristics in every detail. To mix brains with my efforts and use system and method in my work. To find time to do every needful thing, by never letting time find me doing nothing. To hoard days as a miser hoards dollars. To make every hour bring me dividends in increased knowledge or healthful recreation.

To steer clear of dissipation and guard my health of body and peace of mind. To take a good grip on the joys of life. To play the game like a man. To fight nothing so hard as my own weakness, and endeavor to grow in strength, as a gentleman, as a Christian. In doing this you will be courteous to men, faithful to friends, true to God, and become what your catalog meant when it said "A Builder of Men."

There is nothing like a good fling at yourself—try it!

This is a little out of my element, but I'll try to hit my "scandalous" stride next week.

MISTAKE

As a climax to the recent fistic frivolity between the local mittmen and Atlanta Y.M.C.A., Captain Claus Cappelmann stepped into the ring against Atlanta's light-heavy. The pride of P. C. carried the confidence of an entire student body with him as he began preparing for what everyone thought would be a quick knockout. Yes, dearie, and everyone was right. A man was soon lying on the floor—but a stunned crowd well knew that it wasn't a sentimental gentleman from Georgia.

Cappelmann is the best collegiate boxer in South Carolina. He has the ability, ruggedness and power to travel far in the fistic world. Why was he knocked out? Listen, my children, and you shall hear. "Cap" was positive he could batter his opponent into submission in a short while. The glamor and color of the situation spurred him on even more. So he ignored two of the ring's major necessities — patience and caution. And the best man, for once, didn't win.

In his matches against collegiate opposition, he will probably remember the mistake he made against a scared boy from Georgia, and we feel sure he'll make a brilliant record for himself and his school.

P. C. vs CAROLINA

The best basketball game of the current season will take place on P. C.'s court in the near future. In the form of a return engagement, Lonnie McMillian's Blue Stockings take on Carolina, present leaders in the state race. If things roll along as we think they will, these two teams will battle it out for the state crown.

The Hosemen take on Newberry, Wofford and Clemson this week. None of those fives has the power to check the humble Hosemen, so it looks like P. C. and Carolina in a championship clash. And we're pulling for—and picking—P. C.

INTRAMURALS TO BE STAGED BY BLUE KEY

Campus Contests Will Be Held In Basketball, Baseball, Swimming and Other Sports.

DEFINITE SCEDULES BE ANNOUNCED LATER

Joe Patrick, president of the local chapter of Blue Key, national honorary fraternity, today announced that the annual intramural athletic events sponsored by the fraternity would take place in the very near future. These intramural contests have been held for the past few years and have proven very successful and apparently have been enjoyed by all the participants as well as spectators.

The contests are held in swimming, basketball, baseball, and tennis. The swimming meet is the first event to take place and it will be held in about two weeks. Basketball, tennis, and baseball will follow respectively.

The winner of this affray, being determined by the number of points in each event, will be awarded a silver cup which is placed in the fraternity room of the winner or as the victor may choose. Last year's winner of the cup was Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity.

President Patrick desires that this year's events be participated in by a larger group of contestants than ever before.

THREE GAMES ON BASKETBALL MENU FOR WEEK

Varsity and Freshmen Each Have Three Games.

NO HOME CONTESTS FOR EITHER TEAM LISTED

After one week's athletic recess in which Presbyterian college students have attempted to ring the basket on first semester examinations, the Blue Hose basketball team began intensive work Monday afternoon for the three important games of the week.

On Wednesday evening McMillian's varsity and Forehand's frosh basketeers will trek to Spartanburg where they will meet the strong quints from Wofford college in games which will have important bearing on the state races.

The following night, Thursday, they will journey to Newberry to test the court play and scoring skill of the Newberry Indians in another double-header with varsity and frosh participating.

After a day's rest on Friday, the varsity will play host to the Clemson college artists while their younger brothers travel to Spartanburg to play a practice game against the Spartanburg high school team.

CLEMSON ON TOP, PUSHED BY GAMECOCKS FOR FIRST

Varsity Cagers Top Mill Team By 44-19 Score

Blue Hose Win Easily From Abbeville Quintet After Gaining Early Lead.

The fast-traveling varsity Blue Hose cagers swamped the hardwood artists from Abbeville Mills, 44 to 19, in a cleanly fought game Saturday in the local gym.

P. C. built up a commanding lead in the first few minutes of the game and never relinquished it, holding a 20-point lead throughout the game. The score at the half was 21 to 2, with the Hose on the big end.

A few seconds after the game started, Holcombe sank two snow-birds and Batchelor looped a long one to give P. C. a 6-point lead. After building up a comfortable lead, Coach McMillian sent in an entirely new team which promptly added several points to the collection. L. Wilson put Abbeville in the scoring column during the closing moments of the first half with a nice field goal.

With Batchelor and Holden leading the way, the Hose offered an attack which completely baffled the opposition and ran up a 36 to 12 lead after ten minutes of play.

Holcombe was high scorer with 12 points, being closely followed by Holden and Batchelor, with 10 and 8, respectively. Captain Waldrep ably assisted with a fine exhibition of floor play.

L. Wilson, with 8 points, and Simpson, with 5, led the Abbeville attack, while Timmons played a good defensive and floor game.

The line-ups:

P. C.		Abbeville
F—Waldrep, 2		Timmons, 4
F—Woodward, 2		Simpson, 5
F—Batchelor, 8
C—Holden, 10		L. Wilson, 8
C—Cleckler, 4
G—Holcombe, 12		R. Wilson, 1
G—Johnston, 1		New, 1
G—Blackwell, 2

Presbyterian and Wofford Tied For Third Place.

HOSEMEN HAVE ONLY ONE LOSS

Clemson's Tigers still rule the Palmetto roost after a week that saw no material change in standings of the various clubs in the state basketball race. Carolina holds second position with four wins and a single loss.

Presbyterian, tied with Wofford for third, has an opportunity to climb to the top during the coming week's play. The capable Hosemen meet Wofford at Spartanburg Wednesday, Newberry there on Thursday, and wind up the week's activity with an important battle against Clemson in Clinton Friday.

Furman, gradually gaining strength, holds fifth place by virtue of a triumph over the Newberry Indians. The Hurricane is just one step ahead of Erskine's flying Fleet, also victorious over the Indian five during the past week.

College of Charleston sprung the surprises of the week by whipping both Wofford and The Citadel. The 31 to 29 win over their city rivals shoved the Bulldogs a little further down the ladder, with only Newberry below them.

Wofford and Erskine meet on Saturday night, but the week's important clash will be between Clemson and Presbyterian Friday night. A Blue Stocking victory would send the Tigers way down the ladder, and at the same time shoot the Calvinist quint to the top with Carolina.

Standings to date are as follows:

	W	L	Pct.
Clemson	1	0	1000
Carolina	4	1	800
Presbyterian	2	1	667
Wofford	2	1	667
Furman	3	2	600
Erskine	3	33	500
College of Chas	3	3	500
The Citadel	1	3	250
Newberry	0	3	000

Librarian On Job After Short Illness

Willard L. Jones, college librarian, recently returned to work and to the cataloguing of 8,000 Sinnott gift volumes, after having been confined to a Spartanburg hospital during a very painful but, fortunately, brief illness. During Mr. Jones' illness, Hugh Holman, college publicity director, substituted as librarian.

INTRAMURAL BOXING BEGINS TUESDAY

Second Semester Enrollment Is Large

317 STUDENTS ARE ENROLLED FOR SECOND SEMESTER WORK

Only Thirteen Students Lost During First Semester.

SIX NEW STUDENTS HAVE BEEN ENROLLED

The registrar of Presbyterian college, Lillian G. Brown, announced today that the enrollment for the second semester this year exceeds that of the second semester of last year by seven students. It is believed that this year's enrollment of 317 students is the largest enrollment for the second semester in the history of the school. Both last year and this year the enrollment for the first semester in September was 330. This year only 13 students were lost during the first semester; whereas, last year in the first semester the total enrollment loss during the time was 20. The total enrollment for the second semester of last year was 310 as compared with 317 this year.

Though some students were lost during the first semester, these losses have been partly made up by gains this semester. Students who left at the end of the first semester for other schools are as follows, listed with the school to which they went: B. B. Aycock, University of South Carolina; J. Carroll, University of South Carolina; S. D. Ellison, the University of South Carolina.

The gains for P. C. in the second semester were the following who have just enrolled: Allen McSween, recently returned from West Point; J. D. Latimer, who did not attend college anywhere the first semester; Lewis Norwood, who transferred from Georgia Military college; D. H. Sadler, who transferred from Clemson college, and Miss Mary Motes, who was out the first semester due to illness.

R. G. Hendrickson, who left recently to prepare for the West Point examination, will return in about a month, raising the total enrollment to 318. J. B. McRae withdrew because of illness and expects to return to Presbyterian next year. Other newly enrolled students are F. L. Wells, Miss Bessie Jones, and Reuel Hodge.

The enrollment, according to classes, is as follows: Seniors, 46; juniors, 63; sophomores, 73; freshmen, 111; special students, 3.

S. E. Marks finished the requirements for his degree during the first semester and is now teaching in Barnville. He is a regular member of this year's senior class, but completed his courses in three and one-half years.

Reporter Finds Many Students On NYA Projects

During the recent (?) deluge, we noticed the continued absence of any N.Y.A. work on the campus, and feeling certain that the boys were earning their money indoors, we decided it would be interested to find out just what kind it was. So we found "Sloppy" Weathers, who told us quite a few interesting things that he and Wallace Coe, as "student administrators" were planning to do, and added that at the moment, the boys were fastening loose chairs in the class rooms.

Weathers informed us that, according to Coach Johnson, who is head supervisor for N.Y.A. work on the campus, that work would be started in the near future on the baseball field. They plan to paint the fence and plough up and re-work the whole field with a special kind of sod, that would make Young field one of the best diamonds in the state.

The student supervisors also plan to work out a system of campus maintenance crews, whereby each crew would be instructed in a defi...

Rev. J. S. Dixon To Speak Here Sunday

Georgia Minister To Address Special Session.

The Y.M.C.A. announces that Rev. John S. Dixon, of Decatur, Ga., and pastor of Morningside Presbyterian church, is to preach here Sunday afternoon, February 7, at 2:00 o'clock. Mr. Dixon is a native of Gettysburg, Pa., having graduated from Gettysburg college where he obtained his B.A. degree. He completed his B.D. at Columbia Theological seminary, Decatur.

Mr. Dixon is a young man and appeals to young people in his attractive manner of presenting the Word of God. Although he has had but a short ministry, he has acquitted himself most favorably and appears to be one of the South's rising young ministers.

The Y.M.C.A. is anxious that many of the students and faculty take advantage of this opportunity of hearing Mr. Dixon.

Dramatic Club Remains Local

Meeting Thursday afternoon for the first time this semester, the Sock and Buskin dramatic club discussed possibilities of activities during the remainder of this school year. A large number of members were present at the meeting, and much unfinished business was definitely settled.

The first point of discussion was the advisability of petitioning for a charter in a national honorary dramatic fraternity. This question has been discussed from every angle at each of the past several meetings and also has been taken up with the college administration rather fully. The question was voted on at the Thurs... meeting and the response was ... favor. It is thought ... [illegible] ... of the Family," should be repeated in Laurens as soon as possible. The cast ... [illegible] ... Dorsey and Adelaide ... leading roles. Following ... [illegible] ... as a tentative date ... presentation, and immediately ... afterwards work will commence on ... drama for production in Clinton and ... perhaps, repeat performances in other ... nearby college towns.

As a result of this meeting, new members will be taken into the club before rehearsals begin for this year's second production. It is thought that by this method no campus talent will be overlooked and the play will be open to every possible advantage.

College Quartet Sings At Coker

The college quartet, with the Y. M. C. A. deputation team, gave a worship program Sunday evening at the vespers of Coke college, Hartsville.

The team was well received and a large attendance was reported. Those of the quartet were: Jim Collings, Harris Gray, Malcolm Hemphill, and Hubert Wardlaw. The quartet rendered two specially arranged numbers. Talks were given by Wardlaw, Frank Johnston and Cliff McLeod.

This is the first "Y" deputation that has been sent from P. C. to Coker in some years. The "Y" hopes to contact more of the Christian associations of other colleges and universities by means of the deputation teams.

MID-WINTERS WILL BE HELD ON WEEK-END

Annual Dances To Feature Social Activities of Week.

WESLEY KAY'S DANCE ORCHESTRA WILL PLAY

Presbyterian college dance enthusiasts will revel in the rhythm of Wesley Kay's dance orchestra at Copeland hall next week-end when the annual mid-winter dances under the auspices of the Panhellenic council will be held, according to an announcement by Hick Harvin, president of the Panhellenic council.

Wesley Kay comes to Presbyterian for the first time but is recommended highly by all who have heard him. Kay brings, in addition to his 14-piece band, Frances Delaney, talented blues singer who has started on a promising career. Many clever vocal arrangements will feature the maestro's visit here. Kay comes to Presbyterian directly from Niagara Falls, where he is completing an engagement.

The mid-winters get under way Friday night at 10 o'clock with a formal dance that lasts until 3 a.m. Saturday will feature an afternoon tea dance, and an informal dance Saturday night beginning at 10 o'clock and lasting until 12, marks the grand finale.

DR. LONG TALKS AT "Y" MEETING ON AUTO STRIKE

Discusses Strikes In Light of Christian Principles.

ATTENDANCE LARGE AT WEEKLY SESSION

Choosing as his subject a problem of current world interest today, Dr. J. A. Long, member of the college faculty in the department of education, ... the Y.M.C.A. Thursday night in the Administration building. His topic was "Strikes in the Light of Christian Principles."

While Dr. Long was a student in college, he had direct contact with strikes for two consecutive summers and is thus qualified to discuss the question from both sides. This experience has benefitted him a great deal in that he could see the viewpoints of both employer and employe.

Dr. Long showed how one of the main causes lay in the fact that the capitalists have an unfair advantage over the laborers. The capitalists hold a position which permits them to demand that a laborer work for certain wages or not at all, and this naturally causes the laborers to unite against their employers.

"There are four principles—the sum and substance of the gospel," said Dr. Long, "which are at the bottom of any satisfactory solution." He outlined these principles, as follows, and

Lee Quarterman Hospital Patient

Lee S. Quarterman, of Charleston, and a member of the senior class at Presbyterian college, recently underwent an operation in a Charleston hospital, where he is at present. Quarterman is a well-known student here. He was active in football and other sports and is a second lieutenant in the Officers' Reserve corps. He is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha social fraternity. His condition is reported to be improving.

BOUTS ARE SET FOR TUESDAY EVENING AT SEVEN O'CLOCK

Matches Will Continue Through Wednesday and Thursday.

21 BOUTS ARE LISTED ON WHOLE SCHEDULE

By Jake Penland

Presbyterian college's annual R. O. T. C. boxing tourney gets under way tomorrow evening with twenty-one bouts listed for the opening round. Pairings have been made and other arrangements completed for the eliminations, which give promise of being the most successful ever staged on the local campus.

There will be at least three fights in each of the eight divisions with the exception of the lightheavy and heavyweight classes. In these latter two, matches will be fought on the last evening of the tourney because of the shortage of entrants.

The bouts will consist of three two-minute rounds with a one-minute rest period between rounds. Roy Forehand will serve in the capacity of referee, and the judges will probably be Major Wysor and Professor Sturgeon. Those who survive the first round will fight again Wednesday, and the finals will be held on Thursday evening.

In addition to the fact that champions will be determined Thursday night, other features are being planned in an attempt to make the finals more colorful and appealing. A free-for-all, with several Negroes as participants, will precede the fights and the band may liven things up with frequent selections.

Matches are arranged according to weights of the participants. The tentative schedule of bouts for tomorrow evening is as follows:

Bantamweight: Pitts vs Spratt; A... ten vs Reeves; Brooker vs Roff.

Featherweight: Roach vs Taylor; D. M. Huntley vs Richardson; Lesesne vs Coghlan.

Presbyterian College Organizations

A student of the University of Mexico while visiting the United States recently humorously remarked that there are no organizations on the campus of his school on account of the fact that Mexicans are prone to have revolutions, and once you get five of them together in a group to form an organization, there is always trouble, for all five of them want to be the president of the body.

Fortunately, we are not without organizations nor is our temperament like that which our Mexican friend described his fellow countrymen as having. The number of student organizations at Presbyterian is rather large, but this is a compliment to the students for it shows that their interests are rather versatile. There is an organization for almost any activity one may desire to take part in. The types vary from social, literary, to religious, leadership, dance, athletic and others.

A student here has very little excuse to be an inactive member of the student body. The opportunities are too many. Further, he has little excuse not to be a well-rounded college man. On a campus the size of P. C. a student may take an active interest in a majority of the organizations and still not crowd out his regular college studies.

The leadership one shows in college is but indicative of the leadership he will show as a graduate. Organizations are a means of developing initiative and leadership on the part of the student. The mediocre student belongs to none or few of the honorary organizations of which we have a wide variety. You will in all probability find such a fellow ten years from now an indifferent citizen and member of society.

The value of student organizations lies not only in the prestige that one receives from belonging to them, but in the fact that they are incentives to better work on the part of the student.

Few students take much interest in getting a systematized conception of world events until they consider taking an examination for I. R. C., or belonging to it; few students develop socially until they find that there is through a fraternity a way to social activities and comradeship.

Organizations give due recognition to deserving students. An outstanding science student deserves recognition by being given membership in Chi Beta Phi; any outstanding leadership deserves to be recognized, and such recognition comes by being given membership in Blue Key; outstanding literary students deserve membership in the literary societies, not because of the man but because what he has done calls for recognition. Honorary organizations then give deserving recognition to outstanding work. Surely organizations are valuable from that standpoint alone. Such recognition gives an impetus to one's self-confidence such as it never had before. It means that his fellowmen have decided within themselves that such a person is worthy of becoming one of their ranks.

The moral of this lies in the fact that human nature is just the same in or out of college, undergraduate or graduate. If men recognize you in college they will most likely recognize you in your graduate life, if you show the same ability and initiative that you do here.

SOUND OFF

By
E. A. JOHNSON

The appointment of an executive staff under Cadet Major Jacobs has about doubled the personnel of battalion headquarters. It has also confused about half of the year men as to who is commanding the unit anyway. Don't let it bother you, fellows. A battalion is commanded by a lieutenant colonel; the major is the executive officer.

This is the week that separates the men from the boys. Here's where the R. O. T. C. boxing steals the spotlight from the varsity sports program for a while. We hope that the "love taps" passed out in the recent varsity boxing matches hasn't frightened off any would-be fighters. After all, no intra-mural scrappers will be up against experienced boxers, and fourteen-ounce gloves are more like pillows than bricks. One thing to remember is that "Woof-Woof" will be there on the look-out for likely material, and boxing rates as a major sport at P. C.

Here is a special last minute invitation. These R.O.T.C. seats offer swell opportunities for seeding little personal matters. It is not too late to arrange a bit of a match in the "grudge-weight" division.

Alpha Kappa Pi plans during the next month the most notable initiation in the history of the local chapter. Coming here to preside and act in the initiation ceremonies is Dave Blankenship, grand president of the order and founder of the local chapter. About a dozen pledges expect to be initiated at this time.

The Beta Kappa boys are doing their part toward making the Panhellenic dances a success by having an unusually large number of girls for mid-winters. They plan also an intermission party. Good work, boys!

Pi Kappa Alpha also expects to import a large shipment of feminine pulchritude, according to Raleigh Shoemaker, newly-elected president. That should cut out some of this snaking that's been going on.

It is with regret that Kappa Alpha sees Pledge Rose Ellison transfer to Carolina. To be initiated this week are Max Jones, Norman Creech, and "Cotton" Boswell.

Pi Kappa Phi is justly proud of the distinction won by its alumnus Robert McLees in winning one of the nine Pi Kappa Phi scholarship awards recently. For the past several months Robert, salutatorian of the class of '36, has been in New York studying advertising at Columbia university and working with a commercial art company.

"The Dream Girl of Pi K. A."

In a national poll to pick the most ideal college girl in the cast of Paramount's motion picture, "College Holiday," starring Jack Benny, Miss Marsha Hunt was selected by the 78 chapters of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity as most nearly approximating the college man's ideal.

Miss Hunt, (left), won by the narrow margin of one vote over Miss Harriette Haddon, (right), a blonde, Miss Hunt, who plays the feminine lead in the picture, will henceforth be known as "The Dream Girl of Pi K. A." the fraternity's sweetheart song.

Miss Haddon, a dancer in the cast, has been signed to a long-trem contract as a result of the vote. She was favored by 24 chapters as an alternate. 25 who picked Miss Hunt. The remaining chapters scattered their votes between eight other girls. The test was arranged by Thompson, supervisor and producer of Paramount, who is a member of the fraternity.

Feature of the voting was that both girls found support in every section of the country. In the North, South, middle West and West showed a decided preference. There was a close race between the blonde and brunette throughout the voting. P. C. chapter voted for Miss Hunt, and received an autographed photograph for their chapter room.

RELIGIOUS FRAT SELECTS THREE NEW MEMBERS

Hart, Wilkerson, and Lipsey Are Chosen.

Hubert Wardlaw, president, announced today that three men have recently been elected to membership in the local Gamma chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity. They are William D. Hart, Atlanta, Ga.; S. T. Lipsey, Savannah, Ga.; and W. H. Wilkerson, Scottsburg, Va.

Wilkereon, Lipsey and Hart have shown their interest in religious work by being active in the Y. M. C. A. here on the campus and by conducting services in neighboring churches on Sundays.

Glee Club Will Sing At Goldville

The Presbyterian college glee club makes its formal debut tonight in Goldville, giving its full program. Following this performance, they will sing in Fountain Inn tomorrow, Tuesday, night. These two performances, as well as those coming in the tour of Georgia next week, will include the orchestra directed by Harris Gray.

Featuring the program are Hubert Wardlaw, who includes in his repertoire "Asleep in the Deep," and baritone soloists, W. A. Hansell and Billy Cousins. "Hap" Gray also will render a number on his trumpet. Malcolm Hemphill's hill-billy skit promises to be a good one, as it was last year.

'Matt' Hiers Weds Miss Thelma Sams

Former P. C. Student Accepts Insurance Job.

Dr. and Mrs. Wade Sams of Spartanburg, recently announced the marriage of their daughter, Thelma Lee, to Madison Hiers of Lexington, S. C., a former student of Presbyterian college. Mrs. Hiers is from one of the prominent families in Spartanburg, her father being a physician.

Madison, popularly known as "Matt" until recently was a sophomore here. He left school about two weeks ago after having received notice of his appointment to the staff of the Liberty Mutual Life Insurance company in Columbia. He had made his application about two years ago and when he received his appointment he immediately left school to take up his new work. Hiers is well-known here where he was active in athletics and other activities. He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Hiers of Lexington. While Mr. Hiers will carry on his business in Columbia, the couple will make their home in Lexington.

Debate tryouts will be held Thursday afternoon at three-thirty, according to Hugh Holman, college forensic coach, at which time regular debates will be entered into, the query being: "Resolved That Congress Shall Be Empowered To Enact Mimimum and Maximum Wage Laws." The regular varsity debate teams will be chosen from these tryouts.

I. R. C. TO HAVE GUEST IN SPRING

Plan To Bring Edward Bradby Here For Lecture.

The Internation Relations club is planning an interesting event, to take place sometime between February 15 and April 1. Plans to bring Edward Bradby, field secretary of International Student Service, to Clinton are being carried forward.

Following an extensive tour of Canadian colleges and universities, Mr. Bradby will spend several months in this country. During his stay, he will devote six weeks to lecture engagements in colleges and universities in the United States.

Educated at Rugby and Oxford university, where he received first class honors, Mr. Bradby served for two years as secretary of International Student Service in England. He is now a member of the international staff and is engaged in the central office of International Student Service at Geneva.

As an active leader in European university circles and a specialist in international affairs, he comes to the United States with first-hand knowledge of current European events. He is also anxious to describe the student and youth movements of Europe to American undergraduates. The significant roles played by young people have affected the international scene and should therefore be of special interest to American audiences.

Limestone Group Will Lead Service Thursday Night

The deputation team of Limestone college, Gaffney, will have charge of the regular Y. M. C. A. meeting next Thursday night at seven o'clock. Miss Helen Burton is president of the Limestone Baptist Christian association and a member of the team. There will be talks and music on the program, according to the announcement. This deputation will be a return trip for the deputation which the college quartet and "Y" deputation team of P. C. recently gave at the Limestone college Sunday evening vespers.

Professor Bernard H. Boyd, of the English department and a graduate of Princeton will go to Princeton tomorrow to represent the college at the inauguration of Dr. John Alexander Mackay as president of the Princeton Theological seminary, it was announced today by the administration.

I. R. C. Places New Books In Library

"The Spanish Tragedy, 1930-36," by E. Allison Peers, a book put in the college library this week by the International Relations club, is one of the first authentic and authoritative books dealing with the scenes that led to the present crisis in Spain.

Among other books placed in the library by the club are "Can We Be Neutral?" by Allen W. Dueelos and Hamilton Fish Armstrong; "What the I. L. O. Means To America." Miller. An interesting supplment to the last named book is "The Constitution of the International Labor Organization."

"A History of the Far East In Modern Times," "World Trade and Its Future," "Fascism and National Socialism" make up the balance of the list.

chooses light smoke for his throat

Lauritz Melchior says:

"The hardest test I can give a cigarette is to try its effect on my throat after hours of intense rehearsal. I've found that a light smoke meets this test. And so, although I am not a constant smoker, I favor Lucky Strike for the sake of my throat. And, incidentally, so does my wife. When we go back to Europe we never forget to take along a good supply of Luckies."

Lauritz Melchior

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Melchior verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat!

Hailing from the hamlet that produced Little Man Dennard and the famed Snake Turner, Jeff is looking forward to a promising athletic and scholastic career. And we're looking for a few good football players. So hand over that basket of oranges, old friends, and make yourself at home.

COFFEE NERVES

The P. C.-Clemson game Saturday night was a victory as far as basketball is concerned. But speaking of nerves, deliver us from any more exhibitions of that nature. Coach Lonnie McMillian swallowed three cigars, Major Wysor almost stabbed himself with a sword, and President Jacobs temporarily forgot the school debt.

Those Blue Stockings, they've got something. We predicted three wins for the week, and derned if we weren't right. TIGER TEAM STOPPED IN THRILL SHOW

Cadets Offer Serious Threat In Closing Stages of Play.

"STREAK" BATCHELOR GOES TO TOWN

With brilliant "Streak" Batchelor leading the way, Presbyterian's basketeers flashed a superior offensive to down Clemson, 30 to 27, and take the state lead in a nip and tuck thriller Saturday evening.

It was the fifth consecutive Blue Stocking win and the third in a week's play. Overcoming an early Tiger lead, McMillian's men drew away to a four-point advantage at halftime. With Batchelor and Holcomb featuring, the Hosemen piled up a commanding lead in the third period, only to have it cut down when their ineffective defense gave way. A 13-point lead was gradually decreased, and the determined Tiger five made a serious threat in the closing moments of play.

Batchelor gave one of the finest exhibitions of court play ever witnessed on the local floor. Spearhead of his team's attack, he passed, shot and guarded to perfection. Pete Holcomb contributed nine points, and Waldrep five, with both playing spirited basketball.

The Presbyterians were handicapped by a weak defense that almost robbed them of victory. Masters of the situation when in possession of the ball, they lost their sureness and superiority when put on the defensive.

Kitchens, Laurens boy, and Cheves led the Clemson scoring with Bryce performing creditably at the pivot.

TAKE UNDISPUTED LEAD IN CHAMPIONSHIP R

Terriers, Indians Are Hose Victims

Pair of Close Contests Annexed By Humble Hosemen.

P. C.'s cagers opened their week's campaign with a close 37-36 win over Wofford at Spartanburg, travelled over to Newberry to rout the Indians, 40-30, on the following evening and returned home preparatory to the important Clemson engagement.

The thriller with Wofford was pronounced as the most exciting game of the current season. After maintaining a fairly good lead throughout, the Hosemen were surprised by a Terrier attack that knotted the score as the game ended. Just before the final whistle, with P. C. leading by a point, Hodges was fouled. He made the shot good, and the teams went into an extra five-minute period of play. By registering two field goals and a foul, P. C. eked out a one-point victory after the Terriers had sunk a pair of goals in the extra session.

Holcomb and Holden led the scoring and Batchelor played a great floor game. Hodges was best for the Methodists.

Against Newberry, the Presbyterians had a much easier fight, and came through with a decisive 40-30 victory. Holcomb continued his fine shooting and shared offensive honors with Batchelor.

The Indian five opened with a fast style of play that put them in a good lead before the Hosemen got their bearings. The latter put on steam to knot the count at 18-all by half-time, however, and the second semester was dominated by the fighting Blue Stockings.

Batchelor and Weldon led the scoring with 10 points each, and Holden followed close behind with nine. Waldrep and Johnston each contributed five points, and played nice all-round games.

Summary:

Freshmen Lose Four Straight

Wofford, Newberry, Spartanburg High, and Georgia Military College Take Measure.

The P. C. frosh basketeers wound up a very unsuccessful week on Saturday night after playing four consecutive games, hitting fast competition every night, and losing four straight games. On Wednesday night the quint was defeated by the Wofford Terrier Pup quint in the Wofford college gym by the score of 29 to 12. In the other three contests they were on the small end of the scores, losing to Newberry frosh, 46 to 26; Georgia Military college, 39 to 24; Spartanburg high school, 36 to 16. All four contests were slow, uninteresting games and the strain of four straight tilts told on the frosh.

Wofford Frosh 29, P. C. 12

On Wednesday night, at Wofford, the frosh began their unsuccessful campaign. The Pups got off to a good start and led by 14 to 5 at the half. The Anklets attempted a comeback in the second half, but were able to run up only seven points as Wofford continued to score also. The game ended with P. C. "holding the bag" to the tune of 29 to 12.

Clarke, star Wofford forward, led the scoring for the game with a total of 10 points, while Rouque, also of Wofford, was a close second with 9 points. The playing of C. Griffin and the excellent floor work of Maher was best for the rats.

Newberry Frosh 46, P. C. 26

In the second encounter of the week, the frosh dropped number two. (Continued on page six)

When rival fraternity men attempted to appropriate the house of his brethren, he wrote an open letter of protest in the Michigan Daily. This is a nutshell of it: Members of a rival fraternity have overrun our chapter house. You can't do downstairs in the evening without tripping over several of them. They constantly invite themselves over for meals in spite of a frigid reception. In answer to our earnest queries they blandly state that they enjoy our meals. What can we do in the face of such compliments? It seems as if those follows just can't take a hint.

"Tonight was the last straw. Several of these rival Greeks asked me if I would leave my room so they could study in privacy!"

And Timmons, the mighty man of mean mannerisms, promises to do some of the best swishin' of the season. Sounds good, huh?

FLORIDA FRUIT

A new arrival from Florida—in the form of blond, 163-pound Jeff Trawick, captain of the Leon high school eleven of Tallahassee during the past season. Jeff, who arrived yesterday in a drizzle of rain, matriculated this morning and is probably at the moment pondering over tomorrow's scholastic assignments.

Hailing from the hamlet that produced Little Man Dennard and the famed Snake Turner, Jeff is looking forward to a promising athletic and scholastic career. And we're looking for a few good football players. So hand over that basket of oranges, old friends, and make yourself at home.

COFFEE NERVES

The P. C.-Clemson game Saturday night was a victory as far as basketball is concerned. But speaking of nerves, deliver us from any more exhibitions of that nature. Coach Lonnie McMillian swallowed three cigars. Major Wysor almost stabbed himself with a sword, and President Jacobs temporarily forgot the school debt.

Those Blue Stockings, they've got something. We predicted three wins for the week, and derned if we weren't right. The boys are getting that barber shop stuff in their systems—taking them as they come and chanting "next!" Our only hope is that they clip the wings of Carolina's confident Gamecocks when the foul fowls invade Clinton. Next!

TIGER TEAM STOPPED IN THRILL SHOW

Cadets Offer Serious Threat In Closing Stages of Play.

"STREAK" BATCHELOR GOES TO TOWN

With brilliant "Streak" Batchelor leading the way, Presbyterian's basketeers flashed a superior offensive to down Clemson, 30 to 27, and take the state lead in a nip and tuck thriller Saturday evening.

It was the fifth consecutive Blue Stocking win and the third in a week's play. Overcoming an early Tiger lead, McMillian's men drew away to a four-point advantage at halftime. With Batchelor and Holcomb featuring, the Hosemen piled up a commanding lead in the third period, only to have it cut down when their ineffective defense gave way. A 13-point lead was gradually decreased, and the determined Tiger five made a serious threat in the closing moments of play.

Batchelor gave one of the finest exhibitions of court play ever witnessed on the local floor. Spearhead of his team's attack, he passed, shot and guarded to perfection. Pete Holcomb contributed nine points, and Waldrep five, with both playing spirited basketball.

The Presbyterians were handicapped by a weak defense that almost robbed them of victory. Masters of the situation when in possession of the ball, they lost their sureness and superiority when put on the defensive.

Kitchens, Laurens boy, and Cheves led the Clemson scoring with Bryce performing creditably at the pivot.

TAKE UNDISPUTED LEAD IN CHAMPIONSHIP R

Terriers, Indians Are Hose Victims

Pair of Close Contests Annexed By Humble Hosemen.

P. C.'s cagers opened their week's campaign with a close 37-36 win over Wofford at Spartanburg, travelled over to Newberry to rout the Indians, 10-30, on the following evening and returned home preparatory to the important Clemson engagement.

The thriller with Wofford was pronounced as the most exciting game of the current season. After maintaining a fairly good lead throughout, the Hosemen were surprised by a Terrier attack that knotted the score as the game ended. Just before the final whistle, with P. C. leading by a point, Hodges was fouled. He made the shot good, and the teams went into an extra five-minute period of play. By registering two field goals and a foul, P. C. eked out a one-point victory after the Terriers had sunk a pair of goals in the extra session.

Holcomb and Holden led the scoring and Batchelor played a great floor game. Hodges was best for the Methodists.

Against Newberry, the Presbyterians had a much easier fight, and came through with a decisive 40-30 victory. Holcomb continued his fine shooting and shared offensive honors with Batchelor.

The Indian five opened with a fast style of play that put them in a good lead before the Hosemen got their bearings. The latter put on steam to knot the count at 18-all by half-time, however, and the second semester was dominated by the fighting Blue Stockings.

Batchelor and Weldon led the scoring with 10 points each, and Holden followed close behind with nine. Waldrep and Johnston each contributed five points, and played nice all-round games.

Summary:

Freshmen Lose Four Straight

Wofford, Newberry, Spartanburg High, and Georgia Military College Take Measure.

The P. C. frosh basketeers wound up a very unsuccessful week on Saturday night after playing four consecutive games, hitting fast competition every night, and losing four straight games. On Wednesday night the quint was defeated by the Wofford Terrier Pup quint in the Wofford college gym by the score of 29 to 12. In the other three contests they were on the small end of the scores, losing to Newberry frosh, 46 to 26; Georgia Military college, 39 to 24; Spartanburg high school, 36 to 16. All four contests were slow, uninteresting games and the strain of four straight hits told on the frosh.

Wofford Frosh 29, P. C. 12

On Wednesday night, at Wofford, the frosh began their unsuccessful campaign. The Pups got off to a good start and led by 11 to 5 at the half. The Anklets attempted a comeback in the second half, but were able to run up only seven points as Wofford continued to score also. The game ended with P. C. "holding the bag" to the tune of 29 to 12.

Clarke, star Wofford forward, led the scoring for the game with a total of 10 points, while Rompre, also of Wofford, was a close second with 9 points. The playing of C. Griffin and the excellent floor work of Maher was best for the rats.

Newberry Frosh 46, P. C. 26

In the second encounter of the week, the frosh dropped number two.

to the fast, deceptive Newberry Papooses in a preliminary contest played in Newberry Thursday night. The score by quarters is given in the score column at the beginning of the game and held the lead throughout the contest as they proceeded to increase their lead with a great many long shots and several snow-birds. The Newberry rats were excellent on the basket and fast and deceptive on the floor. The game ended with the Papooses on the big end of a 44-26 score.

DeBruhl, lanky Papoose center, was the big gun for the winners, scoring 15 points, with Bennett and Ellis, Papoose forwards, close behind with 14 and 11 points, respectively. R. Griffin led the scoring for the P. C. frosh, amassing a total of 10 points, with Maher second eight.

G. M. C. 39, Anklets 24

In the third contest of the week the frosh were trounced by the Georgia Military college quint on Thursday night in the Leroy Springs gym, to the tune of 39 to 24. This was probably the most interesting out game of the week, with both teams playing good ball and showing plenty of spirit and fight.

The G. M. C. cagers jumped into the lead and the game was a see-saw affair most of the first quarter. The first half ended with the military lads in the lead, 17 to 8. The frosh threatened many comebacks during the last half, but all were unsuccessful, the game ending with the frosh again on the small end of the score.

For Georgia Military, the shooting of Nelson, with 15 points, and Johnson, with 12 points, were best and the floorwork of the entire team was excellent. Featuring for P. C. were R. Griffin, with 7 points, C. Griffin and Charlie Turner with 6 each, and Johnny Maher with 5 points.

Spartanburg 36, P. C. Frosh 16

In the closing contest of the week, the rats lost a see-saw game to the Spartanburg High team on the latters' court on Saturday night by a score of 36 to 16.

The Spartans jumped off to a quick lead in the first few minutes of play and continued to hold it throughout the game, although the frosh came within a few points of the leaders on several occasions. The score at halftime was 18 to 9 in favor of the Spartan quint. In the last five minutes of the last half the Spartans, being cheered on by a wild crowd, jumped into action with several long shots that swished through and with several crisp shots that hit their target and brought the game to a finish in a wild tangle, with the Spartans emerging victorious.

For P. C. the playing of Carlisle, Griffin, with 8 points, was outstanding. For Spartanburg, Flynn, flashy little forward, scored 11 points, and Shuler, lanky guard, scored 8 points from the field.

DR. LONG TALKS AT 'Y' MEETING ON STRIKES

for a few moments on each in turn.

First, he mentioned recognition of sacredness of personality as the basic principle, and brought out the fact that God is the universal Father and we are all brothers. He reminded the audience that both parties to the dispute are leaving that factor out.

Second, Dr. Long spoke on the recognition of the reality of fellowship. He indicated the fact that industrialists assume that industry is competition for private gain, and concentrate their energy toward the fulfillment of that principle.

"Duty of service is the third great principle," he stated, "and that permeates all of Christ's teachings. Both parties are regarding their occupations as means of making a living, and not as a service to fellow-man and to God."

The fourth principle introduced by the speaker is the power of self-sacrifice or concessions to one's fellow man. He remarked that nothing can be gained by the clash of force against force, and the singularity is that both sides seem to think that is the only way to settle it. He also stated that some industrialists are sacrificing in order to save strikes.

Dr. Long summed up his talk with the following conclusion: "God recognizes the sacredness of personality. Christ taught reality and duty of fellowship, and set an example of self-sacrifice."

TODAY and TOMORROW

by FRANK PARKER STOCKBRIDGE

HAPPINESS—Laws

Sir Arthur Eddington, famous British scientist, told ship news reporters that the only happy land he knew anything about is the one in the familiar old hymn:

"There is a happy land
Far, far away."

There never has been such a thing on earth as a happy land—a land in which all the people or even half the people were happy, except it may have been in one of the South Sea islands before white men discovered them and introduced new ideas about right and wrong and began to impose laws upon the people.

I've observed innumerable attempts to make a land—this land of ours—a happy land by passing laws. It looks to me that the more laws we adopt, the farther away we get from the goal of happiness. The happy land is still "far, far away."

DELUSIONS — Vary

The trouble with most of us is that we suffer from delusions—delusions as to what would make us happy if we had it; delusions about how to make others happy. I know earnest souls who are convinced that all the poor need to make them happy is electric dishwashers and modern plumbing. Most of us believe that all we need to make ourselves happy is more money than we have.

So we pass laws, or demand their passage, to give everybody more money and more plumbing, foolishly believing that happiness can be measured in dollars.

I lean more and more strongly to the belief, as time marches on, that a nation would be a much happier place if practically all the laws which were designed to make folk happy were repealed over night. At least, such a procedure would make it easier for Washington to balance the budget and reduce taxes.

RESPONSIBILITY — No Cop

One of my objections to trying to regulate all human affairs by law is that it takes responsibility away from the individual citizen and lays it on the shoulders of the policeman. I believe most of the evils which laws are supposed to correct would be righted to the satisfaction of everybody, if everybody realized that they had to do the job themselves, and couldn't get out of it by saying it was government's business to attend to it.

There was a higher proportion of happiness, I believe, in the pioneer era when laws were few and sheriffs a long way off, and settlers had to work out their destinies and those of their communities by taking responsibility on their own shoulders.

At least, they enjoyed a higher measure of independence when there were no government agents around to tell them what to do, and they never missed the plumbing which they'd never heard of.

WEATHER — Crops

Thus far the winter of 1936-37 has been as much of a freak as its predecessor. A year ago the East was having the heaviest snows and the lowest temperatures since Washington's army nearly froze to death at Valley Forge. This year there have not been a dozen really cold days along the whole Atlantic seaboard and no snow to speak of. California has been suffering from the coldest winter in years and Florida in the highest temperatures on record.

One thing about the abundance has been the abundance has soaked in all over affected regions of the few sections has the frozen before the rains wells and reservoirs replenished and the outlook a big crop season.

men active in extra-curricula activities already have a good average. Therefore, I don't favor such a definite requirement."

JOE HOLLIS was busy in the library, but consented to a one-minute "stack room" interview, and he told us: "I don't think a definite average should be required. As a matter of fact, I think any man who is passing enough work should be allowed to participate in athletics and literary work . . . and I don't think any difference should be made between the two."

HAYNE TAYLOR was very positive how he felt on the matter. "Yes, I think a certain average should be made, and that for lack of this requirement too many men in both literary and athletic work neglect their scholastic work."

And Freshman Swift agreed with Taylor, and clearly indicated that such was the very reason he was then working so hard.

Class Visits State School Near Here

Last Friday afternoon the class in abnormal psychology, under the direction of Dr. F. D. Jones, head of the department of psychology and philosophy, attended a clinic held at the State Training school near Clinton.

The first part of the clinic consisted of a visit to a part of the school where the group was shown several patients. Dr. F. S. Chance, assistant to the superintendent, conducted this part of the clinic and discussed each case for the benefit of the visitors.

The group then went to the auditorium where it was entertained by a company of the boys and girls. Two selections given by a choir composed of boys and girls and selections by the orchestra of the school were well received.

Miss Norma Hallett, psychologist at the institution, gave a lecture in which she suggested means of social control of mental defectives. She listed as her plan, first, that compulsory school laws should be enforced; second, maternal health clinics should be established, and third, that the study of mental hygiene should be encouraged. She then gave the students some interesting information concerning the school. She explained how the patients are received and told several interesting accounts of persons who had been there. She said that at present there are 702 persons in the school.

Dr. B. O. Whitten, superintendent of the school, gave an interesting discussion on the question of sterilization. He stated that at present California and South Dakota led in sterilization work, with South Dakota being the more diligent in its work.

The group, composed about about 15 students, was well received by the Training school officials.

This clinic is held every year as a part of the course in abnormal psychology.

The class will go to the State hospital in Columbia in the near future where another clinic will be held for the benefit of the class.

Jim Collings Named For Insurance Job

To Leave Immediately After School Term Ends.

Dean Marshall W. Brown announced today that W. T. Mast, personnel representative of the Liberty Mutual Insurance company, of Richmond, Va., had selected Jim Collings, a senior, of Atlanta, Ga., to be added to the company's personnel. Collings will leave immediately after school is out for Boston, Mass., where he will attend the company's training school for insurance work. He was selected from a number of the senior class who were also trying to secure the appointment.

Mr. Mast said that he regretted very much to turn down the other men whom he said would make fine employees, but on account of the fact that only one man could be selected from this school they could not be taken on. This company carefully selects 170 men every year from colleges and universities all over the United States for training in their work. Only five men were selected from the state of South Carolina.

Senior Class Cuts Are Announced

The registrar, Lillian G. Brown, has announced the senior class cuts for the second semester. These cuts are based on grades made by students in the first semester work. Two cuts are allowed for each grade of "B," three for "A," and three for "AA." Each senior in the second semester is allowed six cuts from chapel.

The seniors and the cuts earned by each are as follows: Beeman 14, Bird 9, Buchan 9, Campbell 18, Cappelmann 5, Clark 6, Cleckler 4, Coe 10, Collings 13, Correll 13, Cross 4, Degner 4, E. W. REV. J. S. DIXON GIVES ADDRESS TO LOCAL BODY

Speaks Before Large Group Yesterday Afternoon At Service Initiated By Y.M.C.A.

Before the largest group of students to attend the series of Sunday afternoon preaching services conducted by the college Y. M. C. A., the Rev. J. S. Dixon of the Morningside Presbyterian church of Decatur, Ga., spoke yesterday afternoon on "Greater Power."

Using the closing verses of the last chapter of St. Matthew, Mr. Dixon pointed out that Christ's disciples were to receive a power from on high which would enable them to carry out their commissions. He said that young people were asking today for a power to live up to that life which is exemplified to them in the Gospel. He showed that man has much power in that he has conquered so many of his materialistic surroundings, but that power does not amount to much when a storm arises. Man's thoughts are still the same as years ago; he fights with improved implements of warfare which are far superior than those of another day, but there is still something in man that makes him fight—something that the primitive man had also. There are still dictators who dictate and there are still those who follow. Man cannot wipe out the desire for eternity; all this is something innate in man. Mr. Dixon continued by saying that men today are seeking some power that will remove from their hearts prejudice, hatred and jealousies in the solving of modern problems.

He concluded with the question, "Shall we, the youth of today, face the problems of tomorrow in our own power or a higher power—in the power of man or in the power of God?"

Davies Arrives At Post In Russia

Joseph Edward Davies, genial and wealthy lawyer, and recently appointed U. S. ambassador to Russia, who will be awarded an honorary degree by Presbyterian college here in the spring at the annual graduation exercises, has just arrived in Russia with his wife, Mrs. Marjorie Post Hutton Davies, and the ambassador's daughter, Emley.

SCENES ARE BEING TAKEN HERE TODAY AND TUESDAY

Movie Company of New York Now Making Shots.

15-MINUTE REEL WILL BE FILMED

Representatives of the National Bureau of Private Schools of New York City will be here today and tomorrow making movie shots of campus life at P. C., according to an announcement by John E. Osman, the college field representative. The men who will be behind the cameras are Paul Hornbeck and Mr. Hartje. This is their first visit to this campus. They have been traveling throughout the south making campus movies of various colleges and universities. At present Presbyterian is perhaps the first in this state to have such pictures made.

A reel that will take 15 minutes to reproduce on the screen will be made, according to the announcement. The college will see quite a busy time as members of the student body are suddenly converted into movie actors. The film will show pictures of the personnel of the college, views of the campus, and the college equipment. Scenes will be made of a story of a day's life at P. C., beginning with rising, breakfast, drill, chapel, and classes. Shots of athletic activities will be taken. Activities of several organizations will be shot with the members playing the parts of the actors.

The film is being made by one of the best known bureaus of private schools which long has been making such movies. The movie will be used by the college in the solicitation of students, in alumni gatherings, and other instances where it will be useful in portraying campus life here. One print of the film will be left in the bureau's studio in New York where it may be shown at any time to interested friends in that section of the country. Mr. Osman said it will be shown in the chapel here as soon as it is completed.

The cameramen will come back to Presbyterian in May to make natural color shots of campus life when the outdoor athletic activities are in full swing.

In the filming of this reel the cooperation of the student body is asked so that the shots may be taken with the greatest facility.

Mid-Winters Are Very Successful

Dances Last Week-End Attended By Large Number.

Last week-end witnessed one of the most successful of the dance series to be held by Presbyterian college dance enthusiasts in Copeland hall. Wesley Kay and his orchestra of 14 pieces furnished the music for the occasion. Miss Frances Delaney, talented blues singer furnished vocal numbers for the band. This was Kay's first time to play at P. C. and he was well liked and his band was highly appraised by those who heard him. He came directly to Presbyterian from Niagra Falls, where he recently completed an engagement.

The annual mid-winters began Friday evening at 10 o'clock with a formal dance that lasted until 3 a. m. Saturday afternoon was marked by a colorful tea dance held between 4 and 6 o'clock at Copeland hall. To top off the series, an informal dance was held Saturday night from 9 to 12 o'clock.

These dances brought many visitors to the college, particularly among the alumni members of P. C. A large number of girls from out of town were here during the week-end.

Sinnott Library Is Much Larger Than Thought

A final count of the library bequeathed by Dr. William I. Sinnott to Presbyterian college revealed it to be much larger than it has been commonly supposed. Instead of there being only 8,000 volumes, there were 9,646 books and 10,047 unbound pamphlets and magazines. In the opinion of the librarian, Willard L. Jones, it is one of the most valuable and usable privately-owned collections he has ever come in contact with.

The collection contains a wealth of the better books that have been published in the past few years. The librarian is of the opinion that a final analysis of the collection will show that over ninety per cent of it will be suitable for college work.

Cataloguing and listing of the collection is now under way.

Fencers Choose McElroy Captain

The Presbyterian college fencing team met Monday afternoon, choosing for its captain Arthur McElroy, of Union. Captain McElroy is a fencer of considerable experience and ability, having been a member of The Citadel team before coming to P. C.

Though fencing is the newest of intercollegiate sports at Presbyterian college, it is fast gaining popularity. Under the tutelage of Professors Finn and Boyd, the team has progressed rapidly and will be able to compete in tilts with several South Carolina colleges early this spring.

Coach Johnson is pleased with the interest shown in this sport, which has found favor among students as a combination of manly hardihood and skill.

College Quartet Sings In Greenville

The college quartet composed of Hubert Wardlaw, Malcolm Hemphill, Harris Gray, and Jim Collings sang last night in the Trinity Presbyterian church, Renfrow, near Greenville, on the occasion of the centenary of Dwight L. Moody. The centenary service was planned in collaboration with the world-wide program. A special message, "God Used Moody, God Can Use Us," by W. Chester Kruse, student pastor, was given in connection with the program.

STEENBERGEN TELLS OF FINDING HOME FLOODED IN THE RECENT HIGH WATER IN OHIO VALLEY

J. W. Steenbergen, having just returned from his home at Point Pleasant, W. Va., in the flood area, described the flood to a reporter of The Blue Stocking as the highest in the history of the town and said, "No-body can realize the situation caused by such a flood until he has actually been there and seen it."

Steenbergen and J. C. Hutchinson, who also lives at Point Pleasant, left here last Tuesday week by bus and arrived at Charleston, W. Va., the next day where they spent the night and made arrangements to go on to Ripley, Ohio, on Thursday. After they reached Ripley by automobile they found they would have to travel the remaining 30 miles to Point Pleasant by boat and car since much of the road was completely submerged, especially the last few miles.

When Steenbergen reached his home he found the water up to the second floor. He told your reporter: "We rowed our boat right down the hall and tied it to a stair bannister, and when we went in we found the family on the second floor and cooking over the open fire grate."

His home is within a stone's throw of the river and Hutchinson lives about a block away. When they arrived the water was still rising but lacked only about an inch of reaching the heretofore unheard-of height of 62 feet, 7 inches. Most of the actual rescue work was over, so there was nothing to be done until the water had begun to subside. "Every time we rowed down the street we had to dodge either a traffic or street light suspended just above the boat," Steenbergen told us, "and in many places in the downtown district we could see the tops of submerged automobiles, where they were abandoned when the water began to rise. We saw one small house that had floated off its foundations, tied to a telephone pole to keep it from floating away, and in one room of a school there were 36 people being cared for by WPA workers."

When the water started receding the hardest work began. Steenbergen and Hutchinson, like others, worked with little rest and even less sleep at sweeping the last few inches of water and mud from the homes where the water had receded. As Steenbergen said, "We slept with our clothes on and forgot about such things as shaving and bathing, and the water was so full of chlorine that we drank it only when it was necessary."

Steenbergen said there had been three bad floods in recent years in Point Pleasant, one in 1884, another in 1913 and that although every year the river flooded the lower part of the town, no one was prepared for the height that it reached this year. He said the intense cold also added to the misery but that there was comparatively little sickness due to serum brought in by airplane during the early days of the flood.

In concluding the interview Steenbergen told us the reason Hutchinson had not yet returned. "One wall of Johnny's cellar had caved in, and due to other like damages to his house, he had remained until the house was once again habitable. He will probably return at the end of the week."

Although his car had been under water in the garage when he first got home, after minor repairs, Steenbergen was able to drive it to Charleston, W. Va., on his way back to school.

The thing that impressed your reporter most during the interview was the spirit of "neighbor help neighbor," and the casualness based on courage of these people in the flood area, and also the complete modesty of Steenbergen as he told of his part in it.

Are You Afraid To Think?

It takes only a small pebble to start the waves bobbling on the serene lake. Also it takes only a dagger thrust thought to trouble the serene life of some men. It takes only one thought to drive some to the haven of refuge found in faith. Some have said that the man who refuses to think is the most religious. Yet, somehow, we believe that some of the greatest thinkers have been the most religious. In their thinking, perhaps, they have come to the troubled waters of doubt, but clear, frank thinking led them to the shore of confidence found when life's questions have been placed upon the anvil of thought. When convictions have been frankly and freely put to the "acid test" of thought, they ultimately come out deeper grounded, drastically changed, demanding consideration by the wisest.

Should this, therefore, cause one to fear putting his convictions to the hammer of thought. The man who is afraid of his convictions has no convictions; he has only an illusion. The man who is afraid to reason is afraid to live.

Life is incomplete without the deepest devotion in thought by man. Pilate, when facing the innocent Christ, asked, "What is truth?" but was afraid to listen to the answer. We today are afraid to listen to the answer of truth as it is exemplified in the lives of saints of God and saints of thinking. The most logical and most conclusive thinkers of the ages have given us the answer to this question of truth: God is truth.

Get rich in the thoughts of God and the fertility of life will cause you to "blossom like the rose." Forsake the thoughts of God and you face the demon of uncertainty which comes to those who live in the hectic age of free thinking and radical liberalism. Get wise, think soberly, fear not if in your mind you have pondered and analyzed the deep-rooted, age-proven, thoughts of God. You cannot think without God. Yea, tremble O, man, if you are not rich in the graces and thoughts of God. You believe God you believe truth and fear nothing in the disguise of thought. Are you afraid to think? Thought does not cause you to wander away from the realities; it brings you to realities as though they were a mooring mast.

Who Said It?

(Editor's Note:—The following was handed to us without solicitation on our part by a member of the student body. Feeling that it is indicative of the renaissance of College Spirit on the Presbyterian College campus, we present this article without change with our heartiest approval).

To the gossipers in Clinton, and on Presbyterian College campus who, in a "hooting" manner, have made the statement that the P. C. Spirit is dead — hearken. Also, to that South Carolina sports editor, who last year asked what had become of the characteristic "P. C. Spirit"—this is addressed to you.

When the freshman class entered Presbyterian College this year, some of its members were sent in search of the tomb which marked the spot where this spirit had, supposedly, been buried. No such marker was ever found, nor will it ever be found.

After a successful year in football, a few eyes have been opened. On January 30, 1937, some probably thought they were having hallucinations, but in a basketball game with Clemson that immortal Spirit was present, and as a result those five boys brought glory to our dear institution by defeating their rival of old acquaintance.

That miracle working, unseen, yet evident, Spirit has never been entombed, nor do we intend for it ever to settle into a watery grave.

Fellow students, it lives. It is evidenced in that smile you wear, that warm handclasp, the way you treat your acquaintances, and, above all, it strives for clear, fair play in our athletic contests; and we, the student body, are behind it three hundred and seventeen strong.

With so vast a number of witnesses, we now challenge those bitter, unkind statements about that immortal spirit. Also we wish to remind you that this unseen phenomenon is indeed very dear to the hearts of each of us.

Tonight, as the wild, ringing echoes of a cheering student body made their way across the court, dying away, faintly in the distance, to me there comes this challenging note: "Who said it?"

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

—By—

Pete McCormick

The King Edward-Wally Simpson affair was picked as the favorite news story for 1936 by Erskine College.

Mac Folger, star back of the Clemson football team for the past several seasons, has signed a contract to play professional football next season with the Chicago Cardinals pro team.

Results of a test given to freshmen at the University of Washington show that men are ten per cent higher than women in reading ability and four per cent higher in vocabulary ratings.

The following lines portray a perfect example of indefinable nonsense:

A Pome

Snow.
Snow, Snow.
Snow, Snow, Snow.
Get the drift?

"This is the finest campus I have ever slipped on," John Held, Jr., famous author and artist, lets slide this compliment to the University of Michigan from a cool but informal seat on an icy sidewalk.

Elliott Roosevelt, the President's son, has been appointed as a member of the board of directors of Texas A. and M. College.

For the past several weeks The Daily Tar Heel, University of North Carolina newspaper, has been carrying columns of news of the world. Many special articles on the flood situation in Ohio, the Spanish revolution, and political situations in Germany, France, Italy and the United States have brought about increased interest on the U. N. C. campus.

From the Los Angeles Jr. Collegian we take this illustration of thoughtfulness: A public-speaking professor at the University of Oregon uses a light to signal the members of the class when to stop their speeches. He finds that tapping a desk, or ringing a bell wakes the other members of the class.

Many men find it very difficult to manage a woman but if they will experiment with the following method they will derive more satisfactory results, according to a writer on The Johnsonian, of Winthrop College:

14 Selected Rules for Handling Women By Electricity

If she talks too long—Interrupter.
If she wants to be an angel—Transformer.
If she is picking your pockets—Detector.
If she wants to meet you half way—Receiver.
If she gets too excited—Controller.
If she goes up in the air—Condenser.
If she wants chocolate—Feeder.
If she sings unharmoniously—Tuner.
If she is out of town—Telegrapher.
If she is a poor cook—Discharger.
If she is too fat—Reducer.
If she is wrong—Rectifier.
If she gossips too much—Regulator.
If she becomes upset—Reverser.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

Last week-end the Greeks celebrated the beginning of the second semester with one of the best dance series in the history of the Panhellenic council. Again Copeland hall swayed to the swing rhythm of Wesley Kay and his orchestra. To make the dances so successful beauties were imported from far and near. For the fellows who like feminine variety it was an occasion of delight. For those who like good music it was a time of great rejoicing. For those who like to dance it was—Copeland hall again.

Fraternities celebrated with social functions that were above par. Alpha Kappa Pi and Alpha Lambda Tau entertained in their respective rooms their dates and many visiting alumni.

Beta Kappa, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Phi had intermission parties made brilliant by the presence of more dates than any they have had in the past.

Kappa Alpha celebrated the birthday of its founder, Robert E. Lee, with a banquet in the coffee shop of Hotel Clinton Saturday night.

SKEETIN' STUFF

By D. W. DAVIS

Quixotic: And so in a pensive mood I watch the sun set from my window as the shadows creep slowly over a peaceful day. Something gravely sweet, ineffably sad as the gentle breezes whisper in the trees on the Plaza, wafting a delicate scent of pink and green spring. A moon-drenched creation gripped in the stark wonder of eclipsing darkness. And there is an interlude when words are not spoken, and I sit and dream of what might have been. Sometimes I wonder if that is not something of a brush with reality—

Some stew!

A Maiden Things or 'Taint So

I've never met a guy like him,
So sweet and yet so cold.
Either he's a gentleman,
Or else I'm getting old!

When I was little, I had the pride and sensitive dignity common to little boys shielded by friendly good manners of a country town. I took it for granted that the world would always be square and on the up and up. But that was before I grew up and went to P. C. dances. There one finds the happy hunting ground of all "snaksters" and gal snatchers. Here are a few things I saw and heard:

BARRELO JIM COLLINGS telling about "these guys who wa[nt] piece is just finishing to [be] you. Something ought to [be] about it."

RAT TIMMONS blushing [at] vacious young thing asked [for] cigarette.

JAKE PENLAND murmur[ing] ly to a cute blond that he "[has] this way before."

RAT TRENT looking misera[ble] comfortable in his first tux.

BOBBY BURGESS telling one just why he got his hair [cut]

QUOTABLE QUOTES

"It seems strange that it took eleven years to find out that a president was not a good executive." Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford university detects the odor of a rat in the dismissal of Dr. Glenn Frank from the University of Wisconsin.

"The referee, umpire and head linesman must make about 150 decisions each game, and the field judge about 50. It simply isn't humanly possible for them to be right every time." Major John L. Griffith, Big Ten football commissioner, believes they are right every time, depending upon the side of the field from which they are judged.

"The political function of education is to develop capacity for leadership and to develop capacity to choose leaders and to follow their lead." Dr. F. H. Knight, professor of economics at the University of California, suggests educational expansion for all participants in the political "follow the leader game."

"The American dormitory for men is in general 'an abomination before the Lord.' There is usually not a single refining influence within its walls; there is not a single redeeming feature about it, except as a place to hang a hat." Not even the human [rac]ks, Doctor? Doctor Dea[n] Kimball, dean emeritus at [the] university, speaks his mind.

"At times we have been cr[itical] for allowing radicals to speak [on] platforms — but we still let [them] speak. After they speak our stu[dents] and faculty members discuss [their] speeches in classrooms and [in] many worthwhile ideas, both pr[o] con, evolve from such discuss[ion]. Dr. George Barton Cutten, pre[sident] of Colgate unveersity, refuses [to] a preferential-padlock on the sp[eak]er's platform.

"I wouldn't claim for educat[ion] radio the same values that ar[e] claimed for campus study. If [we] should ever develop an overe[m]phasis of values, there would still be no [con]flict, for radio can reach those [who] find it impossible to attend regular campus classes." Dean Ned H. Dearborn of the division of general education at New York university is not fear the competition of "[mass] education."

"We are wasting time if we [are] in prolonged discussions as to [the] place of analytical geometry in [the] freshman curriculum while girls [sit] on park benches are being failed [by] those who need an education which [will] have some meaning in everyday life." Temple university's President Charles Henry suggests a waste basket for the old curriculum.

REV. W. N. LONG IS 'Y' SPEAKER

Discusses Subject of "Prayer" Before Large Group At Meeting Thursday Night.

In his initial visit to the weekly Y.M.C.A. meetings, Rev. W. N. Long, new pastor of the First Baptist church of Clinton, addressed the group on the subject, "Unanswered Prayer as Related to Campus Life." The central theme in this talk was the fact that prayers sometimes go unanswered, and he outlined five reasons why they do.

First, Mr. Long pointed out that God sometimes fails to answer prayer because of disobedience and pride on our part. As an illustration of this point, he reminded his audience that Moses was refused admission to the promised land because of previous disobedience of God's orders.

"Another major reason for unanswered prayer," he stated, "is personal sin," which is brought out by the case of David's unanswered prayer after his great sin. The speaker indicated that if we are going to have a devotional contact that means something to us, we must live clean lives.

The third reason mentioned by Mr. Long was the fact that prayer is unanswered at times because it is contrary to logic and sound purpose. In connection with this, he spoke of Elijah's request for death after he had become discouraged. "Our devotional experience ought to tax to the greatest of our ability all the sound, common sense that God lays at our disposal," he said.

The fourth reason, that of selfishness, is illustrated by the experience of James and John when they asked Christ for the chief seats in His kingdom. Mr. Long remarked that selfishness renders ineffective many of our prayers.

Lastly, we are often refused our prayers for the purpose of our own benefit. The speaker brought out the fact that denial of our prayers may be the means for our later success.

Mr. Long's talk was brief and to the point and brought out many things that should provoke thought among students when we sometimes think that our prayers go unanswered for no reason at all. If we would only stop and think for a few moments, we will, in all probability, understand why.

I. R. C. Meeting Is Interesting

Organization May Send Representatives To Auburn.

At the last meeting of the International Relations club, two topics of current interest were discussed. This was the club's first meeting of the new semester and it was well attended.

The first talk on the program was given by A. K. Darby, who spoke on "The Relation of Stalin and Trotsky." He brought out several interesting points and greatly enlightened the club on some of the policies of the Russian dictator.

The next talk was by Miss Verna McLeod, who had as her topic, "World Trade As a Menace To Peace." In the course of her talk she showed that the Versailles treaty left Germany lacking in a trade market, and with France in control of Germany's richest natural resources.

Before adjournment, the possibility of some of the members going to the I. R. C. conference to be held at Auburn, Ala., the latter part of February, was discussed. Nothing definite was decided, but it is quite possible that the local club will be represented.

P. C. Group Goes To Coker College

A group composed of Misses Myra Wise, Beverly Davis, Irene Dillard, and Messrs. Allen McSween and Raleigh Shoemaker went to Coker college, Hartsville, last Wednesday to attend a gathering of representatives of various colleges of the state at Religious Emphasis week at Coker.

The Presbyterian college representatives went under the auspices of the local Y.M.C.A.

CORPS RATINGS SHOW LEADERS

Collings Tops Senior Members; Johnson Heads Juniors.

With the appointment on February 29 of J. K. Collings to rank of cadet lieutenant colonel, commanding the R.O.T.C. battalion, there followed the announcement of Cadet J. B. Jacobs as major, and the relative rank of the juniors and seniors in the advanced corps, by Major R. E. Wysor, professor of military science and tactics and commandant.

The relative rank of the fifteen senior cadet officers is as follows: J. K. Collings, J. B. Jacobs, B. W. Legare, J. E. Patrick, R. A. Shoemaker, J. W. Thompson, G. E. Plunkett, E. W. Evans, W. Williams, M. W. Bird, W. J. Langston, F. T. Wallace, J. T. Suggs, J. P. Majors, and D. M. Mann.

There are twenty-nine men in the junior military class, who rank relatively as follows: E. A. Johnson, G. S. Beatty, Jr., C. L. Anderson, M. A. Hipp, M. C. Patterson, W. R. Williams, H. Gray, J. M. Hollis, E. U. McRae, W. P. Burns, J. Woodward, W. C. Keller, J. M. Commander, J. S. Caldwell, A. J. Briggs, W. Blackwell, C. H. McLeod, R. L. Waldrep, J. C. Cavin, M. M. Hemphill, W. A. Moore, J. A. Witherspoon, H. B. Carpenter, C. W. Wannamaker, H. F. Blalock, J. L. Lyle, C. D. Conrad, H. G. Wardlaw, and B. G. Shaw.

French Class Sees Film In Columbia

Last Saturday morning the advanced French literature class, taught by Dr. Stephen M. Huntley, head of the department of romance languages, went to Columbia to see the French film, "Dr. Knock," which was shown at the Carolina theatre under the auspices of Pi Nu chapter of Beta Pi Theta.

The motion picture is adapted from the brilliant play by Jules Romains, is built around the theme of a hoax doctor who terrifies a village into wholesome respect for an abstract deity, medicine.

Dr. Huntley's class has recently completed reading the play and he feels that they were helped by seeing the picture, with dialogue in French.

'Y' Deputation Team Will Go To Winthrop

The college "Y" deputation team will give a program at the vespers of Winthrop college, Rock Hill, next Sunday evening at 6:15. The team is composed of the following: Hubert Wardlaw, Malcolm Hemphill, Harris Gray, Jim Collings, Cliff McLeod, Frank Johnston, and W. Chester Keller. The group will give talks and the quartet will sing several selections.

On the way up to Rock Hill the quartet will sing Sunday morning at Purity Presbyterian church in Chester, where Dr. John McSween, former president of the college, is pastor.

"...a light smoke is a joy to the throat"

"Before I came over to this country an English cigarette appealed to me because it was firmly packed. In America I tried various popular brands looking for the same virtue. Lucky Strike led all the rest. And what's more—I soon discovered that Luckies were a light smoke and a positive joy to the throat."

HERBERT MARSHALL
FAMOUS RKO RADIO PICTURES' STAR

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Marshall verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen, and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. THE INTRAMURAL CHAMP

I wrote this myself. If you don't believe it, just read it. And then you will wonder why.

He used to roam around the place
In manner quite subdued—
Appeared to be a timid guy
Of sentimental mood.

I never heard him brag or boast
Or battle for his rights—
Just took what came and shied away
From bickering and fights.

But now he thinks he's dynamite,
A mean and mighty scamp—
And all because the judges named
Him intramural champ.

NICE GOIN'

Congratulations to the local lads who did so well in the Golden Gloves tourney in Greenville last week. Of the six who entered, three came through with victory, and the remaining three offered some mean opposition.

Joseph Lewis Clements, Presbyterian's fancy dresser and fancy boxer, displayed a brand of fistic skill that was described as tops by the great throng attending the matches. "I'm proud of me boy," said Father Cappelmann last evening while speaking of the matches in general and Son Claus in particular. And P. C. is proud of the six men who not only excelled in ring ability, but in sportsmanship as well. Yes, yes.

R.O.T.C. FIGHTS ARE SUCCESS

Finale Thursday Is Colorful Affair. Knockouts Scored.

Amidst the pounding of padded mitts and flailing arms, eight weary freshmen emerged victors in their respective weights Thursday night after three nights of gruelling battle. The bouts, sponsored by the military department, were pronounced a huge success and were enjoyed by all, including the contestants.

The preliminaries having gotten under way Tuesday night, were followed by the semi-finals Wednesday night and the finals Thursday night. Several colorful knockouts and technical knockouts featured the matches.

In the 115-pound class, Jimmy Reeves proved his superiority by gaining the decision over Fred Allen in the first night of activities and then trouncing Billy Pitts in the finals Thursday night. The latter fight was most interesting, with knockdowns galore and a bit of hard slugging.

In the 120-pound division, Cogburn claimed the title by virtue of three straight wins. Having polished off Lipsey in the first night of activities, he returned to gain a well-earned decision over Aiken Taylor the next night. In the finals, Cogburn put on a classy exhibition of boxing to out-

Citadel Trounces P. C. Court Men

Weak Defense Leads To Second Loss of Season.

Taking advantage of a weak defense, a touch of over-confidence and other factors, Citadel's mediocre Bulldogs gradually built up a commanding lead to topple Presbyterian's faltering five from the top of the cage ladder in a bitter contest last Monday evening.

The Hosemen opened up with Batchelor flashing down the court to score, followed by a marker by Waldrep and another by Batchelor. But the scene changed quickly, with the set-up in favor of Citadel. Cleverly picking out flaws in the Hose defense, the Bulldogs began chalking up points. Too, they maintained a sturdy defense, effectively stopping Batchelor and other dangerous men.

At half time, the Charleston team led 15 to 9, and this margin was widened during the second semester.

Holden tried hard, but was decidedly "off" in his game. Batchelor was bottled up, and muffed his only scoring opportunities, and both Holcomb and Johnston were mediocre. Waldrep was the best P. C. performer.

Holt, Citadel forward, led the scoring, but it was the capable defensive play of McNeil that featured the evening's play.

The line-ups:

Citadel	G	F	TP
Holt, f	4	1	9

Freshmen Drop Three Last Week

Unable To Turn In Win During Week's Play.

In the second consecutive unsuccessful week, the P. C. frosh basketeers entered three contests and came out on the small end of the score on each occasion. They began the week on Monday night by losing to Citadel frosh by the score of 33 to 28. On Wednesday night they tangled with the strong Erskine "rat" team and were again on the small end of a 32 to 25 score, closing the week on Friday night with the strong Ander-

Hose Top Furman In Close Battle

Spectacular Last-Minute Rally Is Deciding Factor.

Holden and his Hose brethren rallied spectacularly in the closing moments to set Furman back 33 to 28 Saturday night and somewhat atone for a pair of searlier-in-the-week losses. The game, held in Greenville, was featured by smooth floorwork on the part of both teams.

Les Holden came into his own to give a flashy exhibition of nice all-round play. He topped the Hose scoring with ten points, played a good court game, and was highly effective on defense. The playing of Waldrep and Holcomb coincided with that of Holden, with the entire personnel working determinedly for victory.

The Blue Stockings started off strong, slipped behind by half time, and remained on the small end of the score until their spectacular last-minute spurt. The Hurricane maintained a comfortable lead through most of the second half with Raymond Culclasure running hot offensively.

The line-ups:

Gamecocks In Top Position

Supplant P. C. In State Basketball Standing. Hose Second.

P. C.'s basketters dropped a pair of games during the past week to give up their first place position among state teams in favor of Carolina's Gamecocks, who nosed out Clemson in their only engagement.

The Hosemen, who annexed five consecutive victories after an early-in-the-season loss to Carolina, couldn't get going in their Monday evening stand against the in-and-out Bulldogs. The McMillian-men then dropped one to Erskine before reversing their form and whipping Furman Saturday night.

With the exception of Erskine, there was very little fluctuation in the standings. The Fleet improved its position by taking The Citadel and Presbyterian.

The State standings:

Carolina	4	1	800
Presbyterian	6	3	667
Wofford	4	3	571
Erskine	6	5	545
Col. Charleston	4	4	500

CLUB WITH 18TH CENTURY TOUCH MEETS NIGHTLY

Local Group of Six, Embracing Diverse Interests, Discusses Many Topics Over Coffee.

Boswellians Gather At Clinton 'Tavern'

(Editor's Note:—The following article was sent out by the publicity department of the college sometime ago to various papers throughout the country. Since then it has gained wide prominence; it was published in The Presbyterian of the South and other magazines, and was syndicated to the colleges and universities of the U. S. through the Associated Collegiate Press. Through some reason it never found its way into the pages of The Blue Stocking; therefore, for the benefit of those on the campus who may not have heard of The Boswellian club or are not particularly familiar with it, we are printing it in its full form. The author's name may be inferred from the contents).

Conceived in the diverse but uniformly curious minds of six people, born in the steam rising from cups of hot coffee, and nurtured in the aromatic odor of black java, a touch of eighteenth century England has come to life on the Presbyterian college campus.

Around the tables of London's coffee houses in the eighteenth century there gathered a group of men who mixed philosophy with travel, stirred in a great deal of literature and a pinch of criticism, spiced the whole with sarcasm, and having sprinkled well with mathematics, brought the mess to a brew in their inquisitive minds and drank deeply thereof.

From Boswell's Chronicles

The most authentic and interesting chronicle of their doings is in Boswell's Life of Johnson, and for this reason Presbyterian college's anachronic group calls itself The Boswellian club.

Every night, between eight and eleven, they gather in the science hall of the college, and then fare forth into their night life, which consists of walking uptown to a cafe where they always sit at the same table, order coffee, light cigarettes and withdraw themselves into another world.

Conversation is no lost art with them. They run the gamut of the sciences, solve great problems in the fields of the arts, quote voluminously from the poets, delve into the mysteries of metaphysics and theology, discuss politics and Aristotle in the same breath and even take a stab at Einstein, whom one of them knows personally.

Many Tunes In Repertoire

Widely varied are they in tastes—in literature they range from extreme classicism to the deepest of deep-died romanticism — but even more widely varied are they in origin. There is within their group a professor of biology from Harvard who is busily writing a history of that science. The University of Wisconsin has yielded up a professor of physics who was born in Missouri and raised in Kansas, and somewhere along the line picked up a barbed wit. Princeton forgot its football long enough to contribute a professor of English literature who has been surpassed in romantic feeling only by some nineteenth century lyric poets. William and Mary and the Medical College of Virginia contributed the only female member of the group — the Boswellians, remembering eighteenth century terminology, insist that she be known only as the "female member" —she is the most universal in her interests, for she has studied psychiatry, medicine, and Shakespeare. Presbyterian college itself contributed the two remaining members of the group. One is from Indiana and was probably the greatest track man that South Carolina has seen and is now interested in the development of the civilizations of the world, but makes his living as field secretary of the college. The other is a native South Carolinian. The author of several pulp paper magazine stories which he sold while an undergraduate, he is now dreaming and writing on a novel while he earns his coffee as publicity director of the college.

A strange group they form, these heterogenous minds, as they sip their fifth or sixth cup of coffee and let their philosophies "rush in where angels fear to tread."

". . . 8, 9, 10—you're out." And so ends one more fine season of R.O.T.C. boxing. The Army's scrappers have furnished some fine entertainment for the school and community during the past week and have really earned their drill holidays. Some of those matches put varsity bouts to shame when it comes to the amount of action involved. If fighting is what it takes to be a soldier, some of these freshmen are sure to be generals.

According to the spectators, one mistake was made in arranging the fights. The "Ethiopians" from town who added the "color" to the situation should have rated as main events. They certainly added to the program. The free-for-all gave the laughs to the crowd that in the past have come from grudge fights.

"Coming events cast their shadows before" and the shades of camp life are none too pleasant at present. It seems that the juniors will have to be inoculated against everything from whooping-cough to rabies. In a few weeks now the annual siege of typhoid shots will begin, and members of the junior class will be moving about carefully nursing sore left arms. There is also the little matter of small-pox vaccination. If the stories we hear of camp are true, how about some inoculation against sunstroke.

As the weather-man continues to send the battalion "upstairs with rifles" every morning, the plans and training department is swinging into action. Principles of extended order, rifle marksmanship, and military courtesy are the order of the day rather than company and platoon drill. The sophomores are coming in for a large share of the training with regular examinations from Major Wysor concerning close order drill and general military knowledge.

We haven't heard much about a rifle team this year but understand that nothing can be done about it since the indoor range had to be moved. As soon as the weather turns a little warm and "Fort Wysor" can point Jimmy Richardson, who had previously defeated Roach.

"Squirrel" Worrel was the undisputed winner in the 130-pound class as a result of his decisive victory over David Dingeman, who had previously beaten Wallace Barnhill. Worrell possessed a lightning right punch that had about the same effect as a kick of a mule to Dingeman's jaw but the latter was game and hung on till the final bell.

The 140-pound division was well matched, but M. D. Shuler came out victorious as a result of his win over Bill Moore in the finals. Moore had previously beaten Huiet Paul and Moffet Wylie. Shuler had also beaten Godfrey and Crews.

Be Moore advanced to the finals after beating Trent and Perry. In a close battle, Moore earned the right to claim the title in his weight by gaining the decision. Mabry had beaten Ellerbe Huntley the night before in a rugged engagement.

Billy Kee upset the dope in the 160-pound class when he defeated Strain, McSwain, and Paschal in the order named. Although no knockouts were registered, Kee proved his right to the title by his aggressiveness and scrappiness.

The only match in the 170-pound class was run off in short order Thursday night when Buie scored a technical knock-out over Henley within the first 10 seconds of the first round. Henley was game but Buie proved much the superior and the match was stopped.

"No Hope" Dixon defeated Potter in the only fight in the 180-pound division. This fight proved very interesting as both pugilists resorted to scientific tactics and concentrated on scoring points. Dixon proved superior to his inexperienced opponent, however, and received the decision.

Several Negro fights were on the card Thursday night and brought many laughs from the spectators as did the Negro battle royal which was held as a climax of the Thursday night show.

P. C. Tennis Work Attracts Attention

That Presbyterian college's tennis clinic and extensive tennis program is continuing to attract wide attention in the East is evidenced by an article on tennis by John Oliver, published in the January 28 issue of The Richmond (Va.) News Leader.

After discussing amateur and professional tennis play and tournaments, Mr. Oliver concluded his article with the following statement:

"Presbyterian college at Clinton, S. C., is the leading tennis college of the United States. Tennis is a main sport there, and President William P. Jacobs, who donates blocking back trophies in the Southern and Southeastern conferences, is the tennis coach. They play on indoor and outdoor courts and hold a clinic each year."

State Tennis Tournament At P. C. In May

SEVEN SCHOOLS WILL COMPETE IN TITLE MATCHES MAY 6, 7, 8

Arrangements Made By Coaches At Conference Last Week.

P. C. TEAM PREPARING UNDER COACH MARTIN

The great and near-great of South Carolina college tennis will swing racquets to determine championships on Presbyterian college's tiers of courts May 6, 7 and 8, when the state intercolegiate tennis tournament will be held, according to an announcement made by William P. Jacobs, president of the college, and chairman of the state tournament committee.

The committee met with the coaches and athletic directors of the state here Tuesday and plans were drawn up for the committee. Seven colleges have stated their intention to enter the court play. Those sending representatives to the meeting were: Erskine, Clemson, Carolina, Wofford, Citadel, Furman, and Presbyterian.

The committee limited entries to five singles and two doubles teams from each college. It will meet again a week prior to the tournament for drawings and seeding.

Taylor Martin, assistant coach of tennis at Presbyterian college, is working hard on the P. C. courts getting them in readiness for the gruelling meet, while P. C. recquet stars practice drives and smashes on the indoor court in Leroy Springs gymnasium.

Deadline Set For Sponsor Photos

Editor Joe Patrick of the PaC-Sac wishes to remind all men who have sponsors for the yearbook that they must have the pictures in to him not later than February 20th. The pictures must be 5 by seven inches, and must be of glossy print.

Editor Patrick stated that work on the yearbook was progressing nicely and that most of the sponsor section is made up with the exception of the spaces reserved for those who have delayed handing in the pictures of their sponsors.

Professor Sturgeon Illustrates 'Y' Talk With Experiments

Uses Unusual Subject, "The Gospel In Chemistry."

Using a number of chemical compounds to illustrate his statements, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, head of the Presbyterian college chemistry department, made a brief but effective lecture at the Y.M.C.A. meeting Thursday night on the subject, "The Gospel In Chemistry."

Prof. Sturgeon began his talk with a quotation from the scripture, "The heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork," remarking that the firmament is composed of chemical compounds. He then made a comparison of the travel of automobiles on the highways and the controlled travel of atoms, and declared that "there must be some super-intelligence behind it all.

The central theme of the talk was the fact that our sins will always find us out, and, to illustrate this point, Prof. Sturgeon made several interesting experiments with chemicals. One of these showed how we can sin for a little while and think we are getting away with it, but it will

Rotary Club Gives Scroll To Williaim P. Jacobs.

DEAN BROWN AND COACH JOHNSON LAUD HIS WORK

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, received a signal honor on last Monday as the Clinton Rotary club presented him with an engraved scroll for his outstanding service to the community of Clinton in the fields of industry, education, promotion, organization, building and Rotary.

Dean Marshall W. Brown of the college gave an address in which he sketched the unusual and outstanding things which Mr. Jacobs is doing in the field of education.

Walter A. Johnson told Mr. Jacobs' business and civic accomplishments.

Dr. B. O. Whitten presented Mr. Jacobs with the scroll and spoke feelingly of the excellent and widespread influence that he was having, not only in South Carolina but throughout the South and the nation.

Collegian To Be Printed Soon

Editor Campbell Arranges Material To Be Used.

Stuart Campbell, editor of The Collegian, quarterly literary magazine of the college, stated today that some of the material for the spring issue was in the hands of the printer and that it will probably be out within the next three or four weeks. The material consists of a variety of stories, poetry, articles, and humor.

According to Editor Campbell, the following material will appear in the coming issue of the publication: Stories by Keitt Darby, Sadler Love, Eldred MacLeod, Cliff McLeod and Alvin Chapman; a page of poetry by Polly Roberts; an article by Stuart Campbell, a poem by Chester Keller; and a humor page by Keitt Darby. Linoleum illustrations and art work will be by William P. Jacobs, III.

Judging by the material handed in, Editor Campbell expects this issue to equal the two numbers published earlier this year.

NOTED CHARLESTON MINISTER BEGINS MEETING FEBRUARY 22

Annual Religious Event To Last Entire Week.

TWO SERMONS SCHEDULED TO BE HEARD EACH DAY

The college administration today announced that the Rev. J. N. Thomas, D. D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, will be the speaker during the annual week of religious services which will begin Monday, February 22, and continue through Friday, February 26.

According to the announcement, Dr. Thomas will give his first service Monday night at 7:30 at the First Presbyterian church. The program for the week will consist of one service led by Dr. Thomas in the college chapel at 11:45 on the mornings of Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, and one service each night at the Presbyterian church at 7:30 from Monday night through Friday night.

Dr. Thomas, a young man, is one of the South's foremost ministers. He spoke here recently on the subject, "Two Reasons Why I Believe In God," in one of the series of Sunday afternoon services conducted by the Y.M.C.A. Those who heard him will recall that his message was thought provoking and was well received.

The week of religious services is an annual event at the college, during which emphasis is placed on religious activities and an attempt is made to arouse new enquenty in religious work. The Rev. Peter Marshall, of Atlanta, conducted the services last year.

Fraternities Will Lead Devotions

In preparation for the week of prayer services, the social fraternities will conduct a 15-minute devotional program every evening immediately after supper in the chapel, beginning this evening.

The student body is invited to be present the services.

The order of fraternities conducting the services is as follows: Monday, Beta Kappa; Tuesday, Alpha Kappa Pi; Wednesday, Alpha Lambda Tau; Thursday, Kappa Alpha; Friday, Pi Kappa Alpha; Saturday, Pi Kappa Phi.

Also, in preparation for this event prayer meetings will be held in the dormitories each night at 10 o'clock.

Senior Class Will Be Given Informal Reception In March

Y.M.C.A. To Honor Group On Evening of March 5.

Chester Keller, president of the Y. M. C. A., announced today that the "Y" will have a reception for the seniors Friday night, March 5, which will be held on the college campus at the "Y" building and on the plaza.

The entire student body and faculty will be invited. The freshmen will act as honorary escorts to the seniors.

All seniors are requested to give the names of their dates to Hubert Wardlaw, Joe Patrick, or Chester Keller by March 1st.

Many interesting and unique attractions are being planned. Definite and more detailed announcements will be made later regarding this reception.

Movie Company Will Return Here For Color Plates

Other "Shots" Completed. Reel To Be Shown Here Soon.

"Presbyterian college is one of the best-equipped colleges we have visited and we are looking forward to returning in the spring to finish the outdoor scenes," said representatives of the National Bureau of Private Schools, of New York, who were on the campus last week taking shots for a 15-minute reel depicting "A Day in the Life of a P. C. Student," which will be shown in South Carolina and Georgia, and sometime later here at P. C.

When the photographers return in the spring they plan to take color films of the campus, and all sport activities at that time, according to John E. Oswan, field representative of the college. He also added that both the photographers and the administration were pleased with the cooperation given them by the student body during the shooting of the film.

P. C. Group Attends Student Conference

Those who attended the Student Missions conference held at Columbia last Friday and Saturday, held under the auspices of the Student Volunteer Movement, were Chester Keller, S. T. Lipsey, Robert Black, Hubert Wilkerson, and E. K. Timmons. The group represented the local Y. M. C. A.

The conference for all South Carolina students interested in Christian work, which was interdenominational and interracial, was held in the First Presbyterian church of Columbia, of which Dr. J. W. Jackson is pastor.

The group reported that a large number of students were present, representing the schools of the state. Several interesting speakers were on hand. Foss Kinguo, China, was Rev. Philip McLean, and from Princeton was Dr. Samuel M. Zwemer.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

In these turbulent times when the old cry of "wolf" is everyday shouted over the radio and appears in nearly every newspaper, we have begun to wonder just when that "next war" will come and, more important to us here, "IN CASE OF WAR, WHAT WOULD YOU DO?" and that is the question we asked this week.

One of the interesting answers received was that of Freshman LAWRENCE HALL, who, by the way, is a convalescing from the recent intra-"murder" bouts, he said:

"Why, I would volunteer. I just got through one and I guess I could stand another. But this time I would carry a shot-gun . . . then I would have a much better chance of hitting something. Seriously now, I would volunteer."

R. K. PORTER, of the "home guards" thought the matter over a moment, then replied:

"Well, it would depend a lot on what the shooting was about, but I believe I would volunteer rather than wait and be drafted, because by volunteering you would have some choice of company or regiment and of being with men from your own city or county . . . and I believe that makes a difference."

"BLACKIE" BLACKWELL had that attitude of "My country, right or wrong" as he told us in no uncertain terms:

"What would I do? Well . . . I guess I would volunteer as soon as I could. I don't see why anyone would wait for the draft."

GLENN BEKMAN, however, felt like Sherman about this business of war, and he said:

"I wouldn't volunteer to fight in any war." Then, being a true patriot at heart, he added, "unless it was a righteous cause."

When we talked to JOHN BYRUM he seemed more interested at the time in watching two mules that were making war on the Plaza grass, but he replied:

"If it was a case of a defensive war I'd volunteer, but I don't think much of this business of fighting another European war . . . no matter what reason they give this time."

GLEE CLUB SINGS WAY INTO THE HEARTS OF GEORGIA LASSIES ON RECENT CONCERT TOUR

Friday night at four-thirty, the Presbyterian college orchestra and glee club terminated a very successful trip into Georgia. A total of seven performances were given and the reception by the audiences was of an unfailingly appreciative character. The chief supporters of the organization appeared to be the girls at three colleges at which the club performed during the course of the trip. The trip covered about a thousand miles, and it was an exhausted group of boys that debarked from the Blue Stocking bus last Friday.

A short review of the main events of the trip are as follows: The first performance was in Anderson, S. C., on Monday night, and a large and enthusiastic audience of four hundred echoed the program with round upon round of applause. The members of the club spent the night in homes of the sponsoring Presbyterians of Anderson and left the next (Tuesday) morning for Milledgeville, Ga., arriving there in time to give an abbreviated version of the program before the entire student body of Georgia State College for Women, numbering 1500 girls. Needless to say, the reception given by this great audience was almost awe-inspiring. The club ate dinner at the college, and during the meal the quartet rendered two numbers that were well received. After dinner, the club left for Fort Valley and gave a performance that night, spending the night in the homes of Fort Valley Presbyterians. The orchestra gave no performance in Fort Valley because the music had been left in Milledgeville, the attraction of the girls there being such as to cause the boys to forget their duties.

On Wednesday morning, the club went to Moultrie for lunch and a slightly shortened performance. There was an audience of five hundred persons attending and they accorded a very pleasant reception to the whole program. From Moultrie the next trip led to Valdosta, at another branch of the Georgia State College for Women. This school gave the boys the heartiest reception of any place they went. The sponsors in this case were the members of the senior class of G. S. C. W. and the club was supplied with supper and breakfast at the college. The night was passed in homes of friends of the college, and the next morning the trip back into middle Georgia was begun. After a trip that lasted all day, the club gave a night performance in Griffin, and spent the night there. After the performance the girls of the Tri-Hi-Y gave a small private dance for the glee club members which was much enjoyed.

Friday morning the club left for its final luncheon performance at Marietta, and arrived there to take dinner out in town with the ladies of one of the Presbyterian circles which sponsored the performance. The program was rendered, but was considerably hampered, due to the fact that about half the club members had colds contracted from the continual strain on their throats by preceding performances. The club went back to Atlanta and enjoyed an al fresco supper given for them by Dr. Cousins, father of one of the members of the club, Bill Cousins. Then the class went into Atlanta and enjoyed a show or met old friends until nine o'clock, when the trip home started.

The club was quite agreed that the trip was fine in all respects, especially the generous and gracious people with whom it was their good fortune to stay. The orchestra made a hit at every place it played, and made a host of friends who wanted it back to play for a regular dance soon. The individual members also commented on the quality of the girls in Georgia and Anderson, and their pleasant reception of the personnel of the club, and orchestra.

I Would Be Wise, Would You?

Life has not a class of remedial to offer in order to obtain the blessed virtue of wisdom. However, life offers many avenues that one might tread as he endeavors to attain unto this celestial objective. Men have grown old, passed into eternity, been forgotten on this earth, because they failed to erect a monument in living granite. They failed to contribute anything worthwhile to the perpetuation of the human race. When they could have walked in the halls of wisdom, they sought the seclusion of their own egotism. When they could have accomplished and attributed to human thinking, human living, they became hermits in their own selfish world. Ah, they were unable to tread the avenue which ultimately leads to the portals of wisdom! They, as all men, had the opportunity, they had not the courage. They could have achieved what many others have accomplished, but they side-stepped the challenge. Many sons of men have followed in the footsteps of other men's sons to the grave without leaving an indelible monument upon the "sands of time."

How shall we leave an indelible achievement upon the scroll of life? It is absolutely expedient that we search diligently, work untiringly, for the goal of wisdom. But where lies the way? The way is found not by seeking, but advancing. They way is found not by idleness, but diligence. The way is not shrouded in invisible seclusion. Lift up your eyes, look, see there it is passing by you in your negligent hours. You need not search for the way of wisdom; it is seeking those who would be wise, would you be wise? I would. —'37.

So you're in the movies now! Or most of you are, anyway. And so is Presbyterian College, in one of the most unusual methods of presenting this college to the public we have seen. It will be one of the most effective ways of telling people about what P. C. consists of in general. While some will remark that much was not portrayed, yet the cameramen here last week secured a rather complete cross section of campus life.

So far as we have been able to learn, Presbyterian is the only school in the state that has had such pictures made. To those behind the scenes whose idea it was to have these pictures made goes the credit for being on the alert.

The most significant thing about this movie business is that it represents but one more step for P. C. toward taking advantage of modern means of promoting education and presenting P. C. to prospective students, alumni, and interested friends.

Religious Emphasis Week

Since this is a church college, the Week of Prayer services are a very important phase of life here. Those who have been here in the past will recall the renewed interest in religious affairs that resulted from these meetings. But what we have to say is not so much about the spiritual interest that will be aroused, for that will come as it has come in the past under other religious leaders like Dr. Thomas. What we have to say is that it has been very noticeable that from every one of these series of meetings there comes a deeper comradeship among the students and a greater degree of common fellowship. In other words, the general spirit of the school is raised to a higher degree. Even the worst scoffer comes across and joins in the services. Therefore, just as we should attempt to make the athletic, social, fraternal, military and other events successful, we should not neglect to make a success of this, another of the important phases of our campus life.

Can Student Government Be Effective?

In some schools recently there have been reactionary movements against the modern system of student government. Hence, the question has arisen should student government be abandoned, or should more power be given the students?

Anyone who says anything about the student council or student government of Presbyterian College or any other school must do so realizing that he is stepping on thin ice—and we mean "thin" in its strictest meaning.

The opinion of some students is that such government has failed here, while others are quite certain it is a marvelous success. It is quite evident that here is a paradox and somebody is certainly wrong. However, maybe both sides are partly correct in a certain sense.

In one instance here the student government was a failure out and out because there was no such thing in the case for the faculty had the power (which it still has) to revoke the decision of the body delegated to decide on the matter—the Student Council. However, it must be admitted that it must be quite a terrible feeling to be at the mercy of a group who has had no more experience in dealing with life's problems than you, and in some cases less experience than you. Th group would somehow determine the bent of your career if they suddenly decided that you were no longer desirable as a member of the student body. It would take a long time to wipe off such a degradation. But on the other hand this group is in a position to know more about the campus life, its intricacies and to know personally the ones charged. The faculty unfortunately knows little of the personal activities of the average student.

If student government is not effective at Presbyterian, and cannot be, then we are a back number—in fact, "back number" is a mild way to express it. Many modern universities have found that it is not only highly effective in keeping down disorder on campuses, but that it is highly respected and the highest honor a student can obtain unto it to secure a position on the student council.

The fact that government by student body has been successful in many of our modern universities and colleges and the fact that it has been moderately successful here at Presbyterian is indicative of the fact that student government can be effective.

CAMPUS CRUISING

What's What On Other Campuses

By Pete McCormick

A University of North Carolina co-ed, who was taking a course in editorial writing, used the following expression in one of her papers, "As I rise from the arms of Morpheus in the morning." Unfortunately, she spelled Morpheus the same way in which Murphy is spelled. The professor, at the next meeting of the class, demanded of her, "Who is this Murphy out of whose arms thou dost arise each bright morn?"

From 16,000 tests made in all parts of the world, Pennsylvania State College's Dr. Helmut Landsberg has determined that 90 million dust particles pass through a city-dweller's lungs every minute.

From the Western Georgian came this little poem:

Blue eyes gaze at mine—Vexation;
Soft hands clasped in mine—Palpitation;
Fair hair brushing mine—Expectation;
Red lips close to mine—Temptation;
Footsteps—You guess.

From The Johnsonian we take the following note which was sent to Dr. Wheeler of Winthrop, by a Winthrop senior. It runs:

"I wont be in class Saturday to give the work on account of I was suddenly taken with a long week-end so I am enclosing it."

An L. S. U. history class was in session. On the scene appeared a late-comer. Slowly he walked up to the professor's desk. From under the books in his arms he produced a shiny red apple, which he proffered to the lecturer. "Getting close to exam time, hub, Prof," he drawled. The class roared, whereupon the kind-hearted professor dismissed the class.

Figures compiled by a reporter at Oregon State indicate that 10,800 pounds of English instructors at that institution climb 74 steps daily.

If a potential Methuselah were given the assignment of drinking eight glasses of water daily from the new varsity swimming pool at Ohio State university, he would consume all of the water—219,160 gallons—in 1,200 years.

The following incident occurred at the University of North Carolina only a few days ago:

Money Authority Bernstein was telling his economics class how very difficult it is to determine the accuracy of price indices.

"People don't buy the same things now that they used to," explained Mr. Bernstein. "Long ago they bought hay and oats; today, they buy gasoline. Long ago they bought this, and today they buy that. Did you know that the modern woman spends about $40 a year just on cosmetics—rouge, powder and lipstick alone. Who do you suppose bought those things a long time ago?" challenged Berny.

"The Indians," sang someone.

The class was dismissed.

Blue Hose Stop Stetson In Week Fina

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

Last week I wrote a poem, stuck it in this column, and was criticized by all three of my readers. But, evidently, I don't care what my readers (all three of 'em) think—for here I am, composing another one:

A STAR FELL OUT OF HEAVEN

Last night I met an urchin fair
And asked her to be mine;
I told her that I was a whiz
In P. C.'s mighty line.

And that I wasn't at all bad
In basketball and track—
A man who's got the business,
The skill and grace and knack.

She said, "My word, my modest lad,
You must be somethin' big;
But how ya doin' in your French
And chemistry and trig?

"And when this glamor fades away
And other fields you roam,
How will you use that touchdown play
To bring the bacon home?"

I said, "Yo've got me, little one,
I ain't so hot, I fear—
When school is out I'm gonna work
In a filling station, dear."

"Good-bye, my love," the urchin said,
"Good-bye, my shining star,
I'm looking for a guy they call
'Intelligentsia'."

Tiger Fighters Stop Stockings

Score Four Consecutive Technical Knockouts.

"CAP" AND CLEMENTS WIN

Acting as host to the Presbyterian college boxing team, Clemson's Tigers rudely welcomed them with four consecutive knock-outs being chalked up against them. Out of the eight scheduled fights the game, but inferior Blue Hose battlers were able to win only two. "Curly" Clements and Captain Cappelmann held aloft the standards for the determined Calvinists by polishing off their respective opponents.

A goodly crowd witnessed the bouts and praised the determined spirit of the Hose leather-pushers. Several exhibition matches rounded out the colorful card for the evening.

A summary of the matches is as follows:

In the bantamweight class, Gordon of Clemson won a forfeit.

Lightweight: Dukes of Clemson defeated Todd by a TKO in the second round.

Featherweight: Clements of P. C. decisioned Brailsford.

Welterweight: Jones of Clemson scored TKO over Lambright in the second round.

Senior welterweight: Dorn of Clemson beat Burns by a TKO in the second round.

Middleweight: Cason of Clemson scored a TKO over Booth in the first stanza.

Light - heavyweight: Cappelmann turned the tide of victory momentarily by gaining the decision over McConnell of Clemson.

Moorer of Clemson won the heavyweight by a virtue of a forfeit.

Final score: Clemson 6, P. C. 2.

Gamecocks Take Five Straight

In Secure Position At Top in State Cage Standing.

South Carolina's high flying Gamecock basketeers annexed a win over P. C. during the past week to take a firmer grip on the top rung of the state ladder. Clemson's Tigers, who moved up from a fifth place tie to second, are the only aggregation in position to threaten Carolina for the tie.

At the top two weeks ago, Presbyterian now shares fourth place with Erskine, each having six wins against five defeats. The Hose dropped games to Wofford and Carolina before putting the brakes on a Stetson university invasion of the Palmetto state. The Hatters had triumphed over Newberry, Erskine and Wofford prior to their setback in Clinton.

Clemson improved her standing by beating Citadel in a high scoring affair, and Furman stopped Newberry in the only Hurricane appearance of the week.

Hand Hose Cagers 32-21 Loss On Local Court.

IN LAST MINUTE RALLY

Blue Stocking aspirations for a state basketball championship were smashed when the McMillianmen were whipped, 32 to 21, by a high-flying team of Gamecocks from Carolina. It was the fifth consecutive Gamecock victory and the second over P. C.

The Hosemen appeared decidedly off in their play, but made a battle of it until the last three minutes. The university five then chalked up four field goals in rapid order to put them in a comfortable lead over the baffled Blue Stockings. Lipscomb, rangy Carolina center, was instrumental in his team's late rally, and he topped the scoring of both teams with nine points. Hutto followed close behind with eight, and James supplemented with some nice floor work.

Johnston led the P. C. scoring with seven points. The other Hosemen were only mediocre with Holden, especially, unable to find the basket.

The line-ups:

Frosh In Victory Column With Two

After losing a number of games during the past several weeks, the Presbyterian college frosh basketeers broke into the win column here Tuesday night by downing the Wofford rats to the tune of 18 to 14 in an exciting nip-and-tuck basketball contest. On Wednesday night they felt victory again at the expense of the Clinton High Red Devils, defeating the High eagers by the one-sided score of 36 to 5.

The Wofford Game

Starting the week Tuesday night with Wofford, the P. C. frosh got off with a bang and were on the large end of an 18-14 score.

The Wofford rats drew first blood and continued to score at long intervals, but managed to keep the Arkmen from scoring more than five points while they racked up eight during the first half.

In the second half, with the P. C. frosh trailing in the last five minutes of play, the Hosemen pushed ahead as Carlisle Griffin shot a long one from mid-court and McLaurin sank a snowbird. The locals continued to hold the lead until the final whistle.

Clinton High Downed

With the taste of victory still lingering, the Blue Anklets made it a second straight victory, with Clinton High as their victims, by completely swamping the Clinton basketeers in a slow, one-sided game Wednesday night.

The P. C. frosh were the big guns during the entire game, holding the ball in their possession most of the time. There was much rough-and-tumble playing, with both sides committing a large number of fouls. The frosh played fast and deceptive ball and practically scored at will. The high school cagers were unable to follow the ball and their passing and shooting was very poor.

MMET BLAKE AGAIN HEARS JUNGLE CALL

esbyterian College Graduate On Fifth Scientific Expedition To South and Central Americ For Field Museum.

Emmet Blake, former Greenwood y and Presbyterian college gradue, sailed from New York January th, for British Guiana, on his fifth ip of biological exploration in the ngles of South and Central merica.

The present expedition, for the ield Museum of Natural History, hicago, of which he recently was ade assistant curator, is to be the ost extensive he has ever undertaken. When it is recalled that it was n this general section of the tropial wilderness that the aviator Redern disappeared some years ago, it an be seen that Mr. Blake and his ndian cargadores will meet with adventure of many kinds to test their stamina and imagination.

From the coast of British Guiana, the expedition work will go inland to the great Kietur falls, five times as high as Niagara. After collecting birds, mammals and reptiles in this region, the scientist hopes to explore and collect specimens on a mountain near the frontier of Venezuela, supposed never yet to have been ascended by a white man.

If all goes well, Mr. Blake hopes to return to the island of Trinidad in the early summer to find a new outfit shipped by his museum. From Trinidad it is planned to sail around to Rio for work in the interior of Brazil.

The principal object of the Brazilian expedition is to hunt and study the rhea, the elusive South American ostrich. But it is expected that many kinds of tropical animals will be taken.

In this difficult and sinister Motto Grasso region, his principal assistant will be the scout, Sasha Seimel, the famed "tiger man" of "Green Hell," with whom Mr. Blake became acquainted on previous trips. Readers of the gripping book of that title, recalling the skill of the Russian engineer, will consider the scientist fortunate to have him along. It is Seimel's boast that he kills his jaguars with spears and not with guns. But the young American, out to add to scientific knowledge, rather than for pure adventure, is willing to use his automatic on the larger animals.

On each of his other jungle trips, danger has lurked in unexpected places, and in forms other than the familiar fang and claw.

It was the propeller of a motor boat and a ferocious ten-inch fish that came near ending his scientific career seven years ago, at the age of twenty-one. Overboard to save precious supplies, rapids in the Orinoco sucked him within inches of the whirling blades. And these waters were alive with the savage little fish which quickly tear the hide, even from a crocodile, the moment a wound excited its thirst for blood.

In Honduras it was not the danger of being devoured by frenzied little paranhas, but one bone of a harmless fish and the remoteness of a doctor that caused the gravest threat. The jungles and mountains of Guatemala proved no more and no less dangerous than the average. But a big monkey, jumping on a huge rotten limb to escape, sent it crashing down near the head of the man studying the monkeys.

Mr. Blake's last expedition, which was the first to bring biological specimens out of the inaccessible Coxcombs mountains of British Honduras, netted him more than a thousand interesting specimens. Here it was beef worms, unintentionally collected, that slowed the expedition and gave its leader a narrow escape from blood-poisoning. This Central American cousin of the screw worm, a menace to wounded cattle in the South, is deposited in the form of an almost invisible egg on the flesh or clothing of its victim.

On other trips, Mr. Blake has discovered birds and reptiles new to science. Each season of field work enables a scientist to discount more successfully the hazards he must encounter. Though the present undertaking is decidedly his most extensive and difficult, his friends are predicting he will come through successfully with still further additions to the body of his chosen science.

P. C. BOYS, WELCOME!

SOUND OFF

— By —
E. A. JOHNSON

The true test of the efficiency of an organization lies in the manner in which it functions when its leader is missing. During the past week while Lt. Col. Collings has been playing song-bird down in Georgia, drill routine has experienced no let-down or lack of order. Much credit for the smooth running of the corps during the week is due to Major J. B. Jacobs, who has efficiently commanded the battalion in the absence of his superior.

One of the juniors was asking Friday morning whether we are taking a course in military science or domestic science. It was quite interesting to watch a group of uniformed cadet non-coms busily learning to make up beds. That is just one more phase in preparation for life at Fort McClellan. Under the joint instruction of Sarge and Columba, the junior class should produce some of the most efficient chamber maids ever to leave P. C. It is no wonder that the boys are learning with good spirit. Each is thinking of the day when a poorly-made-up bunk will mean a thorough "skinning" at the hands of an inspecting officer.

To you freshmen taking up field first aid this year, here are a few tips from the war department:

"The English drill manuals of the 17th century contained the following instructions:

"The sergeants shall be taught by the surgeons how to mercifully slit the windpipes of the wounded, with deftness and dispatch.

"The usual method of treating a leg or arm shattered by a shot was to trim the stump with saw or knife, then thrust the injured member into a kettle of boiling tar. (This without anesthetic).

"A bullet wound was treated by probing for the ten or twelve guage ball, the surgeon then pouring boiling oil into the wound."

Darned clever, these English.

come out; it is sooner or later.

He spoke for a few moments on the plan of redemption, and performed an interesting experiment in the dark room to show how sin first takes hold of pure people and how they later repent and are forgiven by God. In closing his talk, Prof. Sturgeon remarked that sin, when it does enter the heart, can be taken out and the person may become pure again, but we can not sin and get away with it.

Bell Street Choir Will Sing Here

Of interest to those who like to hear Negro spirituals will be the announcement that the Bell Street Negro choir will appear at vespers for the "Y" next Thursday evening at 7:00. The choir has appeared here in recent years and interest in its programs increases. They will render several spirituals, quartet numbers and octet selections. The choir is under the direction of J. T. W. Mims, principal of the Bell Street colored school.

Deputation Team Goes To Winthrop

The college deputation team conducted vespers at Winthrop college, Rock Hill, last evening at 6:45. The quartet composed of Jim Collings, Harris Gray, Malcolm Hemphill, and Hubert Wardlaw, rendered several selections. Those who made talks were Wardlaw, Cliff McLeod, and Frank Johnston.

As part of the trip to Winthrop, the quartet sang yesterday morning at the worship services of Purity Presbyterian church, Chester, where Dr. John McSween, former president of P. C., is pastor.

Twenty Tilts For Blue Hose Nine

At a meeting of South Carolina coaches and athletic directors held at Presbyterian college last week the schedule was drawn up for the Presbyterian baseball team for the 1937 season.

Twenty games are on the schedule, making it the stiffest that a Presbyterian college squad has ever played. The schedule is:

March 26—Emory and Henry at Clinton.
March 27—Davidson at Clinton.
March 30—Wofford at Spartanburg.
April 1—Newberry at Clinton.
April 3—Wofford at Clinton.
April 6—Furman at Greenville.
April 8—Oglethorpe at Clinton.
April 9—Oglethorpe at Clinton.
April 12—Furman at Clinton.
April 14—Newberry at Newberry.
April 15—Clemson at Clinton.
April 17—Citadel at Charleston.
April 19—University of South Carolina at Clinton.
April 21—Oglethorpe at Atlanta.
April 22—Oglethorpe at Atlanta.
April 26—Citadel at Clinton.
April 27—Erskine at Due West.
April 29—Erskine at Clinton.
May 1—University of South Carolina at Columbia.
May 6—Clemson at Clemson.

Choir and congregation, "Saviour, Breathe An Evening Blessing."

Benediction.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

During one of the recent most hotly contested basketball games we heard much discussion of the center jump. Some think it should be abolished; some think it should not. "DO YOU THINK THE CENTER JUMP IN BASKETBALL SHOULD BE ABOLISHED? IF SO, WHY?" is the question we asked several members of the varsity squad recently.

CAPTAIN RALPH WALDREP told us: "I am not in favor of abolishing the center jump because of the scoring potentiality in it . . . besides, there is more chance for teamwork from tip-off plays than from throwing the ball in from the side line."

GUARD PETE HOLCOMB also was not in favor of doing away with the tip-off from center. He said: "I don't think it should be abolished, because while the game might be speeded up by this, yet some of the glamor of it would be gone. As for the team with the tall center having an added advantage, I think height should be the important consideration in choosing all five men."

FRANK JOHNSON was unwilling to make a definite decision on the matter until he had seen both plans tried, as we see from his reply: "There are many advantages in the center jump, but there are also disadvantages, that is why I wouldn't like to see the center jump eliminated

Dr. S. M. Glasgow, Of Savannah, Is Honored By Club

Noted Georgia Minister Elected To Honorary Membership In Local Organization.

WILL SPEAK HERE TWICE MARCH 12TH

The Rev. Samuel McPheters Glasgow, D.D., pastor of the Independent Presbyterian church of Savannah, Ga., has been elected to honorary lifetime membership in the Ministerial club of Presbyterian college, according to an announcement from that organization today.

Dr. Glasgow will speak here in the college chapel Friday morning, March 12th at the invitation of the club. He will also make an address at the annual formal banquet of the club which will be that same night. At that time Dr. Glasgow will be presented with his certificate of membership.

He is one of the five outstanding ministers of the South. For over 25 years he has been in the Gospel ministry. He has held pastorates in Charleston, W. Va., and Knoxville, Tenn., besides his present one. He began his ministry as a missionary on the Mexican border at Mercedes, Texas. For a time he was professor of Greek and homiletics at the Austin Presbyterian Theological seminary at Austin, Texas. He is listed in the "Who's Who of America" for his outstanding work. Among the books he has written are, "My Tomorrow's Self," "Border Trails," and "Daily Communion." Besides these, he has written many pamphlets and is a composer of Gospel hymns. He is a graduate of Ann Smith academy, Lexington, Va., Washington and Lee, Va., and the Union Theologi-

Bell Street Choir Is Well Received At "Y" Meeting

An unusual program was given at the Y. M. C. A. meeting last Thursday night in the college chapel by the Bell Street high school choir composed of 47 male and female voices.

This Negro choir received a large ovation from one of the largest bodies to attend a "Y" meeting this year.

Comments from those who heard them indicate that the entire audience was well pleased with the program, which consisted of five popular spirituals: "Jesus, Tender Shepherd Hear Me;" "Listen to the Lambs;" "Study War No More;" "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot;" and "Green Home." The choir was very ably directed by the principal of the school, J. T. W. Mims, and the pianist was Miss R. P. Alexander.

Speakers In Greenville Churches Yesterday

PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE FACULTY MEMBERS SPEAK IN GREENVILLE

President Jacobs, Dean Brown, Dr. Jones, Professors Sturgeon and Boyd Occupy Pulpits.

GLEE CLUB BROADCASTS OVER STATION WFBC

Yesterday was Presbyterian college day in Greenville as the Presbyterian churches of the city opened their pulpits to P. C. faculty members and administrative officers.

At the First Presbyterian church, President William P. Jacobs addressed the men's Bible class at ten o'clock and conducted the worship services at 11:15. The glee club was with Mr. Jacobs during the first part of this service.

Dr. F. D. Jones, professor of philosophy at Presbyterian, addressed the congregation of the Second Presbyterian church. He was assisted by the glee club during the latter part of the service.

The services at the Third Presbyterian church were conducted by Rev. B. H. Boyd, professor of Bible at P. C., at 11:15.

The morning services of the Fourth Presbyterian church were conducted by Dean Marshall W. Brown. He was assisted by short talks from two prominent P. C. alumni in Greenville, Charles H. Garrison and Dr. John M. Fewell.

The Monaghan Presbyterian church had Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, professor of chemistry at P. C., as its guest speaker at the morning services.

At 5:00 p. m. a deputation team of students of Presbyterian college, led by Dean Marshall W. Brown, conducted vespers at the First Presbyterian church.

Mr. Jacobs, assisted by the glee club, conducted the vespers of the Third church at 5:00 o'clock.

At 8:00 o'clock the college went on the air over radio station WFBC when Mr. Jacobs gave an address and the glee club of the college gave several selections.

Dr. Thomas To Preach At First Church

Week of Prayer Will Continue Through Friday Night.

EVENING SERMON AT 7:30. MORNING SERVICE, 11:15

Beginning tonight at 7:30 at the First Presbyterian church, the annual week of religious services for Presbyterian college will be held through Friday, February 26, under the leadership of the Rev. J. N. Thomas, D.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, who will be the speaker for the week.

During the past week extensive preparation in the form of devotionals and dormitory prayer groups have been held for this week of services. Interest among the student body is large and the services promise to be well attended.

Dr. Thomas in one of the well-known ministers in the South and has a particular appeal to college students, as he himself is a young man. During the day he will be available to students for conferences and private discussions. He will preach each morning from Tuesday through Friday at special chapel services at 11:45. Each evening at 7:30 he will preach at the Presbyterian church from Monday evening through Friday evening.

Social Fraternity Conducts Student-Faculty Discussion

Pi Kappa Alpha Holds Informal Smoker For Professors.

Initiating a new method of bringing closer relations between faculty members and students which will be carried on by other fraternities in the near future, the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity last Wednesday night, at a joint meeting of its members and the faculty, held an interesting discussion hinging around the subject of bringing together a closer relationship between the faculty and all fraternity members here on the campus.

Eleven members of the faculty were present. These were: Dr. M. G. Woodworth, Major R. E. Wysor, Major F. C. Harding, Dean M. W. Brown, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, Dr. S. M. Huntley, Dr. A. E. Spencer, Dr. H. S. Fish, Dr. N. G. Whitelaw, Dr. D. J. Brimm, and Dr. J. B. Kennedy.

The principal topic of conversation was relationship between fraternities and the faculty and what the fraternities should do to bring the harmony desired. Promotion of scholarship by fraternities was also discussed and many interesting viewpoints were brought out concerning this subject. The following questions on topics were taken up since they were subdivisions of the main topics: (1) Fraternity politics, (2) Abolition of cheating, (3) Abolition of hazing and its defense, (4) putting off the rush season until the second semester, (5) Promotion of scholastic work, (6) Promotion of greater participation in outside activities, (7) Respect for college property.

The meeting was reported to be a great success and much of its purpose was fulfilled. Other social fraternities will in the future have such group discussions. The meeting took place in the rooms of the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

New Method Used Here In Biology Course

Strangely unorthodox is the classroom procedure in the History of Biology course. Nothing like it has ever been offered in the curriculum at Presbyterian college. The pupils rather than the professor conduct the class.

Freshmen Inspect Conservation Camp

Major Harding Conducts Field Trip For First-Year Men.

Last Friday afternoon the freshman members of the R.O.T.C. unit, under the direction of Major F. C. Harding, made a trip to the CCC camp for colored men, located about five miles north of Clinton. The object of the trip was for the freshmen to become acquainted with the actual layout and workings of a camp maintained by the United States government. The CCC camps work on a basis which is very similar to that of army camps.

Upon arriving, the boys were shown about the camp by one of the officers. Beginning with the officers' headquarters, the entire camp was shown them. Among the building inspected were the light plant, the store rooms, dispensary, kitchen, mess hall, education room, recreation hall, the barracks, and quarters for the personnel of the forestry service. Of all these rooms and buildings, the kitchen was perhaps the most interesting. Cleanliness seemed to be the password there. The education room was also very interesting. Samples of the workmanship of the enrollees were on display there. This room also contained a library.

The fire-fighting apparatus was inspected and found to be very complete.

The local boys seemed to be impressed by the orderly manner in which things were kept.

Life's Ultimate Goal

Ever and anon man strives to be happy in this world. Overpresent handicaps and hindrances. In his struggle he falls feebly by the wayside on many occasions, but the man with grit and determination will not be reclining until someone comes by to lift him from his prostrate estate. Again the obstacles which daunted him in his efforts he will rise up and wage bitter war. He must be the conqueror to revel in the attractions of life, happiness. Defeat is to be in remorse, regret. Defeat extracts the joy out of life and leaves no room for happiness. The conqueror is the happy hero and his happiness is not in the remorse of his enemy, but in the joy of his ability to conquer.

The aroma of the atmosphere savors of happiness; life blooms by the amount of happiness which one can extract from the bitter-sweet of living. Without the bitter there could be no sweet. Without the conflicts there could be no conquests and life would be less attractive. Man could not be satisfied with a "bed of roses." Man wants and must have handicaps to make him truly happy. If he had no mountains to climb, he could not gaze entranced upon the magnificent plateaus. Life's splendors are unfolded in the struggles through which he steadily plods his way toward the supreme virtue, happiness. Silver and gold in their glittering value do not spell happiness for the ambitious warrior of life. True happiness can be found in the dross of daily conflict and conquest.

Those who think we intend to make a reform organ of this paper had better whoa and back up a little.

In biology, Fish, Brimm and Sturgeon are studied.

Flies in our soup: Those who decide to have a conference in the library when we have heavy studying to do.

Wonder who desecrated the flag-pole not so long ago. Uncle Sam might raise a merry time about that.

Bouquet for the week goes to the "Y" boys for bringing the A Capella Choir of Lander to Presbyterian. Songster ladies galore!

And yet, certainly one is due the Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity for initiating a new method of bringing closer relations between the students and the faculty.

Welcome, Dr. Thomas

We are glad to have you as our Religious Emphasis Week speaker. We feel that you, as well as we, shall have quite an interesting experience here at Presbyterian. You will find almost every type of the average college campus man here. The types range from the sophisticated atheist, perhaps one or two in number, to the most devout. You will find the sneerer, the scoffer, the critic. But, fortunately, these are few. You will find those who have not quite grown used to being away from mama's apron and home-made pies, and are still living in that world back home. You will find those who like to question all religious matters for argument's sake and nothing more. But we venture to say you will not find a more congenial group of men in any other college; a group more responsive to religion. Some will hold off, but will come later. If you have the goods—which we believe you have—you will find a ready response; otherwise not. You have a great opportunity; we, too, have a great opportunity to have you; we trust that when you have gone someone will be a little happier and a little more able to become the man the world requires us to be if we are to live successfully in it.

Increased Activity

Not since "way back in the days when" has P. C. had so much activity outlined for the spring. It seems as though with the coming sunshine also comes one of the largest spring schedules in the history of the school for athletics. It includes intramural sports, track, a large baseball line-up, swimming, tennis, fencing, golfing, tennis tournament (state), state track meet, and what have you? The honorary organizations are planning events, and bringing speakers to the campus. The "Y" is coming across with a trick or two. The debaters and public speakers and the "hot air boys" (orators) are popping it up for a hot time in the old town, more properly called one of the largest intercollegiate speaking schedules in years. Then there is still the military inspection coming soon, maybe another military ball, the Panhellenics, a few private socials thrown in, spring holidays, and other things.

Maybe the faculty ought to take part in this and give us a good old-fashioned rocking chair contest, or maybe a husking bee.

Anyway, don't worry, the faculty will manage to find a week for examinations.

Subsidization of College Sports

The Director of Athletics, Dartmouth University, in a public statement, added to the list of warnings against the practice of college subsidization of college sports. He advised America that it was being practiced more than this country realizes.

To get at a decent argument on the statement one must get back to the question, "Why Have College Sports?" Of course, none of us is quite simple enough not to know that the purpose is to develop men mentally, physically and morally. Whether the modern sport fulfills that for which it was originally intended may be questioned, but men still play them for the sport regardless of what others say.

Some have advocated that college athletes be paid outright and openly like professionals. There is quite a difference between helping a good athlete on his way through school by giving him scholarship aid and paying him outright as a professional. We still like to believe that sports are not subsidized. Athletes are given scholarships in most schools. As for the outright subsidizing of sports, we'll just stay in our own back yard and trust that Presbyterian will not go in for such.

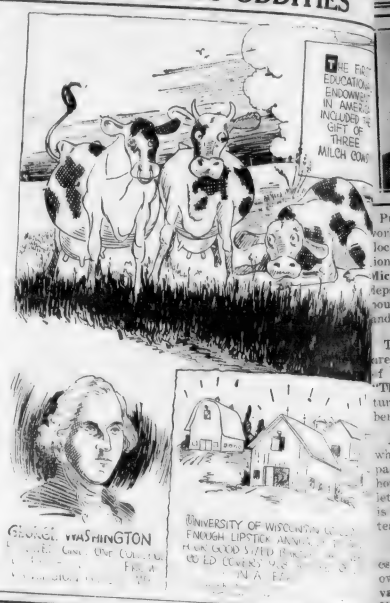
The Vision of Youth

Somehow midst the busy, every-day life of Presbyterian within its routine activities we are prone to become a bit stale and set in our ways and in doing so forget the reasons we are here. Remember, though Presbyterian may be a great place, it is but a stepping stone. Keep looking high and remember all that English, mathematics and other things that you are getting now, and which at most times seems a bit useless, will come out later on.

Don't, therefore, lose the vision of youth. You are still young; the world is yours and all that is therein. Don't let your school work deaden that thing within you which men call ambition. Extra-curricula activities are all right, but remember, as the poem went, that someday you'll have to be bringing home the bacon.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black



Tonight, at seven o'clock, Beta Kappa is sponsoring an informal "bull session" to which all students and faculty members are cordially invited. This offers an excellent opportunity, fellows, to express your views to the faculty without getting a grade on them, so don't pass it up!

The Beta Kappa boys pledged Louis Norwood, Milledgeville, Ga., a recent transfer to P. C. from Georgia Military college.

Alpha Kappa Pi's social Thursday night was undoubtedly a success. The attendance was large, the girls beautiful (as always), and their newly refinished rooms looked great!

The Pi Kappa Alphas entertained the faculty at a smoker Wednesday night. We know that must have been a success.

CAMPUS ODDITIES

SKEETIN' STUFF

By D. W. DAVIS

Roses to you: To "G-MAN" ST. JOHN for his friendly good nature. To "ABSALOM" LINDSEY for just being all there. He's a great guy! To HELEN MAHAFFEY for always having something "cute" to say. To EVA WILSON for her quiet good nature. To PETE HOLCOMBE for being able to understand things — it helps! To "BOBBY" BURGESS for being the friendliest. To RAT BROOKER for being the "bestest" freshman. To CAPPELMANN for his tricky wit—it's good for laughs! We say again, you deserve the best because you stack with the best. More power to you!

Satire On Time or
The Time To Sit Is When You're Tired

Several thousand years ago
A girl lived in a cave.
She longed to find a man to love,
She yearned to misbehave.
She strolled about the wood one day
Searching for a male,
She found him—the treasured object of her search,
Lying there asleep.
To waken him would never do—
She had to let him be.
She turned and walked to a place
Where he would be sure to see her.
She saw him start to waken—
She quickly turned around and looked cute like, up into the skies, and let her hair fall down 'round her shoulders, and because her eyes were so dreamy, and he couldn't resist her, he jumped up and kissed her, and he said, "I love you," and she said, "I love you, too," and he said, "Oh," and she said "Oh" (This is blank verse), and then she said, "Now can I wear your tiger skin," and he said, "Uh-huh!"—Time marches on! I'm tired, ain't you?

True to his usual form, MR. JANICIAS BUMCRUMY PENLAND scores another blank by a false prediction concerning yours truly. He must be trying to increase readers to four, since he is going into my field. To have enough Florida boys great basketball team to space such "bunk" occupies.

Sour Notes From the Glee Club Trip

By The Observer

"BABY RAY" DENNARD got the "Myrtle Beach Fever" over an old love of FOREHAND'S. (MISS ANDERSON 1937). He also drew a May Queen in Valdosta, but he stood her up. It must be great to be a power.

The ministerial representatives shot no blanks on the trip. "SMOOCH HOUND" WARDLAW had the "dream" of the evening in Griffin, only to discover the next day that she was 11 years old. We'll have to hand it to him tho', he certainly wasted no time in idle chatter. Some nose dive, Hubert.

FRESHMAN COMBS disappointed at G. S. C. W. and returned saying he had been "looking at the receptation room." They must go in for indoor sports in a big way down in "Jawja."

"BARREL" JIM COLLINGS' at G. S. C. W. couldn't decide whether to call him "Cheese" or "Cake" How those things get around!

"BO-RAT" NORWOOD is on black list at G. S. C. W. No statement has been made as to the reason, but we have our ideas.—We've seen him in action and he swings a mean smooch.

"CAMOUFLAGE" DARBY, "cute piano player" certainly look different with his hat on, at least that's what the girls at Milledgeville say.

BILL McSWEEN seemed to be doing fine til one young lady in Griffin asked who the "bald headed man leading the orchestra" was.

CAMPUS CRUISING

What's What On Other Campuses

By Pete McCormick

Put chickens on a twelve-hour working day by means of an alarm clock attachment, is the recommendation of Prof. C. G. Card, head of Michigan State's poultry husbandry department. By getting them up two hours earlier, they will eat more food and lay more eggs, he says.

Thieves at the University of Texas are playful. After a midnight "swipe" of $8.00, one left a note which read, "Thanks for the eight slats. Will return later." It was signed, "Ima Robber."

A University of Iowa professor who planned to go on a bobsleighing party with students had to stay at home because his mother would not let him go. She claimed "such a party is not dignified enough for a college teacher."

"It's really much shorter in Siamese," is the modest comment of the owner of the longest surname at Harvard university. His name is Kaisui Nimmanahaeminda I. G. B.—The Collegiate Review.

Wofford college songsters are now in the act of capturing the hearts of some of these South Clina gals as the Wofford glee club makes an extended tour of this state. This is the thirtieth annual tour of the college club.

The junior dance at Converse college was held on Feb. 20. The Clemson "Jungaleers" swung it while the Converse gals and their dates "swished" it.

The Old Gold and Black, Wofford college paper, in its effort to sponsor an all-state basketball team, has named Holden, Waldrep and Batchelor, of our won Blue Hose quintet, as very likely candidates for this team. We agree with the Old Gold and Black's sports writer and think that Kinard and Hodges, of the Wofford Terriers, will also make strong bids for positions on that team.

Tommy Dorsay and his orchestra, substituting for Shep Fields, played for the mid-winter dances at the University of North Carolina on Friday and Saturday, Feb. 12 and 13. On Friday night at 12 o'clock there was a broadcast from the ballroom, over the Dixie network of Columbia Broadcasting system.

Congratulations to the University of Washington for placing blackboards and chalk in the dormitory phone booths, for the benefit of those who "doodle" while they talk.

"You may want to improve your mind by reading the paper, but I object to your accomplishing that worthy purpose in the middle of my lecture." New York university's Prof. Olinger protests mildly against printed competition.

When a University of Minnesota male was being interviewed to determine the type of woman, blonde, brunette or red-head, he preferred, he said, "I like 'em all, but they can't be bald-headed."

Lois Geigerma, swingstress at the University of Buffalo, is organizing an all-gal dance orchestra. Ah, swing 'n' swish.

Gary Cooper says:
"It's plain common sense for me to prefer this light smoke"

"A little over a year ago I changed to Luckies because I enjoy the flavor of their tobacco. Ever since, my throat has been in fine shape. As my voice and throat mean so much to me in my business, it's plain common sense for me to prefer this light smoke. So I'm strong for Luckies!"

Gary Cooper

IN PARAMOUNT'S "THE PLAINSMAN" DIRECTED BY CECIL B. DE MILLE

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Mr. Cooper verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

Dr. Jones Speaks On Washington

Using the theme, "First in war, first in peace, and first in the hearts of his countrymen," Dr. Frank Dudley Jones spoke this morning on the life of Washington at special chapel services in honor on the "Father of His Country." The services were arranged by Wandell Williams, representative of the Y.M.C.A., who was in charge of the program.

The exercises began with the singing of "Yankee Doodle," accompanied by the college band. "America" was also sung. Following reading of the scripture and prayer, Dr. Jones made his address. The meeting was closed with the singing of "The Star Spangled Banne."

Several Papers Read At Meeting

The International Relations club met last Wednesday night for its regular meeting, with George Beatty serving as chairman. The program committee had selected appropriate subjects for discussion at that time.

Jack Witherspoon discussed "The Kidnaping of China's Generalissimo, Chiang Kai-Shek." It was shown that Chiang Kai-Shek had been successful in whipping down every threat of communism. It is for that reason that Japan hates him and has put a price on his head. She realizes that he, alone, is capable of organizing China against her.

Hugh Holman spoke on "The Revised Deal of the Supreme Court." He presented both sides of the question, showing that there are many things against as well as for, the proposed plan of the president, to rejuvenate the nation's supreme judiciary body.

Bringing the program to a close, Louis Hucks spoke on the subject of "Trade Treaties." He explained how Cordell Hull, secretary of state, has made many successful efforts to bring about harmonious trading between the United States and foreign countries.

Faculty Members On Various Trips

Besides the trip to Greenville yesterday, some of the faculty members traveled to other places during the past week.

President W. P. Jacobs and Mrs. Jacobs returned yesterday morning after having spent a week in Los Angeles where Mr. Jacobs went on a business trip. He returned in time to speak at the First Presbyterian church in Greenville yesterday morning. He left shortly thereafter for a business trip to New York.

Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw, professor of physics, attended the national meeting of the American Physicist association held at Chapel Hill, N. C., the past week-end.

Tonight, Harry E. Sturgeon, professor of chemistry, will go to Greenville to attend a meeting of the South Carolina section of the American Chemical society, which will be held at Greenville Woman's college.

until I had seen the results of the plan substituted for it. I certainly think it adds color to the game."

Let's see what the center himself thinks about it. We caught HOLDEN just before a game and when questioned, he answered: "Well, now, I don't think the center jump should be abolished because you, as a spectator, know that the center tip-off is the starting point for some of the prettiest plays in basketball. As for the elimination of it speeding up the game, I think it is pretty fast as it is."

It was GILES BATCHELOR who told us: "I think it would be a drawback to the game, both from the point of view of the spectator and the player, if the center jump was discontinued. It adds color to the game for the audience and gives the player a much needed moment of rest."

COACH LONNIE MAC, however, gave us the only affirmative answer to our question as he said: "There is much to be said on both sides, and I think the center jump eventually will be eliminated. Personally, if I ever had to vote on the question, I would vote to eliminate it."

Co-eds Will Lead Next 'Y' Session

The Y.M.C.A., in an endeavor to create closer fellowship between the co-eds and men students of the campus, has invited the co-eds to present the program Thursday night, at 7 o'clock.

The co-eds have prepared a program of music and talks and the officials of the Y.M.C.A. are anxious that all students give the co-eds their hearty support in this effort to break down some of the indifference which has been thrown around co-ed participation in college activities.

Chester Kesler, president of the Y.M.C.A. announces that the services will be held in the college chapel if the weather is permissible. It is planned to have all "Y" programs there after in the chapel because of the inadequacy of the "Y" building.

Oratorical Contest Here In March

Representative To Be Selected For Speaking Contest.

Wandell Williams, representing Presbyterian college at the meeting of the state oratorical committee at the Columbia hotel in Columbia last Wednesday officially entered Presbyterian in the state oratorical contest which will be held at Winthrop college on April 2 where representatives of the colleges of the state will compete for the title of the best orator in South Carolina. Each men's college will enter one contestant.

The entrant from Presbyterian will be selected by means of an elimination contest which will be held in chapel sometime in March.

The following have announced their intentions to enter this contest according to Hugh Holman, forensic coach: D. W. Davis, Cliff McLeod, Hubert Wardlaw, Wandell Williams, and Moffett Wylie.

D's and E's For February Listed

Grades for the first month of the second semester this year show a considerable improvement over the grades for the first month of the second semester of last year, according to figures announced today by registrar Lillian G. Brown.

The session led with fewer D's and E's than any of the other classes with 11 D's and 7 E's, while the juniors followed with only 7 E's and 21 D's.

The freshmen class kept its record of having the largest number of D's and E's with 76 of the former and 61 of the latter.

MAJOR JAMES E. MATTHEWS TO MAKE R.O.T.C. INSPECTION HERE

Major Harding Will Inspect Junior Unit At Augusta.

MAJOR WYSOR TO INSPECT U. OF GA. ORGANIZATION

Major James E. Matthews, Infantry, of North Georgia College, Dahlonega, Ga., will conduct the annual war department inspection of Presbyterian's military corps some time in April, according to an announcement from the commandant, Major R. E. Wysor today.

Major Matthews will come here for the annual inspection which is conducted each year by some representative of the war department. The inspection consists of practical and written tests in most of the phases of the infantry. No definite date for P. C.'s inspection has been announced.

Coupled with this announcement was one from the military department that Major Wysor will conduct the annual war department inspection for the infantry unit R. O. T. C. for the University of Georgia some time in April and that Major F. C. Harding will conduct the annual inspection of the Junior unit at the Richmond County academy at Augusta, Ga.

No definite date has been announced when Major Wysor will conduct his inspection. Major Harding will make his on April 7th.

Dr. J. N. Thomas Concludes Week Of Services Here

Conducts Series of Revival Services For College and Interested Town People.

Last Friday night Rev. J. N. Thomas, D.D., pastor of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, concluded a week of revival services at Presbyterian college which began Monday night. Dr. Thomas conducted two services each day, one in chapel and one at the First Presbyterian church.

From those who heard him came comments of how much they enjoyed the services. Dr. Thomas is a young man of the type who appeals to college students. His messages were thorough and calculated to bring ready responses in the hearts of his listeners. He is a graduate of Washington and Lee university, Union Theological seminary, and has spent sometime studying abroad at Edinborough university in Scotland.

He began his services Monday night with a message on consecration, following it the next morning with "Why Be Good?" Tuesday night and Wednesday morning consisted of discussions on "Demonstration of the Consecrated Life" and "Temptation." Wednesday night he discussed the "Sin of Cynicism." His other subjects included, arguments for the existence of God, "The Sin of Pharisecism," "The Conquest of Christianity" and an appeal to the students on Friday morning to surrender themselves wholly unto God and not be lukewarm in the matter.

Attendance throughout the services was excellent and indications show that Dr. Thomas was well received and liked by the students and others who heard him.

LANDER CHOIR SINGS HERE LAST NIGHT

Presents Interesting and Varied Program At First Church.

Before an unusually large audience in the First Presbyterian church last evening, the A Capella choir, composed of 23 women's voices, of Lander college, Greenwood, presented an hour program of varied musical selections, under the direction of Waldo B. Neilson, B.B., M.Mus., A.A.G.O., a native of Sweden. The choir was brought here by the college Y.M.C.A. deputations committee headed by Cliff McLeod, and the entire presentation of this program was under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A.

The program opened with a hymn by the audience, led by the choir, with Director Neilson at the organ. This was followed by a scripture reading by Cliff McLeod, Dr. D. J. Woods, pastor of the church, led in prayer, after which the choir was introduced by Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A.

The choir began with "Saviour, Breathe An Evening Blessing," which was followed by "Queen of the Heavens" and "Hymn To Night."

During the short intermission, Miss Louise Conner gave a reading entitled, "The Wheels of Time March Onward."

This was followed by "Come, Ye Disconsolate," sung by the sextette composed of Misses Bernice Bouzer, Elizabeth Ellison, Billie Brumley, Julia Harrison, Sara Brecknell, and Sara Edwards.

The concluding part of the program by the choir consisted of three numbers, followed by a concluding hymn sung with the audience, "Saviour, Breathe An Evening Blessing." The service was closed with the benediction.

Those who composed the choir were: Misses Eileen Anderson, Bernice Bouzer, president of the organization, Lillian Busbee, Carolina Hughes, Bee Chisholm, Marian Stewart, Elizabeth Ellison, Nell Stevens, Billie Brumley, Lyla Shackley, Ruth Stewart, Julia Harrison, Wilhelmina Sexton, Kate Broadnax, Sara Brecknell, Louise Clements, Mary Lawrence, Mildred Lawrence, Louise Harrison, Helen Wilson, Hazel Redpath, Lucy Rudisill, and Edna Edwards.

TWENTY-TWO STUDENTS NAMED FOR HIGH SCHOLASTIC RATING

Mrs. Mary Ella Osman Leads Student Body In Scholarship With Average of 3.80.

McLEOD TOPS JUNIORS; MISS FLEMING SOPHS; AND SKINNER FROSH

Contrary to the usual custom, the names of the valedictorian and salutatorian for the class of 1937 were not announced today with the dean's list. However, these will be named at a later date, accorling to Dean Brown, because certain other factors be sides grades, such as length of period at the school, must be taken into consideration.

The dean's list for 1936-37 of students whose cumulative average is 2.5 or over in relations of quality points to hours, was issued today by Dean Marshall W. Brown and Registrar Lillian G. Brown. Twenty-two students are listed on this year's roster.

Mrs. Mary Ella Osman, a senior, led the entire student body in scholarship with an average of 3.80, one of the highest made here in years. She was closely followed by Miss Laura Fleming, who led the sophomore class with an average of 3.73. The juniors were led by Cliff H. McLeod with an average of 2.70, while H. P. Skinner, with an average of 3.66, topped the freshman class.

The number on the list is somewhat smaller than last year's group. A number of students are not on the list because their cumulative scholastic average is below 2.5, but they deserve honorable mention for high records made during the first semester of 1936-37. F. R. Johnston and M. E. Norton, the former a junior and the latter a senior, led this group with an average of 3.00 for the semester.

The averages listed below compose the official dean's scholastic honor list. The average of each student is cumulative, covering his grades for the entire number of semesters the student has been in school at Presbyterian.

Special students are not eligible for honors. But it is worthy of note, however, that the scholastic average of Mrs. George W. Taylor is 4.00 and that of Miss Mary Boyd is 3.50.

The list is as follows:

Mrs. Mary Ella Osman 3.80, Miss Laura Fleming 3.73, H. P. Skinner 3.66, J. W. Barnhill 3.46, S. B. Campbell, Jr., 3.39, R. F. Hutchinson 3.09, J. R. Thomason 3.08, Miss Sudia Denson 2.84, Miss Sara Frances Baldwin 2.80, Wayne Potter 2.78, Miss Frances Shaw 2.76, J. E. Patrick 2.75, C. H. McLeod 2.70, J. F. Byrum 2.65, C. W. McCully, Jr., 2.65, Miss Jane Sturgeon 2.63, B. L. Wood, Jr., 2.63, D. W. Hudson 2.59, C. D. Conrad 2.54, Miss Frances Spratt 2.54, E. A. Johnson 2.51, Marion Moore 2.50.

P. C. Group Will Go To Winthrop For Forensic Meeting

To Enter Debate, Oratorical, Extempore, Impromptu and Other Speaking Contests.

Hugh Holman, forensic coach, announced today that Presbyterian college will send representatives to the South Atlantic forensic tournament to be held at Winthrop College, March 4, 5 and 6th to enter the debate, oratorical, extemporaneous, impromptu and after-dinner speaking contests.

Presbyterian will enter both negative and affirmative teams to debate on the subject of Pi Kappa Delta, "Resolved that Congress shall be empowered to enact minimum wage and maximum hour legislation." The debate tournament will consist of six debates by each team. In the final scoring teams will be rated as first, second, etc. through tenth. Presbyterian will also enter a man for individual debaters contest. Elimination try-outs are being held to decide who will represent the school at Winthrop, both for the negative and the affirmative teams.

Hubert Wardlaw will represent Presbyterian in the oratorical contest when he delivers an original composition, "The Lost Generation." Wardlaw won third place in the Strawberry Leaf tournament which was held at Winthrop in December and was composed of representatives of the schools from the East.

Wandell Williams will enter the extemporaneous and impromptu speaking contest. At the last Strawberry Leaf tournament he placed second in the extemporaneous speaking contest.

Presbyterian is also planning to enter a man for the after-dinner speaking contest, but it is not certain who will be the one to speak.

The Presbyterian representatives will leave here Thursday morning and return Saturday afternoon, March 6th.

'Y' Reception For Seniors On Friday

Entertainment To Be At the 'Y' Building and Plaza.

Next Friday night at 8 o'clock the college Y.M.C.A. will hold a formal reception for the senior class at the Y.M.C.A. building and on the College Plaza. In case of rain it will be held in the gymnasium. All students and faculty members are invited by the "Y" to be at this reception.

President Chester Keller requests that the seniors and their dates meet at the home of Dr. and Mrs. D. J. Brimm at 7:45. They will march up the plaza attended by an honorary escort from the freshman class. They will then go to the Y.M.C.A. building where they will pass a receiving line composed of President and Mrs. Jacobs, Dean and Mrs. M. W. Brown, Dr. and Mrs. F. D. Jones, the president of the student body and his guest, the president of the senior class and his guest, the president of the Y.M.C.A. and his guest. Guests will be urged by a welcoming committee. Following the introductions there will be proms, games and other forms of entertainment. Refreshments will be served throughout the evening.

At the close of the night's entertainment President Jacobs will give each senior a token of remembrance and a word of farewell.

This is the first time that such a reception has been given under the "Y" and the organization officials are extremely anxious for the interest and cooperation of the student body in making the occasion a success next Friday evening for the seniors.

Alpha Psi Delta Dance Successful

Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority, opened the spring dance activities for the campus Friday night, presenting a girl-break in Copeland hall with the music of "Hap" Grace and his boys.

This leap year dance was the second of its kind sponsored by the sorority, "Stags" in attendance included girls "Stags" ini attendance included girls from Lander, Converse, Anderson and other nearby colleges.

While no rules were experienced, some of that feeling of leap year "complex" seemed getting loose as the females were manifestly enjoying their privilege of being the "wooers" for once.

Commenting upon some informal the leap year dance was an improvement over the first attempt of the sorority last fall and that it is going a long way toward establishing a leap year precedent, we do not know.

Carolina Gamecocks Take State Basketball T...

University Five Roosting On Top

Clemson, Champs For Two Years, In Second Place.

PRESBYTERIAN IN FIFTH

The state basketball crown, for two years the property of Clemson's Tigers, is today the safe possession of South Carolina's Gamecock five, who put on a last-minute rally to overcome a Clemson lead and engage in a thrilling overtime battle with Wofford and Coach Conrad's Terriers, a week ago tonight at Spartanburg. Only the game remained on the docket, a date with Coach Cameron and his Citadel A eight, which was scheduled for tonight at the Charleston Armory, but which was postponed until Friday night because of the Presbyterian-Citadel game scheduled for tonight. Presbyterian, Wofford and Carolina finished in the second, third and fourth places, respectively, with Presbyterian's second-place standing resulting from a victory over Carolina in overtime.

In the final analysis, it was Carolina, the team which stood the season's grind most successfully, featuring a center and guard of brilliant caliber, and three veterans of season consistency, the only Gamecocks became stronger as the campaign progressed. After dropping its opener to Erskine, which...

...victories were registered before the ends were downed by Clemson. On Wednesday, they leave for Raleigh as this state's lone representative in the annual Southern conference tourney.

The standings to date:

	W.	L.	Pct.
Carolina	7	2	.777
Clemson	7	2	.777
Erskine	5	3	.625
Furman	5	3	.583
Presbyterian	8	6	.571
Citadel	7	7	.500
Wofford	6	8	.429

Swimming Meet Postponed

The intramural swimming meet, originally scheduled for tomorrow evening, has been postponed because of the pool heating system's failure to operate at present.

The meet, which opens up the annual campus athletic activity, will be run off at a date to be announced later.

CADETS STOP HOSE FINALE

Presbyterians Lose Out In Final Three Minutes.

Lonnie McMillian's Blue Stockings rang down the curtain on their collegiate season by dropping a close 31-30 engagement to The Citadel in Charleston last Friday evening. The...freshmen was the second of a two-game...Presbyterian's second un...ing Citadel, 32-31, in Clinton.

Characteristic of many Blue Hose performances this season, the Presbyterians lost out in the final stage. Leading at half time, 22 to 15, they held this advantage until the last three minutes, only to lose by a point. Citadel's Eddy was the big Bulldog of the night. He chalked up a 12-point total to take offensive honors and played a smart game. McNeil looped in six points and gave another good defensive performance in addition to directing the cadet court play.

Ralph Waldrep and Holcomb scored seven points apiece to lead the Hose offensive. Checkler, the only senior, did well at center in his last collegiate performance.

Campus Activity To Begin Soon

Swim Meet To Be Followed By Basketball, Baseball, Tennis.

Competition for intramural athletic supremacy on the P. C. campus will be inaugurated with the running off of a swimming meet in the near future. Eliminations in basketball, tennis and baseball follow in order.

Blue Key, leadership fraternity, is sponsoring the activity again this year and under the leadership of Joe Patrick, the group has formulated plans to handle the various forms of competition. A trophy goes to the fraternity or dormitory amassing the highest total of points during the course of competition.

In addition to the six social fraternities, teams will be formed of non-fraternity men representing the four campus dormitories.

Track Practice Is Handicapped

Minor Injuries and Weather Is Impediment To Progress.

HEAVY SCHEDULE FACES BLUE STOCKINGS

Due to many sore legs, charley-horses, and numerous other minor ailments developed during the past week of early track practice, the Blue Stocking cinder artists have gotten off to a rather slow start in their preparation for the various meets which their program calls for. Over forty-five hopefuls have turned out in the varsity rank and twenty-five freshmen also have reported to Mentor McMillian in an effort to demonstrate their talents.

Although lacking the calibre of material that was on hand last year, Coach McMillian hopes to mold a formidable set of athletes out of his rather inexperienced present squad. Many valuable men were lost through graduation last year, but such outstanding stars as Captain J. B. Jacobs, Walt Beeman, Macon Hipp, Joe Hollis, Jimmy Dennard, Deke Reynolds, Lamar Boswell, Bill Thompson, "Biffet" Greene, Joe Commander, Ellerbe Huntley, and Malcolm Hemphill will form the backbone for a squad that should turn out to be one of the state's best.

Only brief work-outs have been held during the past week due to prevailing weather conditions, but the entire squad is expected to settle down to intensive drills all this week. New uniforms have been issued to the upperclassmen and will also be distributed to the first-year men some time this week. The track, is to be scraped and packed in the course of the next few days.

The Blue Hose schedule calls for dual meets with Carolina, University of Georgia, Clemson, Furman, Citadel, University of Florida, and the state meet, which will be held here on April 30 and May 1.

Charlestonians Whip Stockings

Come From Behind To Cut 14-Point Lead and Triumph.

Presbyterian's inconsistent basketballers rolled up a commanding 24-10 first-half lead last Thursday evening only to relax and let College of Charleston win out 35-32. It was the next to the last collegiate engagement of the season for the Hosemen, who wound up against Citadel Friday night.

Waldrep and Holden were instrumental in building up a 14-point lead before half time, but the entire team let down in the second semester.

Captain Cassey Johnson and substitute Charlie Tyler led the sensational Maroon drive that spelled victory in the final three-minutes of play. They made 11 and 12 point, respectively.

The lineups:

Pos.—Charleston	Presbyterian
F—Johnson, 14	Waldrep, 9
F—Prystowsky, 2	Batchelor, 4
C—Burgess, 2	Holden, 9
G—Baker	Holcombe, 6
G—Ravenel, 5	Johnston, 2

Charleston subs: Williams, Tyler 12. P. C.: Cavin 2.

Carolina, Clemson and Citadel Tie For Third Place.

IN CONFERENCE MEET

In the Southern conference boxing tourney held last week, Carolina, Clemson and Citadel mittmen acquitted themselves well by tieing for third place. Each of these schools scored eight points and grabbed off an individual title.

Frank Jenkins, diminutive Carolina wildcat, took the bantamweight crown after defeating Kreger of Duke in the final round. Russell Dorn of Clemson gave a series of impressive performances to cop the junior middleweight title, and Citadel's Orville Rogers battered his way to supremacy in the lightweight division. The...ers...under registered knock-outs in the final two rounds to gain the title.

'RIEND RECALLS WILLIE SINNOTT

...ged Greenville Correspondent Writes of Youthful Impressions of Donor of Valuable Library, Late Dr. W. I. Sinnott.

(Editor's Note.—The following letter was received by Librarian Willard Jones from Mrs. Mary Woodruff Carter who was a childhood companion of the late William I. Sinnott who bequeathed his splendid library to this college. The books are now being catalogued.

In this letter Mrs. Carter reminisces about old times both of Mr. Sinnott's life and her own. This is printed with the kind permission of his fine old lady now over 80 years of age whom we are delighted to have as an interested friend of Presbyterian college.)

Greenville, S. C.,
Jan. 27, 1937

Librarian, College,
Clinton, S. C.

My dear sir:-

Your article in our "Daily News," in reference to Library of the late William I. Sinnott, fell under my eye, awakening memories of many years ago. The "Curtain" was rolled back to the years when Willie Sinnotte was in school—Oxford College, Oxford, Ala., (about) 1868. I, too, was a student in same school, but not in same class, I was much older than he; my youngest sister, Rosa Lee Woodruff, was a classmate of his. She is now Mrs. D. P. Haynes, of Oxford. I know she will be pleased to hear of last days of our friend Willie.

It was like him to assemble a library of choice books—to read and study such books—to bequeath his library to those who will appreciate it, and who will guard it with jealous care. I congratulate you and all those interested in this coveted gift. To me, it is the dawning of a new day for Clinton, as well as her beloved school. How his works do follow him!

I knew Willie Sinnott as a boy in his teens—a boy of as fine mould as in our ranks—open-faced, open-hearted, loyal to his friends—true to every trust entrusted in his keeping. I am so glad I knew him—not only in school life, but as a friend, and a neighbor.

His mother—a widow—came to Oxford bringing to our school, about same time that her brother-in-law, Dr. McClean and family came, being called to Presbyterian church in Oxford. The McCleans came from Mobile, Ala. Dear Mrs. McClean was an invalid. This brought Willie's mother from Brandon, Miss., to be her companion. The manse was near our home. The family was good-sized—three daughters, about four boys, three of whom became ministers of the Gospel. In a home like this—under the love and tender care of his own dear mother—the "precept and example" of the great Rev. Dr. McClean, had much to do in the making of William I. Sinnott.

We have assurance of his going straight to his God. . Having set his house in order, many years ago, he went to sleep, to awaken in Heaven—forever with the Lord. We, who loved him, realize that Heaven will seem more home like since he is there.

Some time, before long, I want to come to Clinton and visit your college—to view, with my own eyes, this collection of books. In meantime, if, in assorting and placing these books and periodicals, you should find anything bearing on his life at Oxford College, set aside such, for future reference. Not long since, some friends, former students, were gathering material for "History, Oxford College."

A few words of myself. I was born—South Carolina parentage—in West Point, Ga., June 8, 1854. Moved, Jan. 1865, to Oxford, Ala.—charter student, college, which opened doors, Sept. 1868. School organized in Presbyterian church Feb., 1868. I spent my married life at my own home, in Laurens County, community known then as Line Creek. Since death of my husband, Thomas H. Carter, 1917, I make my home with my daughter, Mrs. J. E. Allen this city. I have some acquaintances in Clinton.

One of paternal ancestors was a Presbyterian minister, Dr. Henry Pattillo, a Scot, who came, 1746—from Dundee to America. No doubt, some of your church histories have noticed him.

I am writing of Willie to my sister in Oxford, also to another lady who was charter member of same school. Very few of us, now, "still remaining." This lady, now much older than I, will appreciate being remembered. May I ask you to let us hear from you, how your work is progressing? In this arduous task

E. A. JOHNSON

(In the absence of the writer of this column on a sojourn into the parts of No'th Car'lina this week-end, your Fran', Southern Rebel, is pinch-hitting).

Well, spring is in the air, as the poets would say, and so is spring inspection, as Uncle Sam would say. For some time we have been waiting to see who would be the inspector this year. We could get little information on Major Matthews as the notice that he would inspect our corps came in a formal war department order.

The freshmen still have an experience coming to them in that they will have to meet for the first time one of these annual inspections. Don't worry, boys, you never will forget one of them. Not that they are so bad, but—well, you're glad when it's all over. (At least we've found it that way). you have our interest.

With very best wishes, Sincerely,
Mary Woodruff Carter.
(Mary Ann Woodruff.)

And we've got a sneaking hunch that the commandant and his assistant are glad too.

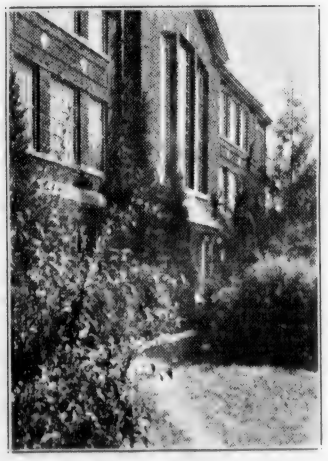
So preparation for Major Matthews will go on with a vim. I suppose no other visitor to our campus has so much preparation made for his visit. And to think, all for just one day! But one of Uncle Sam's boys generally deserves the whole show with the trimmings.

Of interest is that the P. M. S. & T. has turned into inspecting officer. We've got a hunch revenge is going to be sweet. Perhaps Major Wysor has stood in the shoes of the inspected so much he'll understand the position of the other fellow when he inspects the infantry unit of the University of Georgia.

Not one, but both of our Majors have turned into inspectors, as Major Harding goes to Augusta, Ga., to inspect a junior unit. By the time they get through inspecting everybody else we'll be "listing" up our chins for our inspection, learning how to answer an officer correctly, what the price of soap is, who the commanding officer of the Fourth Corps area is, and what have you.

The juniors will be standing on their heads trying to figure out company drill movements from now on until the end of school in preparation for such work at camp this summer. And the mighty seniors will be taking it easy after the annual spring inspection.

Some time early in the fall Major Wysor promised the junior class a trip to Fort Benning, Ga., inspect mechanized warfare equipment, which is the latest thing. (See your latest issue of Esquire for complete styles) —everything on wheels in the next war! That is, the one we're pretty certain to have unless somebody changes his mind.



Well, to get back to the trip. It looks as if the Major can't get in a spare week-end when the group can go, what with everything else on the campus taking up all of our spare time. But anyway, the juniors are still hoping to make the trip. Jawja, here I'se comin'! Soldier man's in town! "10 gals!"

Informal Group Discussions Held In Frat Rooms

Continuing the series of nightly "bull sessions" that have been held under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. and the various fraternities on the campus, the second of this series held in the Kappa Alpha rooms Thursday night was well attended. The discussion of the topics of the evening was led by Dr. J. N. Thomas, of the Second Presbyterian church of Charleston, who was the guest preacher for the week, and Presbyterian college men. Among the topics discussed Thursday night were: "Liberalism," "Predestination," "The Origin of Sin" and "Man as a Free Agent." The second topic named proved most interesting, as the views of the most argued points of the Presbyterian precept of Christianity. The last two topics were more generally discussed, and several interesting points were brought out in connection with them by Dr. D. J. Gill Creek," with Buck Jones and Woods, pastor of the Knox Presbyterian church.

The other members of the group present were Bill Bell of the Beta Kappa and Pi Kappa Varsity teams. The discussion proved to be an interesting and beneficial affair, and the success of the program during the "week of prayer."

NEWS and VIEWS

The Inquiring Reporter

After the close of the week of religious services we thought it would be only fair to the man who last week answered question after question for students in public and private talks, to give him a chance to ask a question that had arisen in his mind after a week of association with the student body. So this is the question that Dr. Thomas asked: "DO YOU THINK RELIGIOUS FAITH HAS ANY EFFECT ON YOUR LIFE?"

Here is what JOE LYLE said: "I think it does in this way. Say, for example, a man is discouraged because of low grades in his courses, and similar disappointments in other phases of his life. His first tendency is to blame it on something or somebody else, but he generally comes to the conclusion that the fault is his alone. Now, I think the cause of his misfortune is lack of religious faith, and that in any action he might take for the better would depend on religious faith. Therefore, any way you look at it, religious faith does have an effect on a man's life."

SIMON LEGARE: "Yes, I think it does. Everyone has a moral code of ethics, and almost any such code would necessarily include some basis of religious faith."

J. W. ANTHOINE: "I think an answer to that question depends on several things. Almost everybody has some kind of religious feeling that influences their life, and it is usually a good influence. Then, if you feel that way, you are going to be able to live that way, and if you have hope you have to have some kind of faith to keep up that hope. So it seems to me that there is no getting around the fact that religious faith does affect my life."

ROBERT ROGERS: "Of course religious faith affects my life. Religion dominates the fundamentals of convention. Therefore, because of conventionalities, one's life, whether he is a Christian or not, is affected by religion. Therefore, since faith is a definite part of religion, everyone is affected by religious faith."

POP MATTHEWS: "Yes. With religious faith I have something to live for, therefore, I try to live right. Without faith there is no goal and there is not an incentive to do the right."

C. H. ATKINS: "I believe religious faith has a big effect on my life because faith is one of the essential points of Christianity, and without faith a Christian life would be a failure.

LL LEADERS IN CAMPUS ACTIVITIES

At a recent meeting of Blue Key, ational honorary leadership fraterni-, the organization elected Stuart ampbell, J. R. McAlpine and Cliff cLeod to membership, according to nouncement made today by Joe atrick, president of the group.

Election to membership in the oranization is a signal honor, as only hose men who have shown outstandng ability in leadership in some hase of campus life, and who have a cholastic rating above the average ale student, are selected each year.

Stuart Campbell, Wytheville, Va., is editor of The Collegian, the college literary magazine published quarterly by the students, a member of Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity, and socially an Alpha Kappa Pi.

Jack McAlpine, Hartsville, S. C., a member of the senior class, is business manager of The Collegian, secretary-treasurer of the Y.M.C.A., head cheer leader, and socially a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Cliff McLeod, Ocala, Fla., the only other junior thus honored, is editor of The Blue Stocking, president of the Ministerial club, secretary-treasurer of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity, and a member of Sigma Kappa Alpha.

These men will be entitled to wear the seal of Blue Key, which will be a coveted silent password and "key" to almost any collegiate door in the United States. It is recognized as sufficient recommendation by business men everywhere.

Blue Key is the campus organization that sponsors all intramural contests held on the campus during the year, such as the series of basketball games now in progress.

Band To Present Sunday Concert

The Presbyterian college band will give a concert in the near future on the Plaza, Director Harris Gray announced today. The concert will be held late in the afternoon, probably on Sunday, and the general public will be invited to attend.

New equipment recently has been added to the band consisting of chairs and music stands. Many members of the band have expressed the opinion that the practices have been greatly improved by the addition of the new equipment.

Maestro Gray will make no definite promises about the concert, but he has been well pleased with the results of the last few practices.

Faculty Smoker Held By A. K. Pi

Members of the faculty were entertained at an informal smoker Thursday night by Alpha Kappa Pi fraternity.

Discussions were held following the order of small group conferences and several subjects of interest were debated by the mingled groups of faculty members and students. The informal conferences proved, as did preceding ones, to be extremely interesting to students and professors alike.

This was the fourth of the series of "bull-sessions" sponsored by fraternities for the purpose of bringing students into contact with professors outside of classrooms. All have been well attended and termed interesting and educational by those who joined in the conversations.

Health Director Speaks Tuesday

Dr. J. A. Hayne To Address Students At Chapel Session.

Dr. James Adams Hayne, secretary of the State Board of Health, will speak to the student body Tuesday morning. Dr. Hayne long has been prominent in the field of medicine and is one of the most outstanding authorities on public health in South Carolina.

According to an announcement made by Dean Marshall Brown, a special schedule of 45-minute periods will be run in order to allow for a longer chapel period Tuesday.

The schedule for the day will be as follows:

8:00—drill.
8:45—first period.
9:30—second period.
10:15—third period.
11:00—fourth period.
11:45—chapel.

Lunch and the afternoon classes will be at the regular time.

Students are requested to note the change in schedule for the day.

P. C. Group Hears Noted Violinist

Toscha Seidel Featured At Concert In Greenwood.

In the fourth of a series of cooperative concerts, held at Greenwood, Toscha Seidel, world-renowned violinist, thrilled a crowded auditorium to the flying staccato of Mozart's "Minuet in D Major No. 1" and other masterpieces.

Assisted by Herbert Jaffe at the piano, Mr. Seidel also rendered what is known as "the perfect violin concerto," "Concerto in E Minor," by Mendelssohn. This was ably done. Among the other numbers presented were "Habenera," a Spanish dance by Sarasate, and "Romance in F Major, Opus 30" by Beethoven.

Mr. Jaffe presented on the piano Brahms' "No. 2 Rhapsody," Debussy's "Claire de Lune" and others.

Toscha Seidel is a pupil of the great Leopold Auer. A boy prodigy, he conquered his American audiences immediately. He has recently increased the number of his admirers through his popular broadcasts.

These cooperative concerts have included Anna Kaskas and Muriel Kerr at Newberry, and Goya, a Spanish dancer, and Seidel at Greenwood. The music-loving audiences of western South Carolina are soon to hear, through the efforts of this association, the Russian Imperial Singers to wind up this year's program.

28 Men To Try For Rifle Team

Following an announcement last week by Captain Joe Patrick, 28 men signed up for the rifle team. Captain Patrick announced that 13 of the 28 would be eliminated in the near future, after a short period of practice.

Sergeant Young, coach of the team, said that after the 15 men had been selected for the regular squad, intensive practice would begin. He added that practices would be held in the afternoon rather than during the drill period, as had been the plan during previous years.

The largest number of applicants was from the sophomore class, with only four juniors and five seniors reporting. The team plans to make several trips during late spring.

POSTPONE RECEPTION

According to an announcement by Chester Keller, president of the Y.M.C.A., the reception planned for the seniors for Friday night, has been postponed until a later date due to unforseen circumstances.

President Keller added, however, that the reception would probably take place within the next three weeks, and that plans for it were still in progress.

McLeod's Father Dies Suddenly

News has been received here of the death of A. B. McLeod, father of Cliff McLeod, editor of The Blue Stocking, at his home in Ocala, Fla., shortly after 6 p. m. Saturday.

McLeod left Saturday night for his home, accompanied by his sister, Verna, a member of the sophomore class. Mr. McLeod had been ill for some time, but his condition was not considered extremely serious until several days ago.

Funeral services were to have been held this afternoon and burial was to have followed in Ocala.

Sturgeon Leads Group Discussion With Pre-Meds

Chemistry Professor Is Host At Informal Gathering.

Last Thursday evening Professor H. E. Sturgeon, of the department of chemistry, entertained members of the student body who are planning to study medicine or dentistry at an informal forum attended also by Dr. Harold S. Fish of the biology department, and Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw of the mathematics department.

Professor Sturgeon conducted the discussion and asked several pertinent questions, including "Why have you chosen to enter the medical profession?" and "In which branch of the profession are you most interested?" Many interesting answers were given.

The group discussed requirements for admission to several of the nation's leading medical colleges. Professor Sturgeon pointed out that it was becoming increasingly more difficult to enter medical schools without and A. B. or B. S. degree from an accredited college. He added further that Presbyterian college credits are accepted at any medical college in the country. Dr. Fish named McGill university, in Canada, as the leading medical college in North America. Dr. Fish and Dr. Whitelaw emphasized the importance of research reading by pre-medical students in preparation for the medical aptitude test given during the student's senior year.

Dr. S. C. Hays, local surgeon, who was expected to be present, was unable to attend the meeting, but Professor Sturgeon plans to invite several other local physicians to be present when other informal discussions are held in the near future.

The group was enthusiastic over the results of the forum, and after delightful refreshments were served by Mrs. Sturgeon, the group adjourned.

Orchestra Plans Full Spring Season

"Hap" Gray and his boys, after having played their last engagement at the Alpha Psi Delta dance, are anticipating a profitable spring dance season, according to Walter "Hamp" Smith, recently appointed manager of the organization, who adds that with their ever-increasing music library, consisting now of over a hundred selections, the band should better the record of last year's organization.

The orchestra is well equipped this term, having new stands, a public address system, and a torch singer. Manager Smith states that through recent arrangements an attractive young singer has consented to be with the band in future engagements. She is Miss Mildred Whitten, of Clinton.

Manager Smith also points out that the prospects of the band for next year are very bright since most of the "swingsters" will return. The boys also plan more "supper engagements" in the college dining hall before the term is over.

Speakers Return From Tourney

Compete In Debate, Oratory, Other Contests At Winthrop.

Six men represented Pdesbyterian college in the various speaking contests at the South Atlantic forensic tournament March 4, 5, and 6, held at Rock Hill, with Winthrop college acting as host for the event.

Represented by C. H. McLeod, E. A. Johnson, R. F. Hutchinson, and D. W. Hudson in the debating department, H. G. Wardlaw in the oratorical contests, and R. W. Williams in extempore and impromptu speaking. P. C. took part in almost every branch of forensics in which men participated.

The South Atlantic Forensic association is one of the larger organizations of its kind in this section. At the tournament 27 schools from nine Eastern states were represented. At this gathering the P. C. delegation met with the most experienced and capable competition encountered this year.

The debate query for the tournament was the national Pi Kappa Delta question, "Resolved, that Congress should be empowered to legislate minimum wages and maximum hours for industry." Speaking on this subject, Johnson and McLeod supported the affirmative against Maryville, Waynesburg, University of Florida, Atlantic Christian, Appalachain State, and Western Carolina.

The negative team of Hutchinson and Hudson debated High Point, Appalachain, Western Carolina, Union university, Emory and Henry, and Shepherd.

The oration used by Wardlaw during the tournament was entitled "The Lost Generation." Williams spoke in the extempore contests on the subject, "Hitler, Colonies, and World Peace."

28 NOMINEES ARE LISTED FOR VOTING

Student Body President, Councilmen; Publications and "Y" Offices To Be Filled.

POLLS TO BE OPEN FROM 9 TO 3 P. M.

Tomorrow the polls will remain open from 9 a.m. until 3:30 p.m. in order that students might vote in the general elections scheduled for the second Tuesday in March, in accordance with the constitution of the student body which provides that the president of the student body and other officers and members of the student council, together with the editor, business manager and advertising manager of the PaC-SaC and Collegian and the president, vice-president and secretary of the Young Men's Christian association, shall be elected on the second Tuesday in March.

In the election for president of the student council, the council nominated the following men which were approved by the student body at a recent meeting: Joe Commander, Frank Johnston, Jack Witherspoon and John Woodward. Three names are to be voted on.

For secretary-treasurer of the council the following men were nominated: C. B. Holcombe, R. F. Hutchinson, M. R. Ritch, and Vergil St. John. Three of these men are to be voted on tomorrow.

For sophomore councilmen (this includes men from the present freshman class), two out of the following names are to be selected tomorrow: R. M. Griffin, H. Paul, J. R. Thomason, and R. K. Timmons.

For president of the Y.M.C.A., the following men were nominated: Allen McSween, M. C. Patterson and Wandell Williams. In its cabinet meeting the Y.M.C.A. chose M. P. Patterson, and the other men were nominated from the floor at a meeting of the student body. For vice-president, the student body nominated Frank Johnston, A. Briggs, and W. Wannamaker. The nominee of the cabinet withdrew.

In the nomination for editor of the PaC-SaC, E. Ashby Johnson and Malcolm Hemphill have been selected. For advertising manager, Moffet Wylie and Robert Black; and for business manager, N. S. Heeth and John Woodward were nominated. Johnson and Wylie are nominees of the publications board.

In the nomination for editor of The Collegian, Keitt Darby and Eldred F. MacLeod were selected. For managing editor, Alvin Chapman and J. B. Hadley, and for business manager, Shields Croker and J. L. Lyles. Darby, Hadley and Croker are the nominees of the publications board.

Newberry Group Gives 'Y' Program

"Friendship" Is Theme of Interesting Program.

Appearing before the local Y.M.C.A. for the first time this year, a deputation team from the Newberry college Y.W.C.A. led the program at the meeting Thursday night. The group, under the leadership of Miss Clara Shealy, chose "Friendship" as their subject, and the central theme was the relationship of David and Jonathan.

The first talk of the evening was made by Archie Dodgen, who spoke of the value of friendship. His talk was based on faith, hope and love, and he brought out the fact that one of the greatest factors in life is happy associations.

The second point on the program, friendship on the campus, was discussed by Bill Schaefer, who spoke principally on the value of choosing friends with care.

Miss Leslie Hodge spoke for a few minutes on "Christ, the Real Friend," emphasizing the fact that one should look to Christ in selecting his friends.

Miss Helen Goodman gave a vocal [illegible], "To Friendship."

Life's Sunset

Standing upon the threshold of life looking upon the receding shadows of twilight, men, especially college graduates, meditate upon the occurrences of years which have just passed. To college men and women it is the moment of deepest retrospection. It is a moment when we must look upon our failures and accomplishments. We must analyze our place in the balance of the scales of purposes. Upon the day of graduation from college we turn upon the scene of life with pride or prejudice, a misfit or a master. Hours of toil, endeavor are scorned and shunned. But the hours of gayety and glee are viewed with pride and pleasure.

Undergraduates have yet to look upon this scene in all of its grim remorse and great satisfaction, but look upon the scene they must. It is inescapable for every college student that he come to this retrospection in life, life's sunset. Before it comes is the hour to begin analyzing life, because neglect and self-content will cause an overage for regret and remorse when the time of life's sunset comes at the close of the day.

We Hesitate To Contemplate

And think how swell Presbyterian University would look on a sheet of campus stationery.

* * * * * * *

And rejoice that distance separates us from the book that addresses our letters in care of "P. C. College."

* * * * * * *

And think how much an appropriate tapistry or painting would improve the looks of the chapel if placed in the recess just behind the rostrum.

And wonder also, what that Sophomore Private, First Class, meant by referring to his chevron as a "consolation stripe."

And wonder how the term, "sweet essence of Spencer" originated in that domicile of water throwers recently.

And wonder how many Columbia-bound hitchhikers knew they had to go through GOLDVILLE and cross SILVER CREEK to get to PROSPERITY.

Vote Tomorrow!

Once again an election draws nigh. Tomorrow you will have the opportunity and privilege of choosing men whom you think are most capable of fulfilling the duties of their respective offices. At the same time also you will have the opportunity of being indifferent, or worse still, of letting someone else do your voting for you via the false optimism of that bogey-bear of all elections insincere politics.

First of all, we urge you to vote. There is no need for us to tell you of the importance of your individual vote. You realize that. But at the same time, it is impossible for us to emphasize too strongly the importance of taking advantage of that privilege.

Now, how should you vote? That is simple. First, listen to anyone who has anything to say to you about the election; but be sure that you have heard from representatives of both sides. Next, find out from the candidates themselves why they want to be elected to their respective offices, and finally, go to the polls on election day and write your ballot with the hand of sincerity while conscience holds the paper—and we don't believe you will go wrong.

Stitches In Time

On the fifteenth and sixteenth of this month the military department will give every sophomore in the battalion an opportunity to prove that he is "fit material" for the advanced corps, in what we believe to be one of the fairest tests of its kind in the history of that department.

On those two days all men who have made application by the tenth of this month will be examined, both in theory and practice, of the principles of squad and platoon movements. One day the practical test will be given on the drill field, the next day the theoretical test will be given in the class room.

Every year after the selection of the advanced corps personnel for the following year has been announced there has always been some murmur of unfairness; but after a man has been given a chance to prove before the whole corps that he has what it takes, then he can't complain if he doesn't make the grade, because every one has seen what he did on the drill field, and he will have his test grade in black and white as a silent indication.

Therefore, it is up to you sophomores who desire to be future "looies" or captains to begin now to study and practice and—gargle, because "a faint voice n'er won a fair commission." Remember that Wednesday is the deadline date for application.

Although this has been written with the ambitious "buck" private in mind, nevertheless, you corporals and privates, first class, would do well to take heed that you still have your stripes after the fifteenth, because, after all, you will be expected to prove that you have a right to be corporals before you can think about advance.

Now this parting shot to all of you: Be sure that you take those "stitches in time."

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

The Greeks aroused themselves from a case of "spring fever" during the past week to put on an intramural basketball tournament surprisingly loaded with thrills and then came out with several socials in honor of the occasion.

Alpha Kappa Pi continued a series of faculty-student smokers with a smoker for the faculty Thursday night. These functions are both enjoyable and interesting. A good thing that we hope to see continued and developed in the future.

The boys of Alpha Lambda Tau plan a social for Friday night and some initiations in the near future.

Beta Kappa's social Saturday night was one of their best—music, girls, and good eats!

Pi Kappa Alpha put on a big one Friday night with a bang—well, no, not too much. Shoemaker and his Yankee dances!

The Kappa Alpha fellows last week initiated "Piggie" Isom, newly returned to P. C. after a year's absence, "Cotton" Boswell, Norman Creech, and Max Jones.

Alpha Kappa Pi pledged two new men: Jack Paschal, Washington, Ga., and "Squirrel" Worrel, of Batesburg, S. C. Both are first-year men.

Enough etiquette to start students out on a concrete road to social-smoothness is being offered in weekly lessons at the University of Minnesota.

A hand-made microscope worth $1,500, probably the only one of its kind in the United States, is owned by Dr. W. N. Christopher, assistant professor bacteriology at Louisiana State university.

Put chickens on a twelvehour working day by means of an alarm clock attachment, is the recommendation of Prof. C. G. Card, head of Michigan State college's poultry husbandry department. By getting them up two hours earlier, they will eat more food and lay more eggs, he says.

Lois Geiger, a swingstress at the University of Buffalo, is organizing on "all-gal" dance orchestra.

Instructor F. F. Smith at the Northeast Center of Louisiana State university believes in expanding students' vocabularies. Each week he requires his English classes to learn 18 new words.

A goodwill court in which students will be able to air their grievances has been established at Cornell university.

The gift of $110,00 to the University of Michigan was contributed by the W. K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek.

Members of two Santa Ana Junior college English classes voted that they would rather meet Cleopatra than any other famous woman in history. Queen Elizabeth came the next most votes.

Well, it looks as though The Citadel's wooden soldiers are getting the luckiest break they've ever had. The boys will flont around on Shep Fields' "rippling rhythm" in the near future. If he doesn't run into rough waters Shep will gurglingly lead his band at the Citadel senior hop and two special dances. So here's to a stamping good time at The Citadel on March 23 and 24.

Even the flu can't stop University of Minnesota student from wooing. Men in the isolation ward there sent girls across the hall ice cream cones, an appreciative acknowledgement of a set of paper dolls.

The University of Chattanooga probably started the ugly-mug contests by launching an annual search for the bearer of the most compassdisregarding map and conferring upon its owner the degree of bachelor of ugliness.

Fortynine members of South Carolina's legislature are graduates of the University of South Carolina.

The University of North Carolina was having a tramp-dance and Dr. Harland and Dean House were to award the prize to the trampiest-looking person. A real street tramp happened in at the door—five-days' growth of beard and all—and began to stare around him. The judges immediately started to present him with the prize but learned that he was the real thing and so, as his was no false costume, no prize for him, announced the judges.

University of North Carolina's economics teacher, Anderson, keeps creeping into everybody's discussion. Several days ago he was telling his classes how cold it was out West where he came from.

Boy, it was so cold and the ground so hard that you couldn't even bury a dead man, you just had to sharpen his feet and drive him down.

I think that one takes the cake. If you can beat that, then yours truly would like to have you send in your entry in the next mail. Just address your tall story to Pete McCormick, Presbyterian College, Clinton, S. C.

Well, congratulations to the members of our P. C. glee club who made such good impressions on the females while they put P. C. on the map with their melodious songs and voices. Helen Jepson tells why she chooses Luckies for her voice

LOVELY PRIMA DONNA OF METROPOLITAN OPERA SAYS:

"A season of opera and concert means my voice and throat must be consistently in perfect condition. Therefore, although most of my smoking is done while I am on vacation, it is all important to me that I be careful in choosing my cigarette. I smoke Luckies because I enjoy their taste and because I feel it is wiser for me to choose a light smoke for my voice."

Helen Jepson

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Jepson verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

PEN-POINTS

ODE TO LIBERTY

The other day I slipped away
From Clinton and P. C.
To take a trip around the state
And see what I could see.

I paid a visit to Due West,
The home of Erskine's Fleet—
The place was wrapped in clouds of gloom
And seemed so fast asleep.

I thumbed a ride to Clemson then
To view Cadet appeal—
I found the boys milking cows
And plowin' in the fields.

And then to Charleston and her pride,
The mighty Citadel—
The lads were crooning prison songs
And cryin' in their cells.

So back to Clinton and P. C.
To shout in highest glee;
I felt so free I sat and penned
An Ode to Liberty.

THE ALL-STATE

Presentin' the mythical all-state basketball team of 1936-37, as selected by Pen-Points, Incorporated:

Name	Position	School
Batchelor	Forward	Presbyterian
Kinard	Forward	Wofford
Lipscomb	Center	Carolina
Hutto	Guard	Carolina
McNeil	Guard	Citadel

And a few words of explanation:

KINARD—Rangy captain of the Terrier five, who can play under pressure. Hits the basket often and is an all-round good performer.

BATCHELOR—The personification of speed, basket accuracy, court artistry and defensive skill.

LIPSCOMB—Carolina's papa tree-top-tall, knows how to use that extra foot of height, and that's something.

HUTTO—Consistently a high scorer, and he plays a neat floor game. Valuable man.

McNEIL—Cool, smooth and steady, he plays a brilliant defensive game, shoots well and scintillates as the key man of a floor attack.

OFF TO KENTUCKY

Lonnie McMillian's local lads packed their tooth brushes early this morning and hied away for Bowling Green, Kentucky, and the annual S. I. A. A. cage competition. The land of beautiful horses and fast women (or vice versa) was reached around high noon and preparations made for some pre-tourney practice.

The Blue Stockings were whipped seven times in their fifteen state engagements and were somewhat lacking in consistency. But they have an excellent chance to go far in the S. I. A. A. tourney. We believe they are definitely a "tournament team," and have sufficient power to reach the finals. Power to you, mates!

DISTANCE

Bob Feller, rookies Cleveland pitcher, could throw a baseball 275 feet at the age of nine. But that's nothing. Pitt Bird, P. C. athlete, could throw his voice three city miles at the age of five.

Four Teams Are In Competition

Six Entrants In Intramural Contests Eliminated.

PLAY TONIGHT

Three frat teams and a dormitory team have progressed through the quarter-finals of the intramural basketball tournament and will enter the semi-final round on Tuesday evening. Campus supremacy will be determined on Wednesday evening in the final game.

Alpha Lambda Tau, Kappa Alpha, Spencer, and Alpha Kappa Pi are the teams entering the semi-finals. The A. L. T.'s topped Laurens, 18 to 6, in their opener and upset Pi K. A., last year's champions, in the second round Thursday night. K. A. piled up 30 points to 14 for Smyth in the first round and snowed under Alumni by a 36 to 13 score in the second round. Spencer upset Pi Kappa Phi, 13 to 7, and A. K. Pi took a one-point victory over Beta Kappa.

The line-ups:

Time Trials To Be Run Saturday

Trackmen Prepare For Clocking This Week-end.

Track practice for the coming week will be climaxed by the running off of time trials on Saturday afternoon. After a slow start due to common early season ailments such as shin splints and soreness, the cindermen are now coming around rapidly. Coach McMillian will be able to devote his entire time to the squad with the return of the basketball team from Kentucky.

In the time trials, each man will be tested in several different events. By this procedure, distribution of material in the various events may be carried out accurately. The first meet sends McMillian's artists to Columbia against Carolina in the near future.

Chick's Charges Take To Diamond

Baseballers Begin Practice For 1937 Season.

Chick Galloway's 1937 crop of diamond duellers have a week of practice behind them, and with indications of fair weather should get down to an intensive practice routine this week.

With Captain Hawk Evans and other experienced and reliable men available, prospects for the approaching season are promising. Infield possibilities are doubtful at present, but clever Coach "Chick" may be able to assemble a fairly good combination for this department. Blackwell, good fielder but weak hitter, is being pushed for his position as custodian of first base by Folley, a sophomore with stickwork capacities.

Batchelor, another sophomore, will be used at third or behind the plate, if he catches. Harvin will be at third, otherwise Harvin will be shifted to short and he will hold third. Shorty Horne and Piggie Isom are competing for the second sack, with odds in favor or Horne. Marion Bird, veteran, will be available in the catching department and may serve in this capacity. Cavin is also in the running.

Lefty Suggs and Coon Weldon will do most of the pitching, with Anderson, Commander, Cox and others also ready for service. Suggs ranks as one of the state's best slab artists and wields a wicked willow also. Weldon is a heavy hitter, and if his arm is right he will share mound duty with Suggs.

Net Candidates Practice Daily

Leave For Elon and Opening Match March 17.

With a schedule of eighteen matches staring them in the face, P. C.'s racquetmen are going through their paces daily in an effort to be ready when the strenuous campaign begins.

Captain Marion Parham and his mates meet Elon there on March 17 in the opening engagement, and from then on there will be no let-up as the schedule carries them through three states. Nine of the eighteen meets will be held on the local courts, and activity comes to a climax and close with the state meet in Clinton May 6, 7, and 8.

The personnel and ranking of the group has not been determined yet, but will probably be announced in next week's issue of The Blue Stocking.

E. A. JOHNSON

For once the pen gives way and it is the needle that has become mightier than the sword. At least the little needle of the typhoid hyperdermic overcame the entire junior class in the annual encounter last Thursday. Uncle Sam insists that his officers must be able to fight against germs as well as armies. Swollen arms and a few feverish faces show how well the officers-to-be are taking to this phase of the training.

In connection with this subject, let it be clearly understood that for the next weeks a slap on the arm is not a friendly gesture but an invitation to fight.

The ugly dragon of the military training, government inspection, has reared its ugly head early this year. As "Southern Reb" stated in last week's column, inspection is not so bad. Gosh, no! Those two days are not bad at all; it's what comes before. There has always been a lot of hard work preceding inspection and this year is not going to be different. P. C. has always made excellent records under inspecting officers. Hard training in preparation accounts for it, so look forward to plenty of stiff drilling before April 20.

The race for appointments into the advanced corps is beginning in earnest. Now that the sophomores are having a chance to show their stuff in individual squad drill, competition is getting a little intense. Well, this is the time that separates the sheep from the goats and the men from the boys. The size of the present junior class will restrict the number that can enter the advanced corps next year and those coveted posts may be a bit hard to win.

Large Number In P. C. Infirmary

The infirmary this week reached a new high in patients—not a "gold-bricker" in the bunch—as there are more than eight cases of genuine old-fashioned "flu," according to Mrs. McSwain, who also told a reporter of The Blue Stocking that if he intended to continue his reporting he had better beat a hasty retreat.

For several days last week the services of a graduate nurse were required and Mrs. R. P. Wilder, wife of the coach at Clinton high school, was called in. At that time there were eleven men in the infirmary, all influenza cases, with the exception of one case of mumps which since has been dismissed.

Not only has the infirmary been overcrowded with flu patients during the week, but also the entire junior military class was vaccinated in preparation for the time they will spend at camp in Alabama this summer.

Both Mrs. "Mac" and Charleton have been working with ceaseless effort, not only during the day but often far into the night, reported a recent patient to the reporter.

Alumni Chapters Increase Activity

Many alumni chapters of Presbyterian college are now active, according to statements from the editor of the Alumlite, Hugh Holman. increased activity is noted among the different chapters.

At the meeting of Presbyterian college alumni chapter of Charlotte, N. C., which was held recently, plans were discussed for organizing at least three alumni groups in North Carolina.

One of the most enthusiastic alumni meetings held recently was one held by the Atlanta chapter at which the program and the progress of Presbyterian was discussed by President William P. Jacobs of the college.

According to a recent report a movement is now underway to organize an alumni chapter in Hartsville. Quite a number of alumni are in or around that city.

Alumni chapters are now in Charleston, Columbia, Anderson, S. C.; in Charlotte, N. C., and in Atlanta, Georgia.

FIVE ELECTED INTO SIGMA KAPPA ALPHA

Clyde Conrad, E. A. Johnson, C. H. McLeod, Frances Shaw, and Frances Spratt Chosen.

SCHOLARSHIP FRAT PICKS JUNIORS, SENIORS

At a recent meeting of Sigma Kappa Alpha, honorary scholastic fraternity, the organization elected four new members, Frances Spratt and Frances Shaw from the senior class, and Cliff McLeod and E. A. Johnson from the junior class, Stuart Campbell, president of the fraternity announced today.

Miss Spratt, of Clinton, is an assistant to the librarian, and is a campus leader among the co-eds, being president of Alpha Psi Delta, local sorority.

Miss Shaw, of Honea Path, is a member of Sock and Buskin, campus dramatic club, having taken leading roles in all of its recent productions. She is socially a member of Alpha Psi Delta.

McLeod, of Ocala, Fla., is editor of The Blue Stocking, president of the Ministerial club, secretary-treasurer of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity, and a member of the debating team.

Johnson, of Columbus, Ga., is associate editor of The Blue Stocking, a member of Sigma Upsilon, honorary literary fraternity, a sergeant-major in the R.O.T.C., and is socially a member of Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Sigma Kappa Alpha is composed of members of the junior and senior classes who rank in the first ten per cent of their class in the relation of quality points to semester hours. Students of all classes who have a relation of quality points to semester hours of 2.5 make up the "dean's list."

The Inquiring Reporter

This week your reporter turned from questions of passing interest to one that exists continually from the time college opens in September until it closes in May: the question of improving the relation between faculty member and student. That is why we asked students representative of the general student body:

"WHAT SUGGESTIONS CAN YOU OFFER FOR IMPROVING FACULTY-STUDENT BODY RELATIONS?"

We found "BUCK" PATTERSON in deep thought in his study, hence his very thoughtful reply: "I would suggest improving the faculty advisor plan. By this I mean have the faculty advisor hold meetings in his home when he is ready to give his group their marks. In this way I feel the student would get to know his advisor better, and vice versa."

D. M. MORRISON told us: "I think there should be more infromal group discussions among the students with faculty members present. From the favorable response that has arisen from fraternity discussions of this nature, I believe the same results would follow such programs by other campus organizations.

Freshman HIUT PAUL, recently elected councilman, recalled a plan he had seen work successfully before coming to college that he belived could be carried out here. "In a certain high school organization we adopted the 'parent night' plan in order to give a father a chance to know his son better, and the son could get to be better acquainted with his father. Here at college the circumstances are different—don't misunderstand—but the relation is more or less the same. In other words, the faculty should be included more in social activity on the campus. If a better relation is to be established between it and the students."

RALEIGH SHOEMAKER, president of the student body: "I think informal discussions among the students with faculty members present

Tribute Paid To Memory of Dr. William Plumer Jacobs At Gathering This Morning.

JOHN A. LAW, OF SPARTANBURG, IS SPEAKER

Presbyterian college celebrated Founder's day this morning as John A. Law, of Spartanburg, addressed the student body in a special chapel service at 11:45.

This day is to commemorate the founding of the college by Rev. William Plumer Jacobs, D.D., LL.D., for 47 years pastor of the First Presbyterian church and founder of Thornwell orphanage, in 1880. Dr. Jacobs died in September, 1917. He was the grandfather of the present president of the college, William P. Jacobs.

Mr. Law is one of the most prominent figures in banking and manufacturing fields in South Carolina and the South. He long has been connected with a number of outstanding enterprises in the state and has been a member of the executive board of the American Cotton Manufacturers association. He has been intimately associated with the Jacobs family for a number of years and his remarks this morning about the founder of P. C. were given from first-hand knowledge.

Mr. Law spoke of the relationship between his father, Dr. John Law, and Dr. Jacobs. He stated that his father had in many places in his diary made reference to the wonderful work of Dr. Jacobs. The two were pictured as men who had grown up together and had been intimately associated with one another even in their later years.

Mr. Law showed that the conditions under which Dr. Jacobs labored had been trying ones, even though that was a day of progression in which he did his great work here.

He spoke briefly of the relations of Dr. Law and Dr. Jacobs in Charleston where Dr. Jacobs attended the College of Charleston and Dr. Law was a student at The Citadel at the same time.

Dr. Hayne Speaks Here On Control Of Deadly Disease

Dr. James Adams Hayne, secretary of the State Board of Health, speaking to the student body on the subject of syphilis last Tuesday morning in chapel said, "It is now a positive fact that syphilis can be cured in as late as its secondary stages by medicine."

Dr. Hayne has a long record of achievement in the services of his state as one of the most valuable members on its board of health. He has recently made lectures to civic organizations all over the state in an endeavor to stamp out syphilis in South Carolina, by teaching people its causes and the manner in which it can be cured.

By illustrated charts, the health director showed statistics which proved that the dreaded disease caused more

'Y' Reception For Seniors On Friday

Entertainment To Be Held At Country Club.

The formal reception for the senior class, which was recently postponed, will be held next Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Lakeside country club near Clinton, under the direction of the Y. M. C. A.

Members of the senior class will meet at the "Y" building with their dates at 7:30. From there they will be taken in the college bus to the club. Plans as previously announced will be carried out.

This is the first time such a reception has been given by the "Y" and the organization's officials are extremely anxious for the interest and cooperation of the seniors and others in making the reception a successful affair.

Morris Ritch Becomes Secretary-Treasurer of Student Body In Elections Held Last Week.

"Y" PRESIDENT AND COUNCILMEN CHOSEN

After a third run-off election, the student body last Thursday elected Joe Commander, rising senior of Florence, as president of the student body and the student council.

The race for student body president began Tuesday morning in the general elections for student body officers, which are held each year on the second Tuesday in March. In the first run-off Tuesday John Woodward was eliminated, leaving Commander, Frank Johnston and Jack Witherspoon in the race. Witherspoon was eliminated on Wednesday, leaving Johnston and Commander for the final run-off on Thursday.

Commander is a member of the student council, socially a Pi Kappa Phi, and is active in other student body affairs.

Frank Johnston, of Jefferson, Ga., became vice-president of the student body and the student council.

Other members of the student council elected in the elections were: Jack Witherspoon, of Clinton, rising senior; C. B. Holcombe, of Charleston, rising junior; B. M. Griffin, of Greenwood, rising sophomore, and Huitt Paul, of Charleston, rising sophomore.

Morris Ritch, of Charlotte, N. C.,

SCHOLASTIC RATINGS ARE ISSUED TODAY

Pi Kappa Alpha Leads Frats; Co-eds Surpass Men, and Frats Top Non-Fraternity Men.

Pi Kappa Alpha led the social fraternities in scholarship with an average of 1.37 for the first semester of this school year, according to averages released today by Lillian G. Brown, registrar. Kappa Alpha came next with an average of 1.35, while Alpha Lambda Tau and Beta Kappa had the lowest, the former averaging only 0.96, and the latter 0.88.

Further figures show that non-fraternity men led the fraternity men with an average of 1.44, as against 1.15 for the fraternity group.

The co-eds by far led the men with an average of 2.13 as against 1.26 for the men.

The figures as released were as follows:

Fraternity	Members	Avge.
Pi Kappa Alpha	31	1.37
Kappa Alpha	40	1.35
Alpha Kappa Pi	32	1.14
Pi Kappa Phi	35	1.03
Alpha Lambda Tau	19	0.96
Beta Kappa	23	0.88
All fraternity men	180	1.15
Non-fraternity men	120	1.44
All men	300	1.26
Girls	35	2.13

The editor extends his thanks and appreciation to the staff for its fine cooperation and work on last week's paper, which was issued under the editorship of Louis G. Hockin, managing editor.

Election Interest High This Year

Interest in the elections this year reached a new high, according to the opinions of many students. The list of 28 nominees was perhaps the largest entered in elections in recent years. It is interesting to note that not one office was won because of lack of an opposing candidate.

Interest was hottest of course in the race for student body president, which lasted three days.

Of the non-fraternity group, only three were elected to office. It is interesting, however, to note that the only man to win more than one office was Frank Johnston, a member of the non-frat group.

Some observers thought politics had reached a new high in this election. However, others disagreed, and pointed out why they did not think politics was quite as much in evidence as some believed.

All in all, as one candidate expressed it, "Well, I'm glad it's over."

College Board Of Trustees To Meet Here Tomorrow

Will Hold Annual Session In Library Tuesday Morning.

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, has announced that the board of trustees of the college will meet here tomorrow.

At this regular meeting the board will hear a report on the progress of the college, and draw up a program for the future.

Members of the board are: Dr. W. R. Wallace, Chester; A. J. Thackston, Orangeburg; Rev. G. G. Mayes, Winnsboro; Dr. H. W. DuBose, Spartanburg; H. M. McLaurin, Wedgefield; A. B. Bibley, Darlington; Dr. E. C. Doyle, Seneca; A. C. Todd, Greenwood; R. E. Henry, Greenville; Rev. S. K. Phillips, Columbia; John T. Woodside, Greenville; W. J. Bailey, Clinton; Rev. E. L. Hill, Athens, Ga.; Dr. N. P. Pratt, Atlanta, Ga.; Dr. M. M. MacFerrin, Augusta, Ga.; Harold Clotfelter, Rome, Ga.; Col. J. B. Fraser, Hinesville, Ga.; W. J. Vereen, Moultrie, Ga.; Charles Currie, Atlanta, Ga.; Rev. J. A. Simpson, Clarkesville, Ga.; Rev. S. W. Dendy, Dalton, Ga.; Dr. S. C. Hays, Clinton; J. M. Wilson, Fayetteville, N. C., Dr. Jack H. Young, Clinton.

Local Group At Chester Church

The deputation team of the Bible extension department of the college gave a program last night at the regular church services at Purdy Presbyterian church, Chester, where Dr. John McSween, former president of P. C., is pastor. The deputation was assisted by the college quartet.

Those making up the group during the evening were Wardell Williams, Jack McKinney, and Ed McSween.

John Osman, field secretary of the college, was in charge of the program and introduced the group.

PUBLICATIONS HEADS NAMED

New Directors Chosen For the Quarterly Magazine and the Year Book.

LYLES AND WOODWARD BUSINESS MANAGERS

No second run-offs were required in the races for offices on the publications. Malcolm Hemphill, of Griffin, Ga., defeated Ashby Johnson for editor of the college annual, The PaC-SaC, in the general elections held Tuesday. John Woodward, of Vienna, Ga., defeated N. S. Heeth to become business manager of the 1937-38 publication. Robert Black, of York, defeated Moffet Wylie for advertising manager.

Hemphill has been a member of The PaC-SaC staff for two years. Socially he is a Kappa Alpha. He is a member of the college quartet and glee club and is active in other student activities.

In the race for editor of the college quarterly literary magazine, The Collegian, Keitt Darby, of Fort Motte, was elected over E. F. MacLeod of Bennettsville. James Hadley, a rising junior, became managing editor, defeating Alvin Chapman. Joe Lyle, of Decatur, Ga., had the majority count over S. Croker for business manager. Lyle is a rising junior.

Darby has been connected with the publication for three years. He was nominated by the staff.

Winners in the publication elections will not assume their positions until next year, as the terms of the present officers of The Collegian and The PaC-SaC expire at the end of the present school year.

Deputation Team Leads Interesting Y.M.C.A. Session

Taking charge of the program before a home audience for the first time this year, the deputation team of the local Y.M.C.A. capably delivered several talks Thursday night on the subject, "The Voices That Crucified Christ." The team was assisted by a trumpet quartet from the orchestra and a vocal quartet from the glee club.

Prior to the talks, Keitt Darby, pianist for the glee club and orchestra, rendered a solo, after which Cliff McLeod, chairman of the team, introduced the subject and spoke for a few minutes on the first part, "The Church That Crucified Christ." McLeod used as an illustration the parable of the wicked husbandmen and showed how the church of Christ's day crucified Him by not confessing Him. He brought out the fact that the church had backled Christ throughout His ministry because of jealousy.

After McLeod's talk, the trumpet quartet rendered a selection. The quartet was composed of H. Gray, R. L. Clark, N. S. Heeth, and J. L. Culp.

The second part of the subject, "The Coward Who Crucified Christ," was delivered by Robert Wardlaw, who centered his talk on Christ's trial by Pilate and brought out the fact that Pilate wasn't man enough to stand up for Christ against the mob even though he knew He was innocent. He stated that Pilate, by his actions, crucified Christ, and that with the assistance the Church that we today are sometimes like Pilate.

Faculty and Student Body Relations

This year, more than ever before, there has been more effort exerted, both on the part of the student body and members of the faculty, to establish a better understanding between them. What have been the results and what more can be done?

First of all, each faculty member was appointed advisor to a certain per cent of the student body, and to act as personal advisor to his group as well as to give them a report of their grades periodically. It was, in many cases, possible to assign to each professor those students who were majoring in the courses he taught.

This plan has afforded the student a means of being privately informed of his progress and the average student appreciates this fact; but numbers of students interviewed felt that beyond this point the plan has been a failure. However, they offered this solution: The faculty advisor should meet with his advisees as a group, either in the Y. M. C. A. building or his home, and there give each man a written report followed by an informal discussion by the group, which would result in a better acquaintance between the advisor and the advisee and would make the latter less reticent to seek a private conference with his advisor.

Recently President Jacobs began a plan designed to bring the faculty and student body closer together, by means of an informal discussion of the problems each had to face during their daily associations. This forum, which was held at President Jacobs' home, set the example for one social fraternity, and recently other fraternities also have been hosts to such groups. At one fraternity meeting, to which several faculty members had been invited, the time for adjournment was set for nine o'clock. The discussion began with everyone rather ill at ease, but by nine o'clock the conversation had assumed such interest that the time for adjournment was forgotten until eleven o'clock. One student reported that as a result of this meeting his attitude toward a certain professor had changed from an extremely unfavorable one to one of frank admiration. This we consider to be the greatest step taken toward improving relatfons between the faculty and the student body, and it is an open challenge to fraternities and other campus organizations to follow suit.

We feel that the preceptorial plan being tried here at P. C. in three courses has already proved its value of being worthy of permanent adoption. However, at this time, we only wish to discuss that phase of it which tends to promote a better understanding between the faculty and student body.

We have talked to three professors who are using this method, and also to students from each of the three classes. We found that in every case there was first, praise of the method, then an expression of sincere interest in the courses, and, finally, a more friendly attitude on the part of the professor toward the student, and the student toward the professor. This plan is new in Southern colleges, and is certainly new here at P. C. However, we believe its success warrants its adoption in other courses.

There are four forces that work on the campus for the promotion of better understanding between members of the faculty and the students: The faculty advisor, informal fraternity discussions with faculty members present, and the preceptorial plan of informal class meetings.

All this, however, depends on our attitude as individual students and faculty members. We can be indifferent, or non-cooperative, and thereby doom all such efforts to quick failure. On the other hand, we can be enthusiastic, and if we are willing to invest our enthusiasm in a few bonds that may be at first theoretical, we will be doubly repaid in practical dividends later on. —L.G.H.

CAMPUS CRUISING

WHAT'S WHAT ON OTHER CAMPUSES

— By —

Pete McCormick

Raymond Starr of The Emory Wheel (Emory university) has discovered how Shep Fields produces his "rippling rhythm." He says:

Last week-end gave the campus one of the best week-ends of entertainment that I remember. Thursday afternoon a few of the boys went to hear Shep Fields and his band. It is amusing to watch him make his rippling rhythm. He blows into a goldfish bowl with a glass test-tube. It's a short story that he used to have a goldfish in the bowl, but his blower got halitosis one week-end and killed the fish.

The "burlesque edition" of The Colonnade (G. S. C. W.) was published recently. The large headline for the feature story was as follows, "Mrs. Elvira Pryzybyzy Will Endow G. S. C. W." The story went on to tell of how a plug-tobacco widow had endowed the school and was going to rename it Pryzybyzy On the Oconee. There were, besides this, plenty of interesting and humorous articles in th edition.

A few words of wisdom from the University of Illinois' Professor Bull: "Athletic cattle have tenderer meat than those which have led a sedentary life."

The Howard Crimson (Howard College) describes its freshman class as follows:

The most brilliant, the most stupid, the most egotistical, the humblest, the noisiest, the most disinterested, the laziest, the most industrious, the most reasonable, the most irrational, the most individual, the most collective, the most unpredictable, and yet the most commonplace of that or any other institution is the "rat" class.

Postmaster General James A. Farley spoke to the student body at the University of North Carolina on Tuesday, March 9. His subject was "Supreme Court Revision" and his speech was made from the Memorial hall at the college over a nation-wide hook-up.

The Will Hudson-Eddie DeLange orchestra will swing it at the University of Georgia on April 2 while the soldier boys swish it, as the University military ball gets under way on that date.

Hudson and DeLange were the originators of such hits as "Moonglow," "Tormented,," "The Organ Grinder's Swing" and "Mr. Ghost Goes To Town."

The editor of the West Tennessee State Teachers college paper has been removed from office and from school—one might say kicked out—on the charge of editorial criticism of the food in the cafeteria and conditions in the dormitories.

A quick-witted student in the bacteriology lab at the University of Minnesota found a swift solution for an unexpected fire. When a student's hair caught on fire he put out the flames by slamming the fellow on the head with a book.

In saying "ugh" 97,000 times in the past three weeks, a bronze-skinned freshman at the University of Minnesota has not been trying to prove that he really is an Indian. "Ugh" is his entire speaking part in a play.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

The madness of election week is over. Frenzied "politicking" has ceased—until next election time. Everyone, victor and loser alike, seems glad that the time of madness is over, for the present peaceful quiet is more desirable than even the excitement of student elections.

Alpha Lambda Tau, victor in the intramural basketball tourney, celebrated with a social Friday night. As to its success, we only say that we enjoyed it along with every other guest. It was swell!

Alpha Kappa Pi had a big week-end with initiations and a visit from the national president of the order. It was an occasion of much pomp and ceremony and initiations were carried off in fine style.

Beta Kappa is to be congratulated on having pictures of the local chapter's officers in the Beta Kappa Journal this month.

Kappa Alpha will entertain the faculty at an informal gathering in the chapter rooms Tuesday night. Another step in promoting good will between faculty and students—a thing we like to see.

Pi Kappa Alpha announces the initiation of Jimmy Reeves, first-year man from Augusta, Ga., at a meeting last week.

STUDENT OFFICERS INTERVIEWED

Commander, McLeod, Hemphill, Williams and Darby Are Cornered To Get Their Opinions On This and That.

By Pete McCormick

Now that the back-patting, hand-shaking, and other similar forms of congratulations have receded, yours truly grabs his hat, a pencil and pad, and chases down the newly-elected young men who seem to be publicity-haters, and interviews them for The Blue Stocking.

Joe Commander

We are very sorry to learn that Joe Commander, who was elected to the office of president of the student body, is in the college infirmary suffering from "flu," but we got all the dope on Joe, and whether or not he likes publicity, we mean he's going to get it.

Joe was an outstanding member of the freshman track team in the season of 1935 and holds the state freshman track record for the half-mile run. He was also an outstanding member of last year's varsity track team, and is a member of the baseball team. He was president of the freshman class in '34-'35, member of The Collegian business staff '35-'36, Y. M. C. A. cabinet member, and is a member of Pi Kappa Phi fraternity.

"Joe, what is your life's ambition?"

"I wish to make law my profession," Joe immediately replied.

"Where do you plan to take your law course?"

"At the University of South Carolina law school," was his reply.

"Now, Joe, I'd like for you to give your opinion of Presbyterian college."

"Presbyterian college is the ideal school. I've had two brothers to graduate from Clemson college and one of them is planning to enter Yale divinity school next year; but, old friend, when the question of college arises among us, I take great pride in being able to say: I go to Presbyterian."

Joe hails from the good ole low country, down around Florence, S. C. He's very friendly, modest and, although he hates publicity, he's not bashful in the least.

Well, congratulations, Joe. We feel sure you'll really do a great job in handling your new position.

Cliff H. McLeod

Cliff McLeod, editor of The Blue Stocking, was my next victim. I managed to corner him in Judd dining hall, so he was forced to spill the beans to me.

Cliff, besides being editor of The Blue Stocking, is president of the Ministerial club, vice president of the local chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, national secretary of Delta Chi Alpha, member of the leadership fraternity, Blue Key, and the scholarship fraternity, Sigma Kappa Alpha, member of the International Relations club, the Y.M.C.A. cabinet and chairman of the deputation group, and member of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity. He was student assistant in biology for two years and is now assistant in Bible. He comes from Ocala, Fla., down where the sun shines and where the alligators grow and bathing beauties are plentiful.

Cliff plans to make the ministry his life work. His secret ambition is to do graduate work in Edinburgh, Scotland, or at Oxford university, in England.

His statement on his opinion of P. C. was: "I think P. C. is a wonderful school, even with its faults."

Cliff is very bashful, modest and very friendly.

Malcolm Hemphill

Malcolm, whose campus name is "Snap," comes from Griffin, Ga., the land of the Georgia peaches, which come in two forms, as a fruit and in the form of females. "Snap" is the campus camera. Where you see him, you see a camera. On account of his excellent work on the PaC-SaC staff, Hemphill has recently been elected editor of the annual. He is a member of the glee club, star track man, being an ace pole-vaulter, Y.M.C.A. cabinet member, rifle team, advertising manager of the PaC-SaC for two years as well as photographer of campus life scenes for the book, and is a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

His secret ambition is to become a photographer upon graduation. He plans to do both commercial and portrait work.

His opinion of Presbyterian college: "I think P. C. is the most completely-equipped college of its size in the South. I am at home at P. C. and could never be more satisfied at any other college. P. C. students are selected students and are so friendly and understanding that the college seems to be one big family."

Wandell Williams

Wandell, newly-elected president of the Y.M.C.A., was caught in the shower bath, but I bore down on him and he also was forced to speak his mind.

Wandell has a string of honors. He's a Kappa Alpha frat man, chairman of the freshman "Y" cabinet in '34-'35, member of Sock and Buskin, dramatic club, student assistant in English, member of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, first sergeant in R.O.T.C. unit, member of Y.M.C.A. deputation team, fencing team, candidate for the rifle team, glee club member, etc.

On asking Wandell what he wished to make his life's work, he answered: "In order to sell successfully, one must be able to analyze his prospect

DR. WOODWORTH ATTENDS ENGLISH FORUM

Members of the group who met recently at the invitation of Dr. Paul Mowbray Wheeler, head of the department of English at Winthrop college, to consider mutual problems in the teaching of English in South Carolina colleges. "Luckies are a light smoke that treat a tender throat right"

"In a way, it's easier to keep in condition as a dancer than as a singer. Exercise can keep the muscles in shape, but there are a lot of things that can go wrong with the voice and throat. It stands to reason, then, that any actress wants a cigarette that is gentle and strikes the right note with her throat. I started smoking Luckies 4 years ago. They're a light smoke that treat a tender throat right."

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Keeler verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. Track Season Begins March 2

Track Trials Held Here Saturday

Dashes and Distance Men Are Timed. Field Men Go Through Events This Week.

Presbyterian's Cyclones paraded before Coach Lacey McMillian on Saturday morning in the initial time trials of the season. Several heartening performances were given by the squad, which leaves on Thursday of next week for Columbia and a meet with the Carolina Gamecocks.

In the 100-yard dash, Cole did the distance in 10.5 seconds to come out ahead of Jimmy Dennard, who could get started. The Presbyterian Junior College transfer is giving his Florida teammate a merry run for short dash supremacy and the big test will come in the Carolina meet.

Reynolds and Davis went over the 120 high hurdles in fast time, with Reynolds breaking the tape first. The latter is holder of the freshman record in this event.

"Biffet" Green looked good as he stepped off the 440 with a time of 56.4 in the face of a strong wind. Green will be counted on to come through in a big way this year after his fine performance in last year's state meet. The milers and two-milers also went through their paces, but haven't attained the form they hope to flash in coming competition.

Red Rawls, a freshman, ran the mile in 5 minutes 4.2 seconds to give Coach McMillian a pleasant thought for the next four years.

Candidates for the field events were not tested Saturday, but probably will be this week.

The Carolina meet is to be held on the 25th.

Hose Eliminated In Kentucky Tilts

Moorehead College Trounces Local Outfit In Second Round of Tournament.

P. C.'s Blue Stocking basketeers dropped a 57-24 decision to Moorehead in a second round S. I. A. A. engagement to be eliminated from further competition in the annual tourney, which was held in Bowling Green, Ky., from Monday through Wednesday of the past week. The team had drawn a bye in the first round.

Moorehead, presenting a strong well-balanced outfit, had little trouble subduing their South Carolina rivals. After piling up a 25 to 9 lead at the half, they maintained a comfortable advantage and came through with a decisive win.

Carter led the scoring with eleven points and was followed by Cassidy and Fair with seven each. None of the starting line-up failed to tally less than seven points.

The Blue Stockings were unable to do much damage to the Kentucky defensive, with scoring kept low and evenly distributed. Batchelor led with five points, while Waldrep, Cavin and Holden registered four points apiece.

The Hose team was high in its praise of the fine brand of basketball displayed in the tournament.

Alpha Lambda Tau Wins Tournament

Noses Out Kappa Alpha In Campus Final of Basketball Series. Extra Period Required.

In the finals of the intramural basketball tournament, sponsored by the Blue Key honorary fraternity, Alpha Lambda Tau frat defeated Kappa Alpha in a Frank Merriwell finish, 17-16. The lead see-sawed throughout the game, with neither side being able to gain the advantage. Evans' field goal in the last few seconds of the extra period proved the deciding factor as the A. L. T.s marched on to victory.

The K. A.s had earned the right to meet the A. L. T.s in the finals by virtue of their decisive victory over Spencer dormitory Monday night, 23 to 15. Boswell was high point man for the former with 13 points to his credit.

The A. L. T.- A. K. Pi affair, which was another semi-final match, turned out to be a walk-away for the A. L. T. outfit, with slugging and roughness an outstanding feature. Led by Pope and McAdams, with 10 and 9 points, respectively, the A. L. T.s won by the lopsided score of 26 to 6.

The final game turned out to be the best of the tournament, as both teams were evenly matched and well educated in the science of basketball. Boswell and Caldwell were the main cogs in the K. A. machinery, while "Hawk" Evans and Pope deserve most of the credit for the winners. The sterling play of Hipp at center, and Penland at forward, is to be highly commended, however. This final game was knotted up at 14-14 when the whistle blew, necessitating an extra period of hostilities. After a brief rest, the A. L. T.s came back to win on Evans' foul shot and field goal.

The tournament was run off in an orderly fashion by the Blue Key organization and was pronounced most successful by all.

Swimming will be next on the intramural menu, according to an announcement made by Joe Patrick, president of Blue Key.

Frosh Diamond Men At Work

With the official opening of the 1937 baseball season still several weeks off, the Presbyterian college freshman basketball squad is rapidly rounding into shape. Under the able guidance of Coaches "Chick" Galloway and "Pudge" Plowden, the Anklets show much improvement in hitting, fielding, and base-running.

There are four "chunkers" who are making strong bids to do mound duty during the coming season. DuBose, tall, graceful right-hander, is certain to do his share on the mound, and Trammell, diminutive fast-baller, will also see plenty of action from the slinging post. McGregor and Davis, the remaining two twirlers, have shown plenty of talent and are expected to be called upon at any time.

On the other end of the battery, the frosh have four able catchers in Jones, Paschal, Carraway, and Bill Moore. Carraway and Jones seem to be the most likely prospects.

Arthur Erwin, consistent slugger, is the most likely candidate for the third sack position. "Pete" McCormick is holding his own at shortstop, while Bo Moore looks like the tops over on the second base position. Wilkerson, an excellent fielder, probably will hold down the first sack area, with Henley, Bryant and Buie ready to relieve him at any time.

In the outer garden many candidates are making strong bids, but the outstanding performers thus far have been Huntley, Strain, Traywick, Hullock, and Turner.

The frosh diamond men work out with the varsity and each afternoon a short practice game is played.

PING PONG

And with campus activity on our minds, how about a ping pong tournament added to the intramural program. We believe it would be as interesting, both to participant and spectator, as any of the other tournaments on the program. There are about a dozen good ping pong players on the campus as there are basketball players, or swimmers.

Blue Key would be setting a precedent by staging such a tourney, and it would make the present program more complete and more interesting. One of the social fraternities has already offered the use of an excellent table and the other equipment could be easily secured. If this idea interests you, write your congressman right away. Or, if you prefer, see Joe Patrick and his Blue Key men. They got the authority around here.

THIS YEAR'S CROP OF HISSES

An editorial, criticizing P. C. students for the way they booed and hissed at athletic games recently appeared in The Blue Stocking. Does booing show lack of manners? Of sportsmanship? Of local theatre. With such serials as Flash Gordon and Tom Tom Rider, and features like Hoot Gibson in "Who Unsaddled Horse?" on the program, we get in the hissing mood. The villains are dirty rats.

But seriously speaking, the local lads should eliminate booing from the vocal curriculum. It is an outgrowth of some factors—for instance, lack of familiarity with rules. So, now on, let's confine our booing to the villain who tries to steal son Buck Jones' horse, and make this year's crop of hisses the leanest in a long time.

March—And What The Well-Dressed Will Wear Discussed

Correspondent Recommends the Chief Items In New Season's Wardrobe To Those Who Pay Attention To Such Things.

Coming suddenly upon us, with a toss-up as to which of its moods is in the saddle, March is ushering in the spring season in dress right before our eyes. From the looks of things on windy corners, the feminine dress styles are going to be a good deal shorter—at least they are going up every minute. However, this blurb is intended to drive all men to the great stores in Clinton, with a thousand clerks in every one to get for you the things that we recommend.

To dress our perfect man, let us start at the bottom — pardon — with the shoes. The best possible gear for these rainy springs days is a handsome pair of hip-boots for which very little can be said—except that they cover a multitude of sins, sometimes. On other occasions, the matter of footwear is very rightly left (get that) to the discretion of the one concerned. After all, I don't know your size. But, bedroom slippers are strictly taboo except in the bedroom. Because, sir, what is a lady to think!!? Now to start the remainder of the dressing. Note: Pants are being worn by all the men who set the style. This innovation was introduced in Europe, and while not so widespread in the States, will undoubtedly come more and more into popularity. Men are going about with cuffs and without cuffs, but this depends more on the kind of wife they have than on any style. There are also pockets in these novel outfits and they are useful now that we have some money to carry around in them.

Going higher, we come to the belts, and, while there are a number of beautiful designs, we had best ignore them because anyone who buys a belt is practically inviting a holdup.

Now, we come to the shirt. These are being worn a great deal with white collars. That is, everybody is wearing them but gangsters—fingerprints, you know. The vogue for solid color shirts continues, but I know of one man who is definitely off them for life. His name is Anonymous, and he was wearing an ox-blood shirt down main street one day when he happened to turn around and there were six cats and two stray curs following him with mouths watering. So you see—

As for ties, the newest thing is the bow—which is so old! The evident reason for this sudden return of popularity is that tired business men no longer need long ties to suspend themselves from the ceiling of the city jail while facing embezzlement charges. Oh, yes, and for spring, since one doesn't often wear a coat, the champagne shirt and tie are favored for the breakfast outfit—it is claimed that they don't show egg as badly.

A few stray notes and I must leave you to your fate with the money-mad salesmen. A great many of the new suits are going to be made up in gaberdine. I am only telling you this so you can buy some other kind and be different. The English influence is evident in the lack of a sharply defined crease in one's clothes, so you are no longer as rich as (your) Croesus. Live and learn, doesn't one.

We are beginning to believe that Napoleon knew what he was talking about when he said that an army travels on its stomach. Perhaps old Nap was thinking of feeding troops, but we are getting the meaning in a more literal sense since taking up this extended order work. Traveling on the stomach, as well as elbows and knees, is quite the style.

This sort of drill has given us several picturesque sights. "Bertha" Shaw was a fine picture as he made a futile effort at hiding behind a two-inch sapling. "Fat" Wallace had no better success hiding his tiny frame behind a foid in mother earth.

Spring must be here. Anyway, those white uniforms are here and the junior class is all spruced out for the Easter parade. So far, we have seen none being worn about the town, but we are waiting. Or maybe they are being kept fresh for spring holidays.

Pete Holcomb has crashed through to break precedents again this year. Last year he was the first freshman to earn a corporalcy; now, as a sophomore, he has added a third chevron. This is the first time that a basic man has held a sergeant's ranking and Pete deserves commendation.

The competition between companies seems likely to increase now that the corps is turning to extended order drill. There is some talk through "A" and "B" companies that the change in program may result in a change in standings. So far "C" company has stayed on top with some fine demonstrations in close order drill.

The old rifle team is really working in earnest. Fort Wysor is getting a peppering each day from about thirty marksmen (?). The scores registered so far are nothing to write home about, but from that number "Sarge" should be able to find the makings for a good team. We hope so.

Track Season Begins March 2

Track Trials Held Here Saturday

Dashes and Distance Men Are Timed. Field Men Go Through Events This Week.

Presbyterian's thinclads paraded before Coach Leonce McMillian on Saturday marking the initial time trials of the season. Several heartening performances were given by the squad, which leaves on Thursday of next week for Columbia and a meet with the Carolina Gamecocks.

In the 100-yard dash, Cole did the distance in 10.5 seconds to come out ahead of Jimmy Dennard, who couldn't get started. The Presbyterian Junior college transfer is giving his Florida teammate a merry run for short dash supremacy and the big test will come in the Carolina meet.

Reynolds and Davis went over the 120 high hurdles in fast time, with Reynolds breaking the tape first. The latter is holder of the freshman record in this event.

"Biffet" Green looked good as he stepped off the 440 with a time of 56.4 in the face of a strong wind. Green will be counted on to come through in a big way this year after his fine performance in last year's state meet. The milers and two-milers also went through their paces, but haven't attained the form they hope to flash in coming competition.

Red Rawls, a freshman, ran the mile in 5 minutes 4.2 seconds to give Coach McMillian a pleasant thought for the next four years.

Candidates for the field events were not tested Saturday, but probably will be this week.

The Carolina meet is to be held on the 25th.

Hose Eliminated In Kentucky Tilts

Moorehead College Trounces Local Outfit In Second Round of Tournament.

P. C.'s Blue Stocking basketeers dropped a 57-24 decision to Moorehead in a second round S. I. A. A. engagement to be eliminated from further competition in the annual tourney, which was held in Bowling Green, Ky., from Monday through Wednesday of the past week. The team had drawn a bye in the first round.

Moorehead, presenting a strong well-balanced outfit, had little trouble subduing their South Carolina rivals. After piling up a 25 to 9 lead at the half, they maintained a comfortable advantage and came through with a decisive win.

Carter led the scoring with eleven points and was followed by Cassidy and Fair with seven each. None of the starting line-up failed to tally less than seven points.

The Blue Stockings were unable to do much damage to the Kentucky defensive, with scoring kept low and evenly distributed. Batchelor led with five points, while Waldrep, Cavin and Holden registered four points apiece.

The Hose team was high in its praise of the fine brand of basketball displayed in the tournament.

Alpha Lambda Tau Wins Tournament

Noses Out Kappa Alpha In Campus Final of Basketball Series. Extra Period Required.

In the finals of the intramural basketball tournament, sponsored by the Blue Key honorary fraternity, Alpha Lambda Tau frat defeated Kappa Alpha in a Frank Merriwell finish, 17-16. The lead see-sawed throughout the game, with neither side being able to gain the advantage. Evans' field goal in the last few seconds of the extra period proved the deciding factor as the A. L. The K. A.s had earned the right to meet the A. L. T.s in the finals by virtue of their decisive victory over Spencer dormitory Monday night, 23 to 15. Boswell was high point man for the former with 13 points to his credit.

'Alumnus of Year' To Get Emblem

The commencement of 1937 will mark the inauguration of a new and interesting alumni activity.

Louis W. Jackson, '28, president of the Presbyterian College Alumni association, announces that at that time the first gold "Alumnus P" will be awarded to a distinguished son of P. C.

An alumni committee selected by the president will choose from among the men who have gone out from the college a man who has a distinguished record of service to his fellowman and designate him the "Alumnus of the Year." To him on commencement day will be presented a gold "Alumnus P."

The president of the association, in cap and gown, and the recipient of the recognition, also in cap and gown, will have a part in the day's ceremony.

Only one "Alumnus P" will be awarded each year, which will further enhance the distinction of receiving this recognition.

It is to be understood that the citation for this distinction will read "for service to his fellowmen." It will carry out the ideal of P. C.'s motto, "While we live, we serve."

This latest step of the alumni association is one that will bring attention to alumni participation in commencement day exercises, interest the alumn and set a goal before the young graduate on the threshold of his career.

a rising junior was elected secretary-treasurer of the student body.

Wandell Williams, a rising senior from Chattanooga, Tenn., was elected president of the Y.M.C.A. after a second run-off race on Wednesday. On the first run Tuesday morning M. C. Patterson was eliminated. The final balloting Wednesday was between Allen McSween and Williams.

Frank Johnston, who was named vice-president of the student body, also was elected vice-president of the Y.M.C.A. Virgil St. John, of Charlotte Courthouse, Va., a rising junior, was elected secretary-treasurer.

Williams has been a member of the "Y" cabinet for three years. Socially he is a Kappa Alpha, and is a member of Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity.

we won't stand up for Christ.

Following Wardlaw's talk, "Buck" Patterson spoke for a short while on the third and last part of the subject, "The Mob That Crucified Christ." Patterson indicated that the mob was swayed from its love of Christ and didn't know what it was doing. He stated that, for this reason, Christ had compassion on the members of the group, but He also saw their weaknesses. Patterson closed his talk with the question, "Are we to be accused of being part of the mob that crucified Christ?"

The program was closed with a selection by a vocal quartet composed of Jim Collings, Harris Gray,, Malcolm Hemphill, and Nathaniel Heeth. The benediction was pronounced by Chairman McLeod.

The next "Y" program will be in charge of the co-eds, Chester Keller, president of the organization announced today.

tends to establish a feeling of good will between the two groups. As an example of this, the recent discussion of this type that I attended at President Jacobs' home, and the one held in fraternity rooms, were highly successful in creating a better understanding between faculty members and students."

WANDELL WILLIAMS: "First of all, I feel that the student should seek to have a more friendly attitude toward professors. The student should realize that the professors are willing to do their part as long as the student does his. When the student gives up the idea that he is being forced to do something and seeks rather a friendly understanding with his professor, then a better relation will be established.

Now, we wonder whether almost missing their supper the other night on account of laboratory work had anything to do with the following answer by HAYNE TAYLOR and CECIL BUFFKIN, who spoke in apparent dead seriousness: "We think students should be more frequently invited out to dinner by faculty members."

in relation to his personality, needs outlook, and other factors which cause him to either buy or reject the product. I plan first to enter this field and ultimately work up to advertising."

"Do you plan to make any definite changes in the 'Y' organization while you are president?" I questioned him.

"I am working on plans to build a bigger and greater Y.M.C.A. with a new popular conception."

Wandell, who is rated among the best extemporaneous speakers in the state, hails from Chattanooga, Tenn. He is well-informed, friendly, modest, and is a good sport.

A. Keitt Darby

Keitt managed to cast aside his usual foolery long enough to make several statements and argued that he didn't want me to quote him, although he finally agreed that I might send it to press if it was absolutely necessary.

Keitt, commonly called just "Darby," comes from down yonder at Fort Motte, S. C., and no matter where he may be or what may be going on, he has a wise crack for every occasion.

Keitt is the college pianist, performs the same duty for the college orchestra and glee club, is feature editor on The Blue Stocking staff, and was, before his election to the editorship of The Collegian, a member of the contributing staff for the college magazine.

I asked him, "What is your life's ambition?"

He hesitatingly replied, "Well, journalism, advertising and chemical research — count eenie meenie minnie moe, and whichever it comes out on I'll take a shot at it. I'd like to do graduate work at the University of Missouri."

"What do you think of P. C.?" I asked him.

His reply was brief and to the point. "I think P. C. is the most progressive college in South Carolina and eventually will be the best in every respect."

DR. HAYNE SPEAKS ON CONTROL OF DISEASE

deaths in the country than any other disease and even more deaths than are caused by automobile accidents. This last fact shows more clearly than any other the seriousness of the menace as almost everyone knows the death-rate resulting from auto accidents every year, pointed out the doctor.

"It is only by bringing the subject of syphilis out into the light where the general public can be made to realize the seriousness of the menace, that any definite steps can be taken to prevent it," said Dr. Hayne, "and it has been only in the last few years that the word has been allowed to be printed or spoken."

Dr. Hayne concluded his talk by adding that syphilis would be stamped out in South Carolina following an extensive program on the part of the state health board throughout the state.

VOLUME XVIII PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, CLINTON, S. C., MARCH 22, 1937 Number 25

Columbia Professor Is Speaker

Doctor Robinson Addresses Students

Theological Seminary Lecturer Here For Two Days.

Rev. William Childs Robinson, D.D., of Columbia Theological seminary, Decatur, Ga., spoke at a special chapel service this morning on the subject of "Two Musts" of Christianity.

Dr. Robinscon was a week-end visitor at the college and a guest of Dr. D. J. Woods, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. He spoke at the Presbyterian church Sunday morning on the subject of "The Trinity," and also in the evening at the church he used the subject "Faith," using Abraham's life story as an example of faith. Sunday afternoon he spoke to members of the student body in the college chapel at the meeting of the Ministerial club.

In his discussion at the college this morning, Dr. Robinson brought out the story of Christ's discussion with Nicodemus that man must be born again, and that Christ had to be lifted up that man might be born again. He said that the natural is when man is born through the Spirit, while the supernatural was when Jesus was lifted upon the cross for man's sins.

Dr. Robinson is one of the foremost ministers of the South. He is professor of ecclesiastical history, church polity and missions at the seminary, with which he has been connected for several years. He is a graduate of Roanoke college, University of South Carolina, Columbia Theological seminary, Princeton Theological seminary, and Harvard university. He received his D. D. from Roanoke college. He is the author of several books, one of them being "The Certainties of the Gospel." Dr. Robinson is a comparatively young man and has an appeal to college students.

Senior Reception Delightful Affair

Officials of the Y.M.C.A. stated they were well pleased with the reception given by the "Y" organization for the senior class in the "Y" building Friday evening. The majority of the senior class was present with their dates and members of the "Y" cabinet.

The group first attended a sound movie shown for the student body in the chapel at 8 o'clock. The movie was based on actual shots of life in the coast guard.

The group went to the "Y" building where tables were laid out for Bingo. Later in the evening refreshments were served.

About seventy persons were present. Many of those who attended commented favorably upon the reception and stated that the "Y" has set a precedent for such a social for the seniors each year.

PENLAND'S MOTHER INJURED IN COLUMBIA

Students here with sympathize with Jake Penland, sports editor of The Blue Stocking, who was called to his home in Columbia to be with his mother, who was injured by an automobile while crossing a street in Columbia Sunday night.

Mrs. Penland suffered a broken leg and other painful injuries, but reports from her bedside indicate there is no serious concern felt about her ultimate recovery unless complications develop.

MR. PRESIDENT

Joe Commander, of Florence, S.C., who was recently elected president of the student body and the student council at Presbyterian college. Commander is a member of the junior class, of the track and baseball teams, the Y.M.C.A. cabinet and Pi Kappa Phi social fraternity. He was president of the freshman class in 1934-35, and a member of the staff of The Collegian, literary magazine, in 1935-36.

Faculty Members Attend Alumni Meet In Columbia

Dean Brown Principal Speaker. Johnson On Program.

The Presbyterian college alumni association held a meeting in connection with the state teachers' meeting in Columbia last week.

The P. C. alumni met in the English room of Hotel Columbia Thursday afternoon.

The meeting was in charge of Dr. R. L. Coe, professor of education at P. C., who is now on leave of absence serving as state head of the National Youth administration.

The principal speaker was Dean Marshall W. Brown of the college. Coach Walter A. Johnson also spoke.

Presbyterian college has a large group of alumni teaching in South Carolina and a big attendance was reported. The meeting was in conjunction with that of the Columbia alumni chapter.

S. C. History Class To Make Tour Of Charleston Section

A group under the direction of Dr. F. D. Jones will leave Clinton tomorrow morning to visit some of the more important points of interest in South Carolina history.

Each year the class in South Carolina history tours the state and spends some time in Charleston and vicinity studying the early development of the colony. This year they will go by Sumter, Eutaw Springs, the old Santee canal, Medway plantation, and approach Charleston by a route along the Cooper river.

After visiting Magnolia and Middleton gardens, near Charleston, the students will return to their homes on Friday for spring holidays.

Mid-Semester Grades Go In

The registrar has announced that mid-semester grades were turned in Saturday, according to the faculty ruling that professors shall submit grades on all students during the middle of the semester. Copies of the grades for the first half will be sent to the students' parents or guardians.

Within a few days students will be able to get their grades from the faculty advisers.

ALUMNI HEAD SETS TEN-POINT GOAL FOR YEAR

Association To Move Toward Definite Objective In Plans For P. C. Development.

PRESIDENT JACKSON MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT

President Louis W. Jackson, '28, of the Presbyterian College Alumni association, announces a ten-point program that has been drawn up to guide the alumni work during the coming year.

It is the purpose of the program to set forth the new ideals of the association as it enters a period of development and one of contribution to the college.

The ten points are:

1. The developing of a well-coordinated national association of P. C. alumni, founded, financed and directed on a permanent basis.

2. Organizing and reorganizing local alumni associations that P. C. men may know what is going on at P. C.

3. Use of traveling alumni secretary to assist local associations to plan meetings, dinners, smokers; assist officers to publicize local activities; furnish speakers, movies, and other materials.

4. Coordinate the separate alumni units with the central office at P. C. for greater benefit to the college and to individual units.

5. The continuance of the Alumlite as an organ of the alumni, with more contributions from the alumni. It shall be the duty of the secretary of each unit to send at least three letters a year on the members and work of his unit to the Alumlite editor.

6. Inform all the units of the successful activities of other groups and assist in directing similar activities.

7. The awarding each year of the gold "Alumnus P" to an outstanding "Alumnus of the Year."

8. Enlist the support of the alumni in a scholarship program designed to develop their interest in and contact with P. C.

9. Enlist the support of the alumni in the enrolling of new students. Through a P. C. rally meeting, continued activity and a scholarship the P. C. alumni will help bring leadership material to their alma mater.

10. Establishment and emphasis on the placement bureau for use of alumni who have a place for P. C. graduates in their set-up. Contact can be established through the traveling secretary or the placement bureau office.

These are the points of a program that will put the alumni work of Presbyterian college on a high plane of service to the institution.

I. R. C. DIVIDED ON QUESTION OF U. S. COURT

Five Members For It, Five Opposed, and Four Favor Constitutional Amendment.

In a vote taken at the regular biweekly meeting of the International Relations club last Thursday evening, only one-third of the members present voted in favor of President Roosevelt's plan to enlarge the supreme court, with five voting for the proposal. A like number were wholly opposed to it, while four members indicated they would be in favor of the plan if it were worked through a constitutional amendment.

The voting was conducted by Dugald Hudson, whose also spoke on "The Supreme Court Situation." Other talks included "Strikes and Industrial Organization," by Alvin Chapman, and a resume of his trip to the Atlanta, Ga., by Gilmore.

MR. VICE-PRESIDENT

Frank Johnston, of Jefferson, Ga., who was recently elected vice-president of the student body and the student council at Presbyterian college. Johnston has been a member of the student council since his freshman year. He is also vice-president of the Y.M.C.A., a member of the varsity basketball team, and an outstanding student scholastically.

Dr. Wade DuBose To Conduct Series Of Services Here

To Begin March 29th At First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Spartanburg, and chairman of the board of trustees of Presbyterian college, will conduct a series of religious services at the First Presbyterian here beginning Monday evening, March 29, and continuing through Friday night, April 2.

Dr. DuBose ranks as one of the most prominent ministers of the Presbyterian church and is well known to many of the college students. During this series of services students and faculty are invited to attend.

Peabody College Gives Scholarship To P. C. Graduate

George Peabody College for Teachers, of Nashville, Tenn., will give a resident scholarship amounting to $150 to a Presbyterian college graduate of this year for the school year of 1937-38, according to a letter received from Peabody's President Bruce R. Payne by Dean M. W. Brown.

By "resident" the college means that the recipient must live in a college dormitory during the year and take a regular course of study. The scholarship will be paid in three sums, one for each term. The recipient may be requested to render a minimum amount of educational service.

Students desiring further details will see Dean Brown.

Trustees Gather In Spring Session

The board of trustees of Presbyterian college met in the library of the college Tuesday to draw up a program for the school year 1937-38.

They heard a report of progress of the college during the past year and approved the budget submitted by President William P. Jacobs, who this month ended his first year's service as permanent president of the college.

President Jacobs submitted a detailed program for the year, which the board approved.

Holidays Start Here On Friday

To Resume Classes Wednesday A. M.

Spring Recess Brings Lull In College Activities.

Spring holidays will begin next Friday, March 26, at 8 a. m. and will end Tuesday at 6 p. m. Students are reminded that no excuses for absences immediately before and after holidays will be accepted, except in cases of sickness or death. Double penalties will be incurred for unexcused absences immediately before and after holidays.

This is the second year that P. C. students have been granted holidays for the Easter season. Such holidays, however, will be given officially each year in the future.

Because of these holidays, there will be no issue of The Blue Stocking for March 29. The next issue will be on Monday, April 5.

LaMotte Conducts 'Y' Session Here

The Rev. Louis C. LaMotte, executive secretary of Thornwell orphanage, conducted the "Y" services last Thursday night, using the subject "Building Life Through Loyalty."

Mr. LaMotte used the text, "Jesus Christ, whom having not seen, yet we love." He stressed the fact that no one has at any time seen Christ since over nineteen hundred years ago. Yet we must be loyal to that which we have not seen. He showed how loyalty works in building life, and how it should be practiced in our everyday living.

He concluded that in its final analysis the supreme loyalty is due Jesus Christ.

This was the last "Y" meeting under the present administration which will go out of office after the spring holidays.

Chi Beta Phi Elects Officers For Year

At a recent meeting Chi Beta Phi, local chapter of the national honorary scientific fraternity, held its annual election of officers for the coming year. According to a statement by President F. T. Wallace, the new men elected were: President, J. A. Witherspoon; vice-president, Harris Gray; secretary, A. Briggs; and treasurer, H. F. Blalock.

J. A. Witherspoon, of Clinton, is a member of the student council, International Relations club, sergeant in R.O.T.C., and socially a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Harris Gray, of Greenwood, Miss., is director of the R.O.T.C. band and leader of the college orchestra, member of the college quartet, and socially a member of Kappa Alpha fraternity.

Abram Briggs, of Lamburn, is a sergeant in the R.O.T.C. and a member of the class of '38.

H. F. Blalock, of Clinton, is a sergeant in the R.O.T.C. and a member of the class of '38.

Chi Beta Phi is composed of those students who are majoring in science and show the greatest amount of interest in that field.

The election of new men recently held will be announced at an early date, following the acceptances.

After hearing some introductions of speakers we begin to wonder who is supposed to make the speech, the speaker or the introducer.

* * * * * * *

The most optimistic soul at P. C.: The one who again had shrubbery put in the rotunda. Hard to down a person like that!

* * * * * * *

Now that spring is here, a young man's thoughts run not only to love, but also to the ole swimmin' hole we dream about.

* * * * * * *

All's fair in love and war—and elections.

So You've Been Elected . . .

So you've been elected and you're going to turn the school upside down, and you're going to show the former officers what dullards they were! Good for you; but let's see you do all these things you're planning to do. You'll find that the man who takes your place will come in with exactly the same attitude. True, there is great room for improvement in every phase of activity here at P. C., and such improvement can be made even with the facilities we possess. But let's see you do it. We're not saying you can't do it. But we're just saying cynically, let's see you do it.

Mr. President of the Student Council, you've been elected, and no doubt the exultation of victory flows in your veins. But it won't last long; you've got a job on your hands now. You hold the most important student office at Presbyterian. Show us that it is. We're backing you to the limit, if you'll produce the goods. Get this straight, Mr. President, the editorial policy of this paper is strictly in favor of student government: hence you know what support we're going to give you.

Mr. Pat-Sat editor, we haven't much to say to you except that you, too, have a nice, big job, and you'll still have a bigger job emulating the editors who have gone on before you.

Mr. Y. M. C. A. President, you have the best opportunity of all the student officers to do active work. You've got a big job to overcome the prejudice of some on this campus against a Y. M. C. A., or religious activities of any sort. If you think you can increase Y. M. C. A. attendance more than the handfuls that attend now, our hat will be the first to go off to you. If you think you can get more men interested in this work, good for you! But do it! We're not saying it can't be done, for we know it can be done. We're just saying let's see you do it. This paper will back you to the limit if you have the goods — and we believe you have.

Mr. Collegian editor, we haven't much to say to you, either. Limited funds naturally limit the excellency of publications to a certain degree. But we'll be following you. And you're on the spot—for we're expecting a magazine as good as those in the past.

And now, Mr. Editor of The Blue Stocking, how about taking the beam out of your own eye before trying to extract the mote from your brother's eye.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

When N. C. State's "Fatso" (Multigrade) Stephenson and Coach Herman Hickman sit at one of those small tables in the cafeteria, the table is more than crowded. There is probably a lot of "beefing" when those two eat together.

Wake Forest's Professor Aycock, on dismissing his class one day last week because he felt physically unfit for holding forth, said: "Why penalize you for missing something you don't miss," and so he shooed the chickens out without counting them.

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma band have been signed for the Clemson College Taps Ball series which comes off April 23 and 24. The Casa Loma boys will play for three dances in the series.

In working for his education, Henry George Dihlman, a Massachusetts State college student, has been a bell-hop, a truck-driver, butcher, farm-hand, and postoffice helper. Now he has been elected selectman of Schuetsbury and is continuing his schooling.

In a pre-season football game, Clemson college defeated Erskine by the score of 23 to 0 several days ago in a game played on Riggs field. Erskine managed to hold the Tigers scoreless in the first half, but the onslaught took place during the third and fourth quarters. Captain Lewis, in the line, was the star among the linesmen, while Trexler, Sanders and "Canty" Davis led the backfield men in brilliant punting and running.

Threatening to use their "parking power" if the student administrative assembly rules against wearing corsages at formal affairs, co-eds at the University of Western Ontario are ready to plop into their chairs for a sit-down strike. "Down With Flowers For Madame," petitioned the men to the student administrative assembly. But the women are countering with an "I Won't Dance" attitude and declare they'd rather stay home than attend a formal without a corsage.

Recent revelations show that a dozen University of Alabama students became six sets of man and wife during the Christmas vacation.

SOUND OFF

By Ashby Johnson

There have been a few new developments in this matter of government inspection. For one thing, corps headquarters is allowing the inspectors to select their own questions this year and to conduct the investigation in their own way. This is going to be a little hard on commandants, for no one knows exactly what to expect.

Major Wysor is finding that spring holidays are coming at exactly the wrong time. This threatens to break up a well-planned schedule of final training. Well, Major, we hate to see your plans upset, but these holidays are mighty welcome to us.

At last something definite is beginning to develop from the talk of a spring military ball. The juniors have talked the little matter over again and are planning for a gay occasion following close on the heels of inspection. Very appropriate. If experience in the past means anything, the weather man should be consulted as to an appropriate date. Snow is hardly in line with April, ,but that is the only type of bad weather we have not had for the military dances in the past.

A realistic touch was added to the junior class combat training when George Beatty dropped down in a ditch to find it already occupied by a "dead" soldier. It was of bottled type, and to be accurate, was not quite dead. The last we saw of it Parson Wardlaw was carrying it carefully across the fields between thumb and forefinger.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

Initiations of Alpha Kappa Pi men last week at a ceremony presided over by Dave Blankenship, national president of the order, formed the largest group initiation in the history of the local chapter. Ten men were initiated: Cox, Wannamaker, Latimer, Atkins, Culp, W. W. Evans, Kohn Barnes, Timmons, Strain ,and Paschal. All are well known and active on the campus. The A. K. Pi band is to be congratulated on their initiation. Mr. Blankenship is an alumnus of Presbyterian college and of Eta chapter of Alpha Kappa Pi, and now makes his home in Atlanta. After the initiations, plans were formed for a local chapter of A. K. Pi alumni and on Sunday the entire group attended church services in a body in celebration of their memorial Sunday.

Beta Kappa announces the recent initiation of James Buchan, of Mullins, S. C. A group of the boys plan a house party during spring holidays. As to the place they would meet, they only said it would be "somewhere in the good ole low-country."

Kappa Alpha entertained the faculty at an informal smoker last Wednesday night. Both professors and students seem to enjoy these opportunities to know each other better. We think we've got something there, fellows. Let's keep up the good work!

Pi Kappa Alpha deserves the limelight this week for having purchased a new Shep Fields record. If you hear the muse of "Moonlight and Shadows" coming from other than the Pi K. A. rooms you can expect the worst.

It was Pi Kappa Phi that put on the social of the season Saturday night. Girls from Lander, Columbia college, and girls from each knows where else, were there. The dances soon overflowed into the Beta Kappa rooms only to return in pursuit of refreshment containing by Jones [illegible] boy, it was a hum!

SKEETIN' STUFF

Oh yeah! Some girl told Ex Pop G-Man ROLLO SHOEMAKER that he should quit thinking he wasn't cute, 'cause he was only defeating his own cause, and everybody else thought he was cute. Slam: It's a general rumor that KING KONG CAPPELMANN was caught cheating playing 21 to rob young high school girls of their kisses. Can you imagine: J. BROWN EVANS strutted a cute gal at the senior "Y" social. Good: By this time BELLE HORNE will have had the one and only date for him.

POLLY ROBERTS, one of the sweetest of our co-eds, has joined the love parade. She can be seen strutting a swell diamond on a certain finger and looking happy about it too. We don't know exactly what is means, but we do know a gal like Polly deserves the best life can give her. Luck to you, pal!

GORDON HUGGINS takes the entire cake for being easy to fool or an easy fool—anyway, love sure has tripped him another time. About two weeks ago "Hug" was in heaven. The girl of his dreams had at last smiled upon him. He got a nice picture of "he" all done up to send her. Just a little reminder to keep his love fresh in her memory. About the time he was to mail it a telegram rushes in saying, "Boy, wake up. The girl's been married since Christmas." Fate sure "stopped" in his hand, but it all goes to prove women is women and it's a great life if she don'ts weaken.

RAT WILLIAM S. HART and JAKE PENLAND take honors up to now in getting wet the most while going in A section of Smyth. Maybe it's hard feelings or something, but the boys say BO RAT HANSELL is next in line unless he stops coming over to wash his feet in their basin.

JOHN BONNER has been stood up by Laurens gals so much lately he has begun to get used to it. The other Sunday the tender object "called" up to say she was sick. He met her in church the same night. BASEBALL SEASON OPENS HERE FRIDAY

Emory and Henry First Opponent

Virginia Players To Test Mettle of Local Diamond Cohorts First Time This Season.

DAVIDSON ON SATURDAY

With their opening game, against Emory and Henry in Clinton, scheduled for Friday afternoon, the Presbyterian college baseball men are getting a taste of what big league training is like, as their coach, Chick Galloway, former Philadelphia Athletics stopstop, is putting them through swelling paces.

Following the opening game with Emory and Henry on Friday, the Blue Stockings will play Davidson here Saturday. Chick has invited all the ladies of the community to be guests of the college at the games Friday and Saturday.

On Thursday, April 1, the Presbyterians will meet Newberry for the third home game of the season.

With good men out for every position and a hard fight going on for each bag, Chick is well pleased with the spirit his men are showing.

At present he is toying with an infield that probably will consist of Bill Blackwell, veteran from last year, on first; "Shorty" Horne, brother of last year's star, at second; "Piggy" Wilson, sophomore rookie, at third, and veteran Hick Harvin on the hot corner. Batchelor, a sophomore, may take third, with Harvin being moved to short.

The outfield probably will consist of last year's league batting leader, Hawk Evans, with Pitchers Lefty Suggs, Coon Weldon and Joe Commander holding down the other quarters when they are not tossing the horsehide.

Pitt Bird, veteran senior, seems to have the catching assignment sewed up, though third baseman Giles Batchelor is making a stab at this berth.

Suggs and Weldon, both veterans, will carry the burden of the season's pitching, being relieved by Joe Commander, Louis Anderson, and Bill Cox.

Chick is grinning from ear to ear over his prospects despite the short time that he had to get his men ready for their first game of the season.

P. C. Trackmen Meet Carolina Thursday

Tennis Cohorts Take To Courts

College and Town Players To Participate In Tournament.

The intramural sports program enters its second phase of activity with the running off of a tennis tournament beginning on Wednesday of this week. Coach Taylor Martin will have charge of the competition, which will be open to town folk as well as college students.

A complete list of entrants has been determined and pairings will be listed tomorrow. Brackets are so arranged that college and town participants will be separated until the final rounds. In this manner, an accurate point system may be made and applied to the race for group intramural supremacy.

Tennis racquets, autographed by nationally famous racquet artists, will be awarded to the winners, and an excellent tournament is being looked forward to on the well-conditioned P. C. courts.

PEN-POINTS

There's Something In the Air

For a while, things became so dull around the local lot that I had to go to the extreme of studying to pass the time away. But the lull is over, and there is truly something in the air. Chick's charges are getting ready for the current baseball campaign, McMillian's men meet Carolina on the track Thursday, the racqueteers are launching into an intensive campaign, and intramural play is resumed this week. Yes, yes, spring fever and spring sportstuff are on their respective ways.

Have that overcoat cleaned and stored away (advertisement) and join the parade to the games in your linens. A tempting sports dish is being prepared by Walter Johnson and his capable cooks—and this little piggie goes to market with a big appetite. Serve it, brother!

That's Life, I Guess

The man who writes a sporting page
Is foolish, I would say;
He does a lot of labor, friend,
And gets so little pay.

Some say he's partial and a dope—
His stuff is lousy and dead;
While others say he's just a fool
And must be touched in the head.

The average man in this old world
Has got his friends and foes—
The man who writes a sporting page
Has only got his foes.

Go To Columbia For First Contest

Lonnie McMillian's Untried Outfit Takes To Field In Year's Initial Encounter.

VARSITY AND FRESHMEN

Starting with a meet in Columbia Thursday afternoon with the University of South Carolina, Coach Lonnie McMillian's charges open what promises to be an interesting and successful track season.

The Gamecocks apparently have a formidable squad that should push the Blue Hose for high scoring honors, but for the past three weeks, under the careful instruction and tutelage of Coach Lonnie Mac, a fair team has slowly turned into a team that should threaten state records in several events.

The services of Joe Commander will be missed severely in the middle distances. He is suffering from a sinus ailment and will be unable to participate in any engagements for the rest of the year. Walt Beeman, who was thought to be lost to the squad earlier in the season, has returned and should annex many points to the Calvinist column in the pole vault.

The entire squad seems to be in excellent shape and all indications point to a successful invasion of the Birds' territory Thursday afternoon. The probable entries in the various events for the meet will be:

100-yard dash—Cole, Dennard, Hollis, and Ritch.

220-yard dash—Cole, Dennard, Hollis, and Ritch.

440-yard dash—Greene and McRae.

880-yard dash—Greene and Burns.

Mile run: Ellerbe Huntley.

Two-mile run: Bonner, Chapman, and McCully.

Shot put: Boswell, Walt Williams,

Miriam Hopkins says:

"My throat welcomes Luckies—my favorite cigarette for 5 years"

"Luckies have been my favorite cigarette for about 5 years. They're a light smoke that sensitive throats welcome. Of the many trends that sweep through Hollywood, one of the longest lasting has been the preference for Luckies. I once asked a 'property' man—who supplies cigarettes to the actors—what the favorite is. He answered by opening up a box containing cigarettes. They were all Luckies."

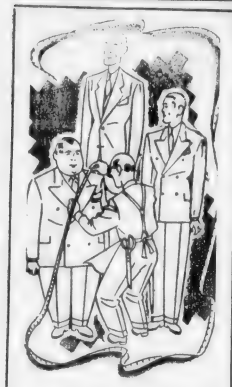
STAR OF THE RKO RADIO PICTURE "THE WOMAN I LOVE"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.



Miss Hopkins verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. VOLUME XVIII PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, CLINTON, S. C., APRIL 5, 1937 Number 26

DAVIES, AUSTIN AND BYRNES TO BE GIVEN DEGREES APRIL 26TH

P. C. FORENSICS GROUP WILL GO TO WINTHROP

Men In Various Branches Will Represent College At Grand Eastern Tournament.

TO BE HELD THURSDAY, FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

Presbyterian college's debate team, composed of Cliff McLeod, E. Ashby Johnson, Dugald Hudson and Roy Hutchinson, will enter the Grand Eastern Forensic tournament which will be held at Winthrop college on April 8, 9, and 10.

The subject to be debated is that selected by Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity, "Resolved, that congress shall be empowered to enact minimum wage and maximum hour legislation for industry."

McLeod and Johnson will uphold the affirmative, while Hudson and Hutchinson will speak on the negative side. Each side will enter ten debates against as many schools, thus making 20 debates for the entire tournament.

This group recently represented P. C. at the South Atlantic Forensic tournament, also held at Winthrop.

The Grand Eastern Forensic tournament is an annual competition to which all colleges and universities east of the Mississippi are invited. The teams are not paired according to size of the school they represent, but are picked by lot, thus probably pitting P. C. against some of the largest schools in the East.

Also, though no definite announcement was given by Hugh Holman, forensic coach, some of P. C.'s representatives will enter other divisions of the tournament, such as impromptu and extemporaneous speaking, etc.

Mid-Year Grades Announced Today

According to figures issued today by Lillian G. Brown, registrar, the seniors proved to be the most scholarly of the classes for the half semester, with only 20 D's and 5 E's, as compared with 30 D's and 13 E's for the juniors. The freshmen, as usual, continued to hold their high record of D's and E's.

The list is as follows:

Mid-Semester, March, 1937
Seniors	20	5	7
Juniors	30	13	17
Sophomores	40	21	38
Freshmen	103	67	18
Totals	193	106	80
Mid-Semester, March, 1936
Seniors	15	7	11
Juniors	30	16	17
Sophomores	51	27	13
Freshmen	87	86	18
Totals	183	136	59

N. S. Heeth Wins Annual Trophy

Nathaniel S. Heeth, a junior, last week received the medal awarded annually by the Y.M.C.A. for meritorious service to the organization during the year. Heeth is from Quitman, Ga., and has done work on the publicity committee during the past year.

In commenting on the award, the Y.M.C.A. officers stated that Heeth had exemplified the spirit of unselfish performance of duty which the organization strives to obtain in all its work.

The medal is given each year by an interested friend of the Y.M.C.A. to the member of the "Y" cabinet who has done meritorious work but which is generally unrecognized.

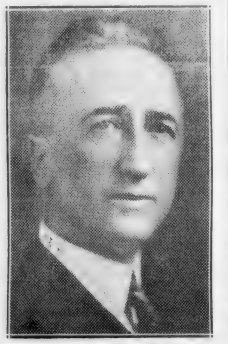
D. W. Davis Will Go To State Oratorical Meet At Winthrop

D. W. Davis, of Rock Hill, has been selected as the Presbyterian college representative in the South Carolina Oratorical contest which will be held at Winthrop college on April 23.

Mr. Davis is a member of the sophomore class at P. C. He was winner of the freshman declamation contest at the college last year and has been an outstanding speaker. He is a member of The Blue Stocking staff, an outstanding athlete, being a member of the varsity football team and the varsity track team.

Mr. Davis' oration is on the subject, "Lost America."

Thanks!



The retiring administration of the Y.M.C.A. wishes to express to the faculty and students its sincere appreciation for the cooperation given in making the privilege of conducting the work of the "Y" a pleasant and profitable one during the year 1936-37.

W. CHESTER KELLER,
Retiring President.

Will Receive Doctor of Laws Degrees April 26th

The above men will receive honorary degrees from Presbyterian college on April 26th. They are, from left to right: Hon. Joseph E. Davies, U. S. envoy to Russia; Dwight Austin, business man of New York, and United States Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

Local Students To Supply Pulpits On Next Sunday

Ministerial Group To Lead Services In Churches.

Various members of the Ministerial club will again conduct the worship services for Clinton church on next Sunday, April 11, according to an announcement today by Cliff McLeod, president of the club.

The plan of supplying the pulpits of the local church has been carried out only during the past two years, but has been highly successful. The students average about four services a year. The group plans to have one more before the year is out.

The schedule is as follows:

W. Chester Keller, First Baptist church, 7:30 p.m.

Cliff H. McLeod, First Presbyterian church, 7:30 p.m.

Hubert Wardlaw, First Presbyterian church of Laurens, 7:30 p.m.

Merle C. Patterson, Broad Street Methodist church, 7:30 p.m. (April 18th).

Wayne Potter, Thornwell Memorial church, 4:00 p.m.

Williams Names Y.M.C.A. Cabinet For Coming Year

Wandell Williams, newly-elected president of the Y.M.C.A., today announced his cabinet for the year 1937-38, which took office on April 1st.

The men chosen for the new cabinet and placed on their respective committee are as follows:

Program: Beatty, chairman, Anderson, Commander.

Social: Eldred MacLeod, chairman; Caldwell, Waldrep.

Music: Gray, chairman; Darby, Wardlaw.

Religious Activities: Allen McSween, chairman; Woodward, Thomason.

Hi-Y: Bill McSween, chairman; Marion Moore.

Freshmen: Ritch, chairman; Holcombe, H. Paul.

Missions: Patterson, chairman; Heeth, Frank Cogburn.

Publicity: Heckle, chairman; Black, Pete McCormick.

No Deputation committee — However, this work will be engaged in this year more extensively than ever before. There will be about three teams, made up of different ones from time to time.

Williams, in commenting on the selections said, "In order to popularize and bring greater prestige to the 'Y' organization, men were chosen in such a way as to allow this situation to the brought about. The new cabinet is made up of men from every fraternity, from every form of athletics, from every phase of extra-curricular work, and we believe these men to be leaders in their particular field.

"Since our new cabinet is made of men of such calibre, we believe that the 'Y,' under their administration, will be molded into the greatest force for good and the developmnt of real Christian manhood that has ever permeated the campus at P. C."

CHARLES WINS CONTEST

Preston Charles, class of '36, who is now a student at the University of Missouri school of journalism, recently won a spelling contest as a representative of that university which was held over a radio station in St. Louis. His team was spelling against one from William and Mary college in one of the newest attractions to come to radio, that of spelling bees.

DR. H. W. DUBOSE COMPLETES WEEK OF RELIGIOUS SERVICES

Spartanburg Minister Speaks At College and First Presbyterian Church.

The Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Spartanburg, and chairman of the board of trustees of Presbyterian college, conducted a series of religious services at the First Presbyterian church here beginning Monday evening, March 29, and continuing through Friday, night, April 2.

Dr. DuBose also spoke at a special chapel service at the college on Thursday morning, using as his text, "Now abideth these three, faith, hope and love, but the greatest of these is love."

Dr. DuBose ranks as one of the most prominent ministers of the Presbytrian church and is well-known throughout the South.

During the meetings the attendance was large and included many of the college boys.

Monday night he spoke on "The Promise of the Holy Spirit"; Tuesday, "Riches of Grace"; Wednesday, "The Divided Heart." Perhaps the most enhancing of his subjects, according to some who heard him, was that of Thursday night when he spoke on "The Haunted House."

Wardlaw Heads Religious Group

Hubert G. Wardlaw, a rising senior of Marietta, Ga., was last week re-elected as president of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity. D. M. Morrison, rising junior of McClellanville, was elected as vice-president, while W. H. Wilkerson, a rising sophomore, of Scottsburg, Va., was chosen secretary-treasurer. M. C. Patterson, rising senior, of Moultrie, Ga., was chosen as chaplain.

These officers will take their positions at once. Wardlaw succeeds himself as president He has been active in other religious circles on the campus.

MILLER LEAVES SCHOOL

Miller has made many friends here during his stay who regret to see him leave. He was a sophomore.

AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA TO BE HONORED

Prominent New York Business Man and U. S. Senator Will Receive Honorary Titles.

SPECIAL CEREMONIES ARE BEING PLANNED

Governor Olin D. Johnston, Federal Judges and Others To Be Here For Exercises.

Following a telephone conversation with Joseph E. Davies, ambassador to Russia, on board the Queen Mary enroute from Southampton to New York, William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, announced on Thursday that the ambassador and his wife, U. S. Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, and Dwight E. Austin, prominent drug manufacturer of New York, and their wives, will visit Presbyterian college Monday, April 26, at which time honorary degrees of doctor of laws will be conferred upon the ambassador, Mr. Byrnes, and Mr. Austin by the faculty and board of trustees of the college.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies will return from Russia this week. On April 26 they will arrive in Clinton on the 11:42 train from Washington, along with the other guests. They will be met at the train by the college military corps, Hon. Olin D. Johnston, governor of South Carolina, the federal judges of South Carolina, the college faculty, the mayor of Clinton, and the college board of trustees. The party will go immediately to Johnson field where the guests will attend a review of the military corps, following which a special luncheon in honor of the guests will be held at the college dining hall.

Following the luncheon, the ceremony of conferring of the degrees will begin. Rev. Henry Wade DuBose, D.D., chairman of the board of trustees, of Spartanburg, will preside. Senator Byrnes will give a brief address following the presentation of degrees. Ambassador Davies will make the principal address of the occasion. The program will be broadcast over radio station WBT, Charlotte, and probably over a nation-wide hook-up.

After the ceremony the guests will make a tour of the college and attend a baseball game between Presbyterian college and The Citadel. Also, they will see tennis matches between the P. C. and Citadel teams.

Mr. and Mrs. Davies will leave at six o'clock the same evening by train. They will go to Washington, and shortly thereafter they expect to sail on their yacht, "Sea Cloud," for England where they will attend the coronation ceremonies of George VI.

P. C. Graduate Gets Fellowship At Wisconsin U.

Venable Martin, graduate of Presbyterian college in the class of 1936, and now holding a fellowship at Duke university, has recently received an appointment as an assistant in mathematics at the University of Wisconsin.

This appointment pays $800 per year and also gives all out-of-state fees, making it the equivalent of $1,000. Mr. Martin will teach eight hours of work a week.

Mr. Martin is a native of Clinton and the son of the late Professor V. V. Martin head of the mathematics department at Presbyterian college for 30 years.

HISTORY CLASS VISITS SCENES OF EARLY EVENTS IN COLONY

P. C. Students See Many Places In and Around Charleston Associated With Colonial Days of South Carolina.

Leaving the college on the morning of the twenty-third, Dr. Dudley Jones conducted his class in South Carolina history on their annual trip to Charleston, visiting many points of historical interest along the way. There were about 25 in the party, which included a few students not in the class who were interested in making the historic tour.

The first point of interest was the State House in Columbia, where certain members of the party inspected the senate and house chambers, and visited the Confederate museum in the building. Damaged portions on the south side of the State House were pointed out as having been the results of the time during the War Between the States when "the Yankees" burned Columbia, and directed their artillery on the Capitol building.

The entire party next met at historic old Stateburg at the old Episcopal church of the Holy Cross. Back of the little old church, beneath moss-covered gravestones, rest men whose names have been a byword in South Carolina for over a century. The most famous of these was Joel R. Poinsett, cabinet member and diplomat, and although in the minority in politics, he nevertheless became one of the leading statesmen in South Carolina. R. B. Anderson, one of the greatest Confederate generals, was also buried there, as well as John Marant, who fought under John Paul Jones.

As we left Stateburg, Dr. Jones told the group that the range of hills nearby were called the High Hills of the Santee, and that early settlers came up there to live in an effort to escape the swarms of mosquitoes that infested the lowlands.

After leaving Stateburg, the class next visited the tomb of General Thomas Sumter and his daughter-in-law. General Sumter, a native Virginian, came to South Carolina on a visit and remained here the rest of his life, mostly in the service of the state. He was a brigadier-general in the Revolutionary war, and later became a member of the Continental congress and a member of the United States senate. His daughter-in-law, Nathalie Maria Louise Stephanie Beatrix de Lage de Volude, whose tomb was about as big as her name, was exiled from France by Napoleon because she was of the nobility. Dr. Jones gave a very interesting talk on the Sumter family.

Near Eutawville at Eutaw Springs the class visited the scene of some of the bitterest and most continual fighting during the Revolutionary war in South Carolina, before going on to Belle Isle plantation, near Moncks Corner, where General Francis Marion is buried. Almost in the edge of a swamp, this national hero of the American Revolution, truly called "the Swamp Fox," lies buried beneath a monument placed over him by his admiring fellow countrymen.

Other historic points visited before reaching Charleston were the remains of Biggin church and the grave of the original founder of its parish, Sir John Colleton, one of the Lord Proprietors, Mepkin plantation, and the grave of Henry Laurens, one of the richest planters in South Carolina, and Goose Creek church, in old St. James Parish near Charleston. It was established in 1706, and the official coat of arms of England is still to be seen over the altar.

After spending the night in the city of Charleston, the group the next day met Dr. Jones near the spot where Stede Bonnett, an early pirate, and his men were hung, on the Battery. There Dr. Jones pointed out Fort Sumter and Fort Moultrie in the distance across the harbor. After visiting the scene of early settlement near Charleston, the party returned to town and visited the city hall where they saw many paintings of historic figures in South Carolina history. There was a painting there of George Washington that an official said the federal government had offered the city of Charleston a million dollars for, but that they had refused to sell it. Next the class visited historic St. Michael's Episcopal church, and the old Huguenot church.

That afternoon the group visited the Charleston museum, where, besides seeing many interesting exhibitions of South Caroliniana, they had the privilege of seeing Negroes flail and polish rice as their grandfathers had done in the days of slavery. They also sang several old plantation songs.

The next day the group disbanded, many of them going directly to their homes for the holidays, and several of them visited the famous gardens near Charleston on their way home.

Student Faculty Relations At P. C.

(Editor's Note: The following article appeared as an editorial in a recent issue of The Blue Stocking. It is being reprinted here because of its widespread interest to many who will receive this issue of the paper not regularly on the mailing list).

This year, more than ever before, there has been more effort exerted, both on the part of the student body and members of the faculty, to establish a better understanding between them. What have been the results and what more can be done?

First of all, each faculty member was appointed advisor to a certain per cent of the student body, and to act as personal advisor to his group as well as to give them a report of their grades periodically. It was, in many cases, possible to assign to each professor those students who were majoring in the courses he taught.

This plan has afforded the student a means of being privately informed of his progress and the average student appreciates this fact; but numbers of students interviewed felt that beyond this point the plan has been a failure. However, they offered this solution: The faculty advisor should meet with his advisees as a group, either in the Y.M.C.A. building or his home, and there give each man a written report followed by an informal discussion by the group, which would result in a better acquaintance between the advisor and the advisee and would make the latter less reticent to seek a private conference with his advisor.

Recently President Jacobs began a plan designed to bring the faculty and student body closer together, by means of an informal discussion of the problems each had to face during their daily associations. This forum, which was held at President Jacobs' home, set the example for one social fraternity, and recently other fraternities also have been hosts to such randson of Founder of Presbyterian Carries On In Spirit of Illustrious Predecessor.

JACOBS ENDS FIRST YEAR AS PRESIDENT

MANY IMPROVEMENTS MADE DURING HIS ADMINISTRATION

When the board of trustees met arly this month and approved the ork of President Jacobs and okehed program for next year, he was ompleting his first year as permaent president of Presbyterian Colge.

So successful has his presidency been that we are giving him a first ear's grade of AA, only because that is the highest possible. The following a brief summary of the remarkable rogress that the school has made nder his leadership.

The year 1936 was probably the richest and fullest that Presbyterian ollege has ever known. For the first ime in its history the college operated without a loss. Previously it had been showing considerable deficits. Materially, the college advanced. The Y.M.C.A. was housed in a communi- building which is a recreation center. The Y.M.C.A. organization was greatly expanded and strengthened. An infirmary was set up on the campus to care for the sick, and is already showing that contagious diseases have been checked greatly. Despite an increase of fifty dollars in tuition, enrollment for the second consecutive year showed a capacity figure. We have all the students that we can handle with our present equipment, and the college is in a position to select its students carefully.

The faculty, a group of able Christian scholars, happily blending the wisdom of age and experience with the earnest enthusiasm of youth, has moved on to greater academic heights than ever before in the history of the college. And what we consider one of the most significant features of the year has been the strengthened friendly relationship between the faculty and the students by means of fraternity faculty-student socials, open forums where faculty members and students exchange viewpoints and ideas, and the informal, cooperative atmosphere on the campus. The faculty is larger and younger, thus affording more frequent contacts between faculty and student.

There has been a renascence of religion on the campus. The Ministerial club, for several years a group viewed without favor by the majority of the students, has almost overnight gained the esteem and respect of the entire student body. The Y.M.C.A., with its weekly devotionals, its Sunday afternoon services to which it invites outstanding ministers of the South, its extensive program, has become a part of the life of practically every student, not just the limited group which for a period it served. Our deputations, made up of students from every walk of scholastic life, have told the story of the college to many churches and have been enthusiastically received. The religious emphasis week, with services conducted by Rev. J. N. Thomas, of Charleston, was a great success. Our deputation teams are doing a great work of evangelization and our Bible extension courses are growing more popular.

Our new commercial department is not only the most practical but also the most popular one on the campus an is a decided asset to the college.

Our hearts are gladdened by an increase in our income from the churches in South Carolina and Georgia, and particularly by the very generous response of the Auxiliaries to the dollar-a-member campaign. We are deeply grateful for this encouraging assistance.

During the past year 47 new scholarships of $200 each have been established at P. C. by our friends to help pay the cost of education for students from Thornwell orphanage, sons of ministers, candidates for the ministry, and other worthy applicants. We are hopeful that we may reach our goal of 100 scholarships before the end of this year.

Our library has been greatly enhanced in value and service by the addition of over 9,600 volumes, a bequest of the late Dr. William I. Sinnot. We now need a place to put them, for our library quarters are already crowded.

Our central steam heating system has been made much more effective by extensive repairs and new improvements. The buildings of the campus are being rapidly repaired and completely painted. It is now a brand new looking institution.

The bonded debt is at last out of the way. All of the bonds have been purchased by the college at fifty cents on the dollar or less except $5,500, and the funds are in the hands of the trustees to buy the remainder as soon as they can be procured. We are thankful to God and our many friends for so much kindness.

First Year Over

PRESIDENT JACOBS

'Y' COMPLETES SUCCESSFUL YEAR AT P. C.

Reporter Writes of Accomplishments of Administration.

With the induction of Wandell Williams, a junior, of Chattanooga, Tenn., as president, the Presbyterian college Y.M.C.A. administration under the direction of Chester Keller comes to a close. Keller's administration perhaps marks the most successful year the P. C. "Y" has ever had.

Perhaps the most outstanding single piece of work was the issuing of the student handbook, under the editorship of Eldred MacLeod. The book has meant much in starting the new students off right in campus life here.

The most outstanding combined feature of the Y.M.C.A. during the year was the institution of preaching services on Sunday afternoon which were conducted by some of the foremost ministers of Georgia and South Carolina. Those who came here were Rev. J. A. Marion, Rock Hill, S. C.; Dr. J. N. Thomas, Charleston, S. C.; Dr. Robert McQuilkin, Columbia, S.C.; Rev. C. E. Piephoff, Greenville, S. C.; Dr. J. W. Jackson, Columbia, S. C.; and Rev. John S. Dickson, Atlanta, Ga.

Another institution by the "Y" was that of having prayer meetings in the dormitories each Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, which has been successfully carried out. During the administration, two weeks of prayer in the dormitories were conducted with every student taking an active part.

Interesting and varied Thursday night programs were conducted each week. Among the programs given were those by Miss Dorothy Hagan, a music recital; Bell Street (colored) singers; Rev. E. S. Jones, Goldville; Rev. W. N. Long, local Baptist pastor; Dean M. W. Brown; Dr. Neil G. Whitelaw; Dr. J. C. Long; deputation from Newberry college; Columbia Bible college deputation, and Lander college deputation.

Under the auspices of the "Y," the Lander college A Capella choir was brought here for a Sunday evening service in the First Presbyterian church.

Another feature of the past "Y" administration was an elaboration of the deputation team program, which sent students to various other schools to give worship programs. Among the schools attended were Clemson college, Limestone, Lander, Columbia Bible college, Columbia college, Erskine, Newberry, Winthrop and Converse. A few deputations were sent to churches, among them being Owings, Lydia Mill, Purity church in Chester.

The "Y" since it is essentially for the purpose of forming a Christian association on the campus, did little to stress its work in social activities as these are taken care of by other organizations on the campus. But it held a rather unusual affair recently when it entertained the seniors at a formal reception that was pronounced successful.

FORENSICS HAS BIG PLACE IN P. C. PROGRAM

Debating, Oratory and Other Types of Speaking Engaged In By Students.

While I was at a recent gathering of the debating squad the air was flying thick and fast with bombastic remarks that the affirmatives and negatives were directing toward one another. The subject was, "Resolved, that congress shall be empowered to enact minimum wage and maximum hour legislation for industry." The debate got so hot I began to wonder whether the dear boys were interested in the question or in telling each other what they personally thought of one another. And what they personally thought wouldn't do to tell you right now, my children. Throughout the debate each man was striving to do away with the other's argument by tricky strategy. And then I heard in another room, sometime later, one of the "hot air boys" (orators) whooping it up and fanning the breeze with his arms as he was telling us that this was a lost generation. The dear fellow still believed in us!

But seriously, we were thinking of each of these men in a business gathering arguing for something which he believed to be right and which he desired. And somehow we could not help but think that the man who was a member of the forensics group in school was winning that argument. He had argued and fought verbally a little too often in school for that experience not to come in handy.

This year's forensic group presents an array of future citizens of the country who have during the year developed leadership in speaking ability if they have gained nothing else. Whether minimum wages and maximum hours meant anything to the debaters might be debatable itself, but the fact that they have received training in speaking and argumentation will do them good.

The debaters this year have been E. A. Johnson, Cliff McLeod, Dugald Hudson, Roy Hutchinson, Gus Cartledge, and Robert Black. The orators have been Hubert Wardlaw and D. W. Davis, and the impromptu and extemporaneous speaker has been Wandell Williams. Note that not one of these is a senior; therefore, there will probably be good material next year. Coach Hugh Holman has been directing the activities throughout the year.

The forensic group first encountered real opposition at the Strawberry Leaf tournament in the fall, which was held at Winthrop college, and we think debating was not the only thing that interested the boys there. It was a practice tournament, so no decisions were given. Then came the South Atlantic tournament held at the same place, in which the debaters took on twelve school in debate from as far north as Pennsylvania and as far south as Florida. The competition was stiff, as more than 20 colleges were engaged. But the results weren't anything to write home about. We're still reminding you that all of P. C.'s men were practically inexperienced, and that we're counting on 'em next year.

On April 9, our representative in the state oratorical contest, D. W. Davis, will be stacked up against the best in the state.

And next Thursday, Friday and Saturday the debaters take on 20 colleges picked from every state east of the Mississippi in the final and greatest tournament of the year, the Grand Easter Forensic tournament. That would make about the thirtieth time the debate question on maximum hours and minimum wages has been used. Well, they must be pretty tired of something like that after so many times. But with all the intercollegiate debates the boys have been engaged in, you see they've had an opportunity to do a little mouthing on the question. And after that tournament, there'll be a few more debates including one with Birmingham-Southern college of Alabama.

The forensic group is welded together in the local chapter Pi Kappa Delta, national forensic fraternity. The requirement for membership is to have engaged in at least six intercollegiate speaking contests.

"Young novelists must have the exacting kind of courage necessary to endure isolation. Radios, automobiles, telephones, new books and magazines are wolves in sheep's clothing," Josephine Lawrence, author of "Years Are So Long," offers Columbia University novelist-to-be her "more her- and more success" formula.

Students At Work In Library

The library of Presbyterian college is one of the best equipped in the state. Recently it was left the personal library of the late Rev. William I. Sinnott, D.D., containing over 8,000 books and 10,000 pamphlets. Also it contains government publications, a special collection of South Carolina history material, which was given by Captain Ellison A. Smyth, as well as the McIlwain Memorial library, established by Dr. Wm. E. McIlwain.

Co-eds Play Active Part In Campus Life Here At Presbyterian College

Since Presbyterian was made co-educational over a year ago, co-ed activities have increased here and the girls are finally beginning to take their places in campus life. While it may take some years for P. C. to become a fully developed co-educational institution it is well on its way now.

The group of nearly forty co-eds have meant quite a bit in the cultural life of P. C. lads. They have been handy at socials, dances, shows, and filling those lonesome evenings when certain local swains have nothing to do. If your reporter were asked what he thought about having more co-eds here he'd answer that he is all for it. But nobody has asked him, so he'll just up and say that he is for it. For it would mean quite a bit to Presbyterian's growth to have the feminine touch around here a little more than we have. And too, Presbyterians don't have a college for women in the state of South Carolina, and why not make P. C. answer the purpose for both boys and girls.

The co-ed vote is one with which to reckon in your next campaign. Nearly 40 votes can swing any election around here. But few candidates have taken advantage of this, so take note.

Certainly, co-eds are showing up well in scholarship. The boys who used to be so mighty as leaders in scholarship are taking back seats as the entire average of the girls tops the entire average of the boys.

As for social activities, the girls have their own sorority, Alpha Psi Delta, which has been putting on socials of various kinds. Co-eds have been engaged in athletic activities, religious organizations, and other work. Some of them are student assistants, an honorable job when you consider that they are gotten on merit. Others are engaged in self-help work of various kinds, usually in the administration offices. In literary work, they have places on The Collegian staff, and the poet of the school is a co-ed, while others dig up "scoops" for The Blue Stocking.

The administration hopes in time to have a co-ed dormitory here so that a larger number can be taken care of. At present some of the girls stay at private homes near the campus.

In conclusion, we say that co-ed life has developed quite a bit around this institution since we have been here.

STUDENT-FACULTY RELATIONS AT P. C.

groups. At one fraternity meeting, to which several faculty members had been invited, the time for adjournment was set for nine o'clock. The discussion began with everyone rather ill at ease, but by nine o'clock the conversation had assumed such interest that the time for adjournment was forgotten until eleven o'clock. One student reported that as a result of this meeting his attitude toward a certain professor had changed from an extremely unfavorable one to one of frank admiration. This we consider to be the greatest step taken toward improving relations between the faculty and the student body, and it is an open challenge to fraternities and other organizations to follow suit.

We feel that the preceptorial plan being tried here at P. C. in three courses has already proved its value of being worthy of permanent adoption. However, at this time, we only wish to discuss that phase of it which tends to promote a better understanding between the faculty and student body.

We have talked to three professors who are using this method, and also to students from each of the three classes. We found that in every case there was first, praise of the method, then an expression of sincere interest in the courses, and finally, a more friendly attitude on the part of the professor toward the student, and the student toward the professor. This plan is new in Southern colleges, and is certainly new here at P. C. However, we believe its success warrants its adoption in other courses.

Thus we find these forces that work on the campus for the promotion of better understanding between members of the faculty and the students. The faculty advisor, informal fraternity discussions with faculty members present, and the preceptorial plan of informal class meetings

All this, however, depends on our attitude as individual students and faculty members. We can be indifferent, or non-cooperative, and thereby doom all such efforts to quick failure. On the other hand, we can be enthusiastic, and if we are willing to invest our enthusiasm in a few bonds that may be at first theoretical, we will be doubly repaid in practical dividends later on.

In the rear of the building is the college canteen and the school mail boxes. The canteen, which recently has been renovated, is run by students. Through it students are able to buy text books and other school supplies.

The upper story contains rooms for students.

Through the use of the "Y" building, students have a place in which to receive visitors to the campus and to enjoy more their college life.

Can One Like What He Dislikes?

Life is rich and flourishes with likes and dislikes. Mankind rejoices in doing those things which he likes and uses every device and instrument in his power to avoid doing those things which he does not like to do. Mankind in his shrewdness, however, is avoiding the greatest satisfaction which life has to offer. The man who can conquer by doing that which he dislikes is the man who will find eternal blessedness in life regardless of the likes and dislikes. Man is proud and selfish. He is egotistical and forgetful of others. Much of the altruistic spirit has been interred in his own egotistical pride. It is easier for him to exalt pride and ego and avoid humility and unselfishness. Numerous would be those on the roll of martyrs and masters if, instead of avoiding those things we disliked, we would put our shoulder to the cross and bear it to victory.

There would be more heroes of the Christian faith if we had more men who were willing to avoid pride and exalt the Christian virtue of humility by unselfishly gaining the victory of liking that which we dislike and disliking that which we have so often liked and prided too much in the past. It is easy to bask in the sunshine of those things which we like, but it is like walking through the dark passageway of the tunnel to put our shoulders to the lever of those things which we dislike and lift them to the level of loving them. Remember, however, that the darkened passageway in the tunnel ultimately leads to the opening through which the dazzling beams of appreciative light shine brightly across the darkened passageway.

Humanity must learn the value of walking this darkened passageway of dislikes before he can come into the sunbeam of perfect satisfaction. Christianity is a religion which teaches one to like what he dislikes and the highest peak of Christian living can never be attaned as long as we continue in the pathway of likes and avoid the stairway of dislikes.

The man who has enemies naturally would hate them and avoid them. If one should despitefully use you, you would avoid him and have nothing to do with him, which is absolutely contrary to the teachings and principles of Christianity. Christianity teaches us to love our enemies, pray for them that despitefully use us, and go two miles with him that asketh us to go one. There are admirable men who do with honor that which they like to do, but it takes a martyr to do those things which he dislikes to do.

Since military inspection is coming up, military interest has suddenly shown a great increase.

No Man's Land: Alpha Psi Delta sorority meeting.

The I. R. C. is divided on President Roosevelt's court proposal, while the girls of Converse are pretty sure that the majority of them favor it. Interesting it is that women's colleges are favoring the proposal more than the men.

The Last Lap

Now that everyone is back after the spring holidays they should all be ready for the final lap of the school year—the last quarter. There'll be a lot of things to overcome—low grades of the first quarter, spring fever, over-doses of spring activities, etc. For seniors, there will be the usual hurry and preparation for graduation exercises when all the mamas and papas and aunts, uncles, cousins, etc., come in to wish you success and give hearty congratulations, but no job. And then, there are summer nights, with moons, military ball, Panhellenics, and spring air and open woods beckoning you to stir out; but there won't be any stirring if you're wise, for in that last lap you'll be having your nose to the grindstone writing term papers, preparing outlines, and getting ready for exams and military inspection, while sophomores will be putting in that final effort to make the advanced corps.

Yes, you're on the last lap, and in some cases it's going to take some mighty spurts for certain students to cross the goal as winners.

Presbyterian's Miliary Corps

No one at Presbyterian appreciates the significance of military training more than those engaged in it, both students and officers. Military life is that which keeps up to a large extent the manhood of this college.

Because this is a church school some outsiders have asked why we have military training. They have asked the ministerial students why they take military training, since they apparently have the very erroneous idea that ministers are opposed to such training and that the church is also opposed to such training. Well, we who are in it are the only ones who can say whether such training should be required, since, of course, we are the ones who are experiencing it and therefore know better than anyone else what effect it is having on us.

Apparently, those who ask us these questions have not gone deep enough into the question of military training. Presbyterian College does not have military training to prepare men for aggressive war; Presbyterian College has military training to build men, and in doing so prepare them for defense of those things which all of us as Christians and Americans hold to be sacred and honorable. We have such training to make men out of high school boys come to college, and in most cases these have stumbled through high school without bodily or disciplinary training such as is given with military.

To think of Presbyterian without military training is to think of a school that would have but few leaders. An analysis will show that Presbyterian campus leaders are in military. That is but natural, as leadership shows itself where leadership is necessary and when it is necessary.

We as students deplore the action of some students throughout the country who are against military training. We have a hunch that they are opposed to it not for conscientious scruples, but that they are out and out too lazy and yellow to undergo the disciplinary training that goes with military. In other words, their opposition is but a mark of their opposition of anything that tends to build manhood.

We who engage in military training are also interested in being able to defind successfully the things that we will defend whether we are prepared to do so or not. Apparently, those opposed to military training seem to forget that we always as a nation defend ourselves; therefore, it is the logical thing to be prepared for such a defense. We do a lot of talking about how we are not going to go to war under any condition, but when the time comes along we go and are just as bloodthirsty as the rankest militarist. But in every case in our past history we have not been prepared and the enemy has been getting our blood until after two or three years we got prepared and then licked him.

At Presbyterian, men are taught in military to think on their feet, how to command men, how to speak before groups; thus they lose some of that backwoods awkwardness that characterizes so many of us. They are taught and trained to have an interest in their personal appearance; orderliness is emphasized. Obedience is stressed; disobedience is not tolerated; respect for superiors is inculcated into the minds of the men. The drill they receive develops physical poise and growth. Slovenliness, disobedience, indifference and laziness are not tolerated in the military department so long as the student is on the drill field or in class. In final, leaders are developed, whether the scoffer cares to admit it or not.

CAMPUS ODDITIES

STUDENT OPINION

Editor, The Blue Stocking:

Mr. Editor, no doubt you get tired of hearing people complain and no doubt you sometimes get tired of being told that you're always wrong. Now, I'm not saying you're always right, nor am I saying you're always wrong. But if you're wrong you're right and if you're right you're wrong. (Or maybe I have it backwards). Anyway, Mr. Editor, I'm not complaining; the world's all rosy as far as I am concerned. My girl hasn't kicked me (yet) and P. C.'s still a pretty good ole place, take it all in all. Now, I'm not saying whether your paper is good or bad; I'm just saying I couldn't do the job any better, so I'm keeping quiet. No, I don't have anything in particular to write about; I'm just writing to see if this will get in your paper.

But, Mr. Editor, you've heard of Mr. Kipling's immortal poem, "If," and it brings to my mind the number of times we have heard that little word used in connection with Presbyterian college. You know, there's always some gink who will say. "Now, if P. C. would do this or that it would be much better off." But, Mr. Editor, I'd like to do a little "iffing" myself. So here goes:

If we had six months holidays twice a year; if we had no classes seven days a week; if there were no professors to plague us with aggravating assignments; if all our beds were covered with fine satins and linens and all the mattresses were stuffed with feathers; if all the floors, fine Persian rugs and ivory inlaid furniture in the finest of upholstery, no college bills to pay; if college mice house that and changed movies twice, you didn't have to pay to someone would tear down tower and give "Elrod" a half dollar to go on "and yo' business"; and if times as many co-eds and them were as alluring as Garbo, as fascinating as Marlene Dietrich, as beautiful as Jean Harlow, as debonair as Robert Donald, and could sing as well as Bing Crosby, though one of the best I know of, would be more to me.

Yours for more and better millionaires,
ROMEOETTE.

Editor's Note: Yeh, and all millionaires — we'd be glad to agree quite heartily with you say about P. C. being a good school and all that, Mr. Romeoette, and we're quite flattered that you're just writing to be sure to see if you can get into this publication, and we appreciate your wit, but come around, dearie, and let us help you get started. the first of this letter (?) don't you have a headache. This paper is always open for opinions, Mr. Romeoette, so don't worry about your literary getting printed (if you have it to say).

THE INQUIRING REPORTER

With so many changes being made in the college today, and with so many new advantages being planned for the future, we decided to ask the timely question, "WHAT INTERESTS YOU MOST AT PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE TODAY?"

FRESHMAN SKINNER told us in a very few words what most interested him at P. C. as he said: "My associations with people here on the campus has interested me most at P. C."

PITT BIRD, having observed P. C. for almost four years, told us: "The thing that interests me most at P. C. today is the progress that President Jacobs not only has made, but also is making, in his plan for a better college here."

FRANK JOHNSTON, vice-president of the student body, also was very positive about what interested him at college today as he said: "My course of studies interests most at P. C. because that is I'm here for. I'd like to see the ence and pre-medical department built up to be the best in the —you know, with large clean tories and modern equipment. also interested to know how the talked-of preceptorial system work in science courses. The course, the extra-curricula activities interest me greatly, for they delightful break to the year's ties."

We found W. J. LANGSTON at work in his room, but he answered our question willingly enough, said: "Plans toward modernizing the educational system here at interest me very much; such preceptorial method being the philosophy department."

QUOTABLE QUOTES

Either they try revealing their own hearts, which are not very full yet, and which they are generally unable to interpret, or they decide to imitate some well-known author in describing artificial situations which they know even less well than themselves." A while back I said wedding bells would ring three times before Christmas. I was wrong, because one couple beat me to the draw, and kinder upset the dope, 'cause that made four. Now I'm here to tell you that three seniors and two sophomores will trip down the aisle before school is out! This doesn't even include a junior who is seriously thinking. We hope Cupid is doing the right thing—and if this shoe fits you, hope you have all the luck and happiness in the world! More power to you.

PITT BIRD, one of our R.O.T.C. lieutenants who gives his job all the dignity and poise he can summon, had a little setback the other day. While inspecting his men he was questioning about their rank and rifle number etc., when he suddenly asked a freshman who his platoon leader was. The rat quickly replied, "Sergeant Bird, sir." No more need be said except that a method was quickly discovered that would put an end to all sit-down strikes if properly used.

If I could get all the excuses that were sent in to Major Wysor explaining why men couldn't get back on time from the holidays, and put them together with the answers to letters I send home asking for money, I would not have to worry about stuff for this column for the remaining two months of school! Ain't we got fun?

"HAWK" EVANS and "SCREW ARM" SUGGS stayed over during the holidays and caught up on their courting and baseball games. A couple of cute gals kind of hung around, so they could see these dashing Romeos. As time marched on everything went along fine until one of the sweet young things reminded Suggs that he might make a grandstand play for her, but he couldn't get to first base unless he first showed her the diamond. That took Screw Arm off guard so much that he still can't figure out why. We don't know, Bo—you tell us!

MILITARY UNIT HERE ENJOYS HIGH RATING

Reporter Gives Resume of History of P. C. Corps.

PREPARES FOR INSPECTION

When P. C.'s cadet corps goes out for its annual spring inspection on April 15 and 16, it will have before it the task of upholding the high standard of the Presbyterian R.O.T.C. unit. Every year so far P. C. has rated "excellent" in government inspections. Besides rating thus, the unit has, for the past several years, been recognized as one of the outstanding in the South. It has won the general proficiency cup at Fort McClellan four times out of seven years and seven times out of the last fourteen, and last summer it won second place.

The corps, which is at present under the command of Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., assisted by Major F. C. Harding and Sergeant Sterlin Young, presents a varied and interesting history.

An old P. C. correspondent of some years ago gives us a rather interesting account of the development of military training here.

In September, 1918, the college agreed to suspend the regular curriculum and to use the plant and equipment in training men to qualify as second lieutenants. Only such courses as had been approved by the government such as mathematics, chemistry and French, were used. This was done in colleges all over the United States and these units were called the S. A. T. C. (Students' Army Training Corps).

Some of those who remember P. C. in the days of the war tell of Laurens dormitory being turned into an infirmary when the flu epidemic broke out. Some 25 men were confined in Laurens and not a man of them was lost. The P. C. campus was a regular military post. In the spring of 1919, the S. A. T. C. units were withdrawn from colleges, and Second lieutenant Ray L. McFarland, who had been in charge of training here, was released.

In the spring of the same year in which the S. A. T. C. was withdrawn, the college made application for a unit of the newly-organized R.O.T.C. In November, 1920, Col. E. L. Glasgow, U.S.A., retired, became the first real commandant.

Very different are the neat, and very attractive uniforms worn by P. C. students today from those then in use. Our tailor-made uniforms of today mark quite an advancement. Those who reminisce tell of the days when came in only two sizes, too large or too small. But those who see the uniforms of today see neatly tailored, attractive ones that have an appeal to the student.

Then, too, far removed from that day is the excellent R.O.T.C. band that we now have. It was not until 1927 that enough band instruments were issued by the government for the organization of an R.O.T.C. band.

Colonel Glasgow remained in charge of the corps until the summer of 1929, when Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., then a captain, came to relieve him. Major Wysor has had as assistants, First Lieutenant A. N. Taylor (1927-32), Major W. L. Blanton, infantry (1932-35), and Captain G. S. Beatty (1935-36). This year we have Major F. C. Harding as assistant professor of military science and tactics.

At present R.O.T.C. training is a definite part of the life of a student here, for all are required to take such training except by special permission from President Jacobs. But there are few loathe to take it since there is the prospect of the advanced corps with a new and attractive uniform with "pink" pants, and dark coat and cap and an income from the government. In the summer following the junior year, members are required to take six weeks of training at Anniston, Alabama, and are given a regular soldier's pay. Drill is required one hour every morning for five days a week. Freshmen and sophomores are required to take only one and one-half hours of class work, while juniors and seniors take three hours.

If one looks through the old college annuals, the PaC-SaC, he can find some good laughs in the R.O.T.C. section, but don't laugh too loudly — your R.O.T.C. picture will be in the annual and perhaps another chapter of the R.O.T.C. history will be written ten years from now and someone may look way back to the 1936 annual.

CAMPUS CRUISING

What's What On Other Campuses

By Pete McCormick

With a holiday, banquets, procession and speakers featuring the event, J. Rion McKissick will be inaugurated president of the University of South Carolina on Tuesday, April 6. This will be one of the biggest events in the history of that school. They're getting a new rooster at the head of the poultry yard down there. Hey, what, Gamecocks?

The following statement was made by Dr. Hugh Murchison, head of the English Bible department at the University of South Carolina: "I don't think Bible and religion should be required because of the prejudices that would result."

Dr. Murchison favors voluntary chapel attendance. His reason is that if the University authorities would be satisfied with voluntary attendance, the attendance would steadily increase.

Well, dear old Sheppy Fields left Sing Sing on the Ashley (The Citadel) en route for Dillon, S. C., down the good ole low-country, where he was met by a flock of P. C. swishters who traveled down from all sections of the state just to cruise around on Shep's rhythmic ripples. And did they swish!

Someone asked Joe Commander how many people were down there and Joe replied that 1500 stepped on his feet and he approximated that there were 500 more people that he couldn't get close to, so he's about right in saying there were 2000 taking part in the riot.

Seeing that the Clemson kay-dets are all agog over the signing of Glen Gray to play for the Taps ball over at the "Barnyard" college on April 23 and 24, we think a little advice won't do them any harm.

These large swing orchestras will kind of muss you up when you start barn and square dancing, and it really doesn't work so well. So we'll advise you to either learn how to "Yankee dance" before Glen comes down or break your contract with him and sign up the "Briar Hopper Boys" or the "Hoosier Hot Shots."

Sports Flashes From Clemson

Monday—Clemson vs Yale (tree-sitting).

Tuesday — Clemson vs Philosy U. (crocheting).

Wednesday—Clemson vs Staggerwater U. (marbles).

Thursday — Clemson vs. Winthrop (wrestling).

Friday— Clemson vs Westminster Dairy (milking).

Saturday — Doubleheader — Clemson vs U. S. C. (funneling and plowing).

University of South Carolina at last has been provided with a much-needed student building. The showers on the east campus is the new boast-about. The following schedule has been announced: Men bathe on Mondays; co-eds on Tuesdays; faculty on Wednesdays; and Thursday is preserved for "pump day."

This crack is from the Clemson Tiger:

"Most remarkable are the new improvements which have been made at Presbyterian college. Here these ingenious lads have secured a new wooden floor for their basketball court. The Blue Stocking, official P. C. publication, states that it is quite an improvement over their old clay court. Their next aim is to save their pennies and buy a goal for the north end of their court. They were very fortunate in being left one goal by the class of 1896. It is hoped that the class of '38 will have at lenst one ball to play with."

A University of Southern California student wrote home as follows:

Dear Father:
Roses are red, violets are blue.
Send me fifty—I love you.
The father wrote back:
Dear Son:
Roses are red, some are pink.
Enclosed find fifty—I don't think.

Coach Bob Zuppke, of the University of Illinois, states that any player who can't digest pie and pastries cannot play on his football team. He says that any player whose stomach is not strong enough to do so is too weak to play football.

Plans are under way at the University of North Carolina to arrange a contract with Horace Heidt and his famous swing band for the junior-senior hops no May 7 and 8. They were notified that Horace's band could be secured for the dates and the contract would, if agreeable, call for at least $3,000 on the part of the dance officials and promoters.

HOSEMEN HAVE .667 PERCENTAGE IN STATE RA

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

THEY CAN'T BE HAD

While most of the local lads were frolicking around at home in celebration of spring holidays, Presbyterian athletic teams were opening their campaigns with sweet victory. The trackmen journeyed to Carolina on Thursday and spent their time on returning talking about a 65 to 61 conquest of the Gamecocks. And Mr. Galloway's baseball team stopped Emory and Henry and Davidson before whipping Wofford in their college league debut.

In winning from Newberry the other day, our baseball stock rose considerably. The Indians are billed as a contender for the title. Boasting a versatile, star-studded outfield, the Hosemen will be hard to beat. Evans, in left field, is the hardest, surest hitter in the state and hasn't missed a ball since Absalom Lindsay last took a shave. Coe patrols the center garden and is a skillful hitter. Captain Suggs and Wldon alternate in right field. Both are dangerous at the bat, supreme in the pitcher's box and all there when it comes to snagging flies. Pitt Bird is doing some nice work behind the plate and is capable of some long-distance stickwork. The Blackwell-Horne-Harvin-Batchelor infield combination worked smoothly and consistently against Newberry and contributed four of the eight hits registered. My word, boys, I don't see how you can lose.

SHAVINGS

The Scribbler, Spartanburg high school publication, is one of the best in the state . . .

The guy who hoisted a "Tennis Tech" flag up on the campus pole created quite a stir recently, and also raised the faculty ire . . .

Daniel Webster Davis and Jefferson Davis Trawick are roommates . . .

The other day Major Wysor asked Pitt Bird to call the R.O.T.C. unit in from drill—the boys were half a mile away . . .

Frankie McNeil was elected captain of Citadel's cage team for next year—he was our choice for an all-state guard position during the past season . . .

Cappelmann and Clements, P. C. boxers, were state champs in their weights in 1937 . . .

Roy Forehand seems to be the only local athlete able to make four letters in four sports—and they say he smooches well, too.

P. C. Has Excellent Coaching Staff Led By Walter Johnson As Director

JOHNSON McMILLIAN GALLOWAY FOREHAND

Athletes of Presbyterian college are coached by a staff of men that, with the exception of Walter Johnson, athletic director, are all P. C. graduates.

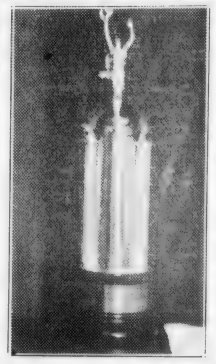
Johnson, dean of South Carolina coaches and second in years of service at one institution only to Bob Zupke of Illinois, is head man of Blue Stocking athletics. Coming to P. C. in 1914 from Milwaukee as a young man fresh from college, he has taken the year equipment he found then and the athletic program of baseball and football which they boasted, and built P. C. into the best equipped college proportion to its size in the South and one with an extensive program. He has at one time or another coached every one of the eleven Blue Stock outs takes time off from his many ing intercollegiate sports. Today, in addition to his work as athletic director and professor of physical educa tion, he coaches football, boxing, and lends assistance in the others.

Second in command of the sports ship is Lonnie S. McMillian, a P. C. graduate who returned to coach track, assist in football, and coach basketball. He has served here fourteen years now.

Chick Galloway, a Johnson-coached baseball player who played great ball for Connie Mack back in the days when the Philadelphia Athletics were really good, is baseball coach—and he's turning out great teams.

Roy Forehand, who garnered 21 letters and numerals in four years at P. C., is the freshman football, basketball and track coach.

Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., coaches golf, while President William P. Jacobs takes time off from his many duties long enough to coach the tennis players. He is assisted by Taylor Martin.



Georgia U. Stars Swamp Hosemen

Take 99-27 Verdict In Winning Every First Place.

Facing a strong University of Georgia track team in Athens Saturday, the Blue Stockings courageously bowed in a 99-27 defeat. Outscored in every department, P. C. fought an uphill battle and was unable to annex a single first place.

Coach Lonnie McMillian was quite satisfied with the showing he charges made against the powerful Bulldogs, however, as he realizes the fact that Georgia probably has the best track aggregation in this part of the country and also the fact that they are the meet they team to upset. L. S. U.'s previous track prestige.

Who'll Get It?

The Kappa Alpha trophy, presented annually to the outstanding senior athlete at Presbyterian college by the local chapter of Kappa Alpha fraternity upon recommendation of the athletic council.

Last year the trophy was awarded to a five-letter man, Roy Forehand, who, in four years, garnered 21 letters and numerals.

Who's going to be the lucky brawn and bone man this year?

Hosemen Blank Newberry Nine

In Second Palmetto League Victory. Suggs On Mound.

Lefty Suggs was stingy with his hits, his mates gave him strong support at bat and afield, and Presbyterian whitewashed Newberry, 2 to 0, in her second state triumph.

The Clinton-played game was featured by sensational garden work by Weldon and Evans and the steady play of the entire nine. Only three hits were garnered off Captain Suggs by the Indians, while P. C. registered six.

In the mile run, Ellerbe Huntley and McCully took second and third places, respectively, both finishing under five minutes. In the 440-yard dush, Biffet Greene took second place. The time in this race was 52.5. No points were registered in the century dash. "Deke" Reynolds finished close behind "Spec" Townes and "Monk" Arnold to take third place in the 120-yard high hurdles. Greene managed to capture third place in the 880 yard dash which was clocked at an exceedingly fast time. Norwood Cole finished third in the 220 to add one more precious point to the scant Hose scoring column. McCully crossed the tape third in the two-mile in a grueling race.

In the 220-yard low hurdles, Rey molds again finished third. In the pole vault, Rountree, of Georgia, had a hard time nosing out Beeman for first place, with Hemphill taking third place honors. J. B. Jacobs put the shot sufficiently far enough to secure a third. No points were scored in the discus. Joe Hollis and Mason Hemphill met with better success in the javelin, capturing second and third places respectively. The meet closed when Hollis heaved a spear 22 feet, 6 inches to take second place.

P. C. ERRORS COSTLY

Wofford's Terriers utilized errors and bunched hits to score a 5 to 4 victory over Presbyterian and dampen Blue Hose hopes for a pennant Saturday afternoon.

Coon Weldon got a bad start and found himself in hot water as he was scored by Commander in the third. The Florence product gave up only two hits until the end of the game. He gave a smooth mound performance for the Terriers and sent eight men back to the water bucket.

The Hosemen put on a determined rally in the seventh that netted them a pair of runs, but the Methodists' lead was maintained through the scoreless eighth and ninth stanzas.

Hawk Evans led the P. C. stickwork with three hits, while Howell and Ashemore collected a pair each for Wofford.

Intramural Sports Have Big Part In Student's Life Here At P

Look all around you! That bustle and bustle that lasts from September until the middle of May isn't students studying and rushing from class to class or uptown to the "social cinema"—not always. A fair portion of P. C. athletes taking part in the Presbyterian college intercollegiate program.

And that program covers a lot of sports. In the fall there's football, and from September until December the king of sports. But when the Christmas holidays have rolled past, basketball takes the spotlight, soon to share it with boxing and swimming.

About the first of March a brief interlude comes, but it's soon broken by track, cross country running, baseball, tennis, golf, fencing, and rifle marksmanship.

And the records haven't been so bad. Stack football up against any in the state, and despite P. C.'s student body of only 300, you'll find for all games played the Blue Stockings have won more than any other school. Even their state record against powerful schools is far better than 500 percentage Then, too, no one's going to forget those immortals such as Charley Wilson, Witherspoon, McMillan, Caskey, honorable mention all-American Jimmy Green, J. B. Copeland, and last year's Captain J. B. Jacobs. Eleventeen all-staters, several S. I. A. A. and S. I. A. A. championship in 1930—that's a swell record, if you ask me!

And basketball is swinging along too. Five year we only finished fourth, but the same skilled players will make up the 1938 team and it is already being picked for the state championship.

P. C. and Coach Walter Johnson sponsored intercollegiate boxing in South Carolina and is always to be connected with in first circles of the state. Next year's team will boast two South Carolina Golden Gloves champions, Curley "Joe Lewis" and Billy Burns.

With the best track in years and with the state meet here on it this year for the fifteenth consecutive time, the Hosemen always ways near the top in the cinder

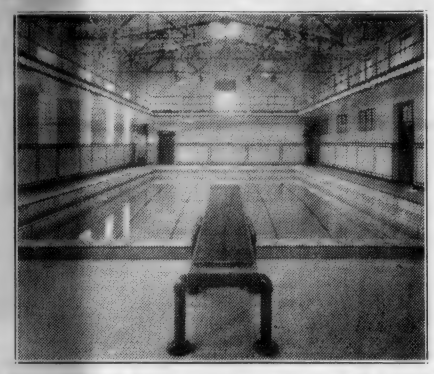
With its nationally famous clinic to which such famous Bitsy Grant, Wilmer Alison, and Midge Van Ryn, and Cardegnia come annually, and the state tournament on its courts, the P. C. tennis prog recognized by the press of the as among the finest.



Football, baseball, basketball, track, swimming, cross golf, rifle marksmanship fencing—P. C.'s record is splendid every one of them. And far more portant, P. C.'s participation one has been marked by that gible but very real and vital thing called throughout the the P. C. spirit.

Last year P. C. had a student of 345 students and of that 318 took part in its intramural gram—just playing for fun and ing a swell time doing it.

The intramural year started company football in the mildest moves on to inter-fraternity and inter-dormitory swimming, gaining momentum as it nears the Christmas holidays as fifty or more husky on padded gloves for the inter boxing program, and then reaches high climax in tennis when and now battling for a champ

After that there's baseball, basketball—and the sports editor this paper is now pleading for pong.

P. C.'s Swimming Pool

This regulation tile swimming pool, in the east wing of the gymnasium, is a gift of Col. Leroy Springs. It was built in 1929 at a cost of approximately $50,000, and is considered one of the finest pools in the South.

ALONG GREEK ROW

The general attitude among the Greeks since the holidays seems to be one of proverbial "spring fever." Perhaps the present lassitude is too pleasant, perhaps the grassy plots on the campus are too inviting, or then it may be that thoughts are still dwelling upon the gay holidays just past. At any rate, this columnist was hard put to find news of any form—either past, present, or future.

Alpha Kappa Pi's social Wednesday night furnished more than momentary escape from the ordinary. Pleased were the guests with the newly-decorated rooms, pleased with the many out-of-town girls, the local girls, and pleased with bountiful refreshments. It was the largest crowd of recent years.

Alpha Lambda Tau announces coming initiations—and a social scheduled for the near future. That's good news!

Tonight Pi Kappa Phi entertains the faculty in their rooms on the campus.

During the holidays some of the Beta Kappa boys met for a little conviviality which was very successful. Last Friday night several of them journeyed to the Beta Kappa dances at Furman. That, too, was an enjoyable occasion.

Kappa Alpha gave a social Wednesday before the holidays—old news, but it was a good one.

Pi Kappa Alpha was a little hesitant this time to announce the addition of ten new records to the files. That's almost too good to be true, and there were several by Benny Goodman!

This week the new Panhellenic council is to be elected. Watch this now, it means our dances for the coming year.

The social fraternities are now looking forward to spring social activities, including the Panhellenic fi-

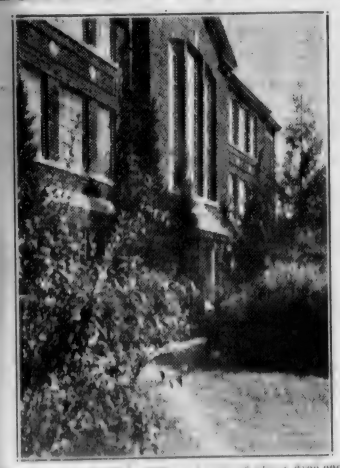
"Poor Man's Frat" At Syracuse Leads Scholastic Parade

Syracuse, N. Y., Apr. 2.—The "poor man's fraternity," Pi Alpha Chi, at Syracuse university celebrated its first anniversary with the knowledge that it had scored the highest fraternity scholarship record ever made on the campus.

Founded, by eleven juniors, for students financially unable to join other Greek letter societies, Pi Alpha Chi has, within the year, swelled its membership to 37 and acquired a house on the campus in addition to breaking the old scholarship-average mark.

"Pi' Alpha Chi has had a grand year, but one year is too short to give a perspective on success," said A. Blair Knapp, director of men's affairs at Syracuse university, at their founder's day dinner.

"The danger zone is still ahead. Whether Pi Alpha Chi is a success cannot be said until five years have passed and the original founders, whose enthusiasm created the fraternity, are no longer here to carry it on."



Last fall Pi Alpha Chi declined an offer to affiliate itself with a national fraternity which once had a chapter at Syracuse on the reasoning that expenses would be increased and the ritual lost.

All expenses at the fraternity have been kept low. Membership, fees and dues included, costs a student from $15 to $20 a year. The initiation fee is $2.75 as compared with $70 to $100 in other fraternities.

The size of Pi Alpha Chi is limited, to prevent over-expansion, by by-laws to no more than 12 members from each class. Pledges are chosen leisurely throughout the year, after the other societies have finished their rushing.

nals which loom on the horizon. These generally prove to be the big social activities of the year. However, no announcements have as yet come forth from the Panhellenic council.

Leroy Springs Gymnasium

The gymnasium was built in 1924 at a cost of about $100,000, and was a gift to the college from the late Col. Leroy Springs of Lancaster. The first floor contains an armory, physical director's classroom, commercial department, lockers, large dressing room, shower baths, storage room, and well-equipped quarters for visiting teams.

P. C. HAS MANY ORGANIZATIONS FOR STUDENTS

Various Fraternities and Clubs Give Outlets To Those Desiring Extracurricula Activities.

All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy—and P. C. is one place where boys are never dull. But don't get the wrong idea, for all play and no work makes dumb boys, and we aren't dumb either.

And it is the social fraternity and the club groups that add much to the rich enjoymnt of leisure time at P. C. Six national fraternities have chapters at P. C.: Alpha Kappa Pi, Alpha Lambda Tau, Beta Kappa, Kappa Alpha, Pi Kappa Alpha, and Pi Kappa Phi.

These fraternities have large club rooms, beautifully furnished and well-equipped for a wholesome and fascinating social life. Approximately forty per cent of the student body belongs to one or the other of them.

Rushing season, coming during the first six weeks of the year, is an assurance to the freshman that he won't be given a chance to become bored or unhappy before he learns to become a part of the fascinating life which is P. C.

There are also a number of clubs which add to the social and intellectual life of the college. The national forensic fraternity, Pi Kappa Delta, has a chapter here. The national scientific group, Chi Beta Phi, has a chapter. The national Christian leadership group, Delta Chi Alpha, has a chapter. There is a dramatic group, Sock and Buskin; a French club, Le Cercle Francaise; a chapter of the International Relations club; a minisetrial club; a chapter of Sigma Upsilon, national literary fraternity, and a local scholastic fraternity, Sigma Kappa Alpha.

Class Of 1936 Makes Plans For Spring Gathering

Richard "Red" Potter, president of the class of '36, recently announced that an annual meeting of the class has been called for May 1, during the state track meet. The meeting probably will take the form of a banquet.

Editor Hugh Holman of the class's annual publication, The News of '36, reports that he has received information from practically every member of the class and that the publication will go to press soon.

Potter says that a large percentage of the class members have paid their annual fees and that the first payment of the annual $100 scholarship which the class bough has been made and the second will be made in May.

'36 has been the only class that has maintained an active organization, gone about publishing a newspaper, and collected fees, and the response of the members has been splendid—few are the shirkers!

SOUND OFF

E. A. JOHNSON

We have been reading a good bit lately about anti-R.O.T.C. demonstrations in the colleges of the country. It seems that someone is afraid that military training is making college men war-minded. It is a bit unreasonable to think that men who have had some training and realize that they would be the first to have to fight would be the ones to stir up trouble. Well, ,we are not arguing the merits of military training. We are just calling attention to the fact that spring is the season for student strikes, May day demonstrations, and peace parades.

Springs is also the season for government inspections and examinations. Major Wysor cannot forget that there is less than two weeks till the time P. C.'s corps will be under the eagle-eye of an inspector, and he is not letting anyone else forget it. There is a lot of work to be covered in a short time, but P. C. has always been able to come through with excellent rating, and we are willing to bet that the corps will be ready and waiting for anything that this year's examination has in store.

The sophomores are beginning to realize that chevrons "are not tatooed on." Recent tests given to aspirants to the advanced corps have resulted in a new corporals' list and a reranking of the class. We wonder if even this is to constitute the final appointments before the end of the year.

Pay day has come around again but it is bringing greatly reduced checks to quite a few members of the junior class. By the time those white uniforms are paid for there is not going to be a whole lot left. The hardest thing for these impoverished gentlemen to bear is that it now seems that there will be no chance to display the uniforms which have been earned at this sacrifice.

The prize incident of the week on the drill field was the sight of Lieutenant Bird rushing with irate countenance into the ranks of his platoon to find out who had referred to him as Sergeant Bird.

Heckle To Edit "Y" Handbook

With the announcement by Wandell Williams, president of the Y.M.C.A., of the appointment of Louis G. Heckle as editor of the handbook, came also the latter's staff appointments for the book, edited by the publicity committee of the association.

Heckle, managing editor of The Blue Stocking, is from Fort Valley, Ga. Soon after his acceptance of the editorship of the book, he announced the following staff appointments:

Associate editor, Robert Black, of York; business manager, N. S. Heeth, of Quitman, Ga.; other staff appointments: R. W. Williams of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Pete McCormick, of Pennsylvania; M. M. Hemphill of Griffin, Ga., and T. Q. Jones of Gainesville, Ga.

Editor Heckle announces that there will be few major changes in the book, the coming issue being the second to be published.

The cover will be red, trimmed and lettered in blue, being just the opposite color scheme from that used in the first issue. The little volume will be dedicated to Dr. F. D. Jones who, for many years, has been chairman of the Y.M.C.A. faculty advisers, and who is also a loyal and a sincere and personal interest in the work of the "Y" and the student body at large.

The book will be printed the latter part of May.

Delta Chi Alpha Initiates New Men

Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity, has announced the initiation of several new members into the organization, according to Hubert Wardlaw, president.

Those initiated were: S. A. Lipsey, Savannah, Ga., freshman; W. L. Wilkerson, Scottsburg, Va., freshman, and William D. Hart, Atlanta, Ga., freshman. They have shown interest in religious work by being active in the Y.M.C.A. and by conducting services in neighboring churches on Sundays.

Professor Bernard H. Boyd, faculty member at Presbyterian college, and Rev. C. E. Pipihoff, pastor of the Monaghan Presbyterian church, Greenville, were initiated as honorary members for their outstanding work as religious leaders.

Activities Clearing Bureau Is Begun

An information bureau has been established at the college for the purpose of facilitating the carrying out of student extracurricula activities without conflicts, according to an announcement made today.

Hugh Holman, publicity director of the college, will be in charge of the bureau.

All organizations or groups which plan any kind of activity, such as socials, dances, or other functions, will make known to Mr. Holman the dates of such activities. Each faculty member who leaves the campus on trips is requested to furnish the bureau with information pertaining thereto. If certain activities conflict some of them must be postponed. In order to carry out this program of faculty control of activities it is necessary that all organizations give their cooperation by notifying Mr. Holman of any activity they plan to have. In this way it is hoped to avoid much of the conflict that has existed in the past between activities of one organization with another.

Wysor Announces New Appointments

In an order dated March 29, Major R. E. Wysor, commandant, announced the list of corporals and first-class privates for the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. unit for the second semester. Eighteen corporals and sixteen first-class privates were named. Also, the men were listed in their relative ranks. M. R. Ritch headed the corporal list, while L. D. Sullivan headed the first-class private list.

To be corporals: M. R. Ritch, D. W. Davis, J. B. Hafley, P. M. Clement, L. H. Taylor, W. C. McSween, W. E. Pope, J. L. Culp, T. Q. Jones, W. B. Todd, W. H. Shanhart, G. G. Batchelor, J. J. Dennard, R. F. Hutchinson, R. L. Boswell, E. G. Lambright, C. M. Huntley, W. F. Gilmore.

To be first-class privates: L. D. Sullivan, D. H. Reynolds, W. P. Jacobs, III. C. McAdams, C. W. McCully, D. M. Morrison, L. H. Adams, L. S. Henderson, J. P. Byrum, R. Black, L. G. Heckle, E. J. Horne, L. H. Davidson, T. M. Bethea, L. B. Folley, J. R. Booth.

P. C.-Trained Teachers In S. C. Show Increase

The great and growing contribution that P. C. is making to secondary education in South Carolina was clearly in evidence at Columbia last week.

There were not many less than a hundred P. C. alumni in attendance at the State Teachers' convention at one time or another during the two-day program.

These representatives of the college have acquitted themselves well and each day new calls come to the Dean's office for men and women trained in the ideals of Presbyterian College to come and teach in the schools of South Carolina and states.

CORPS INSPECTION IS THIS WEEK

SCIENTIFIC FRATERNITY HONORS FOUR MEN WITH MEMBERSHIP

M. E. Norton, K. Darby, F. R. Johnston, and R. W. Forehand Elected To Chi Beta Phi.

ALL ARE ACTIVE IN SCIENTIFIC WORK

At a recent meeting of Chi Beta Phi, national honorary scientific fraternity, four new men were elected to the organization for the coming year, President Furman T. Wallace announced today. The men elected were: M. E. Norton, Dillon; Keitt Darby, Fort Motte; F. R. Johnston, Jefferson, Ga., and R. W. Forehand, Allendale.

Malcolm Norton, a member of the senior class, is a member of the International Relations club, a Bible assistant, and an outstanding student of chemistry.

Keitt Darby, a junior, is editor of The Collegian, the college magazine, feature editor on The Blue Stocking staff, pianist for the glee club and orchestra, member of the Y.M.C.A. cabinet, and the International Relations club. He is majoring in chemistry.

Frank Johnston is vice-president of the student body, an assistant in chemistry, and a member of the basketball squad.

Roy W. Forehand, a graduate in the class of 1936, receiving a B.S. degree, was an outstanding student, having been mentioned in "Who's Who Among Colleges and Universities in the United States." Forehand is now on the coaching staff of the college.

Chi Beta Phi is composed of students who are majoring in science and show the greatest amount of interest in that field. The fraternity has as its aim the furthering of science among students.

On Wednesday the above men will be initiated into the fraternity at a special meeting.

"Y" Holds Banquet For New Cabinet

Jacobs Is Principal Speaker For Occasion.

On Wednesday evening, April 7, the newly-appointed members of the 1937-38 Y.M.C.A. cabinet enjoyed a delightful banquet in their honor which took place at Hotel Clinton.

During the courses, Wandell Williams, president of the "Y," made an inspiring talk and introduced several of the guest speakers. Dr. Dudley Jones, chairman of the Y.M.C.A. advistory committee, made a talk on the duties of the Y.M.C.A. and approved the "Y" program for the coming year. Remarks also were made by Dean Marshall W. Brown, Dr. D. J. Brimm, and Professor B. H. Boyd.

The principal speaker of the evening was William P. Jacobs, president of the college, who, after several humorous stories, stressed the fact that the Y.M.C.A. was no "sissy's" organization and that Williams had made a wise move in appointing members of all athletic teams and at least one representative of every phase of college work to serve on his cabinet. Mr. Jacobs also stressed the fact that the administration had, to a certain degree, neglected the "Y" and that during the coming year the administration would back them in every move.

Major Harding Inspects R.O.T.C. Unit At Augusta

On Friday, Major F. C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics of the R.O.T.C. corps here, inspected the junior unit of the Richmond Academy R.O.T.C. in Augusta, Ga. Lieutenant Roy W. Forehand, reserve officers assigned to the unit here, assisted Major Harding at the inspection.

"They have a very fine unit at the academy," Major Harding told a reporter for The Blue Stocking. "I was impressed with the general efficiency and interest of the academy cadets."

After the inspection the officers witnessed a golf match between Richmond academy and representatives of P. C., and then returned to the college where they resumed preparation for the annual government inspection of the P. C. battalion, to take place this week.

Charleston Man To Speak Here At SKA Banquet

IS FORMER RHODES SCHOLAR AT OXFORD

J. Robertson Paul, of Charleston, will address Sigma Kappa Alpha, scholastic honor society, at its annual banquet on the college refectory on the evening of April 21, according to announcement made today by Dr. Frank Dudley Jones, chairman of the faculty committee on speakers.

Mr. Paul, one of the state's leading business men, is owner of the Paul Motor company of Charleston. He is a graduate of the College of Charleston, and was a Rhodes scholar to Oxford where he studied law. He has a son, Huiet, who is president of the freshman class at Presbyterian college.

Present at the banquet will be the faculty, members of the honor society, and invited as special guests will be those students who are on the dean's scholastic roll of honor.

"HACK" MIXSON HAS OPERATION

"Hack" 'Mixson, sophomore at Presbyterian college, was operated on for appendicitis in a Charleston hospital on April 6. His condition today was reported to be favorable, and he soon will return to college to finish the spring term.

ANNUAL GOVERNMENT TESTS BEGIN THURSDAY MORNING

Will Probably Continue Through Friday Morning.

MAJOR J. E. MATTHEWS OFFICER IN CHARGE

On Thursday morning at eight o'clock the annual government inspection of the military unit of the Reserve Officers' Training corps of Presbyterian college will begin with a parade before the inspecting officer, Major James E. Matthews, of North Georgia college, Dahlonega, and will continue during the remainder of the morning and possibly into the afternoon or the next day, announced Major F. C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics, today.

Immediately after the parade and review the special platoon under Captain Patrick will demonstrate combat principles of a platoon in actual warfare. After Major Matthews completes his inspection of the demonstration he will review company, platoon and squad close order drill on Johnson field. The theoretical inspection or examination prbably will be held in the military science class rooms in the science building in the afternoon.

Formerly the inspector had a certain government form to follow in carrying out the inspection, including previously-written questions on the theoretical part. However, this year the government is permitting the inspector to conduct the inspection in the manner he sees fit.

Major Matthews comes from a military unit that prides itself upon its ability to copy after the national military academy, both in discipline and general efficiency, and it owes that reputation in great part to the personal efficiency of its commandant, Major Matthews.

Speakers Return From Tournament

Two Men Take Part In Forensics Engagement At Winthrop.

Presbyterian college was represented at the Grand Eastern Forensic tournament held at Winthrop college last Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, by Cliff McLeod and Dugald Hudson.

Besides entering the debates, these two also entered extemporaneous, impromptu, and harangue speaking contests. McLeod won second place in the Catawba extemporaneous contest, while Hudson won third place in the Eastern harangue speaking contest. More than 22 schools from all sections east of the Mississippi were represented at the tournament.

McLeod and Hudson upheld both the affirmative and negative sides of the debate question, "Resolved, that congress shall be empowered to enact minimum wage and maximum hours legislation for industry." They debated ten times in the three days, six times on the affirmative side, and four on the negative. Among the teams defeated by Presbyterian was the University of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Teams debated against by P. C. were: Waynesburg, Penn.; The Citadel, Charleston, S. C.; Tennessee Polytechnic institute; University of Cincinnati (twice, affirmative and negative); St. Thomas college, Minnesota; Elon college, North Carolina (twice, affirmative and negative), and the University of Pittsburgh.

National Fraternity Meets Here On 16th

The national convention of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity, will be held at Presbyterian college Friday night, April 16, beginning at 7 o'clock.

At this meeting delegates will come from the five chapters in South Carolina: Wofford, University of South Carolina, Furman, Textile Industrial institute, and Presbyterian.

Chester Keller, national president, has announced that the Rev. Charles Griffin, pastor of the First Baptist church, Walterboro, S. C., will make the principal address of the evening. Mr. Griffin was the first national president of the fraternity when it was organized and chartered in 1931.

At the meeting the new national officers for 1937-38 will be elected.

'Y' Has Interesting Meet Friday Night

Opening the weekly services for the coming year under the direction of the new Y.M.C.A. cabinet, Dr. John McSween, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Chester, spoke at the meeting Friday night. The former president of Presbyterian college was welcomed "home" by an unusually large number of students and faculty members, making the opening service an outstanding success.

Ably assisting Dr. McSween on the program, were ten members of the Limestone college glee club. This group rendered four selections and sang the benediction.

Dr. McSween chose as his text the story of the rich young ruler and particularly stressed the phrase, "One thing thou lackest." He brought out the fact that, though we may have many virtues, as did the rich young ruler, if we are lacking spiritually we have a great cavity in our lives.

He also gave several interesting illustrations to show that if a person's character is soiled at any time, his service is greatly reduced. He closed with a poem, "The Bird With the Broken Pinion," comparing this to a human soul with a black spot on it.

The executive committee of the "Y" was well pleased with the program and according to a statement by Wandell Williams, president of the association, intends sponsoring one program of that nature each month.

The Y.M.C.A. calls to the attention of student s the changing of the programs from Thursday to Friday night.

LAWRENCE H. MIXSON, JR., OF CHARLESTON, MARRIES

On Monday, April 5, Lawrence H. Mixson, Jr., was married to Miss Florence Swan, of Charleston.

Mr. Mixson, a graduate of the class of 1935, is the brother of H. C. Mixson, a member of the sophomore class. The couple will make their home in Charleston.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

According to a noted radio sports commentator, 40 per cent of the men who make up the nation's college baseball teams go into professional clubs after graduation. That, and the fact of its current interest prompted us to ask our senior players several questions concerning their plans in regard to a continuation of the game after leaving college, and other similar pertinent questions.

The three questions asked were: (1) Are you planning to get into professional baseball after graduation? (2) Are you planning to play ball with any club this summer? (3) What major league club do you consider has the best lineup for the coming season, and why?

"LEFTY" SUGGS replied: "Sure, I will go into professional baseball if I have the chance. Yes, I am planning to play ball this summer. I have had several offers but am considering one over at Greenwood. What major league club do I consider has the best lineup for the coming season? . . . well, I believe the Yankees have, because of that well-known 'murderer's row' in that club."

Next it was "HAWK EVANS," our leftfielder, who told us: "Yes, I will go into professional ball if I get the opportunity. I am planning to play this summer but as yet I have no definite club in mind. Now, as for the major league team—I choose the Detroit Tigers because they have had good teams in the past and have added able utility men this year."

It was our centerfielder, CDE, who answered our questions in this way: "Certainly. I would go into professional ball if I got the chance. I am going to play in the South Florida league this summer. I would say the Yankees have the best possibilities for the coming season because of their heavy batters."

A welcome addition to any man's

Davies Ranked As One Of the Most Important Legal, Political and Diplomatic Figures Of World By Writer

When the Honorable Joseph E. Davies and Mrs. Davies arrive in Clinton on the morning of April 26 for the impressive ceremony which Presbyterian college is planning for the conferring of the degree of LL.D. upon him and upon Senator James F. Byrnes and Dwight E. Austin of New York, one of the most important legal, political and diplomatic figures in the world will be visiting South Carolina.

Born in Wisconsin, Mr. Davies was educated in the public schools of the state and received his A.B. and LL.B. degrees at the conclusion of seven years of study at the University of Wisconsin. These college years were marked by unusual ability in athletics and forensics and remarkable scholarship which earned him membership in Phi Beta Kappa.

After building up a wide law practice in Madison, Wis., Mr. Davies was elected a member of the national Democratic committee in 1911, and was given charge of Mr. Wilson's campaign in the West. The New York Herald, referring to the convention which nominated Wilson for the presidency, said: "Two young men on the speaker's platform observed the case development without any special display of interest, although it meant that they were just budding into national prominence as politicians. They were William F. McCombs of New York, and Joseph E. Davies of Wisconsin, who managed the entire Wilson campaign and piloted their candidate to victory."

Following the election, Mr. Davies was appointed commissioner of corporations of the United States. In this position he was largely responsible for the drafting of the federal trade commission from 1913 to 1918.

He was an ex officio member of the war industries board and after acting as economic adviser to President Wilson at the Versailles peace conference, he was offered successively the ambassadorship to Russia, the ambassadorship to Italy, and the governorship of the Philippines, all of which he declined.

From 1918 to 1936 Mr. Davies was engaged in the active practice of law in Washington. At different times he has been counsel for foreign governments. He has represented the government of Mexico, the government of Peru, the National Bank of Greece and the Royal Holland Lloyd Steamship company and many other large and world famous corporations. His most famed case was the "Ford tax case" in which he represented the government of the United States in the suit to collect from the assessed the minority stockholders of the Ford Motor company $36,000,000 alleged to be due in taxes. Mr. Davies actively conducted the trial of the case and succeeded, not only in defeating the claim of the government, but also in obtaining a payment by the government to the taxpayers of over $3,000,000 by reason of overpayment of taxes.

Mr. Davies last fall was appointed ambassador to Russia and upon his arrival in Moscow, the New York Sun reported, "was given the biggest and most sensational welcome of recent times."

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, became associated with Mr. Davies a number of years ago through their mutual interests in several large corporations.

Arrangements were made for the degrees ceremony by Mr. Jacobs through a telephone conversation which he held with Mr. Davies last week while he was on board the "Queen Mary," en route from Southampton to New York.

Ambassador and Mrs. Davies will arrive in Clinton on the morning of April 26 from Washington. They will return to Washington that evening, and shortly thereafter will sail for England on their yacht, "The Sea Cloud," to attend the coronation of King George VI.

Let's Revive Sigma Upsilon!

Despite the fact that it has been inactive during this school year, and despite the fact that this school year lacks only a few weeks of becoming "inactive" itself, nevertheless, there is a chapter of the national honorary literary fraternity, Sigma Upsilon, on the campus.

We are not concerned with the reasons for its inactivity, but we do feel that we are representing the leaders and members engaged in forensic and college publications activities, when we say that Sigma Upsilon should be revived, and we strongly urge that a meeting of the heads of these organizations be held this week to discuss plans for such reorganization.

There isn't a man engaged in any form of literary endeavor who doesn't take a genuine interest and pleasure in all athletic elections of team captains, and the giving of "letters" for meritorious work in any branch of athletics. As a matter of fact, there are some men who are talented and fortunate enough to belong to both the Block "P" club and a literary fraternity, but we know that they are a minority, and that is why we feel that there should not only be an active literary fraternity, but that its outstanding members should be given some emblem of acknowledgement for meritorious work in that part of college extra-curricula activity, and we feel that athletic leaders would agree with the sportsmanship of recognizing their literary "brethren."

We do not advocate anything as ostentatious as a quill embroidered on a sweater, but we do think that outstanding literary endeavor deserves the key given by Sigma Upsilon.

We repeat, therefore, our original urge to the leaders in the several fields of literary work on the campus to cooperate with any attempt made during this week to effect such a revival of Sigma Upsilon. —L. G. H.

Present, Arms!

On Thursday morning as the battalion executes the above command during the parade before the United States Army's inspector, Major James E. Matthews, it will have completed the first step of its annual inspection.

Later on during the course of the day, members of all four of the military classes will demonstrate, both collectively and individually, the results of almost eight months' training in theoretical and practical military science and tactics.

All of this will be carried out under the watchful eye of a man who takes pride in referring to his own corps, the unit at North Georgia College, Dahlonega, as "The Little West in North Georgia." One of his cadet officers assured us that those midnight quadrangle parades down at "Sing Sing on the Ashley" are kindergarten excursions compared to corresponding extra duty over at "Little West Point."

Notwithstanding this bit of "grapevine" information on the inspector, we feel that after Captain Patrick with his combat principle platoon, and the close order drill commanders put on their act, he will understand why P. C. is called "The most military of the non-military schools."

During the recent corporal aptitude tests, the number of non-corporal aptitudes who took the tests, although they were not required to, showed ample proof of the individual attitude which, after all, can "make" or "break" an inspection.

That is why we believe that this fact, along with the cooperation shown by the majority of the freshmen, will succeed in making the results of this annual government inspection equal, and possibly surpass, the high grades of former years. —L. G. H.

News for the busybodies: They say I can write this column like I please as long as I don't cuss. Alcohol Activities: 'Tis said the Friday night German Club swingfest wasn't so hot. Hydrosis: If you can't swim, Spencer ain't no place for you. Quit: Who is LOUIS NORWOOD playing parlor games with down the street? So what: JIMMY DENNARD is cut-out from his cute high school love by whom?

The honor of being the biggest campus snake goes easily to JOHN BYRUM, a quiet casanova from Great Falls, S. C. CHET McADAMS took pity on the dateless sophomore, and on several occasions took him home with him, and showed him as nice a time as possible by getting him a date with his best gal's sister. Everything rocked sweetly and gently until John decided the thing to do would be to cut out Chet with his girl. So hero sat down and wrote the gal a nice letter. He told her that although he thought her sister was cute, her manner of lovin' was infantile, and the proper thing for her to do would be to give him a date on the sly without Mr. McAdams being the wiser. John thought he was some power, but the gal thought otherwise 'cause she quickly showed the letter to Chet. Chet doesn't have much to say, but from all indications, Mr. Byrum has tolled his last bell over Iva way.

RAT TIMMONS has finally become the snatcher and heart-breaker he always dreamed he was. The other night he decided it was time for him to break down and give the gals a break. He trucked around to the home of a little lass hereabouts, but she told him she was sorry but she had a date with RAT LIPSEY. This didn't daunt Timmons in the least. He exerted his manly characteristics, and showed the gal what she was missing. It must have been the right thing, 'cause the gal solid broke her date in favor of Heart-breaker. Some power, eh Fran?

AL McSWEEN must have learned things during his stay at West Point. His technique with the co-eds is just about perfect. Why, you don't see him with one—but two, or three, maybe. Then there is that look in all the gals' eyes that makes one wonder.

SOUND OFF

— By —

E. A. JOHNSON

There could be but one natural subject for discussion in this column at this time. While each student is anticipating annual inspection according to his own particular attitude, we have several comments regarding this forthcoming examination of the unit. From what we hear on the campus we judge that the whole matter of inspection depends upon the way one looks at it. To the disinterested home guard, it means just one more day of vacation. To the ambitious sophomore this week looms large as a deciding factor in making the advanced corps. For the senior military men inspection means the end of drilling and assignments as O. D. Say, what is this inspection, anyway?

There is one group which has already received a generous share of work for this inspection and seems to be due for more. Patrick's combat platoon has been enjoying an extra dose of combat principles and seems to be duly impressed. A machine gunner in that unit, who has spent the past few days nursing a forty-pound tripod, said that if war is anything like extended order drill, Sherman made a rank understatement.

There are at least three [illegible] campus to whom this little [illegible] government inspection is a [illegible] for joy rather than worry. [illegible] detect a fresh note of [illegible] the voices of Penland, [illegible] Commander as they go [illegible] asking "any dry cleaning."

Since this week's examination [illegible] stitutes the principal [illegible] year for the military [illegible] mate of the situation as [illegible] quite in keeping with [illegible] tics. We believe that this [illegible] benefitted by the practical [illegible] this year's inspection, that [illegible] is well prepared, and that [illegible] unit is ready to "shine."

CAMPUS CRUISING

What's What On Other Campuses

By Pete McCormick

Glen Gray and his Casa Loma orchestra have been signed to play for the "little commencement" dances at the University of Georgia on April 30 and May 1.

In his Southern tour Gray is playing for final dances at several colleges, and is also playing for the Clemson college Taps Ball series, which comes off April 23 and 24.

Wesley Kay and his orchestra, who recently furnished the musical inspiration at the Presbyterian college midwinter dances, played for the "little commencement" dance series at Mercer university on March 25, 26 and 27. There were four dances in the series, coming on Thursday ,Friday and Saturday nights, with a tea dance on Saturday afternoon.

With the band were Frances Delaney, blues singer, and "The 3 K's" trio.

University of North Carolina officials have announced the signing of Kay Kyser and his orchestra for the final dances there on June 4 and 5. There will also be dances on the 3rd of June, and it was announced that there was a possibility that Eddie Duchin would be signed for that date.

Mercer university's publication, "The Mercer Cluster," sent out its April Food issue under the name of "The Wurcer Muster." Strange to say, some of its quotations and articles caused a few brainstorms in my splatterdashed brain. With no anticipation of the results I shall make a few remarks about the publication.

In the first place, that name seems to indicate a couple of things—No, of course it isn't spelled that way, but people can certainly make something out of it. Well, the word "Wurcer" could easily be changed to "Wurstest" while the "Muster" part could be changed to "Musty." How would that sound as the name for a college publication—"The Wurstest Musty." Not so good, but still it might hit the nail on the head. No, I am not saying anything about Mercer, but still it's a Mercer paper and we P. C. fellows haven't gotten over the drubbing you handed us in football.

The Tulane Hullabaloo gives the following definitions and doesn't even crack a smile:

Franciscan Friar — A short order cook from San Francisco.
Propaganda—Daddy goose.
Viper—A Dutchman's napkin.
Black Mario—A Negro's wife.

President Patrick J. Mahan, S. J., of Creighton university, gives the freshman a frank look at the scoreboard. He says, "Their minds are soft and dormant (he doesn't know my room-mate), they do not know how to work, they do not know how to study, they do not know how to reason, they do not know how to discriminate between the central core of things and the surrounding trimmings."

Well, I guess you're right in a way, fran', but I'd like to say this much: I know plenty of hard-headed freshmen, even though their minds are soft, but I presume they need some sort of protection around their soft minds. May I also suggest that many of them don't want to know how to study. But don't get me wrong, I'm a "rat" myself, and I have plenty of faults.

A ten-cents-a-dance girl, pretty Fayette Dale, of an Oakland, California dime dance hall, talks of university men from her "cheek-to-cheek" observations of them:

"It's an easy matter to distinguish between California and Stanford stags. A California man talks more, asks for more dates, and brags about his rowdy complex. The Stanfordites are all 'cards.'

"The boys from the farm do more of their dance steps on their partner's toes than the California lads. The famous Stanford gentleman complex is true as far as my observation goes. They read a higher grade of books and are more punctual in excusing their dance faux pas.

"The best dancers claim to be econ majors, and the worst," says Miss Dale sadly, "are the engineers."

How to send an adequate reply to the following letter from a prospective student puzzled the registrar of the University of Texas. His letter read:

"Kind Sir:

"As I want to patronize a good university, please let me know if one is allowed smoke or chew on your campus grounds.

"Thanking you for the prompt reply, as I stand in wait for same."

There was a suggestion made that the registrar write back to the student and ask him not to stand in wait, but to please have a seat and they would investigate the matter.

A friend of a Citadel cadet who wished to be funny wrote to the cadet and addressed the letter as follows:

Mr. ———
Cell No. ———.
Sing-Sing on The Ashley.
Charleston, S. C.

The convict got the letter and all was well—that is, until the cadet saw the letter-writer again, and then it —ell.

Oglethorpe Wins By Small Margin

Georgians Take 10-Inning Game Here By One Run, 10-9.

Presbyterian dropped a 10 to 9 engagement to Oglethorpe on the local field last Thursday afternoon after putting on a ninth-inning three-run rally to even the score. The Georgians shoved over a pair of runs in the tenth and the game ended when the P. C. outfit failed by one marker to duplicate.

Coach Galloway was giving his regular hurlers a rest and sent Cox and Commander out for turns on the mound. Loose fielding accounted for several of the Oglethorpe tallies, and the Hosemen outhit them 17 to 10.

Batchelor did Presbyterian's heaviest hitting, while Harvin got a trio of nice raps.

Clemson Downs P. C. Trackmen

Tiger Cinder Artists Smother Hosemen Under 82-40 Score.

In a dual meet here Saturday with Clemson college, the Presbyterian track team tasted defeat by the one-sided score of 82-40. The Tigers annexed 11 first places out of a possible 15 and six second places. P. C. placed first in the century dash, the 220 dash, the pole vault, and the broad jump.

A goodly crowd watched the powerful Tiger rip the Blue Hose from head to foot. For the Clemson trackmen, Carter, Green, Herlong, and Kitchens turned in fine performances, these four men accounting for 40 of the invaders' 82 points. Foremost in points and performances among the Hosemen were Jimmy Dennard, who took a first and a second, and Joe Hollis, who accounted for a first and a third.

Summary:

Mile run: Witherspoon (C), Green (C), Calhoun (C). Time: 4:54.6.

440-yard run: Herlong (C), Kitchens (C), Green (P.C.) Time: 52.

100-yard dash: Cole (P.C.) Dennard (P.C.), Dobbins (C). Time: 10.1.

Mile relay: Won by Clemson (Dobbins, McCrary, Kitchens, Herlong). Time: 3 min., 33 seconds.

FURMAN FALLS BEFORE SUPERB MOUND WORK

P. C. Hitters Touch Baptists For 13 Runs In Greenville.

By Jake Penland

Rising to the height of mound perfection, Lefty Suggs superbly pitched to a no-hit, no-run performance against Furman Tuesday in Greenville while his Blue Stocking brethren were hitting hard to pile up 13 runs.

The southpaw star shot a baffling assortment of slab offerings past bewildered Hurricane batsmen, striking out 11 and allowing only two blows to pass the infield.

Five members of the Galloway crew collected as many as two hits, with Horne securing four to lead the parade. Hawk Evans lifted one over the fence and Batchelor missed a four-base clout by inches.

Suggs' performance Tuesday was the most brilliant of a star-studded career that has labelled him as South Carolina's leading collegiate hurler.

Basketeers Name 1938 Co-Captains

Jake Cavin, junior, and Giles Batchelor, sophomore, were elected co-captains of the Presbyterian college basketball team for 1937-38 by the eight recently-announced lettermen of the past season.

Cavin, a guard, is from Menlo, Ga., and has performed on the collegiate hardwood for three years. He is a steady veteran who played capably under fire during the past campaign.

Batchelor, a product of Eatonton, Ga., ran wild as a freshman and proved one of this state's most brilliant performers as a sophomore. He is a natural athlete, and his play is always characterized by speed, accuracy and deception.

Class Room Is Being Remodeled

Dean Marshall Brown's history class room is being completely rebuilt, refurnished, and newly decorated as President William P. Jacobs is having it converted into a modern seminar room as a memorial to his father, the late Rev. James Ferdinand Jacobs, who years ago was financial agent for the college and member of the faculty.

The room, rebuilt in modernistic style with heavy, inlaid floor coverings, light paneling, rich draperies, and indirect lighting, will be equipped with a long conference table, chromium chairs, and book cases for use in seminar courses.

The room will be used in the new individualistic type of education. Already student-faculty conference type of instruction has been instituted in several English courses, a cultural course in biological history, all work in philosophy, in sociology, some courses in economics, and advanced work in French.

Tried originally as an experiment, this type of instruction, in which students and faculty study and work together, has proved itself to be so successful and has been so enthusiastically received by the students and faculty that Mr. Jacobs has begun work toward providing seminar rooms designed particularly for such work.

Glee Club Sings On Radio Program

The college glee club and orchestra traveled to Columbia college last Thursday to give it usual performance. In spite of the absence of several men from the club, a creditable performance was given. The audience was enthusiastic and termed the program a successful one.

The next afternoon the outfit journeyed to Anderson and performed over radio station WAIM. The program included, in addition to a speech by W. P. Jacobs, president of the college, several numbers by the singers: "Onward, P. C." "Swing Along" and "Winter Song." The orchestra played "Swamp Fire," "Springtime In the Rockies" and "Mr. Ghost Goes To Town."

This performance concluded activities of the group for this year. Trips have been made to Anderson, Greenville, Fort Valley, Ga., Griffin, Ga., Marietta, Ga., Valdosta, Ga., Milledgeville, Ga., and Columbia.

After the trip to Anderson Friday, officers for next year were elected, as follows: President, Harris Gray, and manager, Malcolm Hemphill.

ball team, "COON" WELDON, answered our questions next: "Yes, I am planning to go into professional baseball. And I plan to play ball with some club this summer. I consider the New York Yankees will make a very strong bid for the championship again this year because they have the pitching. With a little help to the staff and the power those boys have with the stick speaks for itself. I also think the St. Louis Cardinals will be a strong team this year, with the addition of Paul Dean a deciding factor."

It was that hard hitter, "HICK" HARVIN, who answered us next: "I am not planning to make baseball my life's work, but I do expect to play some every summer—this summer I plan to play with a club in the lower part of the state. I pick the Yankees as the best team in either league, chiefly on account of their superior punch at the plate. While other teams may rival their pitching staff and defensive ability, no team can compare with their superior hitting."

PITT BIRD said that he had been "catching it" for some time and that he was glad of this chance to "dish it out," so here is what he said: "No, I am not planning to enter pro ball. Very few ever go up and you can't make money in the minors. I want to get a job and settle down. Baseball is too risky for a person like me. You have to be good to get anywhere, and that is why I think Evans, Suggs and Weldon have a good chance. If I thought I could make the grade I would like to try. If I can't get a job anywhere else I would like a chance to play textile ball to see how I could do playing a game almost every day. The Cleveland Indians look like the best balanced club in either league to me, because they seem to [illegible] that extra punch they [illegible] year in both their pitching staffs."

VOLUME XVIII PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, CLINTON, S. C., APRIL 19, 1937 Number 28

avies, Austin, and Byrnes To Be Here Monday, April 26th, To Receive Degrees.

OVERNOR JOHNSTON TO WELCOME THEM

President William P. Jacobs has announced the detailed program for the pecial convocation of the board of ustees and faculty of Presbyterian ollege for the conferring of the degree of doctor of laws upon Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, Senator James Byrnes, and Dwight E. Austin of New York on Monday, April 26.

Ambassador Davies, accompanied by his wife, Marjorie Post Davies, will arrive with Senator Byrnes and Mr. Austin by train from Washington at 11:42 on Monday morning.

Upon their arrival they will be welcomed at the railroad station by Governor Olin D. Johnston, the chairman of the board of trustees, the president and the dean of the college, the mayor of Clinton, and a military escort of honor.

They will go at once to the college where they will be greeted by a 19-gun military salute. They will review Presbyterian college's crack military unit in Bailey Memorial stadium, and following this, go to Judd dining hall for a luncheon given in their honor by the college.

Following the luncheon the academic procession will form and march between double lines of Presbyterian college students to Leroy Springs gymnasium where the ceremony for the conferring of degrees will take place.

Governor Johnston of South Carolina will make a welcoming address, following which Dr. Henry Wade DuBose, chairman of the board of trustees of the college will confer the degree of doctor of laws upon Ambassador, Senator Byrnes, and Mr. Austin.

After the conferring of degrees Mr. Davies will make an address. Following the address by Mr. Davies, Senator Byrnes will speak.

The Presbyterian college orchestra will furnish music during interludes in the program, and when the convocation exercises are completed the guests will make a tour of inspection of the campus and watch the Chick Galloway-coached P. C. baseball team play The Citadel, and the tennis men in matches against The Citadel players.

The guests plan to return to Washington on an evening train.

Dr. Dudley Jones Named President Historical Society

Dr. Frank Dudley Jones of the Presbyterian college faculty was elected president of the South Carolina Historical society at its regular meeting in Columbia on Saturday, April 10.

Dr. Jones, who is head of the department of philosophy at the college, also teaches a seminar course in South Carolina history based upon source material and old documents in the valuable Jones collection of South Carolinians in the P. C. library.

Considered an outstanding authority on state history, Dr. Jones has done a great deal of research work on South Carolina history, particularly in regard to the Presbyterian church.

Harris Gray To Head Glee Club

Harris Gray, a rising senior from Greenwood, Miss., was recently elected president of the college glee club for the year 1937-38. Gray has been a member of the club and college quartet during the past three years, as well as director of the college orchestra. He also directs the dance orchestra which goes under his name as "Hap" Gray's orchestra.

Malcolm Hemphill, rising senior from Griffin, Ga., was elected manager of the club. He has been a member of the college quartet and glee club during his three years in college.

Woodward Heads Panhellenic Group Here Next Year

Gray and Folley Also Receive Offices As New Council Takes Over Duties.

The newly-appointed Panhellenic council has elected John Woodward, rising senior of Vienna, Ga., as its president for the year 1937-38. Harris Gray, rising senior of Greenwood, Miss., was chosen as vice-president, while Billy Jones of Bishopville, was selected as secretary-treasurer.

Band To Give Concert April 25

On Sunday, April 25, the Presbyterian college band will give a concert on the Plaza, to which the public is cordially invited, announced Harris Gray, director, today.

The band has been practicing concert numbers for some time, but the actual performance has had to be postponed on account of preparation for the military inspection, which took place last week.

The program will consist of two overtures and several selections of popular marches. The two overtures, in waltz time, are "Arbitration" and "Determination."

Beginning tomorrow, the band will resume intensive practice during every drill period until the concert. The addition of new equipment has added greatly to the general efficiency of the organization.

Blue Key Initiates Three Into Ranks

Stuart Campbell, senior of Wytheville, Va., Jack McAlpine, senior of Hartsville, and Cliff McLeod, junior of Ocala, Fla., were initiated into Blue Key, national honorary leadership fraternity, last Thursday night.

Campbell, editor of The Collegian; McAlpine, secretary of the Y.M.C.A., and leader in other campus activities, and McLeod, editor of The Blue Stocking, were elected a few weeks ago. This brings the membership of the fraternity up to eleven, nine seniors and two juniors.

SKA Banquet Is Next Wednesday

The annual Sigma Kappa Alpha banquet will be held next Wednesday night in Judd hall. J. Robertson Paul, of Charleston, will give the principal address of the evening.

This banquet is an annual affair, at which time members of the order, and those on the dean's honor list are entertained. Members of the faculty also will be present.

Mr. Paul is a prominent business man of the state and a former Rhodes scholar at Oxford university, England.

REV. J. BRIGHT TO TALK HERE ON MAY 30TH

North Carolina Minister To Deliver "Y" Address At First Presbyterian Church.

IS AN ALUMNUS OF PRESBYTERIAN

The Rev. John Bright, associate pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Durham, N. C., will speak to the college Y.M.C.A. at the first Presbyterian church Sunday evening, May 30, at 8 o'clock, as a part of the annual commencement exercises of the college, according to an announcement made today by Dean Marshall W. Brown.

It has been the custom in the past to have a prominent minister to make an address under the auspices of the Y.M.C.A. on the evening of the morning the baccalaureate sermon is given. This was not done, however, in the past several years, but because of the renewed interest in "Y" work this year the administration has renewed the custom of securing a speaker for such an occasion.

Mr. Bright, a comparatively young man, is an alumnus of Presbyterian college being a member of the class of 1928. While here he was a member of the track team, took part in journalistic activities, being a member of both Sigma Upsilon and Gamma Sigma. His excellent scholastic record is shown by the fact that he was a member of the scholarship fraternity, Sigma Kappa Alpha. Socially he was a Pi Kappa Alpha.

He received his batchelor of divinity and master of theology degrees from Union Theological seminary, Richmond. For a time after his graduation there, he was associate professor of Hebrew and Greek. He did graduate work in Semitic languages at Johns Hopkins university.

In 1932 he received the honor of being chosen as an assistant to Dr. Kyle in excavations at Kijath-Sepher in Palestine, which were carried on during the summer of that year.

I. R. C. To Elect New Officers

The International Relations club will meet Wednesday night at 7:15 in Dr. Spencer's classroom. At this, the next to the last meeting of the season, officers for the coming year will be elected. In addition to the election, a short program is being planned. All members are urged to be present.

CORPS RATES HIGH IN ANNUAL GOVERNMENT INSPECTION HERE

McLeod Chosen National President Of Religious Frat

Keller and Wardlaw Also Elected At Convention of Order Here Last Week.

Cliff H. McLeod, rising senior of Ocala, Fla., and editor of The Blue Stocking, was elected national president of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity, at its 1937 annual convention held at Presbyterian college on Friday.

Hubert Wardlaw, rising senior of Marietta, Ga., and president of the local Gamma chapter of Delta Chi Alpha, was elected national secretary.

McLeod succeeds Chester Keller, of Greenville, who has been national president during the past year. At the convention Keller was elected to serve two years on the national executive council. R. R. Potter, member of the class of '36, is now a member of the council.

L. B. Jeffcoat, of the University of South Carolina, was elected first national vice-president, while Clarence Parker of Wofford college, was elected second national vice-president. Other men elected were: Earl Robinett, associate national treasurer; Hawley B. Lynn, University of South Carolina, member of national executive council; William Andrews, Wofford college, member of national executive council. R. G. Bell is now national secretary, serving a four-year term of office.

During the course of the convention committee reports were heard and matters dealing with the national organization were discussed.

Delta Chi Alpha is a comparatively young fraternity, but it has several very active chapters. It was organized on the University of South Carolina campus several years ago and obtained its charter in 1933.

McLeod is active in various phases of campus life and is a member of Blue Key, leadership fraternity. Both Keller and Wardlaw are active in religious work on the campus.

Presbyterian R. O. T. C. Unit Comes Through In Fine Style In War Department Tests.

MAJOR MATTHEWS COMMENDS CORPS

Last Thursday the Presbyterian college R.O.T.C. went through its annual government inspection under the direction of Major J. E. Matthews of North Georgia college, Dahlonega. The corps, according to Major Matthews' rating, maintained its high standard of the past and again will wear the blue star as a symbol of its excellency. Major Matthews remarked that he had expected to find an excellent corps and was not disappointed.

Major Wysor in commenting on the inspection said, "I am impressed more each year with the excellent and interested attitude the corps takes toward such an inspection. Each member seemed to concentrate himself particularly on this inspection and to do his best. I think it was a very good inspection. The close order drill was only a minor feature of the inspection and the major part, the combat problem, was carried out the best I have ever seen during my time here."

He went further to say, "The section in map reading and first-aid work was the best I have ever seen here."

The inspection began with a formal parade Thursday morning before the the inspector, followed by other close order drill. Following this was the combat problem. Tests were held in map reading, first-aid, etc., covering the different subjects studied by the basic as well as the advanced corps during the year. Classes were suspended during the inspection.

Major Wysor announced the juniors would spend much of the rest of the school year in preparing for their six-weeks' training at Fort McClellan, Alabama.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

This week as the senior military men "retire" from active duty until the end of the school year, we decided to find out how many of them were planning to make application to enter the regular army this year, and we found the number very small.

The first one we spoke to was Captain Plunkett, who told us, "I am planning on going to the R. R. C. camp during the summer, but since I have planned to go to medical school next fall, I am not going to make application for entrance into the regular army."

Lieutenant Colonel Collings indicated that his military days would be over, except for camp, after graduation, when he said, "No I am not planning to get into the regular army because I have a position with an insurance company."

Lieutenant Mann was also planning to do some other kind of work, as were Lieutenants Suggs and Evans. Captain Patrick told us that except for camp, he also was not contemplating the army as a regular job.

Lieutenant Majors told us, "I intended making application to enter the regular army but I got a job during the holidays for next fall."

Captain Legare answered thus, "Yes, I have made application to get into the army and also the Civilian Conservation corps, if I cannot get into the regular army."

Captain Shoemaker told us, "I have made application to get into the regular service, but have not applied for the CCC."

We know that Lieutenant Wallace is planning on going to medical school next fall, which fact was confirmed by his brother, so of course he will not make application.

We learned that Major J. B. Jacobs has made application for admission to the army.

Not over two, and very probably only one man will be accepted for service as a second lieutenant from the P. C. unit by the war department.

P. C. Student Has Signature of Charles Pinckney and An Interesting Journal of Colonial Days, Reporter Finds

The other night while your reporter was talking with several boys over in Alumni dormitory, he discovered that one of them possessed some interesting old historical documents, and a most unusual journal that was begun in 1837. H. P. Skinner, who owned the documents, consented to let us real several of them and report our findings to you.

Skinner first told us how he happened to have the old papers and the journal. He said that about 1900 his family bought a plantation near Charleston, also near a place that was then known as Indian Field swamp, and that the papers were found in the old house that stood on the plantation. It was interesting to note that most of the documents were signed by early South Carolinians who were either directly or distantly kin to Skinner. He told us that some one found the journal in an old house in Charleston and brought it to a garage where he got it from him.

Two of the old deeds were almost falling to pieces from constant folding and age, but on one of them the name of Charles Pinckney can be easily read, where the famous South Carolinian probably signed it with both a colonial quill and a colonial flourish. However, on a similar land grant document appears the signature of Governor William Moultrie, also in a bold, legible hand.

Although Swinner said that he would be glad to show the documents to anyone who wished to see them, we decided to reprint the land grant deed signed by Governor Moultrie. We will not, of course, be able to reproduce the surveyor's sketch that accompanied it, but you can see that if you wish to see the original document. This is what we copied from the original parchment, with the great seal of the State of South Carolina affixed:

"STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

To all to whom these presents shall come, Greeting:

"Now—ye, that for and in consideration of ten pounds and eight pence (note how cheap land was then) sterling money paid by William Harley, to the treasurer of this state, we have granted and by these presents do grant, unto the said William Harley, —his heirs—and assigns, a plantation or tract of land, containing four hundred and thirty acres situated in the district of Charleston on a branch of Edisto river known by the name of Indian Field swamp.

"Having such shape, form and marks, as are represented by a plat hereunto annexed, together with all woods, trees, waters, water courses, profits, commodities, appurtenances and hereditamests whosoever thereunto belonging, To have and to hold the said tract of four hundred and thirty acres of land, and all and singular other premises hereby granted unto the said William Harley—heirs and assigns forever, in free and common soccage.

"Given under the great seal of the state. Witness His Excellency William Moultrie, Esquire, Governor, Commander in Chief and over the said state of Charleston, this second day of January, anno, domini, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, and in the tenth year of the Independence of the United States."

The journal, which was begun in 1837, contains the account of a man who was evidently quite educated, judging from the style of the journal, and who had the ability to write of his extensive travels through Europe in the language of whatever country he happened to be passing. The account first tells of travel in this country and then he tells of sailing from Charleston and going to France, where he begins to write in French, and recounts of a visit to court. Then he next goes to Germany where he begins to write in German, and so on in like manner through Europe. Plans are now being made to translate the journal.

A Dream Fulfilled

All our school life we have dreamed of cushioned seats in a classroom. Of all places to find comfortable seats! The old idea, and the generally accepted idea, is to give the student as little comfort as possible so that he will get his education in the old rough and rugged way. But as we grow older many unusual things happen in life to us and other people. Our dream was not one we ever expected to see fulfilled; it was just a supposition of what would school be like if we had comfortable, up-to-date, and less-pedagogical-looking classrooms. So the unusual becomes the usual at Presbyterian as the most modern classroom in the state of South Carolina—and we venture, as modern as any in the South—nears its completion. And, folks, think of the greater comfort, the greater convenience—now you may sleep with almost the comforts of a bed.

The institution of such a classroom here will be a great step toward building a greater and better Presbyterian. While it is but experimental, the other class rooms will be in like manner equipped in the near future. Along with this, of course, will come the preceptorial plan of education, an aim of the administration.

The room is of the modernistic style and was designed by an expert interior decorator, The equipment will be complete for the preceptorial system.

The much-longed-for and unheard of comfortable seats and classroom becomes a reality at Presbyterian in one place anyway.

We are solid for having it that way in all the other class rooms. Too bad you seniors are leaving so soon; now we know that you're going to say, "Well, when we got tired of a lecture we had to sleep on hard wooden benches; it was good enough for us and it's good enough for you."

So to the administration we say, give us more modern classrooms as you have begun to do.

Honorees

Perhaps the most important event of the year for Presbyterian occurs next Monday when this college will present honorary degrees to three outstanding men of the U. S. and the world.

Somehow the honors are going to be mutual. We are honoring great men; they are honoring a great school.

It will be a great step for the institution to have the interest and consideration of these men. We are glad to see them coming to us; and we shall be glad to have them.

The administration has prepared well for their reception and is to be commended for its forethought in handling the situation. Great men must be honored in great ways.

So we await the coming of Ambassador Davies, Senator Byrnes, and Mr. Austin and their wives.

It will be a great day for P. C., with the various ceremonies and [illegible] that will be pulled on.

SOUND OFF

By
E. A. JOHNSON

"The tumult and the shouting dies" and once more inspection is an event of the past. There is many a sigh of relief on the campus that it is all over. That day seems to be the most unpopular during the entire year, which no likes to see come around and everyone is happy to be rid of.

We do not know exactly what the inspecting officers may think of the schools they visit but we do have an idea of what impressions the students form. It seems to be the unanimous opinion that headquarters could not find a more thorough type of examination than for the inspections to be conducted by officers who are serving on R.O.T.C. duty. We certainly found out how many phases of the training can be taken up by an instructor who is familiar with the work.

Major Matthews commended the corps highly for the demonstration in practical combat principles. In his comments following the problem he stated that it is that type of work which "brings home the bacon" and determines the efficiency of a unit. The corporals received special commendation for their handling of the troops during the demonstration. It became quite apparent that these non-coms were doing a good job in their key positions.

It's a long worm that has no turning. This inspection business seems to work both ways. P. C. stood its tests under an instructor from a school which is a member of the Georgia University system. This week Major Wysor is headed for Athens to give the University of Georgia the once-over. We do not know exactly what type of inspection he is planning to conduct there, but we understand that it will be limited to practical examinations.

This week marks the end of regular drills for the seniors and will result in stepping up of the other classes. The command is being turned over to the juniors, while sophomores are tempararily holding sergeants' posts. There are still a few more parades in which the seniors must take part, so it is still a bit too early to start packing those uniforms away in moth balls. As the juniors take charge and begin to practice swinging sabres around, the chances of casualities increase rapidly. It is our hope that we come off with nothing worse than a few sliced ears.

In recent elections of the officers of Alpha Kappa Pi, John Bonner was elected president for the coming year. W. K. Cox became vice-president; John Latimer, secretary; and Hood Strain, treasurer. J. L. Culp was elected to represent the chapter on the Panhellenic council.

Tuesday night Alpha Lambda Tau gave a social that was bigger and better than usual. Many girls from Laurens and Clinton attended — of course stags and punch were plentiful.

Beta Kappa is laying plans for a social affair to be held the night of the state track meet on May 1. It is to be given in honor of visiting Beta Kappa alumni.

Pi Kappa Alpha's social Thursday night profited by new records, the girls the boys have been courting lately, and the dance steps Shoemaker advocates. It was a good one.

Initiations by Pi Kappa Phi this week will include Frank Leech, Walter Bonaker and Gordon Higgins.

Kappa Alpha initiated John Noxon, Hoke Paul and Bo [illegible] ceremony last week.

CAMPUS CRUISING

What's What On Other Camp

By Pete McCormick

Our own "Coon" Weldon, star P. C. "chunker," converted the Furman Purple Hurricane into a "Colorless Breeze" last Monday. He struck out 19 men for a new collegiate strike-out record in South Carolina, while his teammates drove in three runs to give P. C. a 3 to 1 victory over their opponents.

Plenty of credit goes to our "Lefty" Suggs also, who pitched a no-hit, no-run game against the same Purple Hurricane on Friday of the week previous. His famed arm, along with the trusty bats of his Blue Hose mates gave a 13-0 win over the Breeze.

704 out of 1000 male students at the University of South Carolina take part in intramural sports.

The junior-senior dance at the University of South Carolina last Thursday night was a marked success. The "swish-rhythm" was furnished by Buster Spann and his orchestra. Scholastic seniors were given free tickets to the affair and all girls attending were given favors.

"Rat" rule at Hampden-Sydney college has ended. Freshmen now parade the campus with grins of superiority and defiance. No more rat-caps, no errands, and when a frosh slaps his hand into a matchless pocket he can, without fear of getting "dusted" for it, ask an upperclassman for a stick of fire to light his "weed," or what have you, with. P. C. Players At Pinehurst Tourney

Three Presbyterian college students were lucky enough to be extended invitations to the tennis tournament held at the well-known tennis resort, Pinehurst, N. C., last week. Those attending participating in the tournament were "Cotton" Parham, George Beatty, and Lykes Boykin. The three, all members of the tennis team here, left last Sunday and returned the following Thursday.

All played superior tennis for their first matches but all met with defeat in the second round of play. Parham defeated Haines Stockton of New York, in straight sets to advance to the second round. Stockton is the son of Jack Stockton, who was one of the coaches at the tennis tournament held here last fall. Beatty and Boykin also won their first-round matches from high ranking tennis players of the South. In the second-round matches, Boykin was polished off by Archie Henderson, who captains the University of North Carolina racket-men. Parham lost to Martin Buxby, who ranks high in Southern tennis circles.

Valuable experience was gained by the trip to the tennis center and all three men declared that it was of a most enjoyable nature.

P. C., NEWBERRY AND ERSKINE

The local lads made merry during the past week-end, taking Furman on the track and routing Citadel in a baseball slaughter. Highlight of the ball game was a homerun by Cab Blackwell—the first of his career. The wire-haired first-sacker looked like McCully chugging past the finish line in the two-mile run as he steamed across home plate. It was a sweet bingle, though.

And speaking of baseball, me and moon are wondering how the state rag chase will end up. Newberry, Erskine and P. C. the Hosemen last week, Erskine beat Newberry, and P. C. has the power to whip Erskine. Carolina's nine hasn't been beaten yet, but it hasn't met any of the "big three."

Wofford will end up in the middle, with Citadel, Furman and Clemson bringing up the rear guard. P. C., Newberry or Erskine—which will it be?

New York Papers Mention Local Men

Presbyterian college tennis players entered in the North-South Tennis tournament at Pinehurst, N. C., are gaining national recognition, as evidenced by the following article by Fred Hawthorne which appeared in the New York Herald Tribune of April 13 under the sub-head: "Boykin and Abels Brothers Score Pinehurst Upsets":

". . . The remaining players in the men's singles are young players from the University of North Carolina and from Presbyterian college, of Clinton, S. C., Lykes Boykin, Marion Parham, and George Beatty of Presbyterian college, products of Presbyterian's tennis clinic, are regarded as most promisnig youngsters. Boykin defeated the New York veteran, Norman Johnson, 6-4, 6-2. He, Beatty and Parham all show the benefit of intelligent coaching in stroke production. Just to make the boys feel at home, W. F. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, accompanied the three here and worked out this afternoon against Parham and Beatty."

The following appeared in the New York Times of April 13. "Lykes Boykin and Marion Parham came up from Presbyterian college to reveal that North Carolina, which has been beating the best college teams of the North regularly for several years, has a prospective rival in its own section. Boykin showed considerable possibilities in defeating Norman Johnson of the West Side Tennis club, 6-4, 6-2, and Parham put out Haines Stockton, 6-4, 3-6, 6-4."

The Citadel Trips Hose Tennis Crew

In a group of interesting and colorful tennis matches played in Charleston Saturday, the P. C. racketeers bowed to an aggressive Citadel team by the count of 4-3. The Blue Hose proved superior in the singles but were unable to cope with the two powerful doubles teams entered by the Bulldogs.

George Beatty, playing in the number one position, overcame his opponent by the score of 2-6, 6-3, 6-2. The masterful Beatty was a bit faulty at the outset but quickly regained his poise to run out the next two frames.

Johnny Woodward duplicated Beatty's feat by turning back another Bulldog racket-wielder, 3-6, 6-2, 6-2. Woodward played in number two position and demonstrated remarkable court ability.

Match number three found Frank Johnston [illegible] his opponent by the [illegible] count of 6-3, 6-2. John[illegible] proved master of a [illegible] court [illegible] and displayed remarkable [illegible] speed and [illegible]

Orchestra Plays In Greenwood

"Hap" Gray's orchestra played last Friday night at the Batchelor's dance in Greenwood. Gray's band, which has become quite popular in the past year, has engagements for almost every week-end through the rest of the school year.

Next Friday night the orchestra will play for the annual junior-senior banquet at Converse college, Spartanburg. The two following week-ends will be spent in Charlotte, N. C., where the orchestra will play for dances at one of the country clubs there.

Johnson Prepares For State Meet

Athletic Director Walter A. Johnson of Presbyterian college last week started the big South Carolina Intercollegiate Track and Field Meet machine to working in preparation for the state's outstanding spring sports extravaganza which will be held at Presbyterian college on Friday and Saturday, April 30 and May 1.

Entry blanks, detailed information about the running of the meet, scoring systems, records—everything pertinent to the state's biggest speed and strength event is pouring out of the office of Coach Johnson in a stream that will continue until the meet begins.

Already workers are laboring on Johnson field getting everything in preparation for the meet. The mammoth lighting system which will flood the finals on Saturday night with 72,000 watts of light is being tested and the amplifying system, which will make every word spoken by the announcer plainly audible to the capacity crowd which always throngs the stands at this event, is being checked and improved.

Entries are expected from Presbyterian, Clemson, Wofford, Furman, Erskine, The Citadel, Newberry and the University of South Carolina.

DEGREES TO BE CONFERRED ON DAVIES, AUSTIN AND BYRNES THIS AFTERNOON

P. C.'S GUESTS PROMINENT IN PUBLIC LIFE

Have Had Varied and Interesting Careers In Legal Business and Political World.

U. S. ENVOY AND SENATOR HERE

Business Man Is Leader In Manufacturing Activities In New York.

Ambassador Davies, who is accompanied to Clinton by his wife, the former Marjorie Post Hutton, is one of the outstanding figures in the political and legal world. A native of Wisconsin and an honor graduate of the University of Wisconsin, he early in life entered the political arena. Following his success in Wisconsin, he became Western manager for the Wilson presidential campaign in 1911, and has often been credited with the Wilson election. President Wilson appointed him commissioner of corporations and in this capacity he drew up the Federal Trade commission and became its first chairman.

Following the war, Mr. Davies served as economic advisor to President Wilson at the Versailles Peace conference, and on the completion of the conference the president offered him the ambassadorship to Russia, the ambassadorship to Italy, or the governorship of the Philippines. He refused all three, and being defeated by a narrow margin in a congressional race in Wisconsin, set up a law office in Washington.

He continued his practice until 1936 when he accepted President Roosevelt's appointment as ambassador to Russia. During this period he had many famous cases, the most outstanding of which was that for the Ford Motor company, in which the government sued the stockholders for $36,000,000 alleged due on back taxes. Mr. Davies not only won the case but succeeded in getting Ford a refund of $3,000,000 in taxes already paid.

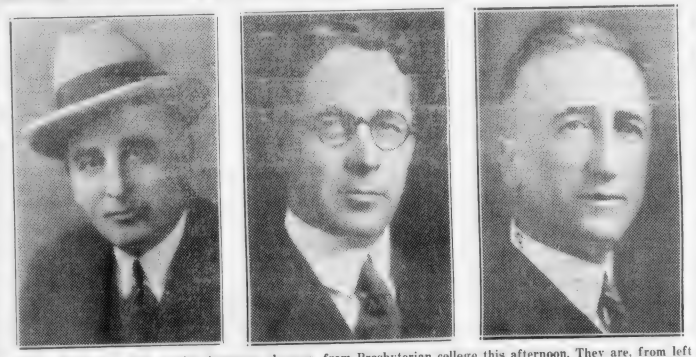
Mr. Davies and his wife will leave for Washington late this afternoon by train, and shortly thereafter will sail for England on their yacht to attend the coronation of George VI.

Senator Byrnes is considered by many political writers and commentators the "great and good friend of President Roosevelt on the Hill." His decisive action in the sit-down strike against the Democratic party in congress recently [illegible] him as a man of courage and [illegible] independence, one of the most powerful and influential men on Capitol Hill.

A native South Carolinian, Senator Byrnes has been intimately associated with the political life of the nation since 1911 when he was elected to the United States House of Representatives from the Second district of South Carolina. He served from the 62nd through the 67th congress. From 1911 to 1925. He has served one term as [illegible] United States senator from South Carolina and was reelected in [illegible]

AUSTIN UNABLE TO BE PRESENT

Suffers Broken Leg In Accident In Charleston Tuesday.



Dwight E. Austin, New York, who was to have been present today at the special ceremonies to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Presbyterian college, is unable to attend on account of an accident in Charleston last Tuesday night in which he suffered a broken leg. The degree, however, will be conferred in his absence at the appointed time this afternoon along with those to be conferred upon Ambassador Davies and Senator Byrnes. It is expected that Mrs. Austin will be here for the ceremonies, although no definite announcement was available.

Shortly after 8 p.m. Tuesday, Mr. Austin stepped out of automobile to go into the postoffice at Charleston and a mail truck struck him.

Mr. Austin was staying with his daughter, Mrs. Bohun B. Kinloch.

Mr. Austin had a bone fractured in his right leg, and also suffered bruises. Latest reports indicate his condition is satisfactory.

Will Receive Doctor of Laws Degrees Here Today

The above men will receive honorary degrees from Presbyterian college this afternoon. They are, from left to right: Hon. Joseph E. Davies, U. S. envoy to Russia; Dwight Austin, business man of New York, and United States Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina.

AMBASSADOR TO RUSSIA TO BE HONORED

U. S. Senator and Prominent New York Business Men Will Receive Honorary Titles.

CEREMONIES WILL BEGIN AT 12 NOON

Dr. H. W. DuBose Will Confer Degrees For Board of Trustees.

What probably will be the largest group of national celebrities ever to visit Clinton are here with us today as Presbyterian college confers the honorary degree of doctor of laws on the Honorable Joseph E. Davies, United States ambassador to Russia, the Honorable James F. Byrnes, United States senator from South Carolina, and Dwight E. Austin, prominent New York manufacturer.

Over three hundred invitations to the most prominent political figures in the nation—a list of names that reads almost like a political directory of American affairs—and with the governor of the state, prominent state officials, federal judges, and other outstanding figures in the Southern scene attending, there is every indication that today's convocation will witness a group of celebrities unique in [illegible]

The [illegible] of the day begins at 12:05 with the arrival of the honor guests on [illegible] from Washington. They will be greeted at the station by a welcoming committee consisting of Governor Olin D. Johnston, President Jacobs, Dean Marshall Brown and the board of trustees of the college, and P. S. Bailey, mayor of Clinton.

A military escort from Presbyterian college's crack junior platoon will serve as a guard of honor as the guests go to the college by automobile. On arriving at the campus they will be greeted by a nineteen-gun military salute.

Following this they will at[illegible] luncheon guests at Judd [illegible] at [illegible] the academic procession will form at the administration building and march between double lines of Presbyterian college [illegible] to Leroy Springs gymnasium, where the degree ceremony will be held. The public [illegible] attend these exercises at 1:40.

DAVIES UNABLE TO BE PRESENT TOD

SUFFERS INJURY IN FALL AT APARTMENT IN WASHINGTON

Will Receive Degree At Scheduled Time This Afternoon By Telephone.

JUDGE C. C. WYCHE TO GIVE DAVIES' ADDRESS

Little Change In Program As Previously Announced.

Word has been received that Ambassador Joseph E. Davies, who was to have been present today at Presbyterian college to receive the honorary degree of doctor of laws at the special ceremonies will not be present on account of an injury he received in a fall in his apartment in Washington early yesterday morning.

The degree, however, will be conferred upon him at the same time this afternoon as those conferred upon Senator Byrnes and Mr. Austin. The degree will be conferred by telephone and radio in his apartment, with Secretary of State Codrell Hull representing the president and the chairman of the board of trustees of the college.

According to announcement. there is a possibility of a nation-wide Columbia Broadcasting system hook-up with station WBT, Charlotte, taking care of the ceremonies on this end and Washington taking care of that end. There is also a possibility that the newsreels will make shots at Washington of Davies when he receives his degree.

The address to have been made here by Mr. Davies will be read to the audience and broadcast over radio station WBT, by Federal Judge C. C. Wyche of Spartanburg, at 2 p. m.

The program today will follow exactly that as printed on page one of this paper except that the train reception will not be held. The program for the day begins with a review of Presbyterian's military corps at 12:15. Mr. Davies' part on the program here will be taken by Judge Wyche. The other parts of the program will be supplied by telephone and radio.

Mr. Davies suffered a back injury when he tripped over a rug in his Washington apartment. His physicians forbid his coming to Clinton today, though his condition was reported as not being serious.

Unique Situation Arises As College Gives Degrees

When Presbyterian presents three honorary degrees today it will be doing so under one of the most unusual conditions in the history of such presentations, because simultaneously from the platform at Presbyterian one degree will be presented to a man in Washington, D. C., another will be presented to a man in Charleston, S. C., and a third will be presented to one here on the platform. The uniqueness of such procedure should add to the interest of the ceremonies as radio and telephone will be used by P. C. in conferring two of the honorary degrees.

In Washington, Secretary of State Cordell Hull will represent President Jacobs and Rev. H. W. DuBose, chairman of the board of trustees in conferring the degree upon Ambassador Davies, while in Charleston, as the degree is conferred upon Mr. Austin in the hospital there, Dr. G. A. Nickles will represent Mr. Jacobs and Dr. Alexander Sprunt will represent the chairman of the board.

It is believed that such a procedure is unique in the history of such presentations.

MR. H. R. PAUL MAKES ADDRESS TO SKA GROUP

Charleston Man Speaks On "Education—What and How?"

H. Robertson Paul, of Charleston, addressed the annual Sigma Kappa Alpha banquet which was held last Thursday evening in Judd dining hall, on the subject, "Education—What and How?"

Mr. Paul, a former Rhodes scholar and graduate of Oxford University, England, spoke before a large group of members of Sigma Kappa Alpha, members of the dean's list and other students and faculty members.

Mr. Paul discussed the why of an education, using examples from the works of Shakespeare's tragedies and continuing by using the example of the contract to show that was a man is obligated to do he must fulfill.

The banquet opened with an invocation by Dr. A. E. Spencer, vice-president of the college. Following the dinner, Mr. Paul was introduced by the toastmaster, Marshall W. Brown, dean of the college.

Mr. Paul was accompanied by his son, Huiet, a freshman here and president of his class, and Mrs. Paul.

The students composing the dean's list are those maintaining a high scholastic average. Each student must have a cumulative average of 2.5 to meet the requirements of the dean's list. Membership in Sigma Kappa Alpha is based on more stringent requirements.

After the banquet, Stuart Campbell, president of Sigma Kappa Alpha, introduced the guests to Mr. Paul, who said that he was delighted to have the opportunity to speak to the group.

Pi Kappa Alpha To Honor Mother's In Special Program

The Pi Kappa Alpha fraternity will observe Mother's day one week before the national day with a reception and program in the chapter rooms Sunday afternoon, May 2.

The reception has been planned in honor of the mothers and friends of the Pi K. A.s in the community. The wives of various faculty members and a number of other ladies in Clinton have been invited to attend the reception as "mothers' 'of the members of the chapter.

At the entertainment, Mrs. John Osman will act as hostess for the fraternity. The members of the chapter have arranged a brief program for the occasion.

Work Progresses On Year Book

Editor Joe Patrick has announced that the 1937 edition of The PaC-SaC will be ready for distribution the last week of school if present plans are followed.

Practically all the plates have been made and most of the type has been set up.

This year the annual is being printed by the Jacobs company of Clinton, and will contain about 216 pages. Last year's edition contained about 20 pages less.

All organization and individuals who have not paid for their space are urged to do so at once.

Patterson Heads Ministerial Club For Coming Year

Merle C. Patterson, rising senior of Moultrie, Ga., has been elected to the presidency of the Ministerial club, succeeding Cliff McLeod, of Ocala, Fla., who has held the office during the past year.

Hubert Wardlaw, rising junior of Marietta, Ga., was chosen vice-president, while D. M. Morrison of McClellanville, was selected as secretary-treasurer to succeed himself, while Cliff McLeod was chosen chaplain.

The present officers will be installed at the annual senior farewell banquet of the club to be held next Thursday night.

Outgoing officers of the club are Cliff McLeod, president; Virgil St. John, vice-president; D. M. Morrison, secretary; M. C. Patterson, treasurer, and Chester Keller, chaplain.

New President

Collings, Patrick, Legare Conduct "Y" Program

"What P. C. Has Meant To Me" was the interesting and well-developed subject on which three members of the senior class, Simon Legare, Joe Patrick, and Jim Collings, addressed the Y.M.C.A. Friday night. All three of these men are prominent in extra-curricular activities on the campus and consequently were well-fitted for excellent talks on the subject.

The prevalent factor in all three of these talks was the friendships that one forms on the campus, with each speaker laying emphasis on the fact that the regrets that he must soon leave those fellow students with whom he has been in such close contact for the past four years.

The main point in Legare's talk was the ideals and standards of P. C. He closed with the statement, "I know I can't go wrong in life if I live up to the high ideals and standards of this college."

Patrick brought out the fact that four years at P. C. teaches the student self-control. He stated that with the free life a student lives here he must necessarily exercise self-control in some matters and, consequently, becomes more and more accustomed to suppressing his desires.

Collings emphasized a good point in stating that the campus life at P. C. broadens the student's personality. He also dwelt for a few minutes on the spiritual development that a student receives here, and closed saying, "What has P. C. meant to me? It has made a new man of me and I hope it is doing the same for you."

Witherspoon New I. R. C. President

The International Relations club met Wednesday nigh tfor the purpose of electing officers for the year 1937-1938. President Tom Newland presided and the voting was done by secret ballot.

Jack Witherspoon, a rising senior, was elected to the presidency. For vice-president, George Beatty, another rising senior, was chosen, while Louis Heckle was elected secretary-treasurer.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Wednesday night, May 5. At that time, the program will be in charge of the new president. This will be the last meeting of the school year.

ORTH CAROLINA WRITER SAYS ICE THINGS ABOUT P. C.'S COACH

(Editor's Note:—The following rticle appeared recently on the sports page of The Greensboro (N. C.) Daily News, and was written by its sports editor, Mr. eonard. It is being reprinted here because of its wide interest o friends of Walter Johnson and Presbyterian College).

There he sat. The huge bulk of alter Johnson was rigid in an overaffed chair. His temples showed gns of baldness. The once bushy, ndy hair of the P. C. football coach as thinning out. But Walter Johnson ill had his enthusiasm, courage and ility.

And those three factors have carried him a long way. In fact, they ave enabled him to gain the distinction of "Dean of Southern Football Coaches." He has for 22 years been guiding the destiny of athletics Presbyterian college, a relatively mall school in Clinton, S. C., with a pirit that rivals the best.

The coach hadn't changed much in early three years. We had not met in hat period of time. But he was the ame man. Good, genial Coach Johnson. He was sitting beside Wiley Shoar, once a football star on his Presyterian teams of 1919 and 1920 and Southern conference football official.

Walter Johnson was beaming over he spring weather outside. We were talking in the lobby of the Y.M.C.A. Incidentally, he made a speech there last night at the meeting of new members of the association. There, coach is an interested Y.M.C.A. worker, being among the organizers of an association at Presbyterian college.

"I saw in your paper this morning where you have a baseball game here this afternoon," he said. "Well, we'll have to see it, because this is too good a day to let a baseball game go by unnoticed."

He was reminded that the game was the season's opener."

"Oh, that's all the better," he exclaimed. "I've attended opening day games before. That's where we can see the best. It gives you an opportunity to see some of the rough spots. We can't miss seeing those two high school teams play."

The coach's desire to see the game was held by each of us. So that was settled for the moment. Walter Johnson loves baseball. He coached baseball a long time. But now he has Galloway, ex-Presbyterian star and former ace of the Philadelphia Athletics, coaching the team. Johnson coached Galloway and sent him to the and Chesty Martin, former Clemson to the big leagues.

But the conversation changed to football. Scholar could hardly be around the man he admires so much without talking football. That's Johnson. He never dislikes to discuss football, the changes in the game and its highlights. After all, he's been identified with its for nearly 30 years, 22 of them as coach of one school. He played on a high school in Milwaukee, Wis., where he was born, and Battle Creek college in Michigan.

So, his background in the game can not be considered trivial. "Football has changed a great deal over the years," the coach recalled. "The lateral and forward passes have made it more scientific, and done away with massed play, which once was so popular.

"This change opened the game for lighter fellows. It developed football so that smaller boys could play and play well. You know how I've been trying to use small men on my team for the last 10 years. In the days before that, it was hard to use little fellows. But now it's easy."

It was only in 1928, 1929 and 1930 that Coach Johnson had on his team some of the greatest backs in South Carolina football history. He was Jimmy Green, a lithe, fleet-footed halfback who ran like a rabbit, and "Jimmy" the greatest little fellow on the field I've ever seen," Johnson said. "We've had other fine players, but I don't think any of the smaller boys could come up to him."

Johnson has produced splendid teams. Presbyterian college is selective about its students. Only the better students are allowed to matriculate there. The athletic ability of a chap matters very little. But this hasn't hindered Johnson. He has won games, titles and his developed character. He has done an excellent job, and when he steps out of the gridiron game, football can well say he served the game well.

Only one man, Bob Zuppke, who coaches at Illinois, has been coaching at once school longer than Johnson. Zuppke enters his 24th year at Illinois this fall, Johnson begins his 22nd session at Presbyterian. It is a coincidence that both are natives of Wisconsin. And both are football coaches of the first order.

But Johnson has never confined his interest solely to football. He coaches track at P. C. and the Blue Stockings once had the reputation of being the fastest boys in the South. They held the South Carolina and S.I.A.A. championships for years on end. The state track meet has been held at P. C. annually for the last 11 years.

Johnson saw his small school grow. It has often been said that Walter can remain there as long as he wishes. And, he probably will. Johnson has had overtures, many of them. But he like the Blue Stockings. And he likes him. They have grown a long way together. From a small enrollment of some 70 students to one of more than 400 students. Johnson, former ace of the Philadelphia Athletics, coaching the team. Johnson grew a young, inexperienced coached Galloway and sent him to the majors. He also sent Charlie Wilson and Chesty Martin, former Clemson mainstays, to the big leagues.

Johnson and W. P. Jacobs, president of the College, get along well together. Mr. Jacobs is an interested follower of Johnson's teams. He is never more at home than when he is at a football game. In fact, Mr. Jacobs is a coach. In fact, he is president in this sense. He supports a team. Johnson handles the tennis team at P. C.

Coach Johnson, he says, is a man's man. He is interested in every student and has helped build character in them. He is interested in sports, but only as a means to an end. He is interested to one sport. He is interested in all sports. He is interested in all students. He is interested in all men. He is interested in all women. He is interested in all children. What Shall I Do?

Like a double-minded man the youth asked that question and found no answer. Why? Because he looked for the answer from somewhere else and knew not that the answer lay within himself.

Jesus asked, Shall I drink of the cup? But He knew the answer was in Himself and He did drink of the cup. Pilate asked, What shall I do? and brought condemnation upon his head for the murder of an innocent man, because he tried to get out of the problem by giving the answer, "I don't know."

To spiritual youth there must be an answer to every question. To some youths the question, What shall I do? will not take the answer, I don't know. The world hates an indecisive man; and admires the man who has a mind of its own whether it be right or wrong.

To you as youth is given to answer the questions and problems that arise in life; the answer lies within you. What shall I do?

Life is making decisions; the mind decides ever what shall we do in the time; Am I right or wrong? Be sure yourself, but be ye confident of your judgment based on common sense and the opinions of others. But remember you, and you alone, must decide whether you have made the right step.

Welcome To Our Guests

To our distinguished guests present with us today we, as the students, offer our welcome to you. You have had all kinds of greetings from others, but we, the student body, wish to add our thanks to you for your presence here today.

We realize that you have come a great way today and perhaps have gone to some trouble. We appreciate your consideration and hope you enjoy your stay.

To all our visitors from various parts of the country we say that we are glad to see you. We know you must see as much of Southern hospitality as we can exert for you.

To you, Ambassador Davies, we extend our hand of greeting in fellowship and are glad to have you. We appreciate the presence of a man of your ability here with us. We are delighted to have you associating us with your presence. We know you have come a long way in the past few days. From that far-off country you have come to see how we live. We have quite a bit more about you to learn. You are not quite the [illegible] perhaps we are to you. We're glad to have you here.

To Senator Byrnes, we are glad to have you with us. We know you are quite busy with [illegible] but we are glad you could find time to be with us today. We [illegible] Mrs. Austin if she is in our midst today.

So to all our visitors we'd like to say in our informal [illegible] way, "Howdy, folks! Come in."

In the Swing of Things

As school is on its last lap we are really in the swing of things with the number of student activities here. Just about everyone of us has his share to do in developing himself as he should and can here.

We urge that you take a greater interest in things around the campus that you may become a better individual. Carlyle said, "The man who has found his work and does it is the happy man." Perhaps that is a bit shopworn to you, but nevertheless, no matter how many times you hear it, still the truth of that statement is not dimmed. There is no satisfaction in an incompleted job. There is no peace when jobs to be done hang fire over our heads.

We once knew a fellow who always worried about what he had to do, but never did it. A solid bit of advice to him was to have done his work to get it off his mind. Deeds unaccomplished rest somewhat uneasily on the conscience.

So, as you get into the swing of this year in studies, athletics and other extra-curricula activities, remember worrying over things not done will help none. The thing to do is to get the job out of your mind by doing it. Procrastination is a deadening thing to ambition.

New Ideas

Somebody has said the history of the world is written in the ideas of men; changes in ideas change history. May we add that changes in ideals changes the world's history. Man in the past few centuries has been on an upward path in learning; but the spiritual sphere changes not; can we say morals are better or worse today than ever. That is hard to measure; but one fact remains: man is just as liable to err as ever, and man is also just as liable to improvement.

So the man who has been in college four years and has shown no improvement has shown little increase as far as civilization is concerned. But, fortunately, it is almost impossible for a man to spend four years in this school without undergoing a change for the better. The impressions received somehow change the ideas. Like the clay in the Potter's hands, we are shaped by our environment. But man attempts to avoid change as much as possible.

To you students who may avoid some activities here, we say: you may not be welded as fine as others; but there are some things you cannot escape here that will definitely make you better. No graduate we have ever met has denied the truth of this statement.

We as students and young college men and women are going to need a great deal of moulding in our earlier lives, particularly in the moral and cultural sphere, if we are to stand firmly planted on solid common sense in a day of changing ideals and ideas.

And from Presbyterian College you will receive that moulding whether you are aware of it or not.

SOUND OFF

By

E. A. JOHNSON

Once more the academic and military departments of the college have their climax of the week in the same week. This time, of course, it is the visit of Ambassador Davies, Senator Byrnes and Mr. Austin to our campus. While the main event is the awarding of degrees to our graduates, the army is coming in for a share by adding a bit of color to the situation. Yes, sir, parades didn't end at commencement. Here we have another; we're for it and all.

The military department is indebted to this year's men for two very good reasons. In the first place it led to the discovery of a top-notch [illegible] that we did not know existed. The platoon drafted out to form the guard of honor for the visitors has drummed after a long day of drill into a real classy outfit. Those of you [illegible] a recent Book of Chapters of "Pershing Rifles" can be expected at a result of the interest being [illegible] in [illegible].

STATE TRACK MEET THIS WEEK

THE STATE MEET—'NEATH MOONLIGHT AND SHADOWS

Comes again the daddy of South Carolina's cinder shows—the state track and field meet. Johnson-directed and held on P. C.'s own layout, the colorful spectacle is an annual feature that dominates sports activity of the spring season. An excellent amplifying system plus one of the South's best lighting systems are recent additions to the local layout and this year's crop of races should be the best ever.

Clemson's Tigers, defending champions, are due to repeat their smashing triumph of a year ago, with Presbyterian and Carolina competing for runner-up honors. If Furman had several Bob Kings on its roster, the Baptist school of learning would create a nice bit of wind-blowing, but unfortunately (or fortunately), there's only one. Other teams entered are not strong enough to threaten the mighty men from the hay and pasture region as they perform 'neath moonlight and shadows Saturday evening.

RAWHIDE REVIEW

P. C. whipped Carolina, Erskine dropped a pair to Clemson and Wofford, and Furman stopped Citadel to feature a week that has made the state baseball race dizzier than ever. The Fleet reigned supreme with a clean slate until its downward slide — which changes the complexion of things. It looks like P. C. and Newberry in a bitter struggle for rawhide supremacy. Yes, yes.

THE HIT PARADE

This is the way the local lads stack up in individual batting performances. The list is for state games only and is inclusive of those men who have been at bat 10 times or more.

interest in them.

He is donor of the W. P. Jacobs blocking trophies, three of which are given outstanding blockers each year. Jacobs makes awards to blocking stars in South Carolina, Southern conference and Southeastern conference.

They make a great pair, do Coaches Johnson and Jacobs. So, next fall when they send the Blue Stockings on the gridiron against Clemson, Georgia Tech, South Carolina, and Wofford, we wish them luck. The team will be well coached and carrying spirit. The boys will fight as all Blue Hose do.

Racqueteers Lose To Carolina Here

Carolina's racqueteers took eight of nine matches against Presbyterian to hand the Blue Stockings a decisive setback on the local courts Monday afternoon.

The Gamecocks captured all six singles matches by one-sided scores and won two of the three doubles. Beatty, Parham, Woodword, Gray, Johnston and Stowell appeared in singles competition, with Beatty making the best stand.

HOMECOMING PLANNED FOR ERSKINE TILT

Former P. C. Baseball Players Invited To See Game As College's Guests.

A bit unique among homecomings is the get-together planned by baseball Coach Chick Galloway in honor of lettermen of past years, which will be focused around the P. C.-Erskine game on Thursday. All former P. C. baseball players are invited to see the contest as guests of the college, and it is hoped the occasion will draw a large number of "old grads."

The Galloway-coached Blue Hose outfit is currently running hot against state competition and appears to be headed for its first title in many years. Erskine, 1936 champ, is knotted with P. C. at present, and Thursday's battle has deep significance in respect to state ratings.

All lettermen are urged to put pleasure before business and lend their presence to P. C.'s initial baseball "homecoming."

P. C. Nine Scores 8 To 5 Victory Over Gamecocks

P. C.'s nine took advantage of errors and bases on balls to pile up 8 runs in the first two stanzas and score an 8 to 5 victory over Carolina to open the week's play.

Lefty Suggs was reached for 11 safeties, but kept the Bird batters under control except when his own support became shaky. Batchelor, Horne, Bird and Harvin were big guns in the Blue Hose offensive. Batchelor collected a home run and double to lead the parade, and Bird came out of a batting slump to secure a pair of lusty singles.

Fielding honors went to Pitt Bird, who made a sensational catch of a difficult foul.

P. C. Stands Second In State Ball Race

Presbyterian's coming nine advanced last week to within half a game of the pace-setting Flying Fleet of Erskine college, and a victory over The Citadel this afternoon will put them in a knot for state leadership. Newberry holds third with a 500 percentage, also claimed by South Carolina Gamecocks.

The mighty Hosemen are scheduled to take on Erskine at Due West tomorrow and the two leaders meet again Thursday in P. C.'s "homecoming" affair at Clinton. Erskine, after scoring its seventh consecutive victory over Newberry, dropped a close one to Clemson and then lost a 4 to 1 decision to Wofford.

ANNUAL ATHLETIC EVENT TO BE FRIDAY AND SATURDAY

All Colleges In State To Be Represented At Events.

FINALS SATURDAY NIGHT UNDER BIG FLOODLIGHTS

South Carolina's colossal cinder circus, the annual track and field meet, gets under way on Friday with practically every college in the state represented. The same procedure that has been in effect in past years will be followed and preparations are practically complete for the affair.

Walter Johnson is in charge of the meet and a capable group of officials have been secured to work under him. Trials are set for Friday and the play-off comes about under the gigantic floodlights Saturday evening. A powerful amplifying system will be used to direct activities on the field and keep spectators accurately informed as to progress of the meet.

Many colorful features have been slipped into the program; there will be a parade, band selections, recording music and prompt running off of events.

Blue Stockings Win Citadel Track Meet

Presbyterian's tracksters overcame deficiency in the track events to exert supremacy in the field and defeat Citadel's aggregation Tuesday afternoon, 76 to 49, on the Clinton track. Macon Hipp took firsts in the discus and his specialty, the javelin, to take top honors for the Hosemen. Keith, of Citadel, won the 100 and 220 to parallel the P. C. weight man's performance.

The summary:

Carolina Golfers Defeat P. C. Team

Led by Pat Tobias with his "sizzling 73," South Carolina's golfers defeated the P. C. team on the Lakeside club links, 14½ to 3½ Monday afternoon.

Tobias beat Woodward, 2 to 1, and Bruner blanked Stowell, to 3 to 0. Woodward and Stowell scored 2 to 1 in team play in fore foursome. In the other foursome, Deloache, of Carolina, defeated Gilmore, 3 to 0, and Fouche downed Caldwell, 2½ to 1½.

California Visitor Inspects College

Warren G. Burgess, of Los Angeles, Calif., president of the Knox company, was the guest of President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college, early last week and while in Clinton he made a detailed inspection of Presbyterian college and the unique plan of education which had caught his attention several months ago.

Mr. Burgess has just completed a business trip, made entirely by airplane, which carried him from Los Angeles across Central America and down the west coast of South America into the Argentine. He flew across the continent from the Argentine, and then followed the east coast to Cuba, and from there flew by Key West to Charleston. Mr. Jacobs met Mr. and Mrs. Burgess in Charleston and brought them to Clinton.

After his visit to Clinton he flew to Washington and Mr. Jacobs and from Washington he plans to fly home to Los Angeles.

Speaking Contests To Be Held Soon

Dr. M. G. Woodworth announced today that the annual oratorical and declamation contests will be held sometime next month at a date to be set later. Four men will plan to enter the contest are: Hubert Wardlaw, D. W. Davis, Chester Keller, and Wayne Potter. Those entering the declamation contest are: Marion Newton, Wayne Potter, Ed Lamoright, Sam Livsey, and Dugal Harvey.

A ten-dollar prize is awarded the winner of each contest.

TRACK MEET BIG FEATURE OF WEEK-END

Clemson Tigers Win State-Wide Event

One-Point Margin Separates the Winner and Carolina, Holder of Second Place. Citadel Third and P. C. Fourth.

By Jake Penland

Clemson's powerful trackmen rolled up a 46-point scoring total to take top honors in the daddy of cinder shows, the state meet, as they extended their period of supremacy to four years in the competition held under Johnson field's floodlights here Saturday evening.

The scoring gap between the two leading teams was narrowed to a single point when the Tiger outfit was disqualified for a technicality after winning the mile relay, last event on the program. Results of the relay boosted Carolina's score to 45, enabled The Citadel to place third with 21 points, and put Little three-fourths of a point ahead of Clemson's Carter in individual scoring.

Other teams finished in the following order: Presbyterian 19, Furman 18, Wofford 12, Erskine 2, Newberry 0.

It was Little who led Carolina's team in a sensational rally that barely fell short of stopping the mighty Tigers. He won high scoring honors with 15¾ points when his team finished second in the relay, and the fraction of a point in this event put him ahead of Carter, who had won the high jump and both hurdles.

Bob King, versatile Furman star, set the only new record recorded as he hurled the discus 142 feet, 6 inches to better his own record of 140 11¾ inches set last year. He also won the shot put to give the Baptist school its only other first place.

Approximately two thousand persons witnessed the colorful spectacle, which was preceded by a parade review of teams and concluded with the presentation of team and individual trophies by William P. Jacobs, Presbyterian college president.

Following are the summaries:

Mile run: Green (Clemson) first; Morton (Citadel) second; Joyner (Clemson) third; Lyle (Erskine) fourth. Time, 4 minutes, 39.4 seconds.

440-yard run: Herlong (Clemson) first; Kitchens (Clemson) second; Jones (Citadel)third; McCrary (Clemson) fourth. Time, 50.9 seconds.

Shot put: King (Furman) first; Babb (Furman) second; Lipscomb (Carolina) third; Pennington (Clemson) fourth. Distance, 44 feet, 1½ in.

100yard dash: Little (Carolina) first; Keith (Citadel) second; Dennard (PC) third; Cole (PC) fourth. Time, 10 seconds.

120-yard high hurdles: Carter (Clemson)first; Taylor (Carolina) second; Reynolds (PC) third; Gage (Clemson) fourth. Time, 15.2 seconds.

Discus: King (Furman) first; Craig (Carolina) second; Babb (Furman) third; Lipscomb (Carolina) fourth. Distance, 142 feet, 6 inches. (New record. Old record of 140 ft. 11¾ in. set by King in 1936).

880-yard run: Witherspoon (Clemson) first; Beasley (Furman) second; Green (PC) third; Calhoun (Clemson) fourth. Time, 2 minutes, 4 seconds.

Javelin throw: Spigner (Carolina) first; McConnell (Clemson, second; King (Citadel) third; Hipp (PC) fourth. Distance, 184 feet, ¼ inch.

220-yard dash: Little (Carolina) first; Keith (Citadel) second; Dennard (PC) third; Knight (Carolina) fourth. Time, 22.6 seconds.

High jump: Carter (Clemson) first; Hill (Wofford) second; Hinson (Clemson) third; Bryce (Clemson) fourth. Height, 5 feet, 1 inches.

Pole vault: Hinson (Carolina) first; Danner (Wofford) second; Whitney (Clemson) third; Bryce (Clemson) fourth. Height, 11 feet, 6 inches.

DR. B. MAYNE WILL SPEAK ON THURSDAY

Noted Research Specialist and Scientist To Address Student Body This Week.

On Thursday night at 8 o'clock in the chemistry lecture room, Dr. Bruce Mayne, a leading research scientist in the United States Public Health service, and an authority on malarial research, will address a meeting of Chi Beta Phi, scientific fraternity, to which the student body has been invited, according to an announcement by J. A. Witherspoon, president of the fraternity.

Through the efforts of Dr. Dudley Jones, the eminent scientist was invited to the campus to give his illustrated lecture on "The Ravages of the Malarial Mosquito," tracing the habits of the insect from larvae to the adult stage, showing the manner in which it transmutes the deadly malarial germs into the blood stream of a human being. Dr. Mayne will bring the motion picture film that he recently made at Warner Brothers studio, showing different aspects of his research in various parts of the world, on the malarial mosquito.

Dr. Mayne enjoys an international reputation in the field of scientific research, and in that branch of the science that pertains to the malarial mosquito. The skillful surgeon once dissected the salivary glands of a mosquito under the microscope. Dr. Mayne studied under a famous German biologist, and has continued his study and research in India, the tropics, and many other remote corners of the world where the mosquito shortens the life of man by its deadly injection.

President Witherspoon also announced that the next meeting of Chi Beta Phi would take place two weeks from the Thursday night meeting, and that, being the last meeting of the year, a review of the year's work and plans for the coming year would be made.

S. B. CAMPBELL NAMED VALEDICTORIAN OF '37; PATRICK, SALUTATORIAN

Don Mario Engaged For Local Panhellenic Finals May 14 and 15

Don Mario and his twelve-piece orchestra has been signed for the finals which are to be held in Copeland hall on May 14 and 15.

The Mario band presents a variety of entertainment, featuring a glee club, quartet, trio and individual vocalists, with special novelty material. The ensemble comes direct from the French Casino and Hotel Astor in New York and numbers several big spots among past engagements.

Invitations will soon be mailed out for the series, which features and brings to a close the spring social season. A Friday night dance, Saturday afternoon tea dance and Saturday evening swing session will be offered as usual.

The newly elected Panhellenic council is in charge of the series.

MAESTRO

COMMANDER CHOSEN FOR BLUE KEY FRAT

Student Body President Honored By Leadership Frat.

Joe Commander, rising senior of Florence, has been elected to membership in Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, according to announcement from Joe Patrick, president of the fraternity. Commander's election to membership brings the total membership to 10, with seven seniors and three juniors in the organization.

Commander was recently elected and installed as student body president after one of the most interesting presidential races in the history of elections here. He is socially a Pi Kappa Phi, a member of the baseball team, a member of the Block "P" club and is platoon sergeant in the R.O.T.C. During his three years here Commander has been active in various phases of student body activities. He is also a member of the new Y.M.C.A. cabinet.

I. R. C. To Have Last Program Of Year Wednesday

On Wednesday night at seven o'clock in Dr. Spencer's classroom, the International Relations club will hold the last meeting of the year, during which the newly-elected officers will be inducted, announced J. A. Witherspoon, president of the organization today.

George Beatty, vice-president and chairman of the program committee for the coming year, announced that the program Wednesday night would consist of a talk by Keitt Darby on "Ethiopia Since the Advent of Mussolini," and a talk by Fred Allen on "Let's Go To the Coronation." There will also be an address by the retiring president, Tom Newland, and a general discussion of current events led by the chairman of the meeting.

At the close of the meeting Wednesday night, I. R. C. will have ended a very successful year as one of the most outstanding non-social organizations on the campus.

BOTH HIGH IN SCHOLARSHIP

Miss Sophie Sullivan To Receive Award of Scholarship Medal At Commencement.

Stuart Bland Campbell, Jr., Wytheville, Va., is valedictorian of the class of 1937, while Joseph Ernest Patrick, Covington, Ga., is salutatorian, according to an announcement today from Dean Marshall W. Brown.

Campbell is one of the outstanding men of the senior class. He is a member of Blue Key, editor of The Collegian, literary magazine, president of Alpha Kappa Pi social fraternity, member of the literary societies, served as staff member of The Blue Stocking and has been prominent in various other student body activities.

During the three and a half years he has been here Campbell has earned a scholastic average of 3.39. He is president of Sigma Kappa Alpha, scholarship fraternity.

Patrick is also an outstanding member of the senior class. He is president of Blue Key, editor of this year's Pat-Sat, member of Pi Kappa Alpha, has been manager of the baseball team and a leader in various other student activities. He was a member of the Y.M.C.A. cabinet.

Patrick has an average of 2.75 for the three and a half years he has been in school holding membership in the scholarship fraternity, Sigma Kappa Alpha.

Dean Brown also announced that Miss Sophie Sullivan, of Laurens, will receive the scholarship medal which is given each year to the member of the senior class who maintains the highest average. Miss Sullivan is not eligible for class honors as she finished her required work in three years. Faculty rulings state that a student must be in school at least one semester of the year to be eligible for valedictorian. Also the student must have been in college at least three years. For this last reason Miss Frances Shaw, of Honea Path, was not eligible for class honors, though having a high average, as she has been in school only three semesters.

P. C. Students To Go To Europe

Pleasure and Study On Continent For Four Men.

After W. A. Hansell leaves from New York for Europe on the nineteenth of this month, he will be followed about the middle of June by R. K. Porter, Stuart Campbell and Roy Hutchinson, all of whom are planning to travel or study there this summer.

Hansell, who is going with his brother, will sail from New York on the nineteenth of this month, after arranging to complete his college year's work by that time, and will go first to Ireland, then to Scotland through the Lake country. He plans also a twelve-day cruise to Norway before returning to the states on June 28th.

Campbell will sail from New York on June 19th, on the "Saturnia" of the Italian line. He will go through the Mediterranean to Naples where he will stay a while. Then he plans to make a tour through Italy, Switzerland and Germany. He will return on the "Normandie" about August 16.

Porter plans to study about six weeks at Besancon, near the Swiss and German border in France, and he will sail on the "Queen Mary" June 9. On week-ends, holidays and other spare time Porter plans to visit Lon-

Political Leaders Of Capitol Hill Congratulate Presbyterian College On Recent Award of Degree To Ambassador Davies

Special to The Blue Stocking.
By Columbia Press Service.

Washington, May 3.—Leaders on Capitol Hill, in the field of journalism and the world of education as well as official Washington joined here today in expressing hearty and sincere felicitations and congratulations to Joseph E. Davies, United States Ambassador to Russia, upon receiving the honorary degree of doctor of laws from Presbyterian college. All paid particular tribute to Presbyterian college upon its outstanding selection for this high honor and considered Mr. Davies' award well merited.

It was pointed out with interest on Capitol Hill that Presbyterian college had also seen fit to honor South Carolina's junior senator, James F. Byrnes, with an honor award.

Speaking as a native South Carolinian, and representative of President Roosevelt's cabinet, Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper was among the first to extend his felicitations to Presbyterian college and Ambassador Davies. Said Secretary Roper: "I am indeed happy to learn of the outstanding award recently bestowed upon Ambassador Davies by Presbyterian college. The degree of doctor of laws is one of the finest honorary degrees that can be awarded to a public man. Presbyterian college is indeed to be heartily and sincerely congratulated upon its selection of Ambassador Joseph E. Davies for this signal honor.' '

Another to join in expressing felicitations to Ambassador Davies and Presbyterian college was Dr. John W. Studebaker, commissioner of education, and head of President Roosevelt's federal board for vocational education. "That is indeed gratifying news from the state of South Carolina. Presbyterian college has chosen more than wisely in awarding the honorary degree of doctor of laws to Ambassador Davies. Ambassador Davies has perhaps more than any other man merited this high distinction and recognition and I am more than happy to be among those in congratulating both the ambassador for his well-merited honor and Presbyterian college for its fine choice."

Senator James F. Byrnes of South Carolina, when reached at his office on Capitol Hill today declared: "It is a pleasure to felicitate a fellow holder of an honorary degree conferred by Presbyterian college. Ambassador Davies is doing an excellent work in representing the United States in a great foreign country."

Senator Royal S. Copeland, senior senator from the state of New York, was another to join enthusiastically in commending Presbyterian college and Ambassador Davies upon learning the news from South Carolina: "Presbyterian college is more than to be congratulated upon its happy choice of Ambassador Davies as the recipient for the high honorary degree of doctor of laws. The ambassador has received a signal honor as well as high recognition from a great institution. The award is an honor of which both Presbyterian college and Ambassador Davies may well be proud."

Secretary of State Hull, at the state department today, after having conferred the degree upon Ambassador Davies due to the ambassador's inability to be at Presbyterian college in person, said: "I was pleased at the request and by the authority of President William P. Jacobs and the board of trustees of Presbyterian college to have conferred upon Joseph E. Davies the honorary degree of doctor of laws and to have read the fine citation of the board of trustees."

Congressman Heyward Mahon was more than pleased at the good news from his own district in South Caro-

It Went Off Well

Such was the comment we heard from many regarding the convocation ceremonies last Monday afternoon. Everything went smoothly, being timed to the minute. The very uniqueness of the situation added very much to the attractiveness of the program. Some even said that the peculiarity lent a greater atmosphere of interest than might have been the case had the program been carried out as originally planned.

To those back of the scenes goes the credit for some clever thinking and quick action when the program had to be changed at the last moment.

All in all, it was a great day for P. C.

What? No Peace Demonstration?

Last week many colleges and universities throughout the country observed a special day as a demonstration against war. The purpose was to arouse American sentiment against our making aggressive war, fighting in foreign lands or entering foreign wars of any kind, and to discourage congress from making any further appropriations for armaments.

We should like to point out that no such demonstration is needed at Presbyterian College. In the first place, we are given military training by men who have gone through war; after hearing them talk of the horrors of war we do not care to enter war except in defense of our country. We have no desire for war; no more than any one else. The entire student body has been educated against war. But the entire student body was been educated that it is lawful in the sight of God to protect that which is holy and held sacred by the people, to protect their homes, loved ones and businesses from ravages of people who make aggressive war. Hence, we need no demonstration to tell the world that we do want peace; we assume that normal people want peace and that only abnormal people do not want it; hence, we conclude that a demonstration is but useless if carried on among intellectual groups. If our smart friends engaged in peace movements are so against war they have nothing on us.

In the second place, the United States has never made aggressive war on any other country, nor is there any possibility of such being the case. Hence, there is no demonstration needed against this. Third, the United States has never entered any foreign war it could have kept out of; and if our peace-movement friends say otherwise, they are saying that the congress of the United States is composed of profit-seekers from munitions, are unbalanced and could have kept out of the World war, are slandering the government of this country, and are to be classified as Communistic, Fascist, or with any of the other radicals.

As for congress appropriating funds for more armaments, we need them. Only a fool would leave the door of his home unlocked if he knew that a half dozen robbers were lurking in the neighborhood. There are none here so foolish that they would demonstrate against building up protection against the countries of the world whose dictators are arming themselves for personal conquest.

All the peace movements in this country are based on the argument that America is threatening to cause an upheaval in world politics by entering all kinds of wars, by declaring war without good reason other than the conquest of new land, that we are militarizing the country and getting ready for a great war on some other country, that we have in the past entered foreign wars we could have kept out of. Every one of these arguments is fallacious, stupid, and groundless.

The United States has always been the most peaceful country in the world, has never made aggressive war and, incidentally, has never had a strong army to protect itself when a war did come along. Our peace movement friends do not belong in this country; they belong in Europe, Japan, and elsewhere. Mark this: America has been, and always will be, the last to enter a war, and then has done so, and will do so, only when pressed.

And as for our not fighting, no matter what condition may arise, this is such a stupid argument that we refuse to waste space on it.

Peace movements in this country are not very useful because, first, the people behind them have never considered that America has never entered any war it could have kept out of; that we are not an aggressive nation; that we do not fight foreign wars except when we are attacked, as in the World war when the Lusitania was sunk; and lastly, they have not considered that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure in the case of building up our military reserve. As for their cries of capitalists, etc., causing wars, we only point to history and say that we entered war because we had to do so.

So Presbyterian needs no peace demonstrations; we are intelligent enough to see the stupidity and horror of war; but we are men and women enough to see that protection is necessary and that we had rather be prepared if we are attacked; and also we are men and women enough to know that we shall protect that which is a God-given right — our homes, loved ones, churches, property. And anyone who would refuse to protect those under any condition is not worthy to be called a man or a woman.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

Guy Lipscomb, rising senior, has been elected president of the rising senior class of the University of South Carolina . . . The Gamecock, U. S. C. weekly publication, printed the sentiments for or against the new hitch-hiking law, of some of the outstanding students at that school—all spoke against the law and were in favor of its being repealed . . . The Gamecock received a rating of "excellent" 'among the other collegiate publications in the U. S. . . . Statistics show that at the Glen Gray dance series at Clemson on Friday and Saturday, April 23 and 24, there were 348 females and approximately 1,000 male "swishers"—What a crowd, what a band, what a dance, and—what a time! . . . Neill Dalrymple was selected the most outstanding athlete at N. C. State for the year 1936-37, and was presented with the trophy that goes to the bearer of that honor. The trophy was won by Steve Sabol last year . . . The rumor that Bennie Goodman is going to play at the finals at Clemson is a lot of hooey. It will be impossible to obtain his services for dances following the close of his present contract, which is in the very near future. So don't get that suit pressed in impatient waiting. It is possible, however, that Hal Kemp will be signed . . . We're still looking forward to the big days at the Universtiy of North Carolina. These big days come on June 3, 4 and 5, and the reason is: on the 3rd Eddie Duchin will swing it for the swishters, and on the 4th and 5th "ole fran" Kay Kyser will lead the jam-session for the inspiration to dancing feet.

We are hearing reports that the local dance officials are considering the signing of a contract with Don Mario and his orchestra for the spring finals. We hear that he (Don Mario) has an "okey-doke" band and has been proclaimed a sensation in Hollywood and New York. We haven't heard the latest reports, but the officials are very much in favor of the above plans, and so—we think we are awaiting the "Little Commencements" and Don Mario.

When Jason Bernie, son of the "Old Maestra," left Rutgers University to take a position at the Universal Studios in Hollywood, he brought to an end a friendly feud with W. Winchell, a student who is no relative of the famous columnist. The two, because of their names, had carried on a friendly bantering.

More than 100,000 students in the U. S. are now attending America's 500 junior colleges. Fifteen years ago there were only 100 junior colleges in the nation.

Yale University has the addresses of all but 80 of its 31,003 graduates.

Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell, president emeritus of Harvard University, recently failed to pass an automobile driving examination.

COMMENTS ON THE CINDER CIRCUS

Well, dearie, another state track meet has come and gone. So, hile waiting for the Shep Fields radio program, we present a w Sunday evening reflections:

Biggest Disappointments

1. P. C.'s showing in the relay and surrender of an expected hird place to The Citadel.
2. Carter's tough luck in not being awarded the high scoring up after his team was disqualified in the relay.
3. Bob King's failure to cop more than ten points.
4. Forehand's failure to fall off the announcing stand.

Biggest Surprises

1. Biffet Green's nice performance in the 880-yard trot, after e failed to qualify in the 440 on Friday.
2. Clemson's relay disqualification.
3. Hinson's winning of the pole vault.
4. The strength shown by Carolina's Gamecocks, who ended up point behind Clemson.
5. Herlong's victory over team-mate Kitchens in the 440.

Color

1. The parade of teams, headed by P. C.'s band, which preceded the meet.
2. The victory ceremony announcing winners of events.
3. President Jacobs' presentation of trophies and speech of welcome.
4. Music—as offered by two durable phonograph records.

Suggs Pitches Three-Hit Ball

Hose Outfit Tops Erskine In Important Engagement.

Lefty Suggs limited Erskine's league-leading Flying Fleet to three hits and shared batting honors with Folley as Presbyterian scored a 3 to 1 victory to retain her standing. The game was played at Due West on Tuesday.

The Hosemen scored a pair in the second and another in the sixth, and Suggs pitched hitless ball until the latter stages of the contest. He collected a single and a triple to take honors at the plate, and Folley gave him a close run with a double and single.

P. C.'s loss to Citadel Monday put the Fleet temporarily ahead, but their loss to Galloway's outfit Tuesday gives the two teams a record of seven wins and three losses each. A scheduled game was postponed Thursday when morning showers made P. C.'s field too wet to be used.

Baby Hose Take Opening Contest

Score Freely In 10 To 2 Conquest of Ninety-Six High.

The P. C. freshmen opened their playing season Tuesday afternoon on the local field with a 10-2 win over Ninety-Six high school. The Anklets were superior in every department.

The frosh broke into the lead in the first inning after scoring two runs and continued to hold the lead during the entire game. Several errors netted the Ninety-Six high team their two runs, but they never threatened after the third inning.

Featuring the Anklets: The pitching of Davis and DuBose, who showed plenty of stuff all the way, and hitting of Strain, Bill Moore, Traywick, Erwin, McCormick, Mabry, and Bryant, each of whom secured two or more hits. The entire team fielded well; McCormick pulled a nice double play unassisted, and almost turned it into a triple play. Traywick in right field and Strain in center, made nice catches during the game.

The Baby Hose plan to have a number of games in the near future with the frosh teams from Erskine, Newberry, Furman, and Clemson; also tangling with a number of high school and mill teams.

Carolina Takes State Net Title

The University of South Carolina tennis team captured the state net title for their third consecutive year by whipping Clemson 5 to 2 in Columbia Saturday.

In laying claim to the title, the Gamecock racqueteers point to victories over nearly every state school, while their nearest rival has experienced two defeats.

Summary:

Daniels (Carolina) defeated Campbell, 6-1, 6-1.

Mitchell (Clemson) defeated Lipscomb, 6-1, 6-2.

Lagrone (Clemson) defeated Williams, 6-1, 6-2.

Carson (Carolina) defeated Hudgens, 5-7, 6-2, 6-2.

Bryan (Carolina) defeated Arnold, 6-3, 6-2.

Williams and Daniel (Carolina) defeated Lagrone and Campbell, 6-4, 1-6, 6-3.

Bradham and Prince (Carolina) defeated Mitchell and Arnold, 6-3, 4-6, 6-3.

CLEMSON SECOND, CITADEL THIRD AND P. C. FOURTH IN ANNUAL STATE COMPETITION

Erskine Remains On Top Rung

Half Game Ahead of P. C. In College Baseball Race.

With another week of the state collegiate baseball campaign relegated to the past, Erskine continues to set the pace with a half game advantage over Presbyterian's threatening Blue Stockings.

P. C.'s outfit stopped the Fleet, 3 to 1, in an important get-together at Due West Tuesday, but the Gallowaymen tribe had on Monday dropped a gruelling affair to Citadel. The Fleet whipped Carolina Saturday to maintain the slight lead they held last week.

Wofford climbed up into the 500 class, which is also shared by Newberry and Carolina, each with three wins and three losses.

Clemson still remains custodian of the cellar, with only one victory recorded in their eight appearances.

The Hosemen journey to Columbia Tuesday for their final fling at Carolina and engage Clemson on the Tiger layout Thursday:

The standings:

Erskine	8	3	727
Presbyterian	7	3	700
Newberry	3	3	500
Carolina	3	3	500
Wofford	3	3	500
Citadel	4	5	445
Furman	2	4	333
Clemson	1	7	125

No-Hit Pitching Stuns Hose Nine

Citadel Hurler Has Local Lads Eating Out of His Hand.

Bessinger, Citadel righthander, pitched a no-hit game against Presbyterian last Monday afternoon, but the Bulldogs had to push a run over in the ninth to gain a 3 to 2 decision.

The Cadet hurler used a sharply-breaking curve and drop to effectively subdue P. C.'s big bats. Weldon gave up seven hits, but probably would have earned a victory had not his support erred at critical moments.

Two walks, an outfield error, and a balk produced two P. C. runs in the seventh to knot the score, but Batchelor messed up a slow grounder in the ninth and Edwards tripled to put the Cadets ahead.

Murphy and Lambert Are High Scorers Here Friday.

RAWLS OF P. C., SETS NEW YEARLING MARK

By Jake Penland

South Carolina's first-year outfit went to town in the dashes, discus and pole vault to pile up 50 points and capture first place in the annual state freshman track meet on Johnson field Friday afternoon. Clemson's Cubs came second with 41, Citadel third with 23, and P. C.'s Baby Hose trailed fourth with 21.

Murphy of Citadel topped individual scorers with 15 points garnered from firsts in the javelin, broad and high jumps, and Lambert of Newberry pressed him hard with 14—all of Newberry's points.

In winning, the Carolina Biddies annexed the 100, 220 and 440 dashes, high hurdles, pole vault, discus and mile relay. Rawls of P. C. set a new state record in the mile and also took first in the 880. Buchan led the field in the two-mile in another top-notch P. C. performance.

The frosh meet preceded that of their varsity brethren, which was dominated by Clemson on Saturday evening.

Summary:

Mile: Rawls (PC), first; Ward (Clemson) second; Terrell (PC) third; Singleton (SC) fourth. Time, 4 minutes, 41 seconds. (New record. Old mark of 4:43.3 set by Cardwell of South Carolina in 1933).

STATE TENNIS TOURNAMENT TO BE HELD HERE NEXT WEEK-END

Fifty-Six Men Will Enter From Eight Colleges of South Carolina.

ELIMINATIONS AND FINALS TO REQUIRE THREE DAYS

In that brief interlude between the running of the preliminary events and the finals in the state track meet, the South Carolina committee on tennis rules met here Saturday and drew up final plans for the state tennis tournament which will be held here on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

With 56 college tennis aspirants entered in the tournament, Thursday will find all eight of Presbyterian college's especially groomed courts teeming with action as the tournament opens at ten o'clock with 50 matches to be played that day. Friday will find the quarter and semi-finals being played, and Saturday will witness the finals in the singles and the doubles.

Taylor Martin, director of the tournament, and assistant tennis coach at Presbyterian, this morning announced the seeding of players done by the committee Saturday afternoon. The players seeded, in order of rank, were: Daniel, Carolina; Southern, Furman; Aiken, Furman; Lagrone, Clemson; Beatty, Presbyterian; Price, Wofford; Gettys, Erskine; Mitchell, Clemson; Anderson, Wofford; Lipscomb, Carolina; Campbell, Clemson; Williams, Carolina, Kilgore, Citadel; Calhoun, Erskine; Smith, Furman; and Parham, Presbyterian.

The doubles teams seeded were: Daniel and Williams, Carolina; Campbell and Lagrone, Clemson; Southern and Aiken, Furman; Beatty and Parham, Presbyterian.

Presbyterian is entering the largest number of men with ten. The number of entries by school is: Presbyterian, 10; Carolina, 7; Clemson, 6; Citadel, 5; Erskine, 5; Furman, 5; Wofford, 5; Newberry, 5.

don, Rome and Paris before returning about the middle of August on the "Berengaria."

Hutchinson, who plans to study a year at the University of Toulouse, and then return to P. C. his senior year, will sail from New York about the middle of June for France and enroll on July 15 at Bagneres-De-Bigorre, a branch of the university, where he will attend summer school until September 15. The university opens in October, and Hutchinson plans to spend the interim visiting interesting places in France. An arrangement has been made between the two institutions for a transfer of credits which will enable Hutchinson to receive credit here for his work at the university.

POLITICAL LEADERS CONGRATULATE P. C. ON CONFERRING DEGREES

lina. Describing the award as "truly in keeping with the fine traditions of Presbyterian college," Congressman Mahon stated: "I have learned with great interest of the recent honor conferred upon Ambassador Joseph E. Davies by Presbyterian college at Clinton, and am more than heartily gratified. The recognition extended to Ambassador Davies by Presbyterian college is truly in keeping with the fine traditions of the great institution, and I am happy to join in expressing my hearty felicitations to both Presbyterian college for the fine selection and to Ambassador Davies for a well-earned and much-coveted honor."

Another representative from the world of education, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of George Washington university, which has graduated some of the country's greatest statesmen and educators, stated: "I was more than happy to learn that Presbyterian college at Clinton had conferred the degree of doctor of laws upon Ambassador Joseph E. Davies. Ambassador Davies indeed merits this high honor."

The Inquiring Reporter

During the track meet the other night your reporter dodged javelins, the discus, and the falling bar of the high jump, then invaded the sacred precincts of the shower room, in an endeavor to interview the captains of the various teams, and get their several impressions of the meet, and its unusual or outstanding incidents.

ROBERT CARTER, captain of the winning CLEMSON TIGERS, paused in the midst of a vigorous after-shower rub-down to answer when we asked him, "WHAT WAS YOUR GENERAL IMPRESSION OF THE MEET?" and he replied: "I know I am speaking for all the boys on the Clemson team when I say that we enjoyed the meet and the fine way in which it was run off . . . and I want to say that I think the disqualification was fair, and that we all enjoyed the fine hospitality of Coach Johnson and P. C.

We were unable to see G. R. Taylor, captain of the CAROLINA team after the meet, but we did talk to MANAGER HENLEY and COACH PAWLEY. HENLEY said: "It was a very fine meet and was carried off in the same excellent way it has been handled in previous years . . . we enjoyed being here." COACH PAWLEY told us, "Although the track was a little slow, I think the meet was run off in usual fine style. Now about the disqualification: perhaps some new ruling could be made to prevent so much jostling on the curve because of crowding. Also I was sorry to see that the high-point man decision was made without consulting Carter or Little. However, I thought the decision was fair enough.' '

CAPTAIN J .D. KEITH of THE CITADEL told us, "The starts this year especially impressed me—I mean the fairness of them. I think that it has been a very nicely run off track meet." Then,as he smiled broadly he told us an amusing story. He said, "This morning as I came through the gym "Columbo' 'asked me if The Citadel team had registered at the business office, since he had seen so much of us lately; and I guess he has pretty good grounds for wanting to know."

ERSKINE'S CAPTAIN WILLARD DRAKE told us: "I liked the meet fine, and we were very much pleased with our work .and we enjoyed our stay here very much. I thought the track was in good condition."

CAPTAIN NEIL ROBERTSON of the WOFFORD team said: "I thought the meet was run off in good form, and although I have been very much impressed with the showing Carolina made, I had picked Clemson to win. We have enjoyed our s... much."

SIX GOLD "P" WINNERS ARE ANNOUNCED

Manning To Be Commencement Speaker

REV. W. V. GARDNER WILL DELIVER BACCALAUREATE SERMON HERE

Prominent Citizen and Political Leader, and Outstanding Atlanta Minister Will Address Graduating Class.

...C. MINISTER WILL MAKE Y.M.C.A. ADDRESS

William P. Jacobs, president of Presbyterian college, has announced that the principal address of the commencement exercises of the college on Monday, May 31, would be delivered by Major Wyndham Manning of Sumter.

At the same time he announced that the baccalaureate sermon would be delivered by Rev. William V. Gardner, D. D., pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta.

The speaker for the Y.M.C.A. service on Sunday night of commencement week will be Rev. John Bright, of Durham, N. C.

Major Manning is one of the outstanding figures in South Carolina. Twice candidate for the office of governor, he comes from a family of governors. His father, Richard I. Manning, was war-time governor of the state, and it is interesting to note that he was the commencement speaker at Presbyterian college in 1914, when Mr. Jacobs graduated.

Dr. Gardner is rapidly becoming recognized as one of the outstanding young Presbyterian ministers of the South. His sermons are broadcast by radio each Sunday.

Mr. Bright, a graduate of Presbyterian college, attended Union Theological seminary, Richmond, subsequently doing graduate work and being a member of the faculty. He is now assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Durham.

Seniors Will Edit Next Issue Of Blue Stocking

Sadler Love Chosen Ae Editor of Special Class Issue.

Continuing a custom that has been in vogue during the past few years, next week's issue of The Blue Stocking will be put out by the senior class, under the editorship of Sadler Love, the present staff stepping aside to replenish waning strength and to make room for the swan song of the graduates of 1937.

Love was elected by the seniors last week to the editorship of the issue. He retired as regular editor of the paper at the end of last semester. The members of his staff have done excellent work on publications during their stay at P. C.

There will be only one more issue of the paper after the special senior issue next Monday, the final issue appearing on May 24th.

Editor Love has chosen the following associate editors who will compose the staff: Miss Frances Spratt, Joe Patrick, Simon Legare, Stuart Campbell, Claus Cappelmann, and Jim Collings.

Love will have complete charge of the edition and any material placed in the paper will be under his direction and the staff. Those who wish to place unsolicited items in next week's edition will see Love rather than the present editor.

Keller Honored By Ministerial Group

At its annual senior farewell banquet, the Ministerial club of Presbyterian college last week honored its only senior member, Chester Keller, of Greenville, and announced its officers for the coming year.

Chosen as president of the club was Merle Patterson, of Moultrie, Ga. The vice-president selected was Hubert Wardlaw, of Marietta, Ga., while Virgil St. John, of Charlotte Court House, Va., was elected secretary-treasurer.

President William P. Jacobs of the college, gave a brief address congratulating the club and laying the challenge of Christian leadership on the campus before it.

Cliff McLeod, of Ocala, Fla., retiring president, presided.

Dr. Bruce Mayne Addresses Students Here On Malaria

"The ravages of the mosquito can be curtailed in this country by nationwide cooperation in the way of money, a willingness to work against it, and by education of the layman in ways of preventing it," said Dr. Bruce Mayne, internationl authority on malarial research, Wednesday night as he addressed a large portion of the student body in the science hall on the subject, "The Ravages of the Mosquito."

Following a brief address, the noted research scientist illustrated by means of the motion picture camera, "The Life Cycle of the Mosquito," showing the manner in which the parasite is bred, raised, and feeds upon its hapless victim. Many intricate stages in the development of the mosquito were shown by means of animated drawings, which clearly revealed parts that could be seen only with the microscope. The most interesting part of the film, however, was that section which showed Dr. Mayne dissecting the salivary gland of an anopheles mosquito under the microscope. This is the most delicate and difficult part of the dissection and, although other scientists have attempted it, few have been as successful as Dr. Mayne in this work.

It is in the showing of such films and by the lectures which accompany them that the United States public health service, with which Dr. Mayne is connected, hopes to educate the layman in the prevention and eradication of this insect.

After the meeting, J. A. Witherspoon, president of Chi Beta Phi scientific fraternity, which brought Dr. Mayne to the campus, announced that the next meeting would take place next Thursday night and that this being the last meeting of the year, a review of the year's work, and plans for the coming season, would be made.

Jacobs Is Speaker At Clemson Day

President William P. Jacobs of Presbyterian college was the principal speaker on last Tuesday as Clemson college observed its annual honor day.

Taking as his subject the demand for scholarship by business and profession, Mr. Jacobs said "the world is expecting more of the college graduates of today than it has ever expected in the past.

"Honesty with one's self, with one's associates, is an element of scholarship which is in great demand in industry and profession," he asserted.

STUDENTS TO GO TO POLLS TOMORROW

Rising Sophs, Juniors and Seniors To Choose Class Leaders For Next Year.

LARGE NUMBER OF NOMINEES NAMED

The senior, junior and sophomore classes nominated class officers for 1937-38 last Friday morning, and students will go to the polls tomorrow to determine who shall be chosen from these nominees.

Change For Honor Students Made

According to an announcement from Dean Marshall W. Brown; the faculty has voted to suspend compulsory class attendance for juniors and seniors who are on the dean's scholarship list. The student may attend class as he chooses, except in the case where a professor may require the student to attend if he is doing unsatisfactory work in that particular course.

However, these students who will receive this special privilege will have to meet all scheduled or previously announced tests.

The ruling goes into effect immediately and attention is called to the fact that it applies only to juniors and seniors who have maintained since their entrance into school a 2.5 average or more and consequently are members of the dean's list.

It is also pointed out that such a ruling is in effect only in the semester following the announcement that the student is on the dean's list.

PROMINENT SENIORS HONORED FOR OUTSTANDING SERVICE

Campbell, Collings, Keller, Love, Patrick and Shoemaker Will Receive Awards.

TO BE PRESENTED COMMENCEMENT DAY

For meritorious work in extra-curricular activities other than athletics, six prominent seniors, Raleigh Shoemaker, Joseph Patrick, Stuart Campbell, Sadler Love, Chester Keller, and James Collings, all of whom have been outstanding in student affairs, will receive the college's highest stamp of approval—gold "Ps" awarded annually to men selected by the student activities committee of the faculty.

Shoemaker was president of the student body during the past year, is a member of Pi Kappa Alpha, was a member of the varsity football team and has been active in various other phases of campus life. He is from Charlotte, N. C.

Patrick is editor of The PaC-SaC this year, president of Blue Key, and has been active in other work. He is salvatorian of this year's graduating class. He is from Covington, Ga.

Love was editor of The Blue Stocking during the past year, is associate editor of The PaC-SaC and The Collegian and has been active in other literary work. He is from Rock Hill.

Campbell, of Wytheville, Va., is editor of the literary magazine of the college, The Collegian, and is valedictorian of this year's graduating class.

Chester Keller, of Greenville, was president of the Y.M.C.A. during the past year as well as national president of Delta Chi Alpha, national Christian leadership fraternity. He was a cheer leader and has been active in other work on the campus.

Collings was president of the glee club during the past year, cadet colonel of the R.O.T.C. corps, member of the varsity football team and vice-president of the student body. He is from Atlanta, Ga.

All the above men are members of Blue Key, national leadership fraternity, and they have shown themselves to be the six outstanding leaders in the senior class in extra-curricular activities.

Presentations of the gold "P" certificates will be made at chapel at an early date. The emblems will be given to the men at commencement exercises.

Presentation of gold "P"s are made only to members of the senior class.

Panhellenic Finals To Feature Social Activities Of Week

Harris Gray and Jimmy Poyner To Furnish Music.

The final social activities of the year will be held next week-end when the Panhellenic finals take place Friday and Saturday at Copeland hall.

"Hap" Gray nd his orchestra will play for the dance Friday evening, while Jimmy Poyner's band will play for the Saturday afternoon and evening dances.

The series will get under way Friday evening at 10 o'clock with a formal dance which will last until 3 a.m. On Saturday afternoon a tea dance will be held from four until six. The final dance of the series will be Saturday night when an informal will be held from nine o'clock until twelve.

Poyner's orchestra consists of thirteen musicians and is one of the best-known orchestras in this section of the country. They come here from the University of North Carolina. Also with the band is a blues singer, as well as others in the group who will render vocals.

Invitations have been sent out for the occasion and this series promises to be the best of the year.

Military Parade Tomorrow Night

Members of the junior military class have been continuing their preparation under the driection of Major R. E. Wysor, for the summer training camp at Anniston, Ala.

During the past week they have been undergoing instruction in marksmanship. Sometime this week they will go on an overnight hike in preparation for their summer training. They will also have other work assigned them looking to their six weeks' stay at Fort McClellan.

Major Wysor also announced a special parade to be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. This is an annual parade at which time the seniors will turn the corps over to the command of the juniors. The announcement of advanced corps appointments from the sophomore class, as has been customary, will not be made at this time.

Major Wysor, in an interview, said that no definite announcement could be made yet as to who would be the professor of military science and tactics and the assistant to succeed Major Wysor, as he had requested to be relieved from the duty he has discharged. These appointments, however, that he will [illegible] be assigned by the present [illegible]

Political Leaders of Washington Congratulate Blue Stocking On Recent Rating Based On Papers Edited By Sadler Love

(Editor's note: The following story is a result of the rating recently received by The Blue Stocking. The papers on which the rating was made were those issued under the editorship of Sadler Love, who retired as editor at the end of the first semester).

Special to The Blue Stocking.
By Columbia Press Service.

Washington, D. C., May 10.—Outstanding leaders from the national capital joined here today in sincere congratulations and felicitations to The Blue Stocking, student publication of Presbyterian college, upon its outstanding honor award given by the National Scholastic Press Association. The Blue Stocking was given second class honor rating in competition with the hundreds of college papers participating. The editors and the staff of The Blue Stocking, as well as the faculty advisers of Presbyterian were all highly commended for their fine work in bringing this honor to Presbyterian college.

Among the first to receive his congratulations to The Blue Stocking was the senior senator from the state of South Carolina and dean of the Democratic members in the upper house, Senator Ellison DuRant Smith. Said Senator Smith: "The Blue Stocking is indeed to be congratulated upon this outstanding honor that has come to it. The National Scholastic Press association has chosen The Blue Stocking as one of the best college papers throughout the country, which is a rare and high honor that South Carolina may well be proud of. I am happy to extend my felicitations and best wishes to The Blue Stocking upon this auspicious occasion."

Senator James F. Byrnes also added his congratulations to The Blue Stocking: "It is a great honor to be among those congratulating The Blue Stocking at this time. The honor rating given The Blue Stocking signifies a real achievement in the college newspapers of America, and it is an honor to represent the state that turns out such a fine college paper as The Blue Stocking. The publication deserves all the praise it receives upon this occasion and for one I am glad to extend my felicitations."

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper, himself a fellow South Carolinian, and a ranking member of President Roosevelt's New Deal cabinet, said: "I am delighted over the outstanding recognition recently accorded The Blue Stocking, one of the leading college papers in the country, upon winning such an honor from the National Scholastic Press association. The Blue Stocking has done a fine work in the past to win this recognition and will undoubtedly continue this fine effort to win many more honors. I congratulate the editors, the staff, and all who aided in bringing this honor to the paper."

Congressman Heyward Mahon, representing the Fourth South Carolina district, in which Presbyterian college is established, declared: "I am delighted once again to offer my hearty congratulations to Presbyterian college and its publication, The Blue

What of the College Graduate This Year?

As seniors of the colleges throughout the country face graduation this spring, they face the age-old problem of employment, or rather, unemployment.

But prospects for this year are encouraging, as has been revealed in various reports from throughout the country. In a survey just completed by Investors Syndicate, of Minneapolis, evidence of continued employment improvement is revealed. Employment prospects of this year's college graduating classes are only less favorable than those of the 1929 graduates and substantially better than the June, 1936, classes experienced.

Such a trend of increase in demand for college graduates is indicated in an editorial of the Columbia University Alumni magazine. It said, "College-trained men and women will be in greater demand in 1937 than at any time since the boom years of the late 1920's, Robert F. Moore, 24C, Secretary of Appointment, declares in his annual report to President Butler" (of Columbia University).

According to J. R. Ridgway, president of the Investors Syndicate, in announcing the results of the study undertaken by this group, engineering, business administration, teaching and general business classifications are offering employment in greatest volume. These conclusions are based upon analysis of questionaires returned by 218 leading colleges and universities which account for nearly half of the total enrollment of male and coeducational institutions. He found that scholarship, personality, campus activity and popularity, character, leadership and general ability, in the order named, were most frequently given as qualifications being sought by prospective employers. Fifty-one and four-tenths per cent of the replies ranked scholarship as the first qualification for successful job-seekers.

Mr. Moore, of Columbia University, found that candidates who have specialized in some field—business school graduates with training in accounting and statistics, engineers of all varieties, journalists, architects, chemists and also outstanding leaders and activity men of the senior class of the college are being particularly sought after by employment companies this year.

Thus, according to these two investigations, prospects for the 1937 graduate seem brighter as the colleges and universities of the country continue to turn out their yearly quota of "college graduates."

But these reports do not indicate that present conditions will take in all college graduates. There are some who will not be taken in because they will not be ahead in the race. The job-seeking game involves the truth of survival of the fittest and the winner is the one who gets there first. No conditions will ever take care of all the college graduates because there is something wrong with the graduate himself. In too many instances the person is only a college graduate in name; he is perhaps no better off for his having come to college. For these, condition, good or bad, have little effect, because for the right sort of graduate there is usually a place in modern business life.

CAMPUS CRUISING

By Pete McCormick

For the first time in three weeks we received the exchange paper from Winthrop. We got their "Johnsonian" this week and was it a wow! They had some humor in it that smelled with age. Of course, we aren't kicking, but we print so much of this over-ripe humor ourselves that we'd like to see some fresh stuff that isn't covered with dust.

Then they displayed the pictures of some of their 1937 marshals, and of course we object to such a thing as that. We hate to see a pretty girl that we can't reach! Ain't that right, boys? We'd like to receive your paper every week, ye publishers of the Johnsonian. And if you din't like our remarks about you and your paper, we fell sure we could put an end to them . . . maybe!

Don't call freshmen dumb! Take the one at the Pasadena School of the Theatre for example. He wanted to get out of taking military, but there was no way out—apparently.

So he ate nothing but acid foods for two weeks. His face became as flushed as the tomato juice which he drank. A hot bath ripened him to a brilliant catsup color, and a chest rub-down sanded flakes of skin off; then he reported to the school physician.

"The Doc," he laughed as he related his experience, "took one look at me and said, "Don't argue with me, young man, you just can't take military anymore!"

As a usual thing, write-ups of student plays are studded with praise, but this one from the Daily O'Collegian, Oglahoma A. & M. at Stillwater, jumps out of the groove:

"Other than a few hard falls, a few costume tears, some loud backstage curses, a few mixups in the lighting effects, and a few minor changes in the program, dress rehearsal went off last night about as smooth as a washboard."

From science's laboratories comes the latest test for alcohol. If your present formula doesn't suit you, try this one:

Connect 20,000 volts of electricity across a pint. If the current jumps it, the whiskey is poor.

If the current causes a precipitation of lye, tin, arsenic, slag and slum, the whiskey is fair.

If the whiskey chases the current back, drink it. You've got good whiskey.

Women, asserts an East Texas State College professor, are angels—for three reasons.

1. They are always up in the air.
2. They are always harping on something.
3. They never have an earthly thing to wear.

A witty student at University of California at Los Angeles was asked to write an essay in as few words as possible on two of life's greatest problems.

He wrote, "Twins!"

Mal Hallett and Jack Wardlaw and their orchestras have been signed to play for the "Little Commencement" dances at Clemson.

Well, Don Mario broke his contrract to play for the P. C. "Little Commencement" dances, but we have a pretty good idea that Jimmy Poyner and his boys are going to furnish the "swing" for the P. C. swishters on the 14th and 15th of this month. There are also rumors that Hap Gray and his Collegions are going to jam-it for the Friday night affair.

QUOTES FROM HERE AND THERE

"One may sympathize with struggling youth," says Dr. Ray Lyman Wilbur of Stanford, urging higher medical school standards, "but one should sympathize more with future patients."

"Colleges are failing miserably in aiding students to apply what they have learned of theory to what they need to learn of experience," Justin Miller, assistant United State attorney general, states an educational theory in the light of his experience.

"The theatre which has lowered a great art to a disgraceful level, even though the talents of misguided playwright or producer are on occasion great, nevertheless will be boycotted." The Rev. Dr. Philip J. Furlong of Cathedral college, delivers a sermon at St. Patrick's.

"Your professors are of the great company of liberal thinkers." Dr. Frederick B. Robinson of College of the City of New York offers a word to freshmen.

Along Greek Row

With Robert Black

With spring in the air and the school year nearing a close, the Greeks are busy laying plans for summer activities. House parties, spring outings and Panhellenic finals are gaining more attention and requiring more thought than final exams now less than two weeks hence.

Beta Kappa begins its summer with a week of fun and frolic at Pawley's Island starting on May 31.

Kappa Alpha will be there at the same time for its week of relaxation. A larger than usual crowd will be able to attend this year.

Pi Kappa Phi has arranged for a similar outing, but a definite date has not been set.

Officers of Pi Kappa Alpha elected last week are: President, Ashby Johnson; vice-president, Emmet McRae; treasurer, Ed Lambright.

New officers of Alpha Lambda Tau are as follows: President, Macon Hipp; vice-president, Ralph Waldrep; corresponding secretary, Louis Heckle; recording secretary, William Blackwell; treasurer, Wendell Pope.

According to a census of all fraternities, there will be as many out-of-town girls here for the finals as for mid-winter dances.

Pi Kappa Alpha entertained many of its friends among the ladies of Clinton at a delightful informal tea last Sunday in honor of Mother's Day, showing the chapter's appreciation of the kindness shown them by the ladies in entertaining their dates and there constant friendship.

We have heard of some law of physics which states that for every force there is a counter and opposite force. Anyway, we have learned that in firing a rifle all the power doesn't get out the front end of it. In fact, we are beginning to wonder just which is the business end of that little toy. Several juniors had bruised shoulders to show as a result of the first day on the firing line. This columnist got away with a nice black eye to show for the trouble.

State Baseball Race Is Mad Scramble

CHICK'S GANG CLINGS TO TITLE HOPE

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

HIGHLIGHTS OF LAST WEEK

SPORT—Presbyterian's nine halved a pair of games to retain their slim chance for title honors.

SCHOLASTIC—Upon release of the examination schedule, local lads began preparing for that first summer date as soon as the last obstacle is passed.

ROMANCE—While P. C. students were poring over their books last evening, Odell (Pop) Matthews was stepping out with a well-known daughter of a well-known faculty member. Do it, El Padre!

HIGHLIGHTS OF THIS WEEK

SPORT—Presbyterian will make a desperate stab at a long-desired state championship as the torrid campaign enters its last stage.

ROMANCE — Last-minute letters, telegrams and phone calls will keep inmates of this institution in a sweat as they prepare for the annual spring frolic in Copeland hall.

SCHOLASTIC—P. C. professors will try in vain to put their stuff over to a group of students whose thoughts will dwell, not on the national system of education, but on that third no-break Friday night. Take it away, Penrod.

Piles Up Impressive Score To Take Cinder Meet.

HEMPHILL STARS

Florida's track team took first places in all but two events to roll up points and score a one-sided 92 to 34 victory over P. C. Saturday.

Billy Richardson took high scoring honors with 15 points. The Floridian placed first in three events, both hurdles and the broad jump. Hemphill won the pole vault and placed second in the high jump to score eight points and top P. C. performers.

The javelin throw was won by Macon Hipp, of P. C., who slung the shaft a distance of 183 feet, 10 inches, which surpasses the distance set by any former P. C. man.

Summary:

Mile run: Meztrezat (F) first, Newell (F) second, Graham (F) third. Time, 4 minutes, 34.3 seconds.

400-yard dash: Piombo (F), Love (F), Green (PC). Time, 52.5 seconds.

High hurdles: Richardson (F), Reynolds (PC), Raymond (F). Time, 15.1 seconds.

Tigers Defeat Hose In Upset

Weldon Touched Freely As Tigers Take Contest.

Presbyterian college hopes for an eagerly-desired baseball title received their final jolt when the Blue Stockings dropped a 5 to 4 decision to Clemson's last-place Tigers at Clemson Thursday.

Coon Weldon was touched for 11 hits and fanned only four Tigers, as Ed Heap held the Hosemen to three safeties. Erskine's lead over P. C.'s nine was increased to two full games and only Newberry threatened the pennant-bound Fleet.

Weakness at the plate combined with frequent infield errors to precipitate an unexpected Hose defeat.

Daniel Takes Singles Crown

Pairs With Williams In Successful Doubles Conquest.

IN STATE COMPETITION

Sammy Daniel, ace racket-wielder of the South Carolina Gamecock squad, successfully defended his singles championship here Saturday in the state collegiate tennis tournament against a field of 55 performers from eight schools.

Pairing with his partner of last year, Daniel and Dinky Williams went on to capture the doubles crown, in which division they were seeded number 1.

In copping the singles crown, Daniel was put to an acid test when he met George Beatty in the semi-finals but managed to polish him off in championship style. Daniel was extended to the limit in defeating Prince of Wofford, the score being 7-5, 6-4, 6-4.

In the doubles division, the invincible team of Daniel and Williams met with little opposition. The Gamecock aces routed the Clemson pair, Mitchell and Arnold, in the finals, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1. The Clemsonites were seeded number 3 in the tournament.

Of the 56 players entered Presbyterian had the largest delegation, 10, while Newberry had the smallest, 3.

Seeded back of Daniel in the singles were the following, in the order named: Southern of Furman, Aiken of Furman, Legroin of Clemson, Beatty of P. C., Prince of Wofford, Gettys of Erskine, Mitchell of Clemson, Anderson of Wofford, Lipscomb of Carolina, Campbell of Clemson, Williams of Carolina, Kilgore of The Citadel, Calhoun of Erskine, Smith of Furman, Parham of P. C.

In doubles, Daniel and Williams were seeded the number 1 team, Southern and Aiken of Furman, number 2, Campbell and Legroin of Clemson, number 3, and Beatty and Parham of P. C., number 4.

Suggs Twirls Team To Win

Carolina Routed By 11 To 1 Score In Columbia.

Lefty Suggs limited Carolina to six hits as his mates rapped out a 11 to 1 victory over the Gamecocks in Columbia Tuesday. In winning, the P. C. nine kept its high rating in the state campaign.

Suggs kept the University outfit under control throughout, and a seven run barrage in the fourth gave the Hosemen a commanding lead that was increased as play progressed.

Weldon rammed out a triple and single to take stick honors while five Calvinists accounted for as many as two safe raps. Williams was Carolina's big gun with a double and two singles.

Indians At Top In Ball Scramble

Hard-Hitting Newberry Men Forge Ahead Last Week.

HOSEMEN ARE THIRD

After a week of upsets, Newberry's heavy-hitting Indian aggregation is resting on top of the state baseball ladder, with Erskine and P. C. second and third, respectively.

Fate of the three leaders, all in position to cop the rag, depends upon this week's games. P. C. met Erskine this afternoon at Clinton and the Indian tribe went against The Citadel at Charleston. Furman and Clemson also met in a "battle of the "cellarites."

P. C.'s nine whipped Carolina in Columbia Tuesday and then dropped a 5 to 4 decision to Clemson later in the week. The loss almost ruined Blue Hose chances for a title, but by winning the remaining games a tie may be gained.

Carolina is in fourth place, with very little hope for a better rating.

The standings:	W	L	Pct.
Newberry	7	3	700
Erskine	9	4	692
Presbyterian	7	4	657
Carolina	5	5	500
The Citadel	4	5	445

P. C. Racqueteers Lose To Birds

Gamecocks Bring To Close Season Void of Defeat.

South Carolina's state championship tennis team won from Presbyterian by an 8 to 0 count to complete its 1937 schedule without a loss. The matches were held in Columbia Tuesday.

Carolina's Captain Sam Daniel had a tough time subduing Beatty, but other Gamecock netmen had easy going. Lipscomb won handily from Woodward, Williams defeated Stowell, Carson won from Arnold, Bryan took Johnston, and Prince made a clean sweep of it by polishing off Jacobs.

Both Carolina's doubles teams won their matches, with the No. 1 combination of Daniel and Williams making a comeback after some determined P. C. playing.

News Briefs

TO HOLD CONTESTS

The annual oratorical contest will be held Tuesday May 18th, at a special chapel service. On Wednesday morning the declamation contest will take place. Only sophomores and Freshmen are eligible to enter the declamation contest, while sophomores, juniors and seniors are eligible to enter the oratorical contest. In case of more than four contestants in each event, an elimination probably will be held Monday afternoon.

TO MEET WEDNESDAY

The I. R. C. meeting that was scheduled to be held last Wednesday evening has been postponed until next Wednesday night. This will be the last meeting of the year of the group. President Witherspoon urges all members to be present.

LONGER LIBRARY HOURS

Librarian Willard Jones has announced a new policy for library hours during examination week. He states that no books will be taken out over night and that instead of closing the library at 10 o'clock at night it will be open until eleven. In this way he hopes to allow students greater use of books that might be monopolized by one person if he were allowed to take them out.

DECIDING GAME TODAY

Presbyterian college's baseball team engages Erskine college in a game today, the results of which will virtually decide the state championship. The game is being played on Young field here.

SUMMER SCHOOL

Dr. S. M. Huntley, director of Presbyterian college summer school, has announced the dates and courses of instruction that will be offered this summer. These have been posted on the bulletin board in the rotunda of the administration building. Further announcements will be made through the Blue Stocking shortly.

NEWS and VIEWS — With — The Inquiring Reporter

Within the past few weeks several students have asked us to find out what new magazines would be added to the library reading room next year. Although were unable to do this, we decided to ask those students which magazines they would like to see added.

When we asked MAX JONES the question, "WHAT NEW MAGAZINES WOULD YOU LIKE TO SEE ADDED TO THE LIBRARY READING ROOM?" he said: "I would like to see Coronet, The New Yorker, and Esquire in the reading room next year."

BUSTER McINTOSH said he would like to see Liberty, Red Book, and Esquire added.

Cosmopolitan, Aviation, Liberty, and Popular Mechanics are the favorites of D. A. RUE, while L. A. JACOBSEN and N. COLE prefer Radio Guide. Some of the boys suggested getting Field and Stream for HENRY RAY FENN.

SADLER LOVE, past editor of The Blue Stocking, although he will not be here next year, when asked his choice, answered that he would like to see Story and Esquire added.

Teachers!

Vying with the state baseball race and speculation as to when the 1937 edition of The PaC-SaC would appear, the mad scramble among members of the senior class for prospective jobs today took on new emphasis.

Detailed information of the events that culminated this afternoon in at least one injury were not immediately forthcoming, but a reliable source refusing to be quoted informed The Blue Stocking that the near-riot began when several seniors led a wild rush to file applications for a newly discovered teacher vacancy.

It was later learned that the position was in the primary grades of Cobb's Creek school. Applicants should write Superintendent Seagram G. Wilkins.

Plans For Commencement Move Forward

MILITARY ANNOUNCES TENTATIVE ADVANCED LIST

GAME RISING JUNIORS FOR CADET CORPS

Twenty-Two On List, With Three Alternates.

ALLOTMENT DELAYS FINAL ANNOUNCEMENT

To serve as junior officers next year in the corps of cadets the department of military science and tactics today announced a tentative list of twenty-five men, confirmation to come as soon as corps area headquarters publishes allotments for advanced work.

To be eligible for the advanced list 64 semester hours of class work is required. Students not chosen for the list may enroll for junior military, without pay, and will be permitted full semester hour credit; attendance at summer camp and commissions as second lieutenants in the reserve corps when the two-year course has been completed.

Chosen On Records

Major F. C. Harding, commenting on the selected list, explained that the records of those chosen, both for the drill field and in the classroom, had been closely investigated and final selection based on records and general conduct.

The following list of 25, including three alternates, is tentative, as has been explained, and must be confirmed when corps area headquarters publishes allotments:

C. B. Holcombe, J. B. Hafley, M. R. Ritch, G. G. Batchelor, J. J. Dennard, W. C. McSween, R. L. Boswell, D. W. Davis, W. B. Todd, L. H. Taylor, E. G. Lambright, L. G. Heckle, J. L. Culp, G. McAdams, R. Black, J. L. Clements, T. Q. Jones, R. F. Hutchinson, W. E. Pope, W. P. Jacobs, Jr., J. D. Donnan, D. H. Reynolds.

Alternates: L. S. Henderson, C. E. Huntley, D. M. Carson, to be selected in order of listing.

Annual Goes To Press Today

Printing on the 1937 edition of the PaC-SaC was begun this morning by Jacobs Graphic Arts, Clinton, and distribution of the annual will be made as soon as collections for sponsors are made, probably during next week, Editor Joe Patrick stated this afternoon.

Dedication, contents and lay-out of the yearbook are not announced before distribution, but advance information of sections of the book have been highly optimistic.

Payment for the PaC-SaC was included in student activities fees to the college and distribution will consist of students' signing for copies.

Local Student To Edit Gum-Gum

Thomas Y. College, one of the boys who hang around the corner drug store and pay dormitory rent, was today elected editor of Gum-Gum, Presbyterian college publication, in one of the hottest elections ever held on the local campus.

Tom has been prominent in college literary circles ever since his entrance at P. C. five years ago and his election to the high honor will bring great pleasure to his other friend.

In addition to his work on The Gum-Gum, College has done excellent work on the annual, the weekly, and the quarterly magazine. During his freshman year he turned in a story for the weekly, and early in his junior year, four years later, he read some proof for the magazine.

His election today came as the result of a back-slapping campaign and last-minute fraternity vote swapping. Three brothers-in-the-lodge were confined to bed this afternoon as a result of the strenuous efforts made in his behalf.

College, a member of Theta Theta, was pledged shortly after his father's six hundred shares of General Motors stock jumped from 52 to 68½.

Students To Hear Speakers Tuesday

Dean Marshall W. Brown stated today that the annual oratorical contest would be held tomorrow at regular chapel period with four speakers on the program.

Chester Keller, Hubert Wardlaw, D. W. Davis, and Wandell Williams will present original speeches in competition for the firt award of ten dollars and a second award of five dollars.

It was announced earlier that a preliminary contest might be held, but since only four men entered eliminations were unnecessary.

Dean Brown stated that it would be necessary to shorten periods tomorrow, but that the schedule would not be announced until after the completion of the program.

Prof. B. H. Reed will preside at the program.

Home Guards' Mammoth Parade And Review Cancelled Because Of Error

THREE CLASSES PICK OFFICERS

Ralph Waldrep Chosen President of Seniors.

Election of class officers for the 1937-38 session, begun Tuesday, were with one exception completed last week.

M. D. Shuler and J. L. Rawls, candidates for vice-president of the sophomore class, will run over tomorrow, voting to be done by show of hands rather than secret ballot, to save time required for preparation and voting of the one ticket.

Ralph Waldrep, Lanford Station, defeated Baxter Carpenter for president of the rising senior class, four other men having been eliminated in earlier races. Other senior officers elected were as follows: Vice-president, William Blackwell; secretary-treasurer, Macon Hipp; historian, Nathaniel Heeth.

Juniors elected included Morris Ritch, Charlotte, president; Giles Batchelor, vice-president;L . G. Heckle, secretary-treasurer; Louis Norwood, historian; C. D. Jacobs, poet.

Hugh Rutledge, Charleston, was elected president of the sophomore class; Charlie Thompson, vicepresident; and William Bullock, historian.

Inspecting Officer Fails To Show Up, Landing By Mistake In Clinton, Arizona.

With celebrities in attendance from three states for the Saturday night occasion, officers of the Home Guard found a last-minute cancellation of their widely advertised spring inspection and review necessary when an inspecting officer from outside the city failed to arrive.

Scheduled to be run off in clock-like manner with members of the unit attired in full dress uniform, the review was to have been the final military function of the year. Officers were slated to wear pajama coats, while men in ranks, each of whom has a captain's rating, were to have worn colorful bathing trunks.

Hurl the Lie

Reports as to the cause of the last-minute cancellation were prevalent on the campus Saturday night. When questioned by the press as to reasons for the sudden move, Hom Guard officials practically hurled the lie at an unnamed organization which claimed the difficulty was brought about when all but seven defenders of the home fires fell prey to Egyptian sleepng sickness.

"Nothing but libel," they stated. "The unfortunate though necessary cancellation was brought about by the failure of Major General J. Paul Jones, inspecting officer, to make an appearance."

It was further learned that earlier plans had called for inspection of the nattily-attired ranks by a P. C. alumnus now in the ice cream and sundry business. When alumni business made his appearance impossible General Jones was secured.

Unconfirmed Rumor

An unconfirmed rumor going the rounds today had it that the General misunderstood directions and landed in Clinton, Arizona, wiring early this morning to the Home Guard Central Committee for expense funds.

The list of those making advanced, which was to have been read by the adjutant Saturday night, will be published at an early date, it was learned.

DOOM'S DAY

With a blare of trumpets and grating of rusty gates, seniors will Friday begin examinations which will in some cases determine graduation.

No special senior exams will be given, and the entire student body will therefore go under the hatchet this week.

HARDING WILL SUCCEED WYSOR

Assistant For Commandant Not Yet Announced.

Announcement was made last week that Major F. C. Harding, who has served for the past year as assistant professor of military science and tactics, will replace Major R. E. Wysor, transferred, as commandant of the corps of cadets.

Appointment of an assistant to Major Harding for the 1937-38 session is as yet indefinite, the selection being made through army channels.

Major Wysor, whose services to the college were recognized at exercises last week, will leave immediately after commencement for duty at Fort McClellan, Ala. He will remain at Fort McClellan for six week and will then go to a post not yet announced by headquarters.

Finals Finish Social Whirl

While antiquated, long-suffering Copeland hall dipped and swayed to the melodious strains of Jimmy Poyner and all his lads, the 1937 social season swung, literally swung, to a close with Panhellenic finals.

For seniors in attendance, Saturday night's informal dance brought to journey's end four years of collegiate social life. For Copeland hall it brought to a close many years, too many years, of service as the local dance palace. It is expected (and how many times we've used this phrase!) that next year's entertainments will be staged in Clinton's new armory.

Hap Gray and his Collegians opened the series Friday night with music for the only formal of the series, and Maestro Poyner landed Saturday afternoon and had the situation well in hand for the tea dance from 4 till 6, and an informal hop Saturday night from 9 till 12.

Final Collegian Off Press Soon

Material for the final Collegian issue of the year is in the hands of the prniters, Stuart Campbell, editor, stated today, and the publication is expected to come from the press sometime within the next week.

The May issue will contain short stories, poetry, humor, editorials, a play, and an informal essay. Contributors, besides Editor Campbell, include Polly Roberts, Alvin Chapman, Sadler Love, James Hufley, Claus Cappelmann, Keitt Darby and William Jacobs, Jr.

YE REPORTER FINDS YOU CAN'T BEAT EXAMINATION SCHEDULE

Marmaduke had an abnormal desire to be able to leave school the day before examinations were over. Each semester a wild hope surged in his breast. He would be able to leave—he couldn't possibly have an examination the last day. But he seemed fated to an unending series of last-day exams. He tried everything to no avail; he might as well have been trying to evolve a system which would break the bank at Monte Carlo.

One semester a 9:10 class would be scheduled for the last day's examination. All right, he would take no more 9:10 classes. The very next semester the last examination was that on a 10:35 class. For three long years the last day of exams saw our student painfully writing in a mad effort to catch the first train out of town.

Finally, foaming at the mouth, he made a terrible resolve. He practiced before the mirror for days his thundering announcement to the dean. "I'll take no class before 11:00." All went off in a grand manner. The semester, his next to last, passed and the fateful moment arrived.

Our hero was calmly playing bridge one night when someone burst in a[nd] the door to say that the exam schedule had been posted. In the midst of making a grand slam our doughty threw down his hand and dashed out. With a hunted look in his eye and panting with excitement, he ran out of the dormitory.

The Administration building was dark—the match flickered as Marmaduke strained to read the type-written sheet. His hand shook so the match went out, more fumbling, at last—he could hardly believe his eyes: "SATURDAY — ALL CLASSES SCHEDULED FOR TUESDAY 11:00."

A crushed and broken figure dragged itself out of the shadowy building. So upset was he that he failed two of his examinations. Life seemed to have no meaning for him. He had read manfully to escape his fate. The last semester of his senior year passed and examination time came again. Dully he went up to the registrar's office after dinner to look at the schedule. Casually he read it. From force of habit he looked at the last one first. Monday 2:25. He didn't have a class then. One more day to [illegible]

DIPLOMAS WILL BE AWARDED AT 10:30 MONDAY

Program To Begin With Commission Awards May 29.

RECEPTION SATURDAY, BACCALAUREATE SUNDAY

Commencement exercises for the class of 1937, beginning Saturday afternoon, May 29, at 4 p.m., will be brought to a close Monday morning with awarding of diplomas.

Speaker for the Monday morning program will be Major Wyndham Manning, of Sumter, candidate for governor in 1935. Coming from a family prominent in South Carolina politics, Major Manning will address students of the college at which his father was commencement speaker twenty-three years ago, the address in 1914 having been given by Richard I. Manning, war-time governor.

Monday's activities will begin at 10:30 in the morning, and will include Major Manning's address, awarding of diplomas, and awarding of class honors.

The commencement week-end will open at 4 p.m. Saturday when President William P. Jacobs awards ROTC commissions to members of the senior military class. Immediately following this, at 5 p.m., the faculty will hold a reception for the class.

Sunday, May 30, Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor of Atlanta's First Presbyterian church, will preach the baccalaureate sermon, and Sunday night at 8 o'clock Rev. John Bright, Durham, N. C., will conduct the Y.M.C.A. service. Mr. Bright is a graduate of P. C. and is at present assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Durham.

The complete commencement program is as follows:

Saturday, May 29

4 p. m.—Award of R. O. T. C. commissions by President William P. Jacobs.

5 p. m.—Faculty reception for seniors.

Sunday, May 30

11 a. m.—Baccalaureate sermon by Rev. William V. Gardner, Atlanta.

8 p. m.—Y. M. C. A. services by Rev. John Bright, Durham.

Monday, May 31

10:30 a. m.—Commencement exercises. Address by Honorable Wyndham Manning, Sumter.

Exercises Honor Major R. E. Wysor

College and Rotary Club Laud P. C. Commandant.

To honor Major Robert E. Wysor, commandant, who is to be transferred this year to another post, exercises were held Tuesday night in which the military unit, the college Y.M.C.A., the administration and the Clinton Rotary club took part.

A review, the final military function of the year, was held under the lights of Johnson field with ceremonies in which senior commanding officers passed their sabres and commands to junior officers.

Presentations

Following the parade and review, before visitors and students assembled in the college chapel, gifts were presented to Major Wysor by Dean Marshall W. Brown, for the administration; by George Beatty, for the junior military, and by Dr. R. E. Sadler, for the Clinton Rotary club.

One student from each class, Huit Paul, freshman; Bill McSween, sophomore; Ashby Johnson, junior, and Jim Collings, senior, spoke briefly of Major Wysor's service and loyalty to the college.

An expression of appreciation by the departing commandant and remarks by President William P. Jacobs [illegible] the program.

[illegible] the Y.M.C.A. building, the [illegible] exception, in honor of Major Wysor, to which the senior work, [illegible] and Clinton were invited.

You Name 'Em

THE USUAL GRIPES, as well as the fair-haired boys of optimism, concede that, after all, it was a pretty fair week-end. The only complaint to date has been from the faction wanting Wayne King, and it bowed to the inevitable when it was proved conclusively that Herr Kink could never make it up the steps of Copeland Hall.

ONE SENIOR, a member of the football team, when asked if he was ready to talk about a cap and gown for commencement, replied that he started out with pajamas and he'd be blanked if he wouldn't finish up with them. Yeh, you get it. He really thought so.

THINGS WE'LL REMEMBER when the books have turned to ashes and the diploma's turned to dust: the night the inmates of Spencer locked the doors on the inside, blew a fuse, and started a water brigade; the week a half-dozen boys pulled a "martyr-down-with-scarlet fever" stunt and got the rest of us a ten-day holiday.

DATE-SNATCHIN', known 'mong these cloistered halls as "snaking," suffered last week-end but did not fall. Reports that the practice had been outlawed by a gentleman's agreement were found to be ungrounded when the originator of the idea stated that he had to take his date home early because she complained of a great need for sleep.

AFTER FOUR YEARS of college education, the only thing we can find wrong with it all is this system of attending classes. A danger to health and a constant sore spot in parent-student correspondence, we hold that classes constitute the greatest single obstacle to education in the American college. We think we've got something there.

LIBRARY STATISTICS show that book circulation for the present year is slightly lower than for that of last year. No figures were available as to the number of students contemplating suicide to escape paying over-due fines.

AFTERMATH OF THE Y.M.C.A. reception of last week: Big shots in the know tell us that punch-filled troughs will be provided for freshman and sophomore military students next year. But we say let the young folks have a good time.

TODAY'S ISSUE of The Blue Stocking, the next to last of the present school year, is edited by the senior class through an elected editor-in-chief and appointed associates. Although not requested, we absolve the regular staff from all blame, the editor, Cliff McLeod, having gone on a week's binge to the Casina Theatre during our preparation of the issue.

Going, Going, GONE

Don't look for any heart-wrenching tale of woe nor for the tears of a last-minute farewell. We who are about to leave you, even though we feel a peculiar sensation just below the Adam's apple when we think of the friends and first extras we'll miss next year, are too concerned with the prospects of a cold winter and how best we may avoid relief rolls to waste our strength on tears.

Looking back over four years at this institution, the thing that impresses us most is not the multiplicity of facts plucked from text books, but rather the changes that these four years have made in members of our class. We remember small boys who had the determination to hang on until they had made athletes of themselves; and others who fought financial odds of three to one, tied the last leaps at a leap and journey's end . . .

went on to high scholastic honors and campus offices.

Two weeks from today the doors will close behind us. For many of us the past four years have been a riotous interlude of dances, shows, and an occasional class. For others the path has been harder, with picks, shovels, and examination failures to bar the way. But we've made it, or almost made it, and we're ready to take the leap.

We have no illusions as to what the world has to offer. We have no bright, sunny dreams of going out and making the country over or of making the world safe for democracy. What we do have is an abiding, though perhaps naive, faith that if we play the game fairly the world will meet us half-way. Hard work, done intelligently, together with honesty and dependability, will, we believe, reap its own reward. Horatio Alger, laughed at and scorned in our age of sophistication, was not a bad ideal for young men of the last century. Perhaps if we had a few more Horatio Algers we would need fewer park benches.

No, we have no idealistic plans for making over the world. Bue we have a pretty definite idea that it needs a little attention. For some years now we have heard from the pulpit and read in periodicals that youth of today is damned, sordid, destined for the eternal fires. We see salesmen's conventions in our cities, watch crooked politics fester into a huge sore, note the utter stupidness of some of the bills introduced in our state legislatures—we see all of this and say, "Let the older generation first clean its own skirts and then turn to ours." Our generation has no apology to offer.

And so it's lights out and curtains for the class of 1937. We've had our moments, neglecting study many times, and we've paid for them. But it's been lots of fun. This time next year perhaps we'll wish we could reach the length of a Judd Hall table for the grits and find the plate there.

An Appreciation

For two long years we drilled with the army boys, and for two more long years their "Column Right, To the Rear, March," etc., has disturbed our morning sleep. For the first two years we had used harsh terms concerning the weight of the rifle, the need for drill and militarism in general. The last two years—well, perhaps the humiliating defeat of the Army football team by the Home Guard is enough of the hemlock without adding our words on the side.

But now we've come to the end of the fourth lap of the last mile and, as sentimentalists are wont to find, the softy rises to shove aside the cynic. Never have we had the idea that R. O. T. C. was an unimportant phase of college life or an unessential cog in our national defense. We believe that, with the present foreign situation, preparedness is possibly the only answer to Fascism, Communism and Nationalism. The R.O.T.C. is the backbone of our civilian preparedness. The P. C. unit is carrying on in the best tradition.

And so, with this rather verbose prologue, we wish to add the appreciation of the senior class, the Home Guard and the Home Guard press to the felicitations already extended to Major Robert E. Wysor who has, through the years that lie behind, faithfully served the unit, the school, and the service. His transfer this year to another post will leave a vacancy that will be impossible to fill.

So often have we viewed with alarm, and so frequently have we pointed with pride, that we hesitate, at this the eleventh hour of our higher education, to make new enemies or angle for new friends. And so on behalf of senior members of all publications staffs we shall take this method to thank a long suffering student body for its leniency for work oftentimes sorry, usually boring (and all too frequently misunderstood).

For errors that may have escaped the triple-proof reading of PaC-SaC editors, we apologize. For short stories and articles that have met with little campus approval, contributors to The Collegian offer regrets. For misunderstandings that arose from editorial campaigns of The Blue Stocking under the senior staff which retired in February, we make apology.

Learning to write is a difficult task and collegiate writers may be expected to blunder frequently. Usually, though not always, we have done our best. To faculty and student body are due thanks for having borne with us as we struggled slowly and painfully up the road of improvement.

And so today senior members of all publications take the bow with a scrawled "30," the newspaperman's sign for end of copy, swan song.

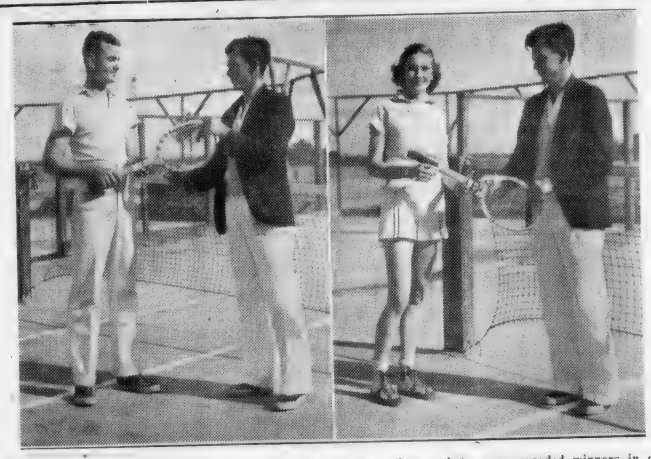
MARBLES TOURNEY

To add to the current campus raze for intramural competition, interested students and professors last week organized what is believed to be the first marbles tourney ever held on the Presbyterian college campus.



Marion (Pitt) Bird, seeded No. 1, is expected to meet Columbo, The Terrible Terror, sometimes known as "the dark knight of the gym," in one of the first pairings.

Reports that faculty members insisted upon playing for keeps were spiked today when The Blue Stocking learned from a reliable source refusing to be quoted that such was definitely not the case.

First round competition will be played off behind the counter in the college canteen, with finals slated for Saturday night beneath the lights in Dean Marshall Brown's office.

Although Bird is seeded No. 1, a local book-maker today picked Sylvester Smyth and Henry (Shorty) Spencer as favorites, with three to one on Bird to show.

Presenting Rackets To Intramural Champions

When P. C.'s spring intramural tennis tournament came to a close rackets were awarded winners in girls' singles and men's singles. For both divisions residents of Clinton, as well as college students, were eligible. Shown above is Taylor Martin, P. C. tennis coach, presenting rackets to Edith Henderson, of Clinton High, and to Harris Gray, P. C. junior.

CHESS TOURNEY

Progressing through a default, Prof. H. E. Sturgeon, of the department of chemistry, last week reached the third round of the campus chess tourney to lead the field of more than a dozen contestants.

Begun early in the week, the tournament's progress was impeded over the week-end by campus functions, but participants plan to complete play within the next few days.

In addition to Prof. Sturgeon, one faculty member and five students have survived early pairings. Johnny Pearson is slated to meet Furman Wallace; Dr. H. E. Spencer, department of mathematics, is to play Keitt Darby, and J. B. Evans, with Jack Cunningham, complete the list of survivors.

Competitors play two out of three games, and the place of the match is at the option of the players.

Contestants failing to make an appearance at the appointed time lose by default.

In many ways it has been an outstanding year from the athletic standpoint. This year, perhaps for the first time in the history of P. C. sports, the baseball team has climbed to the top track team failed to place among the first three in the state. in state standing. This year, perhaps also for the first time, the

Among seniors who have crooned the melodious song of the swan this spring are many who will be hard to replace. Your Monday's Umpire has watched HAWK EVANS snag 'em in deep outfield and waited in vain for him to drop one. He'll be hard to replace. We've seen JOHNNY (Scoop's Boy) SUGGS and COON WELDON twirl it over the plate; heard PITT (MOUTH) BIRD heckling the batter; watched HICK HARVIN in the infield, and wondered where Chick Galloway would find lads to take their places.

STRAIGHTAWAY

P. C.'s intercollegiate track record for the season has been nothing for your columnist to gloat over in any high manner. True, the Hose licked every school in the state except Clemson—and then failed to make much of an impression in the state meet.

Dependable J. B. JACOBS and lanky BILL THOMPSON, seniors who hit the home stretch with the present season, will leave gaps, Yet from all the dope we can gather, the cinder outfit next year should go places in state competition. With outstanding performers graduating from Clemson, Carolina, Wofford and other schools, we see in prospect a number of firsts for our alma mater. The high and low hurdles, the 880, the mile, good performers in the hundred, two-twenty, javelin, pole vault, and others will rake in the points. We prophecy a good season . . ; .

Watch LYKES BOYKIN, rising sophomore, in next year's tennis matches, and also the expected improvement in the work of the whole team.

Keep an eye on the batting performance next year of one GILES BATCHELOR, a boy who hasn't done so bad this season. And you might take a gander at the stick work of Sophomore LOUIS FOLLEY, too.

Seceders Whip P. C. Netmen

Erskine's netmen turned on power and smooth playing here last week to defeat P. C.'s team, 4 to 3, as the Hose tennis season came to an official close.

Wins by Beatty and Parham in the singles and a default by Erskine in the doubles because of time accounted for P. C.'s markers. Joe Gettys, Seceder No. 1, dropped before George Beatty and then teamed with Calhoun, who had been defeated by Parham, to trounce Beatty and Parham in the doubles.

Woodward, Johnston and Stowell played the remaining matches for Presbyterian.

Swimming Meet Be Held Tonight

Blue Key Event To Begin At 8:30 With Many Entrants.

Scheduled to have been run off last week, Blue Key's intramural swimming meet was postponed due to complications and will be held tonight at 8:30 in the college pool.

Joe Patrick, president of Blue Key, stated this morning that teams were expected to enter from fraternities and dormitories. Members of downtown fraternities will hold their usual Monday night meetings, but they are expected to return to school in time for entry in the various events.

Men who have earned letters in varsity swimming are not eligible for intramural competition. Since P. C. did not enter a swimming team this year, prospects are that a number of men will enter.

There will be seven events in the meet and a victory by a fraternity or dormitory will add points toward the intramural sup offered by Blue Key.

The list of events and distances is as follows:

Free-style relay: Four men each to swim 40 yards.
Breast stroke: 40 yards.
Back stroke: 40 yards.
100-yard free style.
400-yard dash.
Diving: About six.
Medley relay: Three men each to swim 40 yards. No. 1 to swim backstroke; No. 2 to swim breast stroke, and No. 3 to swim free style.

Capsize Fleet With 5 To 3 Licking On P. C. Grounds.

Climbing into first place in the state race by virtue of its win, the local nine took Erskine into camp, 5 to 3, here last week, bunching all its runs in a wide open sixth inning.

Earlier in the season P. C. defeated Erskine by a 3 to 2 score on the Due West diamond and last week's game was a return engagement.

Effective twirling by Suggs and air-tight fielding sent the Fleet scurrying for its home base.

Game Today Crucial Point In Hot Race For First Place.

As The Blue Stocking goes to press this afternoon outcome of the state baseball race, at present led by P. C., is still doubtful.

Coach Chick Galloway's club, playing Clemson this afternoon, has breezed through state competition with nine victories and four losses. The Hose dropped games to Newberry, Clemson, Citadel and Wofford, and has defeated every team in the state, except Clemson, at least once. A victory over Clemson today would clinch the title.

When P. C. defeated Erskine last week the Fleet dropped to second place with a percentage of .642 and all games on its schedule played. If P. C. lost to Clemson today the Hose percentage would likewise drop to .642 with all games played.

Three-Way Tie?

Newberry, defeated last week by The Citadel and Carolina, was in third place today with a percentage of .615 with one game with The Citadel yet to be played. Should Newberry defeat The Citadel the Indian percentage also would become .642.

Therefore, a loss by P. C. today would cause the Hose to tie with Erskine for title honors, and a victory for Newberry would make it a three-way affair.

Coach Galloway will lose Suggs, Weldon, Harvin, Coe, Bird, and Evans by graduation, and should this year's team fail to take first place hopes would be slight for championship honors next year.

State standings for the three high teams are as follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
P. C.	9	4	.692
Erskine	9	5	.642
Newberry	8	5	.615

Wednesday: "Once a Doctor." Another of Men-in-White shows, this time with Jean Muir and Donald Woods.

Thursday: "Midnight Court." Court night life. Wide-open sirens, coppers, etc. Ann Dvorak, John Litel.

Friday and Saturday: "Last of Mrs. Cheyney." Joan Crawford as a sweet young thing, and William Powell, of the Fuller-brush mustache, as the English nobleman.

Broadway Theatre

Monday and Tuesday: "The Holy Terror." If you like Jane Withers, maybe you'll even like this one. We don't like her.

Wednesday: "Park Avenue Logger." Playboy goes to the tall timber. George O'Brien of the manly chest does the playing.

Thursday: "Mind Your Business." Charlie Ruggles and Alice Brady do their best to make you laugh.

Friday and Saturday: "Round-Up Time In Texas." As a fitting climax to the end of the school year, that Romeo of the screen, Gene Autry, the Singing Cowboy, in a late horse opera of the 1890's. Another bag of peanuts, boy!

In Memoriam

Newly-elected Panhellenic councilmen were this afternoon reported to be wearing black bands on their arms and friends in the student body will sympathize with them in their loss.

According to statement by a councilman yesterday, slightly over $8.00 was taken in on the door at one of the dances over the week-end. A wake will be held tonight in an up-town ice cream establishment.

He is a member of the American Historical association, the Historical association (England), and a charter member of the South Carolina His- torical association. He was a member of its executive committee from 1931- 1935 and was president in 1933-34.

Handbook Work About Finished

The Y.M.C.A. handbook will be completed by the end of this week, but will not go to press until July due to an agreement with certain of its advertisers, announced L. G. Heckle, editor of the publication, to- day.

"A special effort has been made to make this year's handbook a g de book for the freshmen . . . in o der that they may become more quickly acquainted with the departments and organizations of the college." This is the substance as contained in the foreword of the book.

A military section has been placed in this year's book, as the editors con- sider that phase of college life a ma- jor influence in the life of the col- lege man here at P. C. There will be announcements of the cadet officers personnel, and pictures of the com- mandant, Major F. C. Harding, and the new assistant professor of mili- tary science and tactics, as yet un- announced.

Just prior to the opening of col- lege, copies of the handbook will be sent to all freshmen who have made official application for admission to the college. There will be some copies available for upperclassmen soon af- ter they return next fall.

To Present Team Gold Baseballs

The Presbyterian college student body voted last week to omit last Sunday night's supper in the dining hall, the cost of the meal to be do- nated to a fund to be used in purchas- ing gold baseballs for the members of their state championship baseball team coached the past season by Chick Galloway.

YEAR BOOK WILL BE OUT WEDNESDAY

Editor J. E. Patrick To Distribute Annuals Upon Completion of Financial Arrangements.

HEMPHILL LETS NEXT YEAR'S CONTRACT

Joe Patrick, editor of the 1936-37 PaC-SaC, has announced that the annuals will be ready for distribution on Wednesday, May 26. However, the books will be held back until all organizations and individuals pay for the space they have in the book. Any student planning to leave the campus before Wednesday should see the editor in order to get his PaC-SaC before leaving.

The contract for printing next year's annual already has been let to Jacobs Graphic Arts, of Clinton, according to Malcolm Hemphill, editor for next year. Hemphill has begun work on the 1937-38 edition and hopes to have much done when he returns to school in September.

W. Williams And Lambright Win Speaking Contests

Davis and Norton Take Second Places In Competition.

The student body was entertained in chapel on Tuesday morning by four contestants in the campus oratorical contest.

The participants were: Wanden Williams, who chose as his topic, "Education versus Regimentation"; D. W. Davis, "Blind America; "Chester Keller, "Generations"; Hubert Wardlaw, "Sanguine Parasites."

Williams was given the decision of the judges and received the ten-dollar first prize. D. W. Davis was awarded five dollars for second place. All four men received at least one vote for first place, and all but one were mentioned for second, third and fourth places.

Wednesday the students in the declamation contest presented their speeches before the student body.

Dugald Hudson spoke on "The Radio In Our Republic"; Milton Norton, "Safeguarding Our American Principles"; Ed Lambright, "Stars and Stripes"; Roy Hutchinson, "The Plotter of Peace."

Lambright was winner of first prize, and Norton second.

These contests are held each year in an attempt to increase speaking and leadership ability on the campus.

Dr. Fish Receives Collection Of Oil Paintings For Lab

A new series of optical history paintings has just been received from the Bausch and Lomb Optical Co., Rochester, N. Y., which commissioned the distinguished New York artist, Harold Anderson, to reproduce on canvas such scientific characters in history as Alhazen, the Moor; the Dutchman, Huygens; and the Bavarian, Fraunhofer.

According to Dr. H. S. Fish, of the biology department, who obtained these reproductions, they will be hung in the laboratory for the inspiration of science students although the subjects are suitable for any classroom or library.

Richly colored, the picture of Alhazen, who was born 965 A. D., shows this Arabian mathematician demonstrating to some friends his theory of the refraction of light by means of a stick thrust into a pool of water.

No less interesting is that of Christian Huygens, in which the Dutch astronomer and physicist explains to Louis XIV and members of the French Academy his wave theory of light.

Fraunhofer is represented as an enthusiastic young man explaining to a skeptical friend his method of examining and measuring the dark lines of the spectrum by means of the spectroscope, an instrument of his invention.

DR. FEWELL WINS ANNUAL ALUMNUS 'P'

Philadelphia Specialist Is Selected For Award of Gold "P" of Alumni Association.

Alexander Garrison Fewell, M.D., of Philadelphia, has been awarded the gold "Alumnus P" for this year, according to an announcement from the Alumni association today. The gold "Alumnus P" is awarded annually to an outstanding "alumnus of the year." The one who is given this award is chosen by a committee from the Alumni association. The winner is eligible to receive the award only one year.

Dr. Fewell graduated from Presbyterian college in 1903 with the degree of bachelor of arts. He received his degree of doctor of medicine from the University of Pennsylvania. He is an eye, ear and throat specialist in Philadelphia where he has been practicing for some time. He is also assistant professor in ophthalmology of the graduate school of medicine of the University of Virginia. He is ophthalmologist of the Episcopal and the Children's hospitals in Philadelphia.

Dinner To Honor P. C. Champions

The Clinton Lions club will foster a public meeting the latter part of this week to honor the Presbyterian college championship baseball team and their coach, Chick Galloway. The team finished its schedule with a victory over Clemson which clinched the state flag after a most successful season. The Lions club is endeavoring to secure an outstanding baseball figure to attend the meeting as the guest speaker.

'Excellent' Rating For Local Unit

Presbyterian College R. O. T. C. Goes Through Annual Inspection With Flying Colors.

The official report from the Fourth Corps area headquarters on the recent government inspection of the military corps at Presbyterian college rated the battalion as "excellent," Major F. C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics, told a reporter of The Blue Stocking today.

Although this rating was indicated by the inspecting officer at the annual inspection, it required this "official" report from headquarters to confirm it. This entitles the military corps here to wear the blue star indicating such a degree of proficiency. The P. C. battalion has enjoyed this distinction for a number of years.

The military department also announces that Allen McSween, a cadet in the junior class last year who was unable to attend the summer camp at Fort McClellan last summer, will go with this year's junior class. The same ruling which permits sophomores, who have not been selected, to serve in the advanced corps without pay, allows McSween to do the same thing, and entitles him to receive a commission as a second lieutenant of reserves.

Major Harding said that official acceptance of this year's advanced corps would not be received until some time after the college closes, but that notification of such acceptance would be mailed to the appointees in August. Major Harding further announced that no notification had been made to the military department as to whom the new assistant professor of military science and tactics would be.

EXERCISES TO END MONDAY

Business Man and Two Ministers Will Receive Degrees.

Dean Brown asked today that all seniors be reminded that the academic procession for the baccalaureate sermon Sunday morning will be formed at 10:30 in front of the Clinton high school. In case of rain the seniors will form in the college men's Sunday school room on the second floor of the Sunday school department of the church.

All seniors are also requested to meet Sunday afternoon in the college gymnasium at 2 o'clock for the purpose of receiving instructions about arrangements in seating of the class for the exercises on Monday.

In the fifty-seventh annual commencement exercises of Presbyterian college, which will begin Sunday afternoon, May 29th, with the presentation of R.O.T.C. commissions to the graduates of the senior class of the R.O.T.C., [illegible] announcement [illegible] office today.

On Monday morning at the opening commencement exercises the faculty and board of trustees of Presbyterian college will confer the honorary degree of doctor of laws upon Henry Smith Richardson, the honorary degree of doctor literature upon Rev. Charles Hardin Nabers, and the honorary degree of doctor of divinity upon Rev. William Vardaman Gardner.

Mr. Richardson is president of the Vicks Chemical corporation and a member of the board of trustees of Davidson college. He long has been a prominent figure in the industrial and business life of the South and East.

Mr. Nabers is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Greenville. He is a writer of note in the Southern Presbyterian church, having published a number of books on religion and religious travel.

Mr. Gardner is one of the outstanding young ministers of South. He is pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta.

Award of the R.O.T.C. commissions will be made at 4 p.m. Saturday by President William P. Jacobs. Immediately following this, at 5 p.m., the faculty will hold a reception for the graduating class. The reception will be held on the lawn next to the Y. M. C. A. building.

Sunday, May 30, Rev. William V. Gardner will deliver the baccalaureate sermon in the First Presbyterian church at 11:15. At the public service at the Presbyterian church Sunday night at 8 o'clock, Rev. John Bright, Durham, N. C., will conduct the Y. M. C. A. service. Mr. Bright is a graduate of P. C. and at present is assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church at Durham.

Formal graduation exercises will begin Monday morning, May 31, at 10:30, with Major Wyndham Manning of Sumter, candidate for governor in 1935 giving the address. Major Manning will address students of the college at which his father was commencement speaker 23 years ago, the address in 1914 having been given by Richard I. Manning, war-time governor of South Carolina.

The exercises will be held in the college gymnasium which will be appropriately decorated for the occasion. President William P. Jacobs will preside. The salutatory address will be given by Joseph E. Patrick of Covington, Ga., and Stuart Campbell of Winnsboro, Va., will deliver the valedictory address.

FORMER EDITOR LISTS THE TEN BIGGEST NEWS STORIES OF YEAR

Sadler Love Names His Choice Of Outstanding Events.

YEAR WITNESSES LARGE OCCASIONS

(Editor's Note:—As this is the last issue of this paper for the year, we thought it appropriate to bring before you a sort of resume of the year through selection of the high spots in news during the session. Therefore, we asked Sadler Love, former editor of The Blue Stocking and a member of the senior class, to select what he thinks were the ten most important news stories during the year, and we believe we could not have found a better one to choose them.)

By Sadler Love

Facing the end of the college year, the end of four college years, we find it strangely difficult to write what should be a comparatively easy story. We have been asked to write what we consider the ten most important stories of the school year; but we find thoughts wandering to goal-line football stands, homecoming day crowds, dormitory arguments far into the night, Copeland hall swaying to "The Waltz You Saved for Me."

But these aren't important stories. They're not important in the sense that they are large, but these are the ones that will stand out in years to come.

Of the other kind—the one's we've seen streamer heads about—we'll try to list the first ten, not in order of importance, but in the order in which they have occurred.

1936 Enrollment

Although tuition for the 1936-37 session was raised fifty dollars, enrollment in September showed a slight increase over that of the previous year. That seems to us to be the proof of applied psychology: make it something worth paying for and they'll come and get it.

New Buildings

Sadly in need of an infirmary and recreation building, the college opened in September a home for gold-bricks that decreased "illness" materially and assured control of future epidemic threats.

The Y.M.C.A. building, housing the canteen, a room for "Y" meetings, and a reading room, illustrated a new trend in Y.M.C.A. activities. Even the scoffers remained to listen to the radio.

Tennis Clinic

Headed by Bitsy Grant and the Van Ryn, top professionals opened a school of instruction in the court game, the first of its kind ever held in the United States. College players attended from three states.

Important because it brought big-time athletes to P. C., gave P. C. national publicity and broadened an already full athletic program.

Grades Improve

Last year scholastic averages of P. C. student reached an all-time low with announcement of first month's grades. At the end of the first month of the present session D's had become C's and the trend was upward.

Not particularly because of the mere grade improvement do we pick this one, but because of certain faculty improvements which made for a more true yardstick for knowledge.

Preceptorial System

Announcement by the administration in January that the preceptorial system of education would be gradually installed marked a giant step along the road to greater achievement.

Friendly cooperation between student and faculty, and classes in which discussion predominated rather than cross examination was to become the

PLANS MADE FOR SUMMER SCHOOL YEAR

Session Will Open On June 7th and Close July 16th.

MANY COURSES ARE OFFERED

By Dugald Hudson

Presbyterian college summer school, scheduled to run from June 7 to July 16, is arousing an unusual amount of interest this year. Dr. S. M. Huntley, director, also stated that there have been a larger number of requests for information from outside the college than in any previous year. Also, a large number of students are expected to attend.

The summer session enables students to make up back work, to take advanced or special courses, or to take work preparatory to study for a master's degree. One can complete a year's work in one session or two one-semester courses with a total credit of not more than six semester hours.

All the classes will be held in the science hall except the commercial, which will be held in the gymnasium. The dining hall and the dormitories will not be kept open during the summer, but students may make individual boarding arrangements in town.

The price for any two courses of three semester hours each is $15.00. A student will not be permitted to take more than two courses for credit. However, one can take additional non-credit commercial courses in shorthand and typing for $7.50 per course.

There will be three class periods each day for five days a week. The class periods are from 8:30 to 10, from 10 to 11:30, and from 11:30 to 1:00. There will be no afternoon or Saturday classes.

Dr. S. M. Huntley, director of the summer school and professor of elementary French, is president of the Association of Modern Language Teachers in South Carolina for the coming year. He succeeds Dr. Stephan of the University of South Carolina. This is the second time Dr. Huntley has been president of the association, his first term being in 1933-34.

A tentative list of the courses and instructors is as follows: Two classes of elementary French will be under the direction of Dr. Huntley. Dr. M. G. Woodworth will teach American literature and freshman English. Dr. A. E. Spencer will have two sections of advanced French. Professor Bothwell Graham will have two sections of advanced Spanish, and if desired, two of elementary German. Professor W. E. Monts will have two courses in education, and Professor H. E. Sturgeon will conduct classes in algebra and trigonometry. If there is sufficient demand, Dr. H. E. Spencer will give a course in mathematics of finance, and Professor Holman a course on the short story.

Professor Baker, of the commerce department, will offer the advanced shorthand, beginning, and a course of counting, business organ beginners' shorthand dep the demand.

Dr. Huntley also annou six or more wanted any probably it could be arra

WYSOR COMPLETES EIGHTH YEAR HERE AS COMMANDING OFFICER

...aves P. C. With Excellent Military Record.

...ANS TO MAKE HIS HOME IN CLINTON

By J. B. Hafley

With the closing of this school year, ...jor Robert E. Wysor finishes an ...ht-year term as commandant and ...fessor of military science and tac... here at Presbyterian college. ...roughout his stay here, Major Wy... has distinguished himself in the ...ining and character-building of ...ng men in the military organiza... ...n. He is the man who is largely ...sponsible for the excellent record ...the institution's unit and who has ...e much to make P. C. one of the ...st non-R. O. T. C. schools in the ...uth. Much credit is due him and ...eryone here regrets to see him ...ave. We wish him the best of ev...ything, no matter what field of ser...ce he enters.

Having been stationed at many military posts all over the country, Major Wysor's brilliant and diversified career has taken him outside the United States on two occasions. "P. C. is the best of all, however," the Major declares. "Duty here is the most pleasant to which I have ever been assigned. I have never seen a more cooperative and loyal body of men than P. C. men, not excepting my own alma mater, V. M. I."

Serving an unusually long term, Major Wysor has been here as professor of military science and tactics since 1929. He is a native of Virginia having attended Virginia Military institute. After graduation from that institution, he worked for two years with the DuPont Powder company. Then came the war. The Major was immediately called to the training camp at Chickamauga Park, Ga. After a brief period there, he was ordered to Fort Sill, Oklahoma, where he completed his preparatory work. From this point he was ordered to France, entering the war as a second lieutenant of infantry. He was almost immediately promoted to first lieutenant, and came out of the war as a captain.

Arriving home after distinguished and meritorious service, Major (now Captain) Wysor was ordered to Atlanta where he served at two military posts, Fort McPherson and Camp Gordon. After being stationed there for a time, he was moved to Camp Jackson in Washington, D. C. He was later transferred to North Carolina State where he was in charge of the R.O.T.C. unit.

Then came a prolonged period at Fort Benning, Ga., the largest infantry school in the world, through which all of Uncle Sam's officers must go and receive practical and theoretical instruction. From Fort Benning, Major went into the "foreign service," being stationed at various military posts in Central America until 1929.

In the summer of 1929, he was ordered to report to Fort Knox, Kentucky. En route to his destination, he received a change in order which instructed him to take over the military department at Presbyterian college in Clinton, S. C. At that time, he did not even know where Clinton was, but managed to find it and settled down to a long ad successful stay.

Two years ago was promoted from captain to major.

Major Wysor has been at P. C. longer than at any other place, including his childhood home, and he plans to make Clinton his permanent home after a three months leave of absence and vacation. Many will be happy to find that he plans to return to Clinton as he is a definite asset to the community and his presence has meant much to all of us.

Chester Keller To Receive Christian Leadership Medal

W. Chester Keller, senior of Greenville, will be awarded the Ministerial club Christian leadership medal at commencement on May 31, a medal given annually by the club to that member of the group who shall have been the most outstanding during the previous two years on Presbyterian college's campus, according to an announcement from President Buck Patterson today.

The winner of the award is chosen on the basis of his scholarship in school, participation in extra-curricular activities, participation in religious activities, and by the amount of leadership ability he has shown on the campus.

Keller, past president of the Y. M. C. A., is a Blue Key member and this year winner of the gold "P."

To Speak Here

The Rev. William V. Gardner, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, Ga., who will deliver the annual baccalaureate sermon next Sunday morning at the First Presbyterian church to the graduating class of 1937. He will also on Monday, May 31, receive the honorary degree of doctor of divinity from Presbyterian college at its annual commencement exercises on that day.

Reporter Reviews Activities Of Local Religious Group

Ministerial Club Members Have Full Year of Work.

The Ministerial club has just completed its first year of real organization, a period in which this group might well count its fullest season.

The formal installation of the club was held at the First Presbyterian church on December 17, at which time it became officially an organization. Dr. John McSween of Chester, was the guest speaker and at the time was honored by being given the first honorary membership certificate from the group. Later in the year Dr. Samuel McPheeters Glasgow of Savannah, Ga., was similarly honored.

The religious service of the group have been varied during the year. One group of the club has assisted Dr. F. D. Jones at the State Training school by teaching Sunday school there. Another group has assisted in young people's work at one of the mill churches. One member of the fourteen composing the club has a pastorate near Greenville, where he has preached during the year.

During the year members of the club have occupied pulpits of Clinton churches several times. This has been beneficial in giving the students training and allowing them to make contact with people of nearby churches.

One member of the group has supplied at various churches in and around Clinton during the year. He has supplied at Whitmire, Hopewell, and other churches that from time to time have needed assistance.

Principal work of some of the members has been their efforts in connection with a home mission Sunday school and church near Clinton. Various ones teach Sunday school and preach there from time to time.

Some have been engaged in young people's work in the churches of the town, one being the song leader of a young people's organization.

A different type of work the students have done and are planning to carry out more fully during the next year is that of deputation work to various churches and missions. Two Sundays ago a group went to Union, where they presented a program at one of the mill churches.

All in all, practically each member has had some kind of work to do each Sunday. Many have been engaged in Y.M.C.A. work. Some have as many as three services a Sunday. Much of the work has consisting of "pinch-hitting" for preachers, Sunday school teachers, and taking part in special programs.

The result of all this is that the ministerial student is beginning his training here while in Presbyterian college. Students are learning how to address groups, how to select talks, and are getting a taste of the work in which they will spend their lives. During the year hundreds of services have been held by this group when the purpose of spreading the Gospel was [illegible] of them have among the peoples of the earth as [illegible] to take care [illegible] of on Sunday, including preaching, teaching, song leading, etc.

But let it not be understood that each student has been quite as conscientious as we may have pictured here. There are those who have done much more than others. One or two have done very little work during the year, not primarily due to their indifference but to other reasons.

One result of all this work during the year is that many of the students have made important contacts with church leaders in this section of the country which has drawn them into a better understanding of the church. And, incidentally, the work of the group has brought some of the church into closer contact with Presbyterian college.

Through the influence of the club some of the group will secure supply work during the summer months. One is planning to preach in Florida, another will do work in one of the churches in this vicinity, another will preach near Greenville, another probably in Virginia, while others will engage in summer young people's work and all have opportunities at present to assist in some church work.

Perhaps this brief resume will give you some idea of what the club is trying to accomplish for its members. It is not seeking commendation or praise, but opportunity to train themselves in the calling for which the members believe themselves to want to enter.

The club feels that in some way it has fulfilled to some degree that purpose for which it was organized as stated in its constitution: "To provide means whereby the ministerial student may find expression of his desire to do Christian labor by providing him actual missionary work to do, such as preaching, teaching, leading Sunday school, organizing Sunday schools, working with young people's organizations and speaking at any other religious gathering or doing any other service that would be for the [illegible]

P. C. Professor To Teach On Bus Tour This Summer

Dr. Whitelaw To Have Unusual Teaching Task.

"Now if I had a college, I—" and so forth, this from some careless barrel as he lounges in his unkempt suite. We all have heard such utterances from our friends and roommates. This purports to tell the outcome of the resolve of one of our own professors—which was to take an active step in the advancement of his own particular idea of what a school should be like, at any rate, summer school.

Having got wind of aforementioned plan, your roving newsman dove out of sight one day last week to beard Professor Whitelaw in his cavern of physics and emerged with quite a new angle on the best way to have one's summer vacation and study too. Finding the good doctor in an almost garrulous mood, ventured to inquire what mode of life was this that practically permitted the student to have his cake and eat it too.

In the midst of whaling the daylight out of an innocent lab examination that had been weak all along, he paused that he might tell of this new and interesting mode of absorbing facts in their various states of dryness. There is a concern called University tours that takes professors from small colleges and lets them administer the daily portion of their particular subject as the students hang out their linen after a pleasant sleep in Yellowstone Park (cabin) or Carlsbad, N. M. (tents). The object is to provide a complete accommodation of the students, even down to the cafeteria trucks that furnish food at stated intervals during the day.

The education is only an adjunct to the affair of seeing America first, and there are very few of the scenic wonders of the West that are not included in this tour. The study part comes in the morning from seven to nine, the coaches then travel eight hours toward somewhere, and a camp is made for the night. Dr. Whitelaw plans to teach astronomy as his part of the study courses offered, and of course the open sky at night after the group has made camp for the night will be the lab period.

As there are usually about seventy per cent women and the rest men on these trips, one might wonder if the gents aren't swamped with feminine attentions. Apparently this is not so, because this particular company has been going for six years now, and the demand is in no wise abating. There is every evidence that Dr. Whitelaw will have a most pleasand and "instructing" summer ahead of him. Maybe some of our lads who haunt the beaches to no avail had better get on one of these tours where the competition is not so overdone.

SKEETIN' STUFF

By D. W. DAVIS

So this is the end. It has been great, and I only hope you have had as much fun reading this "column" as I have had in writing it. If you have thought you would like to "poke me one" at times, just remember it has all been in the best of fun, and didn't mean a thing. Although parting is supposed to be the sweetest sorrow, I sometimes wonder. Anyway, when you got to go you just got to go, so with a last round-up of our seniors I say good-bye and all the luck in the world.

Senior Superlatives

Best looking—"KID NORTON, borat from Newberry, and a Winthrop terror.

Cutest—"WINDY" CROSS, a courtin' fool from Monks Corner, who is best remembered for catching two straights in a row.

Wittiest—"CANTEEN" GARRETT, chief crook and bottle washer for the "Holy Robbers." Ths only man on the campus who has never held a gal's hand.

Best Physique—"BUSTER" MacINTOSH, low-state king of Kingstree. Developed his "musqules" whipping drums.

Best All-Round Man—"POP" MATTHEWS, the unmarried father since sophomore year— Power to you!

Most Dignified—"DITTY" BIRD, modest and unassuming—"nuff sed."

Most Intellectual — "PUDGE" PLOWDEN. The only man who ever thought of taking a seven-year short-cut to a degree.

Ye Ladies Man — CHESTER ELMER KELLER. Suella with you if you don't like it!

Best All-Round Athlete—"WATERMELON" WALLACE (Around the waist).

Most Seductive — PEDEN SMITH. Tom cat of Alumni, and that's all.

Remembered Best For

BILL THOMPSON for "Gussie."

"MOUTH" SHOEMAKER (Convention Kid") for the charming way he searched our rooms.

"BOTTLE" BEEMAN for his likeness to John Barrymore and Oliver Hardy.

"COON" WELDON trying to get to base on balls.

"TIMID TARZAN" LANGSTON for trying to be different in winter.

"STOOP" BUCHAN for holding vesper services in his room.

BEN LEGARE for liking Napoleon.

LEE QUARTERMAN for just being a "good ole boy."

TOM NEWLAND for trying to imitate "The Briar Hoppers."

"CHEESO JIM" COLLINGS for his experimental research in the field of cheese.

Seniors will be a little behind time in the receiving of diplomas, for the freshmen will have received their's by commencement day. And we've got a hunch they won't be as pleasantly administered as those given on May 3st, but we'll venture to say that no senior will be happier after having received his diploma than a freshman.

With this list issue of the paper for the year we tuck the old cover over the typewriter and give the lintoypist down at The Chronicle office a little rest as well as the dapper office girl and typewriter chauffeur at The Chronicle who so generously reads proof for the paper.

And so we'll be seein' ya down in Anniston, Alabama, where 'tis said it's so hot they use molten lead for ice-water. Anyway, don't you cry, Suzanna, for I'm going down to Alabama with my rifle on my shoulder.

Bon Voyage, Seniors

It used to be a trite expression with us when we said we had come to the parting of the ways, but no longer is that trite, for certainly the ways of the seniors and the underclassmen have come to a definite parting point.

And to this class of 1937 we want to give you a good send off. We are glad to have had you with us; you have lived, shared and journeyed with us through these years of school. We realize that, in your sophistication, sometimes you had little patience with us for, after all, were you not the mighty seniors, the lords of all?

Some of you tell us of a let-down feeling you have now that you are leaving, but don't let it get you down. You'll go on to something bigger and better while we'll still be trying to please a faculty, and that's a hard job in any man's college.

But we can't pass out much advice to you, for we're not seniors — yet; but if we can get in enough "crip" courses we'll be one yet—and then we'll know how it feels to be getting ready to leave P. C.

This Year's Crop of Gold "P" Winners

Six men on commencement day will receive the highest awards a student at Presbyterian College can get when they receive gold "P"s. This award long has been a symbol at Presbyterian as the top recognition to an outstanding student.

But sometimes editors are prone to be disagreeable and not always sure gold "P"s are given to the proper ones.

Certainly The Blue Stocking editor won his, if hard work is any requirement to win one. Last year's paper was one of the best ever issued at Presbyterian College.

The Pac-Sac editor always deserves such an award. As well as does the work of the editor of The Collegian although the magazine has not been any more outstanding in the past year than any other year. The president of the student council certainly deserves one for his work during the past year, as does the president of the Y. M. C. A., which accomplished a great work during the year. The president of the glee club won his not entirely for his work on the glee club, for the work of that organization was not much more outstanding than in the past year. But a man of his rank in the college certainly deserved such an award. A battalion ender colonel he deserved it, if for nothing else. Which causes us to add that the faculty has certainly failed to classify perhaps the highest single honor in the student body among student activities, that of cadet colonel of the R. O. T. C. In our opinion the highest honor a man at Presbyterian can receive is that of the rank of cadet colonel.

But there were supposed to be Gold "P"s forthcoming from the debating team, dramatic club, the business staffs of The Blue Stocking and The Collegian, which did not come because no person showed himself to be outstanding enough in any of these fields to receive such an award.

Thus we have the year's crop of Gold "P"s and there you are, gentlemen, the elect and the select of Presbyterian College.

What Can You College Students Do?

Henry Drummond in his little book, The Greatest Thing in the World," asks the question: What is the summum bonum—the greatest good. He finds that the supreme gift or noblest object of desire, or the supreme gift to covet is Love. May we not state the proposition in another way. We believe the greatest good or the summum bonum of life or the greatest object of desire is the Perfect Life. Perfection and Love run hand in hand. We shall however in this case speak only of life as a perfect thing.

In the world about us the adventure of trying to become perfect is thrilling and daring. In the world of books or experiences the adventure is just the same. There are many accomplishments whereby the student may near unto the perfect. Young man, have you ever played football, basketball, baseball, boxed, bowled, or taken part and are able to take part in most of our sports, have you ever made a decent grade in books, have you learned to play an instrument, can you sing, do you know anything about culture and refinement, can you speak freely in public, do you take an interest in many organizations on this campus, can you write a story, poem or music, can you lead an organization? If not, then you have a few things to accomplish in life. Can you ride horseback, drive a car, pilot an airplane, engineer a locomotive, are you a good bookeeper, do you know stenography! You see, you don't know it all quite yet. Do you think you would make a good actor?

Young woman, can you play an instrument, can you sing and dance, can you make good grades in your work, do you know anything about stenography, do you know the simple rudiments of housekeeping, can you speak well in public, can you lead a group, do you know culture and refinement and the where and whyfore of an Emily Post, can you ride a horse, pilot an airplane, drive an automobile, make a dress, do you know anything about sports, at least enough to understand that, "the White Sox have a run" doesn't mean what it says, do you know books, the latest creations, do you think you would make a good actress, or even an opera singer? Then how do you think you'll ever be the perfect woman? You see, you don't know it all, do you?

You see, young man and young woman, you'll never get through learning if you care to be that way. You'll never get to such a state that you can't improve yourself and increase the number of your accomplishments.

So, Mr. Senior, and Miss Senior, every day is but a preparation for the next day; that is, if you're getting anywhere in this world. What do you know about life? You've only begun to learn even as you approach the end of life. There are so many things to learn and such a short life to learn them in.

But there are so many of them that you can learn, if you will.

Fraternity activities for the year have ceased. Leaving a record that has been unequaled for variety and intensity of fraternity interest in various campus and intramural activities during the past few years, interest now turns toward the opportunities offered by summer vacations.

Beta Kappa and Kappa Alpha plan house parties at Pawley's Island the first week in June. Plans for others are as yet incomplete.

Fraternity success has marked the past year. Elections sometimes used by fraternities as a means of building up the chapter have been remarkably free of fraternity politics. Evidently the spirit of "dog eat dog" is being relegated to its proper place.

Intramural sports have been stressed this year. Fraternity competition has been stiffer, interest in such sports has been more in evidence, and the socials have been fine. The number of men pledged by fraternities has been [illegible]

The annual session of rejoicing, complaining, and explaining began again last week with the announcement of the advanced corps for next year. Corps headquarters seems to have stepped in with a proposed curtailment of appropriations that threatened to limit the number to be taken in this time. Anyway, there are twenty-five men being examined and outfitted as future officers. Congratulations to you.

On this same subject it is quite a compliment to the corps that men are anxious enough to receive this course of training to work with the advanced classes though they are not to be on the government payroll. Espirit de corps, or something.

We feel that it would not be fair to let all the publicity regarding the proposed Home-Guard parade go uncontended. Since the affair died in its infancy, we can only hope to see the attempt some other year. There is only one flaw. We can't see how is men who couldn't learn to carry rifles in two years can be taught to carry "[illegible]" racquets.

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

The last issue of this year's Blue Stocking, the last appearance of Pen-Points, so what more appropriate than a brief sketch of prospects for next year's athletic teams?

FOOTBALL—With most of this year's first-string preparing for graduation, and only mediocre sophomore talent in the making, prospects aren't very optimistic. Looks like a weaker eleven next fall unless wise Walter presents some new material.

BASKETBALL—The entire personnel, reinforced by the Griffin brothers, will form a five that should make a serious bid for title honors. Prospects the most optimistic in a decade.

BOXING—The loss of Cappelmann will hurt, but Clements, Lambright, Buchan, Burns, Todd and others will offer a strong nucleus. This year's R.O.T.C. material may bring forth a star. Squad should be as strong next season.

SWIMMING—Looks like a revival of the water sport. Main strength to come from the sophomore class, which will offer several capable tankmen. Prospects excellent.

BASEBALL—The loss of Evans, Euggs, Weldon, Harvin and Bird would make anybody's nine look weak, but Chick may be able to build up a good outfit with the help of this year's crop of "new boys." Team won't be as good as the '37 state champs.

TRACK—We forecast about the same type of outfit that performed in '87. No outstanding frosh trackmen to call on, except Rawls, but the cinder squad will be as good.

TENNIS—A definitely better team will take to the courts, with Boykin and others supplementing the present crop of racqueteers.

PARACHUTE-JUMPING—With McElroy expected to return, prospects are too marvelous for words.

Dormitory Team Takes Tourney

Smyth-Laurens Tops Alumni-Spencer By 18-5 Count.

FRATS ELIMINATED

In a "battle of dormitories," the Smyth-Laurens team whipped a composite group representing Alumni and Spencer to take the annual intramural baseball crown in an 18-5 triumph.

The victorious nine polished off Beta Kappa, 10-7, and Pi Kappa Phi, 13-3, to reach the finals, while Alumni-Spencer beat Kappa Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha. Hollis' pitching and an even distribution of battling power gave the Smyth-Laurens outfit the decision. A double play, from Weathers to Majors to St. John, and St. John's batting featured the contest.

Alpha Lambda Tau, last year's champions, were upset, 8 to 7, in the opening round by the Pi Kappa Alphat frat, which in turn lost to the dormitory bunch. Kappa Alpha, runner-up last year, also was eliminated in the opening round.

Suggs Stars In Farewell Performance On Local Diamond.

BLACKWELL FIELDS WELL

Chick Galloway's fast-stepping outfit pushed over two runs in the eighth to take a 6 to 5 decision over Clemson and cop South Carolina's hotly-contested 1937 collegiate baseball championship. The clash took place on the P. C. field Monday afternoon.

Lefty Suggs struck out 10, allowed eight hits and blasted out a triple and two singles to bring to close a brilliant career here. His three-base blow in the eighth started a rally that gave the Hose nine stimulation to pull a game from the fire.

Osman To Run In Meet At Atlanta

Former P. C. Track Star To Attempt Comeback In A. A. U. To Be Held Friday.

John E. "Turk" Osman, one of the greatest track men that South Carolina has ever seen and now field secretary for his alma mater, Presbyterian college, will attempt to stage a running comeback in the Southeastern A. A. U. track and field meet to be held on Grant Field at Georgia Tech in Atlanta on Friday, May 29. He plans to enter the 880-yard run.

During the four-year period of his college career, ending in 1933, "Turk" was considered one of the best middle distance runners in college circles in the South. He won the Southeastern division of the Olympic preliminaries in the 880 in 1932, but the sudden illness of his mother prevented his entering the Eastern division.

Running as anchor man on Presbyterian college's relay teams during his college career, he helped set the Southeastern A. A. U. mile relay record. In 1933 P. C. sent its relay squad to the Penn relays. Osman as anchor man took the baton with most of the field ahead of him and galloped to track fame as he passed man after man to give his team second place.

Another of his outstanding feats was winning the 440, 880 and mile in

Blackwell Named Baseball Captain

First Sacker To Lead Hosemen In 1938 Campaign.

William Blackwell, first baseman on Presbyterian college's championship baseball team, was selected by his team mates to captain the 1938 edition of Chick Galloway's pastimers.

"Blackie" is a rising senior and for three years has played ball for the Blue Hose. A stellar first baseman, his outstanding attributes as a player are more than snagging the swift pitches to first plate and hitting the ball, for he is a dynamic force on the squad, always bubbling over with spirit and never ready to say "die."

In 1938 he will lead a baseball team defending a championship without the aid of pitchers Suggs and Weldon, short stop Harvin, and hard-hitting right fielder Evans.

Blackwell is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity and a lieutenant in R.O.T.C. ratings.

PITCHING OF SUGGS, AND HITTING OF EVANS, FOLLEY, BATCHELOR HIGHLIGHTS OF BASEBALL YEAR

A statistical summary of the 1937 seasons reveals that Presbyterian college's state championship baseball team rode to league supremacy largely on the skilled pitching of John "Lefty" Suggs and the hitting of left fielder "Hawk" Evans, right fielder Louis Folley, and sophomore third baseman Giles Batchelor.

The hosemen stepped to the plate officially 495 times and garnered 139 hits. They converted these hits into 87 runs, 79 of which were earned.

Pitching sensation was Suggs, who won seven out of his eight league games, allowed but 18 runs, only 16 of which were earned, pitched 72 innings, giving up 48 hits and striking out 46 batters.

Coon Weldon, while winning only one of his four games, turned in the enviable record of striking out 54 men in 38 innings of pitching.

Louis Folley, right fielder who joined the team as a regular moving from the bench near the middle of the season, proved himself to be a man who hit in the pinches. He garnered only eight hits and two runs out of 28 trips to the plate, but he batted in 13 runs to tie with "Hawk" Evans for honors. Giles Batchelor was third in runs batted in with 11.

Individual statistics of the season, considering the fourteen league games are:

This Year's Crop of Gold "P" Winners

Six men on commencement day will receive the highest awards a student at Presbyterian College can get when they receive gold "P"s. This award long has been a symbol at Presbyterian as the top recognition to an outstanding student.

But sometimes editors are prone to be disagreeable and not always sure gold "P"s are given to the proper ones.

Certainly The Blue Stocking editor won his, if hard work is any requirement to win one. Last year's paper was one of the best ever issued at Presbyterian College.

The Pac-Sac editor always deserves such an award. As well as does the work of the editor of The Collegian although the magazine has not been any more outstanding in the past year than any other year. The president of the student council certainly deserves one for his work during the past year, as does the president of the Y. M. C. A., which accomplished a great work during the year. The president of the glee club won his not entirely for his work on the glee club, for the work of that organization was not much more outstanding than in the past year. But a man of his rank in the college certainly deserved such an award. As Latzalium can't indeed he deserved it, if for nothing else. Which causes us to add that the faculty has certainly failed to classify perhaps the highest single honor in the student body among student activities, that of cadet colonel of the R. O. T. C. In our opinion the highest honor a man at Presbyterian can receive is that of the rank of cadet colonel.

But there were supposed to be Gold "P"s forthcoming from the debating team, dramatic club, the business staffs of The Blue Stocking and The Collegian, which did not come because no person showed himself to be outstanding enough in any of these fields to receive such an award.

Thus we have the year's crop of Gold "P"s and there you are, gentlemen, the elect and the select of Presbyterian College.

What Can You College Students Do?

Henry Drummond in his little book, The Greatest Thing in the World," asks the question: What is the summum bonum—the greatest good. He finds that the supreme gift or noblest object of desire, or the supreme gift to covet is Love. May we not state the proposition in another way. We believe the greatest good or the summum bonum of life or the greatest object of desire is the Perfect Life. Perfection and Love run hand in hand. We shall however in this case speak only of life as a perfect thing.

In the world about us the adventure of trying to become perfect is thrilling and daring. In the world of books or experiences the adventure is just the same. There are many accomplishments whereby the student may near unto the perfect. Young man, have you ever played football, basketball, baseball, boxed, bowled, or taken part and are able to take part in most of our sports, have you ever made a decent grade in books, have you learned to play an instrument, can you sing, do you know anything about culture and refinement, can you speak freely in public, do you take an interest in many organizations on this campus, can you write a story, poem or music, can you lead an organization? If not, then you have a few things to accomplish in life. Can you ride horseback, drive a car, pilot an airplane, engineer a locomotive, are you a good bookeeper, do you know stenography! You see, you don't know it all quite yet. Do you think you would make a good actor?

Young woman, can you play an instrument, can you sing and dance, can you make good grades in your work, do you know anything about stenography, do you know the simple rudiments of housekeeping, can you speak well in public, can you lead a group, do you know culture and refinement and the where and whyfore of an Emily Post, can you ride a horse, pilot an airplane, drive an automobile, make a dress, do you know anything about sports, at least enough to understand that, "the White Sox have a run" doesn't mean what it says, do you know books, the latest creations, do you think you would make a good actress, or even an opera singer? Then how do you think you'll ever be the perfect woman? You see, you don't know it all, do you?

You see, young man and young woman, you'll never get through learning if you care to be that way. You'll never get to such a state that you can't improve yourself and increase the number of your accomplishments.

So, Mr. Senior, and Miss Senior, every day is but a preparation for the next day; that is, if you're getting anywhere in this world. What do you know about life? You've only begun to learn even as you approach the end of life. There are so many things to learn and such a short life to learn them in.

But there are so many of them that you can learn, if you will.

Fraternity activities for the year have ceased. Leaving a record that has been unequaled for variety and intensity of fraternity interest in various campus and intramural activities during the past few years, interest now turns toward the opportunities offered by summer vacations.

Beta Kappa and Kappa Alpha plan house parties at Pawley's Island the first week in June. Plans for others are as yet incomplete.

Fraternity success has marked the past year. Elections sometimes used by fraternities as a means of building up the chapter have been remarkably free of fraternity politics. Evidently the spirit of "dog eat dog" is being relegated to its proper place.

Intramural sports have been stressed this year. Fraternity competition has been stiffer, interest in such sports has been more in evidence, and the socials have been fine. The number of men pledged by fraternities has been above the average of the past few years.

The annual session of rejoicing, complaining, and explaining began again last week with the announcement of the advanced corps for next year. Corps headquarters seems to have stepped in with a proposed curtailment of appropriations that threatened to limit the number to be taken in this time. Anyway, there are twenty-five men being examined and outfitted as future officers. Congratulations to you.

On this same subject it is quite a compliment to the corps that men are anxious enough to receive this course of training to work with the advanced classes though they are not to be on the government payroll. Espirit de corps, or something.

We feel that it would not be fair to let all the publicity regarding the proposed Home-Guard parade go unchallenged. Since the affair died in its infancy, we can only hope to see the attempt some other year. There is only one flaw. We can't see how men who couldn't learn to carry rifles in two years can be taught to carry "tennis" racquets.

Last week the juniors who are slated for a term of camp life this summer received typed orders and the [illegible] are to whom E. comes as Major Wysor has been rather confused during the past week as to where he is to be stationed in the future. While no orders have come from the war office, the Major has learned from a number of sources about town that he will be at Fort McClellan, in China, on the Pacific Coast as well as half-a-dozen other stations from Alaska to the Philippines. Wherever the war department decides to send him, we wish him the best of luck.

In a couple of weeks the senior class will be headed for that well-known suberb of Hades in Asheville. After estimating the stories that have told us about it to be half true, we figure that there are twenty-five men headed for some hard work. This is all true, there, is but one appropriate conclusion for this column. "We who are about to the salute you."

PEN-POINTS

By JAKE PENLAND

The last issue of this year's Blue Stocking, the last appearance of Pen-Points, so what more appropriate than a brief sketch of prospects for next year's athletic teams?

FOOTBALL—With most of this year's first-string preparing for graduation, and only mediocre sophomore talent in the making, prospects aren't very optimistic. Looks like a weaker eleven next fall unless wise Walter presents some new material.

BASKETBALL—The entire personnel, reinforced by the Griffin brothers, will form a five that should make a serious bid for title honors. Prospects the most optimistic in a decade.

BOXING—The loss of Cappelmann will hurt, but Clements, Lambright, Buchan, Burns, Todd and others will offer a strong nucleus. This year's R.O.T.C. material may bring forth a star. Squad should be as strong next season.

SWIMMING—Looks like a revival of the water sport. Main strength to come from the sophomore class, which will offer several capable tankmen. Prospects excellent.

BASEBALL—The loss of Evans, Euggs, Weldon, Harvin and Bird would make anybody's nine look weak, but Chick may be able to build up a good outfit with the help of this year's crop of "new boys." Team won't be as good as the '37 state champs.

TRACK—We forecast about the same type of outfit that performed in '37. No outstanding frosh trackmen to call on, except Rawls, but the cinder squad will be as good.

TENNIS—A definitely better team will take to the courts, with Boykin and others supplementing the present crop of racqueteers.

PARACHUTE-JUMPING—With McElroy expected to return, prospects are too marvelous for words.

Dormitory Team Takes Tourney

Smyth-Laurens Tops Alumni-Spencer By 18-5 Count.

FRATS ELIMINATED

In a "battle of dormitories," the Smyth-Laurens team whipped a composite group representing Alumni and Spencer to take the annual intramural baseball crown in an 18-5 triumph.

The victorious nine polished off Beta Kappa, 10-7, and Pi Kappa Phi, 13-3, to reach the finals, while Alumni-Spencer beat Kappa Alpha and Pi Kappa Alpha. Hollis' pitching and an even distribution of battling power gave the Smyth-Laurens outfit the decision. A double play, from Weathers to Majors to St. John, and St. John's batting featured the contest.

Alpha Lambda Tau, last year's champions, were upset, 8 to 7, in the opening round by the Pi Kappa Alphat frat, which in turn lost to the dormitory bunch. Kappa Alpha, runner-up last year, also was eliminated in the opening round.

DEFEAT OF CLEMSON HERE OFFERS UNDISPUTED CLAIM

Suggs Stars In Farewell Performance On Local Diamond.

BLACKWELL FIELDS WELL

Chick Galloway's fast-stepping outfit pushed over two runs in the eighth to take a 6 to 5 decision over Clemson and cop South Carolina's hotly-contested 1937 collegiate baseball championship. The clash took place on the P. C. field Monday afternoon.

Lefty Suggs struck out 10, allowed eight hits and blasted out a triple and two singles to bring to close a brilliant career here. His threebase blow in the eighth started a rally that gave the Hose nine stimulation to pull a game from the fire.

Osman To Run In Meet At Atlanta

Former P. C. Track Star To Attempt Comeback In A. A. U. To Be Held Friday.

John E. "Turk" Osman, one of the greatest track men that South Carolina has ever seen and now field secretary for his alma mater, Presbyterian college, will attempt to stage a running comeback in the Southeastern A. A. U. track and field meet to be held on Grant field at Georgia Tech in Atlanta on Friday, May 29. He plans to enter the 880-yard run.

During the four-year period of his college career, ending in 1933, "Turk" was considered one of the best middle distance runners in college circles in the South. He won the Southeastern division of the Olympic preliminaries in the 880 in 1932, but the sudden illness of his mother prevented his entering the Eastern division.

Running as anchor man on Presbyterian college's relay teams during his college career, he helped set the Southeastern A. A. U. mile relay record. In 1933 P. C. sent its relay squad to the Penn relays. Osman as anchor man took the baton with most of the field ahead of him and galloped to track fame as he passed man after man to give his team second place.

Another of his outstanding feats was winning the 440, 880 and mile in

Blackwell Named Baseball Captain

First Sacker To Lead Hosemen In 1938 Campaign.

William Blackwell, first baseman on Presbyterian college's championship baseball team, was selected by his team mates to captain the 1938 edition of Chick Galloway's pastimers.

"Blackie" is a rising senior and for three years has played ball for the Blue Hose. A stellar first baseman, his outstanding attributes as a player are more than snagging the swift pitches to first plate and hitting the ball, for he is a dynamic force on the squad, always bubbling over with spirit and never ready to say "die."

In 1938 he will lead a baseball team defending a championship without the aid of pitchers Suggs and Weldon, short stop Harvin, and hard-hitting right fielder Evans.

Blackwell is a member of Alpha Lambda Tau fraternity and a lieutenant in R.O.T.C. ratings.

PITCHING OF SUGGS, AND HITTING OF EVANS, FOLLEY, BATCHELOR HIGHLIGHTS OF BASEBALL YEAR

A statistical summary of the 1937 seasons reveals that Presbyterian college's state championship baseball team rode to league supremacy largely on the skilled pitching of John "Lefty" Suggs and the hitting of left fielder "Hawk" Evans, right fielder Louis Folley, and sophomore third baseman Giles Batchelor.

The Hosemen stepped to the plate officially 495 times and garnered 139 hits. They converted these hits into 87 runs, 79 of which were earned.

Pitching sensation was Suggs, who won seven out of his eight league games, allowed but 18 runs, only 16 of which were earned, pitched 72 innings, giving up 48 hits and striking out 46 batters.

Coon Weldon, while winning only one of his four games, turned in the enviable record of striking out 54 men in 38 innings of pitching.

Louis Folley, right fielder who joined the team as a regular moving from the bench near the middle of the season, proved himself to be a man who hit in the pinches. He garnered only eight hits and two runs out of 28 trips to the plate, but he batted in 13 runs to tie with "Hawk" Evans for honors. Giles Batchelor was third in runs batted in with 11.

Individual statistics of the season, considering the fourteen league games are:

Dramatic Club Elects Officers

At its last meeting of the year last week the Dramatic club elected Robert Black, rising junior of York, as its president for next year. Moffet Wylie, rising junior of Clover, was elected vice-president, while George Beatty, rising senior was chosen as secretary-treasurer.

Black succeeds Eldred F. MacLeod, of Bennettsville, who has been president during the past year.

The Dramatic club has completed a successful year, and President Black stated he would try to continue the work of the club next year.

Reporter Interviews Infirmary Matron

"How do you account of the greater number of cases, yet fewer serious ones this year?" A reporter for The Blue Stocking asked Mrs. McSwain, the infirmary mother who has carefully and unselfishly nursed over 175 cases during the year, including everything from sore toes to "flu."

She smiled in her friendly way as she answered, "I think, this year, when a man began to feel sick he did not hesitate to come down to the infirmary, just to take a dose of medicine, and consequently prevented serious sickness. Last year a man felt more like putting off taking the necessary dose until he became really sick."

Mrs. "Mac" asked to be allowed to make a general statement to "her boys," as she affectionately calls them. "I just want the boys to know," she told us, "that I think they have been as nice as they could be . . . I have enjoyed my work because of this, and I want them to know that I love them all." Herein lies the real reason why the boys feel free to go to the infirmary at the slightest provocation, thus perhaps preventing serious illness.

order of the day. We've seen it start; time will see it completed.

Jacbos Ends Year

This semester President William P. Jacobs ended his first year as permanent president of P. C. In that short time he restored a waning confidence, wrought progress out of stagnation, began to make P. C. "national" rather than "Laurens County."

Campus Movies

A complete resume of campus life was recorded, beginning early in the present semester and ending recently, by means of motion pictures. With the spring shots in technicolor, the film will do more toward bringing P. C. before the eyes of prospective students and friends of the college than many pages of advertising.

Awarding Degrees

The board of trustees and the administration announce awarding of degrees to Joseph E. Davies, ambassador to Russia; James F. Byrnes, United States senator from South Carolina; and Dwight E. Austin, New York business man. P. C. took one more step toward the "big time."

National Broadcast

When unforseen catastrophies made attendance of Davies and Austin impossible, a national hookup through the Columbia Broadcasting system was arranged, with Secretary of State Cordell Hull acting for P. C. in Washington.

National publicity, greater recognition, a small denominational school in the Piedmont begins to make its voice heard.

Faculty-Student Relations

Last—and this one has not been a sudden event, but rather a slow unfolding—better relations between faculty and students were encouraged through smokers, forums, and the like. Students began to realize that professors weren't such bad guys after all.

Presbyterian Unit Takes R.O.T.C. Honors

FIFTY-EIGHTH SCHOOL SESSION OPENS

E. A. Johnson Elevated To Cadet Major

CORPS WINS TWO AWARDS AT M'CLELLAN

Adjudged Highest In Proficiency and Discipline At Summer Training Camp.

RECEIVES AWARD FOR EIGHTH TIME

The Presbyterian college military class of this year, in six weeks' training at Fort McClellan, near Anniston, Ala., this summer during June and July won for the eighth time the general proficiency cup in competition against all military colleges and colleges having R. O. T. C. unitis in the Fourth Corps area. The P. C. unit also was awarded the discipline cup. The cups were presented at special presentation ceremonies on the last day of camp.

The Presbyterian college group has won the general proficiency cup eight times out of the fifteen that it has been offered and has always placed among the first three in competition for the cup, with the exception of once.

Major R. E. Wysor, Jr., professor of military science and tactics at Presbyterian college for the past eight years, trained the group. His groups have captured the cup every time with the exception of once since he has been at P. C. He was recently transferred to active duty in Wyoming, and Major Floyd C. Harding, assistant professor of military science and tactics last year, is now commandant of the Presbyterian college unit.

Major Harding was in camp at Fort McClellan in charge of the P. C. group and was executive officer of one of the companies.

The general proficiency cup is awarded to the group which makes the highest average rating on all phases of infantry training. Each cadet is rated individually by the officer in charge of his group. The college whose cadets have the highest individual ratings wins the cup.

The discipline cup, until last year considered a part of the general proficiency award, is given to the unit having the best discipline. It is presented by the Chamber of Commerce of Anniston. The cups have been placed in the trophy case in the rotunda of the administration building.

There were 27 men in the P. C. group at Fort McClellan. Clyde Conrad, a member of the unit, attended the chemical warfare training camp at Edgewood arsenal, Maryland. In what was perhaps the most extensive training, rifle marksmanship, fifteen of P. C.'s men made scores high enough to qualify as marksmen.

The comparative rating of the units in competition for the Fourth Corps area general proficiency cup is as follows, in the order named: Presbyterian college, University of Alabama, Louisiana State university, University of Mississippi, University of Florida, The Citadel, North Carolina state, Clemson, University of Tennessee, Georgia Tech, University of Georgia, Wofford college, Davidson college, Mississippi State college.

The comparative rating of units in competition for the Anniston disciplinary trophy, in order named: Presbyterian college, Georgia Tech, University of Florida, Missippi State, Davidson college, North Carolina State, University of Georgia, Louisiana State university, Wofford college, Clemson, University of Alabama, University of Tennessee, The Citadel, University of Mississippi.

THREE HUNDRED TWENTY-SEVEN STUDENTS ARE NOW ENROLLED

Regular Classes Begun Saturday Morning.

NEW STUDENTS ARE VARIED IN INTERESTS

Presbyterian college opened its fifty-eighth session with its orientation program for freshmen beginning last Tuesday evening and the first regular classes beginning Saturday morning. Today the enrollment stood at 327, with 113 of these freshmen, 13 transfers, and 201 old students. Thirty of the enrolled students were co-eds.

Orientation of the freshmen was carried on by the Y.M.C.A. under the direction of "Y" President Wandell Williams. Special classes were held for the freshmen beginning Thursday. During Wednesday and Thursday they were given English and special placement tests. The first chapel for all students was held Friday morning. The freshmen registered Wednesday while the upper classmen registered Friday.

The freshman class at Presbyterian this year is a varied and interesting group of young men and women. With the present figure standing at 105 boys and eight girls, they represent many interests and activities.

Of the group, 47 were members of some honor society while in high school. The national honorary Beta club led the list of honor organizations of which they were members.

Twenty per cent of them were scholastic honor graduates in their high schools, while 20 per cent took part in debating, and 20 per cent in oratory.

There is a strong indicat on that their non-athletic extra curricular activities will run strongly toward publications, since 27 of them served on the staffs of high school publications and five were editors.

Athletically, the group represents 31 high school captains and 13 men who had all-state distinctions in athletics.

Sixty-six of them are natives of South Carolina. Nineteen came from Georgia and 12 from North Carolina. Florida contributed seven, West Virginia, Wyoming and Arkansas one each. Two are from China.

Home Guard Corps Starts Early Drill

While the R.O.T.C., with much bluster and show, began drill this morning, the Home Guards corps and bucket brigade unassumingly and very quietly went through their first drill. Lieut. Col. Eldred (Elrod) MacLeod, pride of Bennettsville, S. C., yawned very contentedly as he lay snug in his bed when the reporter went in to interview him. He said the morning drill had been perfect, and believed the rest of the corps had rested well during their after-breakfast snooze.

When questioned about further appointments on the Home Guard staff, Colonel MacLeod remained silent. However, by the grapevine route we learned that C. D. Jacobs, robust, hard-boiled militant, had been appointed as master sergeant. Further news could not be secured about appointments.

Colonel MacLeod, a quiet, mild-mannered, unassuming and modest person, the very epitome of the timid soul, declined to talk about the corps' plans, saying, "No, sir, I'm not telling the press anything."

Rat Run Scheduled For Tuesday Night

Members of the class of '41 have a novel experience in store for them on Tuesday, Sept. 14. On this date the annual rat run is scheduled. At 7:15 all freshmen will assemble on the Plaza, with their faces blacked. Football players will streak their faces. The freshmen must wear pajama tops and a pair of old trousers.

They will march uptown from the Plaza and visit the various mercantile establishments that are open, and it is expected the boys will be "treated" on their rounds. Later a circle will be formed around the monument in the town square and talented frosh will sing and dance, and engage in an onion-eating contest. Following this, the rats will "run the gauntlet." A free show at the Casino will end the evening's festivities.

I. R. C. FORMULATISG PLANS FOR NEW YEAR

The International Relations club will hold its first meeting of the year this week. President Jack Witherspoon will announce the date later. All meetings will be held in the forum room this year. At the first meeting plans for the session will be discussed, and program committee appointed. This year every fourth meeting will be "open house," with visitors invited.

There are four or five vacancies in membership that must be filled by November. Anyone interested is asked to get in touch with Witherspoon.

"With the world in such an unstable condition, with two wars on hand, and another brewing, there has never been a more appropriate time to become affiliated with such an organization as the I. R. C.," stated President Witherspoon. "The club endeavors to look fairly at both sides of all world questions, to form abyes of current events, and to discuss all questions pro and con."

Y.M.C.A. Welcomes Freshman Class

Sponsors Reception Saturday Evening. Young Ladies of the Community Present.

On Saturday night the Presbyterian college Plaza was alive with gaiety and laughter for the Y.M.C.A. was there entertaining the class of '41 in the annual rat reception. Some ninety-odd young ladies from Clinton and Laurens were in attendance at the affair.

Early in the evening members of the fair sex gathered in front of the Administration building where they met their "rat" escorts. The couples then journeyed to the Y.M.C.A. building where they were received by the president of the Y.M.C.A., the president of the student body, members of the faculty and their wives. Delicious punch and crackers were served in the "Y" building during the course of the evening.

After a short while the couples moved out on the Plaza where they exchanged dates every ten minutes and promenaded over a moonlit campus. From then on it was left up to the freshmen to acquaint themselves, which, it is understood, they did very well.

Due to the overflow of the freshman class and the unusually large number of young ladies attending, the reception was one of the largest ever held by the Y.M.C.A.

FIVE CHANGES MADE IN FACULTY AS THREE ARE ADDED TO STAFF

Handbook Ready At Early Date

The Y.M.C.A. student handbook, which was supposed to have been off the press by September 1, will be completed this week, and ready for distribution by the publicity department of the "Y," L. G. Heckle, editor of the publication, announced today.

The editorial staff of the handbook completed the book before the close of last year's school term and it has been in the hands of Jacobs Graphic Arts company, printers, since that time.

The delay in printing has been due to the fact that proofs of the book had to be made in Atlanta, Ga., and shipped to Clinton for correction, and then back to Atlanta, a representative of the printers told a reporter for The Blue Stocking today.

The handbook is intended primarily as a guide to the freshmen in order that he might become familiar with the college and the various organizations and their leaders as soon as possible.

Hamrick, Weber and Cummings Join P. C. Faculty.

HARDING HEADS MILITARY, BOYD NOW IN BIBLE DEPT.

The administration has announced the addition to the faculty of the following: Major Alexander Cummings, Dr. Clarence Rudolph Hamrick, and Professor Kurt Weber. All three of these men are outstanding their respective fields of work and come to Presbyterian with high records.

Major Cummings, of the United States army, will take up the duties of assistant professor of military science and tactics. He succeeds Major Floyd C. Harding, who has been promoted to professor of military science and tactics. Major Cummings comes to Clinton from the Presidio, San Francesco, California.

Dr. Hamrick will be professor of education during the coming school year, filling the vacancy left when Dr. R. L. Cox's leave of absence was extended for another year. Dr. Hamrick is a graduate of Hendrix College, [illegible] received his master's degree from the University of Virginia

Clinton, S. C., Monday, September 13, 1937

Welcome, Freshmen!

The student body, the faculty, and the administration welcome you as students of Presbyterian College.

We hope you have found things up to your expectations since you arrived here. The entire college has endeavored to make you feel truly welcome, and we hope we have succeeded in making you feel a part of the student body and the work here.

We want you to become a part of our school and to fit in with the work. In the new type of personalized education you will find here, you will see how easy it is for you to become an active member of the student body. We desire that you take part in as many activities as you will, for there is a wide choice from which to select. We trust that you have so far found college life very pleasant.

But let us add a word of caution: After the welcoming ceremonies are over we shall have accepted you as a part of the college, and as such we expect you to act as befits the school by doing your best to make the most of your new life here. Soon you will have to get down to brass tacks; there will be studying to do; there will be numerous other things, too, that you perhaps do not consider to be entirely pleasant. But for a successful college career here everyone must work and accomplish, and to enjoy the really pleasant things of college life you must first be satisfied that you have done your work fully.

Congratulations To The R. O. T. C.
